US gas prices tick up, ending 99-day streak of lower costs

Jennifer Quinn fills her SUV at a gas station Monday, March 7, 2022, in Needham, Mass. The average price of regular gasoline nationwide is up slightly Wednesday, Sept. 21, from a day earlier, the first time prices have climbed in 99 days.

A 99-day run of falling gasoline prices — a streak that gave consumers a glimmer of hope that red-hot inflation might be cooling — has ended, with pump prices still much higher than a year ago.

The nationwide average price for a gallon ticked up less than a penny Wednesday, to $3.68 a gallon, according to AAA. That's down from the record $5.02 average in mid-June.

The question now is whether Wednesday's increase is just a blip or the precursor to the return of higher prices. The answer matters to motorists and to President Joe Biden, who

Gila County Historical Museum opens a new exhibit of night-sky and nature photography by Globe artist Amanda Moors with a meet-the-artist reception this evening at the museum.

Old Dominion Days at the Gila County Historical Museum kicks off tonight (Wednesday, Sept. 28) with a meet-the-artist reception hosted by Globe photographer Amanda Moors. Her exhibit features new works captured this summer including long-exposure scenes of the Milky Way during the summer months when the galaxy's breathtaking 'core' is visible on darkest nights. Lightning photos from 2022 summer storms, and even creative timelapse videos of these subjects and more will also be shown on a flatscreen TV the museum installed to accompany this exhibit.

A professional wildlife biologist and Globe resident since 1995, Moors specializes in biological surveys for the U.S. Forest Service, University of Arizona, Bureau of Land Management, local ranchers and the San Carlos Apache Tribe. A long-time volunteer with the Becoming an Outdoorswoman workshops in Arizona, she also serves on the Arizona

Wildlife Federation's board of directors, and as its treasurer. In 2002, two decades ago, she created and launched the website coueswhitetail.com, which quickly became the 'Go To' portal for all who are equally enthralled with Coues Whitetail deer. Her exhibit in the Gila County Historical Museum continues into October; for additional details check the museum's website, gilahistoricalmuseum.

Our trials are the preparation for God's future purpose for our life.

Have you ever experienced a situation that seemed impossible to endure? Years later, did you realize how that trial prepared you for things to come? The Scriptures tell us that the Lord sometimes allows us to be "sifted" for greater service. In other words, He may give Satan permission to affect an area of our life and thereby transform us into stronger witnesses for Him.

In today's passage, Jesus explains this process to Peter: "Satan has demanded to sift you men like wheat; but I have prayed for you, that your faith will not fail; and you, when you have turned back, strengthen your brothers." Jesus knew what was coming—His death, resurrection, and ascension—and He expected Peter to lead the disciples and accomplish great things for the kingdom. But Peter wasn't ready.

So the Lord allowed Satan to "sift"

Peter. In so doing, God separated the "wheat" from the "chaff"—the righteous areas of Peter's life from the ungodly areas. Ultimately, the disciple grew from the experience and played a key role in spreading the gospel. Had God not allowed this sifting, Peter wouldn't have been prepared for the events to come. Ask God to bring into focus similar ways that He's used difficulties for your ultimate good.

Understanding

By DR. DAN MORTON
Contributor

As a young boy in church, I saw an old gentleman using a device called an "ear trumpet." It looked like a small version of the musical instrument. To hear the message in the service, he would place the small end to his ear and point the larger horn-end toward the speaker.

As I got older, this item was replaced by a "hearing aid" that consisted of an electronic device that was battery operated and had a package about the size of a postcard. This held the batteries, amplifier and microphone. It was worn on the chest on the outside of the clothing. It would amplify all sounds and transmit through wires to the ear. It did make the sound louder.

Later, this item was significantly reduced in size and weight with the development of the transistor and improvement in batteries. Except for the earpiece, the rest could be concealed under the clothing and the social stigma was reduced.

Jesus was answering a question posed by his disciples as to why he spoke in parables. He replied that the people, "Though seeing, they do not see; though hearing, they do not hear or understand." (Matthew 13:13) This pointed out a secondary problem...understanding.

Today's devices not only amplify but enhance understanding through clarification. "He who has ears, let him hear." (Matthew 11:15)

Update on Baby Äskar Kannegaard fundraising efforts

Thank you, Globe-Miami community and surrounding areas, for your gracious and generous giving these past months since we first shared this financial need. Recall that baby Äskar Kannegaard was born into this world in April of last year with a badly formed heart. Thanks be to God, our dear boy was gifted with a new transplanted heart about eight weeks ago, even as he faces ongoing recovery challenges.

The Children's Organ Transplant Association (COTA) exists to help families with the accompanying lifelong medical costs. They ask that families initially raise their own support, starting with a first goal of $25,000. The deadline for that amount is November 1, and if met, COTA will donate an additional $2,500 towards the larger goal of $50,000. Because so many of you responded, we are currently at $21,500 and change!

We are nearly there, and would like to close the gap of $3,500 so this child can benefit from the bonus monies if the deadline is reached. If you are able to contribute in ways small and large in these difficult economic times, please look for the cash donation jars around town or mail a check directly to COTA at 2501 W. Cota Dr., Bloomington, IN 47403 with Äskar Kannegaard's name in the memo line. If you prefer, you can donate directly online to cotaforaskarsfight.com.

God bless you all and thank you in advance for your help and prayer support for this sweet little boy who is one of our own.

Grateful to all of you,
Pastor Valerie J. De La Torre

Genevieve Cadmus

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the passing of our beloved mother, grandmother, sister and aunt, Genevieve Cadmus of White City district in Bylas. Genevieve died after fighting cancer on Sept. 20, 2022 at San Carlos Healthcare with her family by her side. She was born on July 29, 1941 in Bylas, Az. to Oliver and Alice Cadmus. She moved to Geronimo, Az. when her father was working for the railroad.

Genevieve attended the Bylas Day School and the Lutheran Church School. She worked in different capacities to help her family.

She loved spending time with her family. She enjoyed parties and playing bingo. Genevieve went to church faithfully until she got sick, but she eventually was able to attend a few sermons. Her favorite pastime was relaxing with a cup of coffee and putting her jigsaw puzzles together. She was proud of her arts and crafts, including yarn work. She liked going to pick acorn and would lovingly grind it, cook it and serve it to her family. Every year she had a big garden with plenty of squash. Genevieve helped teach her young children and niece to read. She always encouraged them in Apache by saying "Brush your teeth, you'll need them later in life." She would listen patiently to anyone but in the end she would ask them, "What do you think you ought to do?" because she knew we already had the answer. Genevieve is survived by her children, Patrick Stanley (Valentina), Larold Cadmus (Alicia), Tina Tessa (Mark) and Vanessa Cadmus. She has one brother, Lavior Jerry Cadmus. She has 19 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren. She has a lot of nieces and nephews, and two godchildren.

She was preceded in death by her father and mother, Oliver and Alice; three sisters, Sally Cadmus, Betty Nez and Janice Ganilla; two brothers, Roy and Earl Cadamus; and her grandson, Irving Stanley.

A wake for her was held on Monday, Sept. 26, 2022 starting at 4 p.m. Her funeral will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 27, 2022 at 1:30 a.m. at the Stanley Hall Memorial Hall.

Eastern Arizona College GearUp celebrates National GEAR UP Week

The Eastern Arizona College GearUp Program at Miami Jr/Sr High School and Globe High School announced their participation in National GEAR UP Week 2022. This week commemorates the continuing success of Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Programs (GEAR UP), a college access program providing students and families the support and resources they need for college success. Since its inception in 1999, GEAR UP has improved educational outcomes for millions of low-income, minority and disadvantaged students across the United States, including 68 students currently served by Miami Jr/Sr High School GearUp and 135 by Globe High School GearUp, with approximately 1,243 currently served by the Eastern Arizona College GearUp Grant.

Miami and Globe GearUp students will celebrate National GEAR UP Week 2022 by attending a college campus tour, presentations and guest speakers to promote college and military awareness, as well as teachers promoting college by sharing their college journey and experiences. Additionally, students will create a "Planning our Future" poster, where they write their academic, professional and personal goals.

Danielle Adams, Miami GearUp Alumni class of 2020, sent her words of support. "Hey Class of 2024,

I was in the GearUp 2020 cohort. I graduated in May 2020 and am now attending the University of Arizona. GearUp really helped me narrow down my college choices. Take it seriously; Happy National GearUp Week!"

Savannah Garcia, Globe High School GearUp Alumni class of 2020, stated, "It is awesome to have one counselor to be with you forever! All the help you get as a senior the GearUp Program gives us 2020 seniors!"

National GEAR UP Week is a time to celebrate these accomplishments in our community.

GearUp Coordinators

Linda Noriega and Connie Callaway stated, "We are committed to helping each student graduate from high school on time, as well as help reach their life after high school goals."

For more information about GearUp at Miami High School, please contact Linda Noriega at 928-425-3271 ext. 4215, and for GearUp at Globe High School, please contact Connie Callaway at 928-402-6127. GAS continued from page 1 has taken credit for driving prices lower by releasing millions of barrels of oil from the nation's reserves.

The 14-week decline in prices was the longest streak since 2015.

Gasoline prices mostly reflect trends in global oil prices, and crude — both the U.S. benchmark and the international Brent — have been slumping since mid-June on growing fears of a global recession that would reduce demand for energy.

Many energy analysts believe that prices are more likely to rise than fall in the next few months. However, changes in sentiment about the economy, Russia's war against Ukraine, and even hurricane season — always a threat to disrupt refineries along the Gulf Coast — make predictions uncertain.

"I suspect that we will see choppy prices for gasoline through year end, with some down days and up days," said Tom Kloza of the Oil Price Information Service. He predicted that the next streak will be a run of price increases early next year, driven by investors, speculators and "the fear that there won't be enough fuel to go around."

Phil Flynn, an analyst with the Price Futures Group, said prices will head higher once withdrawals from the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve — a million barrels per day for six months — end this fall.

"The market is going to start pricing that in, and refiners are not going to be getting this cheap oil from the reserve," Flynn said. "The odds are we'll see a significant price spike of oil come winter."

Some businesses, such as airlines, have been able to pass higher fuel prices on to their customers. Others haven't been able to do that.

"We haul for farmers, and we can't raise (prices) for the farmer because they are struggling too," said Mike Mitchell, part owner of Mitchell Milk Hauling, which carries about 10 million pounds of milk a year from farms in northwestern Pennsylvania.

The company's seven trucks burn through about $20,000 in gasoline a month, and the drop in gas prices this summer provided only limited relief.

"Everything else you buy goes up," Mitchell said. "Every part for the truck has doubled, just about."

Al DeGennaro, a lawyer for Pennsylvania waste hauler J.P. Mascaro & Sons, said high gas prices have taken a toll, and their unpredictability is hard to handle.

"It creates uncertainty as to how you're bidding in the future ... a lot of government contracts are three to five years," said DeGennaro, whose company has a fleet of about 300 trucks.

The nationwide average price soared above $5 a gallon — and over $6 in California — in June, as economic recovery and an increase in travel boosted demand for gasoline, and Russia's war in Ukraine caused a spike in oil prices.

The surge in prices caused financial pain for families and a political headache for the Biden administration. With the mid-term elections for Congress less than two months away, it's hard to know whether voters will reward Biden and the Democrats for the recent fall in prices — down

$1.34 a gallon from the record set on June 14 — or blame them because prices are still well above the $3.19 average one year ago.

Besides releasing oil from the strategic reserve, Biden pressed other oil-producing countries to boost output, and he clashed with oil company executives after accusing them of making unseemly profits while Americans struggled with high pump prices.

"Every time prices go down they are taking a victory lap, even though prices are substantially higher than they were when they took office," analyst Flynn said of administration officials.

U.S. and international oil prices rose above $120 a barrel in June but have fallen since. On Wednesday, West Texas Intermediate crude was trading around $83, while the international benchmark, Brent crude, was about $90.

Unexpected events can affect gasoline prices. A BP refinery in Toledo, Ohio, was shut down Wednesday after an explosion and fire killed two workers. There are several weeks remaining in peak hurricane season in the Gulf of Mexico. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says the likelihood of increased hurricane activity this year is 65%.

Neptune and rings shine in photos from new space telescope

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Neptune and its rings haven't looked this good in decades.

NASA released new glamour shots of our solar system's outermost planet Wednesday, Sept. 21, taken by the James Webb Space Telescope. The pictures taken in July show not only Neptune's thin rings, but its faint dust bands, never before observed in the infrared, as well as seven of its 14 known moons.

Webb showed Jupiter at its best in a series of fresh photos released last month.

Launched less than a year ago, the $10 billion Webb is spending most of its time peering much deeper into the universe. Astronomers hope to see back to almost the beginning of time when the first stars and galaxies were forming.

(NASA, ESA, CSA, STSCL VIA AP)

NASA's Voyager 2 was the first spacecraft to see Neptune in all its gaseous glory, during a 1989 flyby.

No other spacecraft have visited the icy, blue planet. So it's been three decades since astronomers last saw these rings with such detail and clarity, said the Space Science Institute's Heidi Hammel, a planetary astronomer working with Webb.

Hammel tweeted that she wept when she saw the rings, yelling and making "my kids, my mom, even my cats look."

Webb is the world's biggest, most powerful telescope, operating 1 million miles (1.6 million kilometers) from Earth. It rocketed into space last December.

The observatory is in good health, according to NASA, except for one item. NASA reported this week that a mechanism on one of Webb's instruments showed signs of increased friction late last month in one of four observing modes. Observations are on hold in this one particular observing track, as a review board decides on a path forward.
