Space telescopes capture asteroid slam with striking clarity

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The world now has stunning new photos of this week’s asteroid strike, the first planetary defense test of its kind.

NASA on Thursday released pictures of the dramatic event taken by the Hubble and Webb space telescopes.

A few hours later, SpaceX joined NASA in announcing that they’re studying the feasibility of sending a private mission to Hubble, potentially led by a billionaire, to raise the aging telescope’s orbit and extend its life.

Telescopes on all seven continents watched as NASA’s DART spacecraft slammed Monday into the harmless space rock, 7 million miles (11 million kilometers) from Earth, in hopes of altering its orbit.

Scientists won’t know the precise change until November; the demo results are expected to instill confidence in using the technique if a killer asteroid heads our way one day.

“This is an unprecedented view of an unprecedented event,” Johns Hopkins University planetary astronomer and mission leader Andy Rivkin said in a statement.

All these pictures will help scientists learn more about the little asteroid Dimorphos, which took the punch and ended up with a sizable crater. The impact sent streams of rock and dirt hurtling into space, appearing as bright emanating rays in the latest photos.

The brightness of this double asteroid system — the 525-foot (160-meter) Dimorphos is actually the moonlet around a bigger asteroid — tripled after the impact as seen in the Hubble images, according to NASA.

Hubble and Webb will keep observing Dimorphos and its large companion Didymos over the next several weeks.

The $325 million DART mission was launched last year. The spacecraft was built and managed by Johns Hopkins’ Applied Physics Laboratory in Laurel, Maryland.

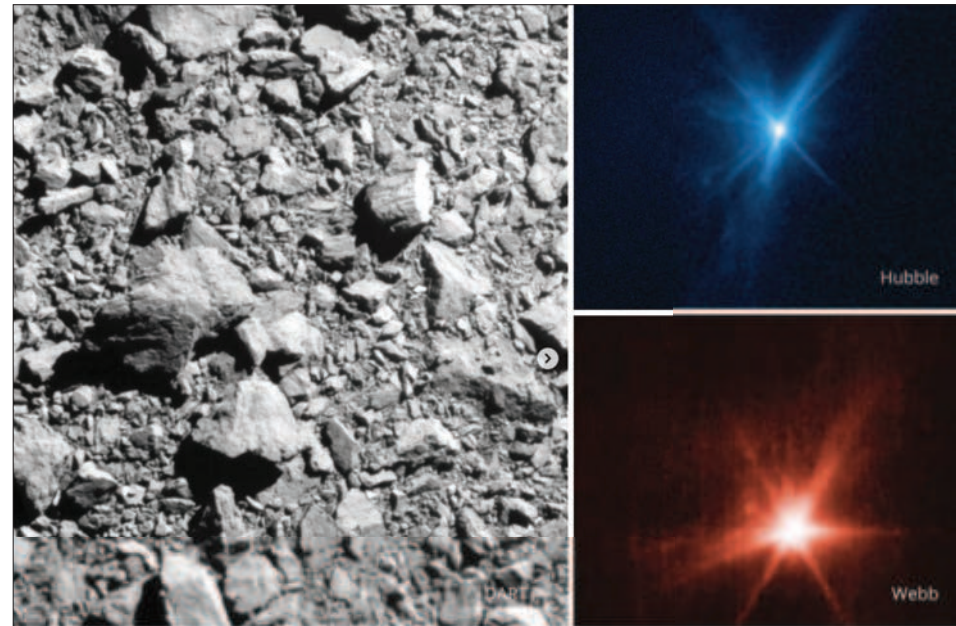

As for Hubble, NASA officials stressed Thursday that the observatory launched 32 years ago is in good shape and might have an-

Hubble’s orbit constantly is decaying, but the telescope could have even more years ahead if it were boosted from its current 335 miles (540 kilometers) above Earth to 375 miles (600 kilometers) or more. The six-month technical feasibility study also will consider whether any parts could be replaced, presumably by a crew.

Jared Isaacman, a Pennsylvania tech entrepreneur who bankrolled his own SpaceX flight last year with contest winners, said a Hubble mission, if approved, would fit nicely into his planned series of spaceflights. But he stopped short of saying whether he was volunteering.

“We’re working on crazy ideas all the time,” NASA’s science mission chief, Thomas Zurbuchen, told reporters. “Frankly, that’s what we’re supposed to do.”

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

Hope 4 Hearing Center announces unique hearing aid trial program, with NO upfront cost, NO commitment and NO risk

Who is a good candidate for Flex:trial?

You may be a good candidate for the Flex:trial program if you:

- Suspect a hearing loss but haven't had your hearing tested
- Had a hearing test but decided against hearing aids
- Currently wear hearing aids but are looking for something better

The Flex:trial program is accepting appointments from potential participants for a limited time only.

Supplies of the Flex:trial hearing aids are limited, call today.

Area residents who want to try today's most advanced hearing aids — without upfront cost, commitment or risk — are urged to get in touch with Hope 4 Hearing Center.

Located in Globe, Hope 4 Hearing Center is among a handful of hearing healthcare providers nationwide selected and certified to participate in the Flex:trial™ program, developed by hearing aid manufacturer Unitron.

Flex:trial uses a unique three-step approach to hearing healthcare and consumer satisfaction:

1. Interested individuals undergo a hearing test. If the testing indicates a good fit for the program, participants go home — the very same day* — with Flex:trial hearing aids.
2. Participants wear the Flex:trial hearing aids on a trial basis at home and in all of their other familiar environments. There is no upfront cost or obligation during the trial period.
3. At the end of the trial period, participants decide whether they want to continue with the listening experience...or walk away and owe nothing.

"Other trial programs require consumers to pay for the hearing aids in advance and then go through the process of obtaining a refund if they're not satisfied," explains Hope 4 Hearing Center. "The Flex:trial program removes the upfront cost for participating patients — and the fear of getting stuck with hearing aids they don't like. In fact, the risk is all mine."

Supply of Flex:trial hearing aids is limited. This offer is valid through October 31st, 2022, on a first-come, first-served basis.

EAC welding student's testimonial

My name is Robert Zache and I am a student attending the welding program at EAC-Gila Pueblo Campus in association with Gila County Provisional Community College District. The program just recently went through some drastic changes. Changes that are night and day. Changes that turned the course of my education. Changes that were made by people who care. I can tell the difference between someone who is simply paid to teach and someone who wants to teach. These instructors want to teach.

The instructors are very well educated and if they are unsure about something specific they don't hesitate to find out. They are extremely well spoken and can easily make anything understandable. If a student still struggles, they're getting quite the lesson and some diagrams until it is understood. It's not just welding skills taught, but also advice and ways of thinking behind it.

As a student of the welding program I am beyond satisfied and very thankful for the opportunities given. An opportunity to work in a safe environment, an opportunity to improve my skills and an opportunity to perceive a way of life that has given me the yearn to learn.

Respectfully,
Robert A. Zache

Eastern Arizona College Regional Training Center is having an open house to showcase its newly renovated welding building. Welding instructor Ernie Baca will expand on the changes that have been made and will share future growth goals. EAC welding students will demonstrate what they are learning in class. Please join us on Wednesday, October 26, from 4:30 – 6:30 p.m. at 4053 E. Hwy 60/70, Miami, Az.

“Women’s Wave” protest in Globe for reproductive freedom

Action in Globe is one of more than 200 events to be held in cities nationwide to protect our reproductive rights, as well as all our basic freedoms.

On Saturday, Oct. 8, 2022 from 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. we will meet at the corner of Ash and Hill Street (Globe High School parking lot), then stand and demonstrate along the Highway 60 overpass in conjunction with the Women’s March in D.C. A Women’s Wave is coming to every state in this country. We are united here in Arizona in our commitment to freedom and dignity for all Americans, especially the right for every person to make healthcare choices for their own body. We are protesting the recent action that reinstated the 1901 law in Arizona, which creates a healthcare crisis for people needing reproductive care. Arizona has a history of fighting for the “right” thing, and people do not want the government to tell them what to do regarding their healthcare. If anyone is concerned with what is happening now in regard to reproductive freedom, join us to protect the freedom to decide for each person! Everybody has the right to reproductive rights!

Prototype electric airplane takes first flight

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — A prototype, all-electric airplane took its first flight Tuesday morning (Sept. 27) in central Washington state.

The Seattle Times reports that if the Federal Aviation Administration eventually certifies the small airplane to carry passengers, it could become the first all-electric commercial airplane.

The plane, built by startup Eviation, was built to carry nine passengers and up to two pilots, and took off from Moses Lake, Washington, at 7:10 a.m. Tuesday. The plane landed eight minutes later.

The company's goal is to show such electric planes are viable as commuter aircraft flying at an altitude of about 15,000 feet (4,572 meters).

The plane, designed by engineers in Washington state and Israel, is powered by 21,500 small Tesla-style battery cells.

Regrow vegetables from kitchen scraps on a sunny windowsill

By JESSICA DAMIANO

Associated Press

Gardening naturally lends itself to reusing and recycling -- just think about compost and last year's seed trays. So if there's a way to reduce trash while saving money on produce, you can count me in. And one of my favorite ways to do both is to regrow vegetables from kitchen scraps.

Instead of throwing away or composting the bottoms (or tops) of vegetables when preparing them, you can grow them into leafy greens and other tasty tidbits right on your windowsill.

Before I go any further, it's important to point out that these methods aren't likely to produce plants that will grow well in your garden, so I don't recommend replacing your seedlings in this manner. But they are likely to yield a side dish or two, and you can never underestimate the value of a fun project.

General tips: Scraps will grow best in a sunny spot. Use lukewarm water, and replace it every day or two to avoid the growth of bacteria. Don't worry if the submerged portion of your cuttings becomes a bit slimy, but if the whole thing starts to turn brown, toss it in the compost pile and start over.

BEETS

My favorite thing about beets is that one plant provides two side dishes – the tuberous root and the tasty greens. Although you can't regrow a beetroot indoors from a cutting, you can certainly generate more leafy greens: Cut off the top 1 1/2 inches from a beetroot and place it cut side down in a dish that contains just enough water to keep the sliced end submerged. New leaves will sprout from the top within a few days, and you can start harvesting them in a couple of weeks.

(This method also works with parsnips and turnips).

CELERY

Cut 3 inches off the bottom of a head of celery, then slice a sliver off the very bottom of the 3-inch segment. Place it right-side up in a shallow container and pour in 2 inches of water. New growth will sprout from the center in just a few days.

SCALLIONS AND LEEKS

Trim the entire white portion off the bottom of a leek or scallion stalk, then place it root-side-down in a jar or glass holding an inch of water. If the stalk outgrows the jar, move it to a larger one. New growth will be harvestable in a couple of weeks.

ROMAINE LETTUCE

Cut 3 inches off the bottom of a head of romaine lettuce, then remove its outermost leaves. Place the 3-inch "heart" in a shallow container to which you've added one-half inch of water. Within a week, a sprout will emerge from its center. As it grows, it's normal for some of the heart's outer leaves to turn brown. Remove them. When the center growth is large enough for a salad (or sandwich), trim it off and enjoy – then wait for more to grow.

Halloween Trick-Or-Treat on Broad Street

Mark your calendar, and charge your phone and camera batteries, for the annual Halloween Block Party in downtown Globe, Monday night, Oct. 31. The massive event can draw thousands of costumed characters all along Broad Street ready to meet, greet and trick-or-treat.

Start anywhere along Broad Street from Yuma Street to Sycamore Street, Sycamore Street to Yuma Street, or in between. Entering the line anywhere in the zone will help disperse the hugely congested crowd of tiny batmen and princesses that pile up at Sycamore.

Organizers plan four music staging areas, car show participants, family trunk-or-treat stations, sidewalk chalking, a storefront decorations contest with people's choice voting and, for the kiddos young & old, the 1910 territorial jail will be open as a "spooky jail" for tours.

Like and follow the event page, facebook.com/events/880018359623807, for updates and confirmation about specifics—such as a social media photo booth, media pumpkin carving and costume contest.

From 4 – 9 p.m. on Oak Street look for food trucks and vendors. For vendor, booth, car show, trunk-or-treat, or volunteer (pre-event, at event or post-event) information or questions, connect on Facebook (see link above or search keywords Globe Downtown Halloween Block Party) or text event coordinator Molly Cornwell at 480-345-7477.

The Bible is an infallible source of truth.

Step into almost any bookstore, and you can find a volume on pretty much any topic you have in mind. Want new direction for your life? Are your children disobeying? Are you hoping to live in a healthier way? There are books that were written to help, but do the authors have trustworthy credentials?

There is a place to find accurate information and true guidance: The Bible will bless and benefit everyone who reads and applies its wisdom. Here's what Scripture's Author—"the God of truth" (Isaiah 65:16)—says about His own Word:

The Bible gives direction for life (Psalm 119:105). God uses His Word to lead us, no matter what our circumstances may be.

Scripture strengthens us in grief or difficulty (Psalm 119:28; Psalm 119:116). By spending time processing what God says, we're reminded that He loves us, cares about our situation and can handle whatever we're facing.

God's Word helps us understand our inner motivations (Hebrews 4:12). Scripture acts like a mirror that lets us see ourselves as we truly are.

The Bible is the very mind of God put into words so that we can know Him more fully. To what extent do you depend upon this amazing Book as your foundation for life?

Collections

By DR. DAN MORTON

Contributor

My mother collected salt and pepper shakers. She had hundreds of them in different sizes and shapes. How this got started, I have no idea. I collected small dogs. When my Dad would return from a trip, he would bring me a toy dog. In my collection were many breeds. Some were hand carved from wood, some shaped in metal, plastic, or ceramics, each unique and each with a memory.

It was not uncommon to see automobile license plates displayed in a garage. I have several from Arizona, Wyoming, Connecticut, and each is a reminder of when and where I lived in each state.

Recently I was chatting with several who are hiking the 2,200-mile-long Appalachian Trail, which extends from Georgia to Maine. It can take six months for a "through" hiker and longer for those who can do only short sections. One lady we met could hike only during summers and it took her twenty years.

One item that is of crucial importance is their footwear. Shoes or boots can protect their feet from rocks, provide security on slippery or wet surfaces, and in some cases save their life. I suggested that a hiker should put their used boots on the wall of their garage, marking them for the states they covered. One said he had gone through three pairs in Pennsylvania alone and added that the stench would never go away.

Do you have such treasures?

How to Handle the Bible

Once we realize the power of Scripture, we long to read, understand, and implement it.

The value we place on something determines how we treat it. For example, you probably wouldn't give much thought to an old shoebox. But if someone put $10,000 inside it, you'd protect it. Similarly, once we realize the worth of Scripture, we no longer read merely out of obligation. Here are six things God tells us about how to read His "instruction manual for life."

Turn to it daily with eager expectation for what the Lord will reveal.

Meditate upon the Word to more fully absorb its meaning and implications.

Study God's truth. There are a variety of ways to do this. For example, using a concordance or search engine, follow a specific word through the Old and New Testaments.

Believe what the Lord says.

Obey. In other words, apply what you read to your life situation.

Share what you learn. This will encourage others while strengthening you and sinking the lesson deep in your heart.

The Bible is living truth that protects and guides, pierces and encourages. From it, we learn how to be saved. When we grasp Scripture's value, our interaction with God's Word will prove its worth.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, others are counting on you this week, so you'll need to direct all of your attention toward a special project. Don't let distractions get in the way.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Taurus, rather than wishing for something to happen, figure out a plan to make it happen. Before taking action, consult with a few close friends for guidance.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Someone may come to you this week with a problem asking for your advice, Gemini. It's tempting to react right away. However, take a few hours to mull things over.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Someone at work may not agree with your point of view lately. Rather than cause friction, try to look at things through this person's perspective.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

Leo, cooperation could be essential in the days and weeks ahead. This week you will benefit from being more open-minded to other people's suggestions.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

It seems that you have been tasked with moving from one difficult situation into another one, Virgo. Find ways to set aside time strictly to unwind.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Keep careful track of your expenses, Libra. You may find that lately you have been going a bit overboard with expenditures and not bringing in any extra money.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Maintain a positive outlook this week, Scorpio. Things may not go exactly according to plan, but that doesn't make it any less successful and satisfying.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, you may have to put others first for the next few days, particularly if you care for an elderly relative or a young child. It's a sacrifice worth making.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, let another person lead a team or spearhead a project at work, even if you have an urge to take control. You can use a break from your responsibilities.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, hands-on work not only helps save you some money, but also strengthens your skills. Think about a more DIY approach with your next project.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Pisces, if life has been tedious and filled with analytical requirements as of late, take on a creative project that will work your brain in new ways.

Healthy Halloween snack options

Halloween is a magical time of year. Homes are adorned with festive fall accoutrements, including hay bails, pumpkins and mums as well as the black, purple and orange decorations that are unique to a season of ghouls and goblins.

Although decorating is a large part of the fun of Halloween, the sweet treats that are distributed to trick-or-treaters and presented at Halloween parties are arguably the most popular component of this beloved holiday. Candy is everywhere come Halloween. The National Confectioners' Association reports that Halloween is the largest confectionary holiday, followed by Easter and Christmas. The National Retail Federation and NCA indicate the average American consumes 3.4 pounds of candy around Halloween, and 600 million pounds of candy are purchased across the country for the holiday.

Is it possible to escape the Halloween sugar overload? For those who want to enjoy some healthier options than candy corns and other sweet staples, these ideas are not so frightening.

- Pizza mummy: Use slices of toasted sandwich bread or English muffins to make some spooktacular fare. Coat the bread with pizza sauce. Then place thin vertical slices of mozzarella cheese in a haphazard pattern to replicate the look of gauze on a mummy. Two pieces of sliced black olives serve as the eyes.

- White, orange and yellow platter: Simulate the look of candy corns' white, orange and yellow color palette with healthier offerings. Stack cauliflower, or another white food like monterey jack cheese, baby carrots and yellow bell peppers on a platter. Serve with your favorite dip.

- Deviled brains: Turn regular deviled eggs into something more sinister for Halloween buffet tables. Simply add food coloring to the filling to create a pinkish-brown hue that resembles a human brain. Then use a piping bag fitted with a thin icing tip to pipe the shape of brains onto the hardboiled egg halves.
