CMAAA holds ribbon cutting ceremony

Grand opening celebrated on July 14 in downtown Oregon

BY GEORGE HOWE
CORRESPONDENT

OREGON — The Coliseum Museum of Art, Antiques and Americana (CMAAA) Foundation held a grand opening and ribbon cutting ceremony Friday, July 14 in downtown Oregon. Several hundred guests wandered in and out of the six beautifully-constructed galleries where they were treated to a variety of exhibits in both 2 and 3D which included acrylic, ceramics, charcoal, china glass, mixed media, oil, pen, pastel, photography, sculpture, water color and wood.

A two-piece band “New Shoes” serenaded the visitors with soft sounds while two tables of delectable hors d’oeuvres and desserts were available for the choosing provided by Jen’s Artisan Breads. Ogle County Brewery offered libations, which most art lovers enjoyed sipping on a red or white while possibly deciding to purchase a creation with well over 100 to choose from.

A video presentation highlighted the rich history of the building which was built in 1922 and officially opened in January of 1923. Through the years, the structure has been used for everything from suppers to basketball games, roller skating and flower shows. Oregon Mayor Ken Williams was the first to welcome the crowd and said that this has been a long time coming.

“It’s been six years since talks first began about this project,” Williams said. “The private foundation had a vision and presented it to the city and now you look around and see it come to life. It’s a proud moment.”

County board hears solar project presentation

Concerns raised Tuesday over alleged animal abuse at rodeos

BY JEFF HELFRICH
MANAGING EDITOR

OREGON — At its monthly meeting Tuesday, the Ogle County Board heard a presentation from Stateline Solar Chief Technology Officer Kenji Grahame reflecting on its solar panel installation project atop the Ogle County Judicial Center. The project spanned 18 months and consists of about 280 solar panels. The array is now operational. Grahame said the panels are all Canadian Solar 450-watt panels and each is bifacial, to receive sun on the front side and from any reflection off the roof of the Judicial Center.

“It could potentially produce more than what we’re anticipating it to, that’s kind of what we’re hoping for,” Grahame said. “We’re anticipating that it will save you on average about $1,000 a month to energy to both and covering about 30 percent of your total energy consumption.” Grahame said that over the 25-year lifetime of the panels, they should save the county about $450,000 in electric costs. He later said the panels have a warranty of 30 years.

Jeanne Renee (Minervino) Scholl

POLO — Jeanne Renee (Minervino) Scholl, 83, of Polo went to be with the Lord on July 16, 2023, surrounded by her loving family. Even though our sadness is immense, we take comfort in Jesus' promise of eternal life. She is dancing with the angels and back with her best friend and partner, Tom.

Jeanne was born July 24, 1939 in Chicago. She graduated from Mt. Morris High School in 1957. She married Dennis Newcomer and following his death married Tom Scholl on Aug. 26, 1962, who preceded her in death in 2007.

She was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Polo. Through the years, Jeanne was active in Beta Sigma Phi, Jaycettes, PEO and the Ogle County Women's Republican Club. She was an Ogle County election judge and completed Tom's term on the Ogle County Board following his untimely death.

Jeanne was an amazing cook and baker. On the farm, she fueled the men, who fueled the tractors, that tilled the ground. She found joy in working in her yard and was skilled at keeping the landscape beautiful. She was an avid reader with a particular interest in books pertaining to our nation's history. She was proud to be a Republican and was patriotic to her core. She found ironing relaxing, so needless to say, everything in the house was wrinkle free. She held a special place in her heart for her St. Mark's Lutheran Church family. Volunteering came easy to her, and she often participated in many church activities. Above all, her greatest joy was spending time with her family. Our hearts are broken but are filled with memories that will sustain and lift us as we live life on earth without her.

Our family would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to the staff of Morningside of Sterling-Memory Care and the care team from VITAS for the exceptional care they provided for our mother. They served her with such dignity and treated her as if she was their own. We will be forever grateful for their guidance, reassurance and hugs.

Jeanne is survived by her children: Terry Newcomer of Mt Morris, Susan (Mike) Connell of Iowa, Paula (Kevin) Humphrey and Jeanna (Gary) Fulrath of Polo; grandchildren: Erin, Bryan, Dillon, Ashlan, Kristin, Joshua, Shawn, Ty, Scott, Amie, Erica, and Thomas; great-grandchildren: Kellan, Jaxson, Hayden, Claire, Chloe, Graham, Brody, Carson, Nola, Olive, Corbin, Hadley, Brayden, Elizabeth, Caroline, Joleen, Addison, and Jackson; two siblings: Joan (Rick) Nelson of Clare and Paul Minervino.

A memorial visitation will be held Saturday, July 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, located at 201 N. Division Ave, Polo, with a memorial service to begin at 10:30 a.m. followed by a luncheon. A graveside service at Fairmount Cemetery will conclude the services at 1:30 p.m. In lieu of flowers, a memorial has been established to St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Polo.

BOARD: Departmental ARPA funding requests approved Tuesday evening

“With all the incentives that are available to you right now, it should return its investment for you guys in under 10 years,” Grahame said.

Board Member Don Griffin thanked Grahame and Stateline Solar for their work on the project.

“It’s been quite a project here with trying to get the supplies and inverters,” Griffin said. “We powered through it and this was the last part of the Judicial Center project. We built this building and we really appreciate that you were able to finish that for us.”

Rodeos

During the public comment portion of the meeting, the board heard concerns from Mike Kobliska, a Grundy County man, regarding “gross abuse of horses and steers” that he said is happening in Ogle County at Mexican-style rodeos.

Kobliska is a member of the organization Showing Animals Respect and Kindness. He said his organization has taken drone video of the rodeos and is seeking to stop it.

“These rodeos consist of one event, steer tailing,” Kobliska said. “Where a steer is forced to run along the wall and a contestant runs up alongside them and grabs the steer’s tail and pulls them around. Steers can’t run sideways or backwards any better than we do, so they crash to the ground. This is cruel and very dangerous

The solar project spanned 18 months and consists of about 280 solar panels. Stateline Solar Chief Technology Officer Kenji Grahame said the panels are all Canadian Solar 450-watt panels and each is bifacial, to receive sun on the front side and from any reflection off the roof of the Judicial Center.

for the steers. We’ve used drones to video document animals being abused in clear violation of state humane laws at these events, including an event last weekend in Rochelle.”

Kobliska also said steers are jabbed with electric prods that are banned in American-style rodeo and are run much more than in American-style rodeo and are left to suffer without “any veterinarian care at all.” He also claimed that horses are beaten and whipped at rodeos in Ogle County.

“I hope the board will look into this issue and take quick action,” Kobliska said. “All of these abuses violate the Illinois Humane Care for Animals Act.”

County Board Chairman John Finrock said the rodeos in question have not been granted any permits or licenses by the county and said that he wasn’t aware they were taking place in the area.

Ogle County Sheriff Brian VanVickle said his office typically finds out about the rodeos after the fact, and deputies responded to one of them over the weekend involving a large fight and shots fired.

tween the City of Rochelle and Lee County. It’s a place we’re not normally at because it’s very difficult. But I wasn’t aware of this and we will definitely look into this. It’s obviously inappropriate.”

ARPA

The board unanimously approved requests by county departments for use of federal American Rescue Plan Act funds totaling $35,641.16.

The long-range planning department requested $537.66 for the Judicial Center solar project, the zoning department requested $2,722.50 for county training and the sheriff’s office requested $32,381 for Motorola body cameras. The money for the body cameras will be reimbursed from future grant funds once they are received.

MOMENTS IN TIME

ON July 31, 1703, author Daniel Defoe (Robinson Crusoe) was placed in a pillory after being found guilty of seditious libel for publishing a politically satirical pamphlet, but instead of mud or rotten food (or even worse), he was pelted with flowers, while his friends sold copies of the pamphlet nearby.

* On Aug. 1, 1971, race car legend Richard Petty won the Dixie 500 in Atlanta, Georgia, and became the first NASCAR driver to score $1 million in career earnings.

* On Aug. 2, 1909, the centennial year of Abraham Lincoln's birth, the U.S. issued the Lincoln penny, designed by Victor David Brenner. It was the first widely circulating design of a U.S. president on a coin, an idea that had in the past been seen by George Washington as too reminiscent of monarchy.

* On Aug. 3, 2004, the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty reopened after being closed for safety and security improvements following the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on New York City's World Trade Center. The remainder of the statue stayed closed until July 4, 2009, when the observation deck in the crown was reopened to visitors chosen hourly by lottery.

* On Aug. 4, 1964, the bodies of civil rights workers Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James Chaney were discovered in a partially constructed dam near Philadelphia, Mississippi, after disappearing more than a month before. Before their bodies were found, outrage over the KKK-perpetrated murders aided passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

* On Aug. 5, 2013, the first lab-grown hamburger, made from taking cow cells and turning them into the strips of a muscle, was cooked and eaten at a news conference in London, England. Tasters remarked that while it lacked some of a conventional burger's juiciness, the flavor and texture were fairly similar.

* On Aug. 6, 1916, watermelons proved to be a major problem for Army officials in El Paso, Texas, to the point of actually being banned. Since their thick rinds couldn't be burned or properly disposed of, they drew a plague of flies, which military experts warned could breed disease.

Kern: Fair time around the corner

FAIR time is just around the corner. The Ogle County Fair starts Aug. 2 in Oregon. There's plenty to do and enjoy for the whole family. Here's just a partial line-up of the entertainment this year.

August 2-6: Wednesday, August 2: Queen Contest, Illinois State Pullers. Thursday, Aug. 3: Illinois State Pullers. Friday, Aug. 4: Big Hat Rodeo. Saturday, Aug. 5: Demo Derby. Sunday, Aug. 6: Tri-State Pullers. Free shows daily include: Robot Show, Chainsaw Artist, Magic Show, Roping Show, Aussie Animal Show.

The Ogle County Farm Bureau Young Leaders will again host their Battle of the Barns at the Ogle County Fair. The competition will be accessible in the Exhibit Building from Wednesday through noon on Sunday. Folks are asked to donate canned goods that will be collected and distributed to local food pantries in Ogle County. There are tubs available so you can place your canned goods to support your favorite fair barn. The goods in each tub will be totaled and the barn with the most donations will receive $1,000 from the farm bureau for barn improvements. Cash donations payable to the Ogle County Farm Bureau will also be accepted. Any donations received will also be disbursed to local food pantries.

The American Farm Bureau Federation signed a memorandum of understanding with CLAAS of America, providing even more farmers and ranchers the right to repair their own farm equipment. The MOU follows similar agreements AFBF entered with John Deere, CNH Industrial Brands (which includes Case IH and New Holland), AGCO and Kubota. Combined, the five MOUs cover approximately three quarters of the agricultural machinery sold in the United States.

The memorandum of understanding with CLAAS demonstrates AFBF's continued commitment to ensure farmers have access to the tools they need to keep their farms running and America's families fed.

Farmers and ranchers are more dependent on technology than ever before and they asked us to find a private-sector solution to the right to repair issue. This agreement is another step toward guaranteeing timely repairs for farmers regardless of the equipment they use.

The agreement creates a framework for farmers and independent repair facilities in all 50 states and Puerto Rico to access technical manuals, tools and product guides to self-diagnose and self-repair machines, while respecting intellectual property and legislated legal requirements of the manufacturer. It also reconfirms the ability to lease diagnostic tools, purchase products and parts from CLAAS dealers.

"All the political angst and moral melodrama about getting 'the rich' to pay 'their fair share' is part of a big charade. This is not about economics, it is about politics."

Memories of kids marching in the halls

I tried to make it a habit, in my days as a school psychologist, to observe children in the halls during passing times whenever I could. This was especially entertaining when the youngest students — kindergarten through second — came by, bringing with them smile-provoking scenes of cuteness and mischievousness.

Some dutifully followed like ducklings in a row close behind their teacher. Others dawdled and allowed gaps to open up between themselves and those ahead. A few engaged in horseplay and failed to maintain a straight line. A surprising number of the children, always boys, trudged or shuffled with untied shoelaces flopping on the ground, and yet somehow never fell on their faces. Often girls and boys whom I did not know would smile at me or wave and I would respond in kind.

Here, I thought, in this parade of innocence and hope, go future doctors, workers, homemakers, teachers — the stone and mortar of a strong and good society. But here among them also march another cohort of a darker tomorrow, those who will bring pain and loss to others and to themselves. We like to think that we can guide all children into the first trajectory and away from the second, but, for some of them, something like destiny may be at work.

That possibility, fraught with meaning for parents even more than for educators, comes easily to mind when I think of a boy whom I'll call Jason. I met him as a second grader, a vigorous, sturdy boy with alert brown eyes. Upon seeing me in the halls, he would greet me with delight and come to me with a big smile and an affectionate hug. Perhaps he was drawn to me because I was one of the few males in the building, a surrogate for his missing father who was doing time in an out-of-state prison. Jason and his father had little contact with each other, but I noticed that he mentioned his father's life in prison with a tone of approval, as if it were a desirable career path in Jason's eyes.

Perhaps it should be no surprise, then, that students and aides complained of Jason's bullying and mind games on the playground, and that in the classroom he drew teachers into contests for control, engagements that he often won and appeared to enjoy. Punishments and rewards had little effect on his relentless rule-breaking and intimidation.

His testing of the rules and quest for dominance did not apply to me, however, perhaps because I was a male and yet not a disciplinary figure. I suspect that in Jason's eyes my maleness made me a symbol of power, something that he would want to be associated with. As we met in my office one day, he noticed that a teacher's car sat in my usual parking spot outside my window. Incensed at this apparent infringement of my prerogatives, Jason immediately set to making a poster that he taped to my office window. With underlining, exclamation points and blunt language, the poster proclaimed that this was Mr. Harp's parking space, and that teachers were to stay away.

I watched Jason's progress through the following years, and had direct involvement with him off and on. He became less open to influence from adults, more of a problem, more uncontrollable with each year. Even the junior high principal, a former Marine captain with impressive skills at intimidation, failed to subdue his disrespect for authority.

His mother demanded that the school send him to the county-wide behavior disorder program, and he himself repeatedly expressed a desire to go there. Finally, in junior high school, he got his wish. After that, I saw little of Jason until the end of his senior year, when the behavior disorder program conducted his final annual review meeting. He was involved with the legal system and the odds were that he would be sent to the state prison for juveniles.

When it was my turn to speak, I looked at Jason and, aiming to avoid ineffectual pleading, made a stab at understatement. I know the path you're on, and I don't agree with it," I said dryly, and then described the dead end that awaited him. Others joined in, but our words fell on barren soil. Jason smiled in a self-satisfied way and didn't bother to argue. It was clear that he was looking forward to prison, perhaps seeing it as a rite of passage, like boot camp for a Marine recruit. I often wish that I could somehow have turned our early relationship toward something better for Jason, but it is, I think, not a realistic sentiment. Even when Jason was a second grader hugging me in the halls, I sensed that the twig had been bent and would not be straightened.

Just as a twig grows in the quest for light, so it was that another student in Jason's school — let's call her Nancy — reached for a different sun. I met her when she was in the special education preschool program, and watched as she progressed through the following years. Nancy was a little elf, short, thin and frail-looking, with pale skin, reddish hair and a thready voice. She followed the rules and worked hard in spite of her lack of aptitude. I rarely saw her smile.

Her mother could have passed for a hippie from the long-ago '60s, with her long reddish hair, often braided into pigtails, and accessories like boots and headbands — an attractive young woman with a cheerful, carefree air. Optimistic to a fault, she had no doubt made some mistakes along the way. Her mostly-absent second husband supported her in poverty until the end of their marriage, when even she could no longer overlook his infidelity and irresponsibility. Meanwhile, she was experiencing health problems that would inexorably advance through the coming years.

She faithfully attended Nancy's special education conferences, as well as those of her younger brother and older sister, and affably acknowledged their teachers' concerns. But as charming as she was, Nancy's mother had little aptitude or inclination for imposing the structure needed for academic success for her children, a structure that was indeed missing from her own life. Her small, run-down old house was a monument to clutter. I would weave through obstacles and move things in order to find a place to sit during home visits. Nancy's little corner of their home, on the other hand, was an island of orderliness amidst the surrounding chaos.

Nancy's brother and sister reflected their mother's ethos at school in that they routinely failed to complete assignments, and occasionally their impulsivity got them into trouble. Even as she admitted their shortcomings, Brenda spoke warmly about them. She sometimes complained, though, about her youngest daughter. Nancy, it seemed, was rebelling against her mother's easygoing ways, and they often clashed.

As Nancy's mother's health worsened through the years, she aged and weakened prematurely, and her complexion took on an ominous pallor. Her speech became slow and effortful, and lost its customary exuberance. Eventually, she stopped attending school conferences. She died when Nancy was in middle school.

Her mother's illness and death did not change Nancy, at least in terms of her attitudes and behavior at school. She worked her way out of the special education program and plowed on to graduation on her own. Years later, I saw her at a restaurant, working in her characteristically serious and diligent manner, and I reflected that, although her future may not always be easy, she will meet her challenges as they come and do her best.

Nancy was one of the kids I had watched in the halls years before, trying to imagine their futures. Jason was another. Perhaps I'm wrong to think that their pathways were already marked and cut at such an early age. Perhaps I'm too pessimistic about Jason, too optimistic about Nancy — after all, children often surprise us on their way to tomorrow. But I do know that they are not blank sheets of paper for scripts written by well-meaning adults.

We make many mistakes as parents and as teachers. Anyone who has given him or herself over to nurturing the minds and bodies of children has plenty to regret, even when there is also much to rejoice about. It was part of my job as a school psychologist to listen to parents who were in despair and to watch their tears as they described their feelings of frustration and failure. I was able to tell them from my own experiences as a parent that they should hold on to hope, that if they didn't give up, things could get better for them and for their children, that children who are full of problems can grow into good, caring, responsible adults.

It seems to me that many of the mistakes and much of the pain that often surrounds parenting comes when we see our children as reflections of our worth, and believe that we can and should mold their hearts and minds. As a result, we may try too hard, often in the process causing the thing we most fear. At times I entertain the not altogether fanciful proposition that we might best treat our children as if they had been left on the doorstep, as if they were not extensions of ourselves in any way. Our job, then, would be to nurture and love these precious creatures, and to try not to hurt them. An old country song by Don Williams says, "I guess we're all gonna be what we're gonna be." The outcome, then, is up to them, to all the kids in the hall who are every day marching into the future.

Oregon Mayor Ken Williams took time out of his busy schedule on June 8 to speak to the Oregon Lions. Several hundred guests wandered in and out of the six beautifully-constructed galleries where they were treated to a variety of exhibits in both 2 and 3D which included acrylic, ceramics, charcoal, china glass, mixed media, oil, pen, pastel, photography, sculpture, water color and wood.

CMAAAA: Grand opening celebration held for art museum

World-renowned American sculptor Lorado Taft founded the Eagle's Nest Art Colony in 1898 on the bluffs flanking the east bank of the Rock River, overlooking Oregon. The colony was populated by Chicago artists who gathered in Ogle County. Then in 1957, artist Harry Nurmet, known for his paintings of flowers and still life from his native

Estonia where he fled with his son in 1950 to avoid soviet occupation, along with Majorie Lippert, Mary Ellen Lytle and Rose Fleming, founded the Eagle's Nest Art Society. The colony complex has been used as a field campus for Northern Illinois University. There were informational packets and membership forms available at several tables throughout the gallery. Oregon

School Superintendent and CMAAAA Board Member Dr. Tom Mahoney asked the patrons to become members and help the fine arts facility continue to flourish. "Given the rich history of this art community, this coliseum connects back with such passion for the arts and we are just starting to scratch the surface," Mahoney said. "From my perspective I'm excited about what this will bring, especially for our school children. The kids who are artistically inclined will now have the opportunity to be exposed to a variety of artists and works to develop an appreciation and develop their skills." Lifelong Oregon resident and highly-respected water color artist Craig Carpenter, whose work adorned one full wall at the gallery, feels that the potential is endless. "This is such a good start and will give artists a place to showcase their talents," Carpenter said. "We now need to get the word out to the public. It's nice to have the building back in shape and being utilized." Executive Director Mike Glenn closed the festivities by stating that the future has so many possibilities making it a "Building of Dreams" and was pleased with the response.

"You don't know when you have something brand new like this and you bring it to a community what the reaction will be," Glenn said. "I liked the vibe and that's what I look for. The energy and feel was nice. People standing around the tables, in the galleries, sitting down, it was a good mix of people. I feel that the community was hungry for this and now we want everyone to stay involved and support our mission."

The world's lightest and most portable mobility device

Once in a lifetime, a product comes along that truly moves people. Introducing the future of battery-powered personal transportation... The Zinger.

Throughout the ages, there have been many important advances in mobility. Canes, walkers, rollators, and scooters were created to help people with mobility issues get around and retain their independence. Lately, however, there haven't been any new improvements to these existing products or developments in this field. Until now. Recently, an innovative design engineer who's developed one of the world's most popular products created a completely new breakthrough... a personal electric vehicle. It's called the Zinger, and there is nothing out there quite like it.

"What my wife especially loves is it gives her back feelings of safety and independence which has given a real boost to her confidence and happiness! Thank You!"
-Kent C., California

The first thing you'll notice about the Zinger is its unique look. It doesn't look like a scooter. Its sleek, lightweight yet durable frame is made with aircraft grade aluminum so it weighs only 47.2 lbs. It features one-touch folding and unfolding - when folded it can be wheeled around like a suitcase and fits easily into a backseat or trunk. Then, there are the steering levers. They enable the Zinger to move forward, backward, turn on a dime and even pull right up to a table or desk. With its compact yet powerful motor it can go up to 6 miles an hour and its rechargeable battery can go up to 8 miles on a single charge. With its low center of gravity and inflatable tires it can handle rugged terrain and is virtually tip-proof. Think about it, you can take your Zinger almost anywhere, so you don't have to let mobility issues rule your life.

The Oregon Park District released an updated community bike trail map on July 5. The update comes as a result of cooperative efforts between the Oregon Park District, Village of Progress and the City of Oregon.

Oregon Park District releases new community bike trail map

OREGON — The Oregon Park District released an updated community bike trail map on Wednesday, July 5. The update comes as a result of cooperative efforts between the Oregon Park District, Village of Progress and the City of Oregon.

The Village of Progress approached Erin Folk, executive director, with the idea of a few minor route changes in late spring. The changes allowed the community trail and the 10-Mile TOSOC bike route to align and eliminate confusion for community members, visitors and race participants.

“The district was pleased to receive feedback from the Village of Progress and bike enthusiasts within our community,” Folk said. “The original vision for the community bike trail was to provide a safe route for community members and visitors to experience the wonderful things Oregon has to offer. Aligning our community bike route with the TOSOC 10-Mile route continues to enhance this vision.”

Following the request from the Village of Progress, Park District Assistant Superintendent of Parks and Facilities Brent Suter coordinated efforts with the City of Oregon to re-align the route signage to reflect the updated route. Park district staff removed the old signs and the City of Oregon staff installed the new signs.

The map includes links to points of interest along the trail, including the sculpture trail, Depot Museum, public library, parks, schools and parking for visitors. The updated map can be found at <https://oregonpark.org/parks/trail-system/> and at <https://cityoforegon.org/visitor-information/biking/>.

The Oregon Park District strives to improve biking opportunities for both community members and visitors. ITEP funding received in 2023 will help support these efforts and expand the community trail from Illinois Route 64 to Lowden State Park. Phase II engineering is underway, and construction is expected to be completed in 2025.

The 2023 TOSOC ride, sponsored by the Village of Progress, is scheduled for Sept. 23. Participants can choose between a 10-mile route, 32-mile route and 62-mile route throughout scenic Ogle County. The online registration deadline is Sept. 11. Participants interested in registering for TOSOC can visit www.bikereg.com/tosoc-bike-ride.

Northern Illinois Belt Sander Drag Races organization donates to VOP

OREGON — Over the winter on Feb. 11, the 10th Annual Northern Illinois Belt Sander Drag Races were held with over 20 sanders in the stock class and over 30 in a highly-competitive modified class. With over 350 guests in attendance, they raised over $11,000 for the Village of Progress and had a lot of fun in the process. “Wow is about all we can say,” a VOP press release said. “Sometimes ‘stuff’ surprises you and this one surprised us. Jane Hart called the Village and explained her grandson, Cameron, attends the Village of Progress via our Attendance Grant Program. Her family wanted to feature the Village of Progress at an annual event that they do and said they hoped to raise some money for The Attendance Grant Program in the process.

When she called a few weeks later to explain they had a check for $11,000 - we were needless to say surprised.” The Northern Illinois Belt Sander Drag Races started in the Rochelle area in 2012 when some friends got together with the idea that anything can become a competition, including racing power tools. They started by building a wooden track that would harness all the power of belt sanders. The first year there were approximately 16 sanders that were all in the “stock” class with around 50 attendees. The Attendance Grant Program is a unique benefit provided by the Village of Progress. The Attendance Grant Program lets individuals who are on the state’s waiting list attend the Village on a part-time basis — free of charge.

The StingRays to play in Mt. Morris on July 28

MT. MORRIS — The Mt. Morris Jamboree is pleased to announce the highly-anticipated return of Chicago’s oldies rock and roll band, The StingRays, to our band shell for a free two-hour concert on July 28 from 7-9 p.m. Everyone fortunate enough to have seen this exciting and engaging act will fondly remember the dynamic stage presence of this entertaining band. The StingRays play the greatest music ever written and they play it with the energy, passion and authenticity of the artists whose music they love. Their music, great rapport with audiences, their look and the famous StingRay moves have made them repeated favorites at festivals, concert series, and parties throughout the Midwest. The StingRays love interacting with audiences through trivia, dance contests and joining people in the audience. The StingRays always get the crowd singing and dancing to songs from the 50s through the 70s. Concessions for the evening will be provided by the Mt. Morris Senior Center, serving burgers, brats and dogs with all the fixings, chips and drinks. Grandpa’s ice cream will be on site, too. The Let Freedom Ring committee will also be serving root beer floats. All from 6-8 p.m. Ewe and Me Acres will have their farmer’s market stand on the campus from 4:30- 8:30 p.m., offering fresh watermelon, muskmelon and sensation melon (a cross between honeydew and musk), cucumbers, zucchini, fresh baked pies and cookies and homemade dog treats. Please bring a blanket or chair, or enjoy the new benches and join the fun on our beautiful, historic campus in the center of Mt. Morris, two blocks south of Illinois Route 64 on Wesley Avenue and enjoy the free rock & roll concert. In the event of rain, the whole show moves to the old

Mt. Morris High School, located at 105 W. Brayton Road at the same times.
