Democrats pass new legislative maps after a contentious debate

❑ Maps passed during one-day session

By PETER HANCOCK
Capitol News Illinois
SPRINGFIELD—Democrats in the General Assembly pushed through a new set of legislative maps during a one-day special session on Aug. 31, although the process they used sparked the ire of Republicans and voting rights advocates alike.

If accepted by Gov. JB Pritzker, as they are expected to be, the new maps would replace those adopted in May, which were passed without the benefit of official 2020 U.S. Census data. But they will also have to pass muster with a federal court, where two lawsuits are pending, and possibly the Illinois Supreme Court.

The plan adopted on Aug. 31 was actually the third draft of a redistricting plan that had been introduced in the span of less than 48 hours. The first was formally released the afternoon before and was the subject of a contentious public hearing that night. A second, amended version was introduced Tuesday morning, barely one hour before the start of a hearing in the House Redistricting Committee, and that plan was changed slightly again just before the House came into session to debate the package.

“I’m just going to reiterate what I’ve been hearing from thousands of people over the last several months. We need at least 30 days to review this map,” the Rev. Robin Hood, of the Chicago-based United Congress of Community and Religious Organizations, or UCCRO, said during a hearing. “It would be unfair to us if we didn’t have the time to get the map out to all our people and make a decision based on expedience.”

Hood and other advocates testified virtually during a hearing that was originally scheduled for 10 a.m., but which had to be postponed because the bill containing the new proposal, House Amendment 2 to Senate Bill 927, wasn’t released until just minutes before that time.

The committee also heard from representatives of the Chicago Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights and the Decalogue Society of Lawyers, a group that advocates for Jewish communities in Illinois, both of which urged lawmakers to allow more time for the public to review the latest proposal.

The bulk of the 1,269-page bill is made up of lists of census block numbers, townships, wards and precincts that define each proposed House and Senate district. It was accompanied by a separate resolution explaining how the districts were drawn.

The Tuesday morning hearing followed one held Monday evening, during which several advocacy

Farmers’ Almanac calls for typical winter in Illinois

By KEVIN BESSLER
The Center Square

SPRINGFIELD — Look for a typical winter in Illinois if the Farmers’ Almanac’s winter prediction holds true.

The Farmers’ Almanac has released its winter weather outlook for 2021-22 that has its own set of extremes, earning it a “frosty flip-flop” moniker. Managing editor Sandi Duncan said they make their predictions using a set of rules established back in 1818.

“These rules look at things like sun spot activity, tidal action of the moon, position of the planet, and a variety of other factors,” Duncan said. “It’s both a mathematical and astronomical formula.”

The Farmers’ Almanac predicts a cold and snowy January for Illinois, but a much quieter month of February.

“In your area, we are calling for icy, flaky conditions, which means there’s going to be near to somewhat below normal temperatures with above average snowfall and there will be some ice mixed in as well,” Duncan said.

The thought of ice should bring the shivers to many in Illinois after the 2021 New Year’s Day ice storm that paralyzed Central Illinois. A thick coating of ice brought down tree branches and power lines. Temperatures did not warm up to near freezing for days, so the ice didn’t melt until several days after.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Climate Prediction Center says there is a 70% chance of La Nina returning between November 2021 and January 2022. A La

Nina winter could have implications for winter storm activity, flooding and even drought, depending on where you live.

Research shows winter road maintenance can pay for itself in less than a half hour after use. According to research from Illinois Policy, a traffic engineering study showed that applying salt and plowing two-lane roads pays for itself within 25 minutes.

Duncan says people who follow the Farmers’ Almanac weather predictions say they are between 80 and 85 percent accurate.

“Obviously some local conditions could come into play, but we feel pretty confident that we give people a good idea on what’s to come the next two to three seasons ahead,” Duncan said.

State Farm Insurance donates 600 water bottles to Dist. 289

❑ Reusable bottles are customizable to each student

MENDOTA — As the pandemic rages on, support for one another and community has never been more critical.

In another act of kindness among many during the past 17 months, Kurt Bruno State Farm Insurance has donated 600 reusable State Farm water bottles to Northbrook, Lincoln and Blackstone schools in Mendota. All of the water bottles are customizable so each student can be assigned to their own bottle.

“We wanted to do something with the schools in our town due to the difficulty students, teachers and faculty have been faced with this last year, so we reached out to each school and asked them what they would need or are in short supply of for the school year, and they all responded that they have a need for reusable water bottles,” said Bruno.

All the drinking fountains in the schools have now been replaced with bottle filling stations. The need for water bottles the schools are seeing is mainly in the students who are not able to afford reusable water bottles, so many times they go without water throughout the day or the school has to provide them with some, taking away from other expenses.

Kurt Bruno State Farm Insurance delivered the water bottles to the schools on Aug. 31. They were accepted by Superintendent Brad Cox, Northbrook principal Paula Daley, Northbrook assistant principal Emory Burdette, Lincoln principal Dave Lawrence and Blackstone principal Stacy Kelly.

Community input requested for OSF Healthcare's 'Health Needs Survey'

MENDOTA—OSF HealthCare is requesting help from the local community to determine and prioritize health needs. An online survey is now available at https://bradley.az1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_24feYM2AD-BQ5Oxo and will remain available through October.

"Health care needs and obstacles vary from county to county across our state," said Dawn Trompeter, president of OSF Saint Elizabeth Medical Center and OSF Saint Paul Medical Center. "Through this survey, we hope to gather information from a large number of LaSalle County citizens. This information will help us focus our efforts on the challenges and opportunities unique to our geographic area so we can improve lives, encourage wellness, and reduce the risk of illness."

OSF HealthCare hospitals conduct community health needs assessments every three years and put together plans to meet the community needs that the assessments identify. After data is collected and each community's health needs are prioritized, leadership and caregiver teams at OSF HealthCare work together to further support current community-based health programs and services and start new programs to help meet the needs for each community.

"For example, our last survey identified that (1) active living, (2) healthy eating, (3) behavioral health, and (4) substance abuse continue to be the greatest opportunities for improvement in our community," Trompeter noted. "We took feedback from the survey and through a collaborative approach, we worked with several community partners to provide education to residents in LaSalle County. The COVID-19 pandemic slowed down some of these activities in 2020, but we look forward to resuming our previous level of activity soon."

The OSF survey period is Sept. 1 through the month of October. For more information, visit osfhealthcare.org/about/community-health or contact Lindsey Pyszka at (815) 431-5496 or Ellen Vogel at (815) 673-4528.

Farm Progress Show: Illinois farmland values see 20 percent jump

DECATUR - Owners of farmland across Illinois saw a dramatic 20 percent increase in land values in the first half of 2021, only the fourth time there has been this size of positive change in land values since 1970, according to a survey done by the Illinois Society of Professional Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers. The results of the survey were released Sept. 1 at the Farm Progress Show held in Decatur.

Gary Schnitkey, Ph.D., University of Illinois, Champaign, and Luke Worrell, AFM, ALC, Worrell Land Services, Jacksonville, said the price increases occurred across the entire state and affected land from all productivity levels.

The survey was conducted in mid-August among ISPFMRA members and others associated with farmland sales and valuations.

The upward trend in land values is expected to continue with 78 percent predicting increases, although at a more moderate rate, reflecting a tempered outlook over the next five years. There is also an expectation that inflation rates will rise with 49 percent expecting a rise of up to 1 percent while 51 percent feel rates will be stable.

Cash rents will jump, too

Cash rents in 2022 are also expected to increase by as much as 11 percent over rates paid this year. Schnitkey and Worrell said Illinois Society members generally have a base cash rent, with an increase possible if revenue is above a pre-set threshold. The use of this type of variable rental arrangement is expected to grow. The average supplemental rent on a share rent lease is $29 per acre.

Per acre rental rates for excellent productivity is expected to move up from $315 to $350. Values on good productivity property will move from $279 to $299; average productivity land should go from $226 to $249; with the value paid for fair land to move upward from $188 to $210. Fifty-one percent of survey respondents indicate that farmland values will be 1 to 10 percent higher in five years.

Anticipated prices being paid for each bushel for corn and soybeans for 2022 are $4.86 for corn

Cyber Safe: Protecting individuals and businesses online

◆ NIU offers free online program Sept. 15

DE KALB - The past few years have shown us how essential the internet is for both businesses and individuals, as more and more of our banking, shopping, communicating and entertainment happen online.

Manufacturing is also becoming more reliant on the internet, as manufacturers connect digitally with supply chains. However, cybercrimes and scams are also becoming more prevalent, and they affect both individuals and businesses.

At the next NIU STEM Café, hear from two cybersecurity experts. Learn about common vulnerabilities and scams, signs of malicious intent and protective measures you can take.

The STEM Café will take place online on Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 6 p.m. and is free and open to all. Registration and more information are available at go.niu.edu/cybersafe.

One expert speaker will be Jennifer Fowler, a member of the Strategic Cybersecurity Analysis and Research (SCAR) team at Argonne National Laboratory and an adjunct professor at Lewis University, where she teaches about encryption and authentication systems. Her areas of interest include cryptography, data privacy, cyberbiosecurity, biohacking and social engineering.

"Protecting yourself online can seem daunting," Fowler says. "This talk will impart tips and tricks to protect yourself while online banking, engaging in social media, reading and sending email, and traversing the internet."

The other speaker will be Cesar Pena, a senior cybersecurity engineer at MxD in Chicago, which equips manufacturers with digital tools and expertise in many areas, including cybersecurity. MxD is working with industry and government to bring cybersecurity to the supply chain and the factory floor. MxD is also the National Center for Cybersecurity in Manufacturing, as designated by the U.S. Department of Defense.

The MxD cybersecurity team explains, "One thing that makes cybersecurity so challenging for manufacturers is that companies are only as strong as the weakest link in their supply chains. As organizations digitize and become more interconnected, they must be constantly vigilant with not only their own security practices but also with those of their suppliers. According to the 2018 Verizon data breach investigation report, 86 percent of cyberattacks in the sector are targeted rather than opportunistic, and nearly half are thefts of intellectual property, undertaken to gain a competitive advantage."

At the STEM Café, Pena will talk about cybersecurity amidst the rise of ransomware in the U.S. and what companies (especially small to mid-sized companies) can do about the problem.

"Cybersecurity is an increasing threat, and we are all targets," Pena says. "It's not a matter of if we are getting hacked but a matter of where and when."

The STEM Café will take place online on Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 6 p.m. and is free and open to all. Registration and more information are available at go.niu.edu/cybersafe.

Northern Illinois University STEM Cafés are part of NIU STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Math) and are designed to increase public awareness of the critical role that STEM fields play in our everyday lives. They are supported by Bayer Fund and Thermo Fisher Scientific.

groups complained about getting short notice of the meeting and little time to review the proposal.

Common Cause Illinois, a political reform advocacy group, issued a statement Monday afternoon saying it would boycott the hearing out of protest for the way in which lawmakers were conducting the redistricting process.

"Since the beginning, we've pleaded with lawmakers to keep the redistricting process open, transparent, and accessible, to no avail," the group's executive director, Jay Young, said in a statement. "This latest, last-minute hearing provides almost no notice to the public. The new maps will be released less than a day before lawmakers vote on them. It's shameful, and our organization refuses to add any legitimacy to such an undemocratic process."

But State Rep. Lisa Hernandez, D-Cicero, who chaired the House committee, defended the process during debate on the House floor.

"The House and Senate Democrats worked tirelessly to bring stakeholders and communities from across the state together for their input," she said. "Fifty hearings in the spring, nine hearings this August, multiple ways to testify and submit recommendations, a public mapping portal to submit maps. Did everyone get everything they wanted? No. But everyone was heard. Redistricting is a complex exercise with many competing interests and priorities."

Republicans, however, complained that the web portal Democrats had set up to allow people to submit their own proposals actually didn't work and many individuals were unable to use it. They also complained that the final maps brought to the floor did not reflect the concerns that many communities had raised, but instead were drawn to protect the political interests of the Democratic majorities.

"We've had members say what a great process this has been, because we've had so many different hearings," said Rep. Ryan Spain, R-Peoria. "These are hearings that have included locked doors, and no one showing up at all, other than our dedicated Republican spokesperson, and other members of the Republican side of the aisle. This is not transparency. This is not legitimate outreach. It's not earnest involvement of constituents."

Ultimately, though, the new redistricting plan passed both chambers strictly along party lines — 73-43 in the House; 40-17 in the Senate.

Afterwards, the reform advocacy group CHANGE Illinois, which has long advocated for an independent redistricting commission to redraw maps every 10 years, issued a statement condemning the process.

"Drawing district maps in locked back rooms yet again, Illinois lawmakers underscored their utter disregard for the will of the people and for the bedrock democratic principles of open government by and for the people," the group's executive director, Madeleine Doubek, said in a statement. "Gov. Pritzker said he wanted maps that reflect the state's rich diversity. These maps fall far short of that request and should be rejected by him. Failing that, we hope the courts will force the correction of lawmakers' callous political mapping calculations."

Democratic leaders had called the special session shortly after the Aug. 12 release of official, detailed data from the 2020 U.S. Census that showed the maps they approved in May, and which Pritzker signed into law, were significantly out of balance and would likely be held unconstitutional.

Two federal lawsuits were filed challenging those maps — one by legislative Republican leaders, and another by the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, or MALDEF.

Lawmakers crafted the earlier maps using population estimates from the Census Bureau's American Community Survey, arguing that it was the "best data available at the time." It also enabled Democrats to argue that they met the June 30 deadline in the Illinois Constitution for the legislature to approve new maps, thus avoiding sending the work to a bipartisan commission where Republicans would have a 50-50 chance of controlling the process.

Republicans, however, argue that the maps approved in May were unconstitutional and, therefore, not "effective" by June 30, and they are seeking to force the appointment of a bipartisan commission.

Illinois takes a back seat when it comes to teaching computer science

By ZETA CROSS
The Center Square

SPRINGFIELD — When it comes to computer science education, Illinois takes a back seat to most states, according to a report by the College of Education at the University of Illinois.

The big hurdle for Illinois is "a massive educator shortage," said Raya Hegeman-Davis, co-author of the report and research coordinator in the Bureau of Educational Research at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign.

A considerable number of high schools, many in smaller rural districts, still do not offer basic computer science or AP level classes.

"School districts can't implement computer science if they don't have anybody trained to teach computer science," Hegeman-Davis said.

Hegeman-Davis maintains that that state is really doing its students a disservice if it does not introduce them to the basics of computer science before they get to college.

"Illinois universities have some of the top computer science (CS) programs in the world. But, if we aren't training our K-12 students, by the time they get to college, they are already at a disadvantage. Kids from highly resourced schools, where they are able to join coding clubs and take AP classes, are starting out in college at more advanced levels," she said.

She compares Illinois' efforts to Arkansas, which has made computer science a priority.

"[Gov. Asa Hutchinson] has really done an amazing job in promoting computer science classes at every grade level," Hegeman-Davis said.

"To successfully navigate even entry level jobs, everybody will need some grasp of the principles of computer science, an understanding of the basics of computer science, and the very basics of coding."

"In Arkansas, they have really focused on getting families and students to push for computer science because that puts pressure on the school boards."

By state law, Arkansas public high schools are now required to provide coding classes. In Illinois, however, a considerable number of high schools, many in smaller rural districts, still do not offer basic computer science or AP level classes.

Inspiring children to study computer science and other STEM subjects is much easier when the education starts in elementary school, Hegeman-Davis said. Programs like Scratch — where young children learn coding by playing games and moving boxes around — give younger children a taste of what problem-solving using computers is like.

"It's about breaking down problems into small chunks, and identifying how those pieces fit together, to then solve a larger issue. That's all that computing is," Hegeman-Davis said. "It is how we break things down and look at them in a logical pattern. And then use those steps to solve a larger problem."

The message that Illinois children need to take away from elementary school is that computer science is not just for math nerds.

"Everybody can use computers to solve problems," Hegeman-Davis said.

When 2021 kindergartners graduate from high school in 13 years, 70% of jobs will require computer skills, an Oxford University study has found.

"Almost any job you can imagine will have some level of computer science involved in it, whether it is knowing how to update a website or understanding what is happening inside the computer," Hegeman-Davis said. "To successfully navigate even entry level jobs, everybody will need some grasp of the principles of computer science, an understanding of the basics of computer science, and the very basics of coding."

Agriculture is one sector of the economy where future jobs will require a digitally trained workforce.

"Farming has really changed. Companies like John Deere don't talk about themselves as agriculture companies anymore. They talk about themselves as tech companies," she said. "If you work on a farm, you will use computer science. It's not just a Silicon Valley issue."

Parent College event is Sept. 15

OGLESBY — Illinois Valley Community College's Admissions Office hosts Parent College 101 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 15 in Room CTC124-125.

This event for parents and guardians of current high school students will provide information on the college search process, such as when to start and the difference between certificates and four-year degrees.

Assistant Director of Admissions, Records, and Transfer Services Aseret Loveland said, "Navigating the college enrollment process can be confusing. Our goal is to help make sense of it all not just for students choosing IVCC, but any college."

For information or to RSVP, visit www.ivcc.edu/admissions/parent-college-101.php. Attending via Zoom is also an option.

Cannabis program sessions scheduled

OGLESBY — Two sessions of the Cannabis Dispensary Agent/Patient Care Specialist program will be offered this fall through Illinois Valley Community College's Continuing Education Center.

Sessions meet 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 15 through Oct. 20 in Room CTC214 on main campus (ID:9) and Nov. 3 to Dec. 15 at Ottawa Center, 321 W. Main St. (ID:10)

The program covers the medical and recreational cannabis markets and applies to other parts of the industry. Students will learn to speak and educate others confidently about cannabis and will know detailed information on the cannabis plant and how it can be used medicinally.

It also provides an overview of laws regarding Illinois Department of Financial & Professional Regulations (IDFPR) and how they can be implemented within a dispensary or retail setting. The course prepares students for state licensure.

Director of Continuing Education and Business Services Jennifer Scheri said, "IVCC continues to respond to the needs of various industries by providing training to build workforces."

Course instructor Joseph Naszke helped develop the program.

Candidates for employment in the cannabis industry must be at least 21 and must pass a criminal background check. Cost is $249. To register or for information, call (815) 224-0547.

OGLESBY — Illinois Valley Community College's Tutoring and Writing Center is offering free tutoring for high school students again this semester from 3 to 7 p.m. Mondays in the Academic Support Center, A201, and 3 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays at Ottawa Center, 321 W. Main St.

Course-specific tutors are available to assist with a variety of subjects including algebra, geometry, biology, chemistry, Spanish, and more.

Tutors are also available for every stage of the writing process. They work with students about specific assignments, read the students' draft and suggest revisions.

Students can come in alone or be joined by a parent or guardian and are encouraged to bring in any materials needed for their courses. For information, visit www.ivcc.edu/hstutoring.

W. Hunt named to IVCC Board

OGLESBY — William "Bill" Hunt of Oglesby was appointed to fill a nearly two-year vacancy on the Illinois Valley Community College board by trustees at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Hunt was elected three times to the Mendota City Council between 2008 and 2020 and served as finance chairman and vice mayor.

Now retired, Hunt was United Airlines' Operations Manager at O'Hare International Airport and earlier Director of Logistics for the Cook County Sheriff's Office. He served in aviation logistics and transportation for the U.S. Navy from 1979 to 1986.

Hunt fills the vacancy created by the July 8 resignation of trustee David Mallory of Hennepin. Trustees will officially seat Hunt at the 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 9 meeting. His term runs through the April 2023 consolidated election.

The board also approved a one-year extension of the collective bargaining agreement with the American Federation of Teachers Local 1810. Local 1810 represents 75 IVCC faculty.

An act of mercy

By Scott Reeder
SPRINGFIELD – Should government temper its justice with mercy?

I’ve been pondering that question for at least three decades, ever since I was a young reporter and heard a Texas prosecutor stand before a jury and say, “These aren’t halls of mercy; these are halls of justice!”

Justice is rendered when people receive their due, according to the law. Mercy is a disposition to be kind and forgiving – even if the person has done nothing to deserve it.

Gov. J.B. Pritzker signed legislation allowing terminally ill or incapacitated inmates to be released early from prison, after their case is assessed by the Illinois Prisoner Review Board.

It’s a measure that can be best described as merciful. Illinois is the 49th state to enact such legislation, leaving only Iowa without such a provision in its statutes.

“Unfortunately, so many of these people lose their lives, locked away behind bars without being able to spend their last moments with their family,” state Rep. Will Guzzardi, D-Chicago, told me. “And so many of those folks, especially the people who have been very sick, or are permanently disabled are people who don’t pose any kind of public safety risk to their community.”

Guzzardi was the House sponsor of the legislation. I confided in him that I was stunned that it passed. After all, for most of the time I’ve covered politics a majority of legislators have had a lock ‘em up and throw away the key mindset.

“I do think that the pendulum is swinging back toward a more compassionate and fair justice system,” Guzzardi replied. “We have increased penalties, longer sentences, higher incarceration rates, but the data says that it doesn’t make our communities any safer. It’s extremely disruptive to over-policed and over-incarcerated communities. And it’s enormously costly to all levels of government.”

One thing is for certain: we have too many people in prison. The United States locks up the highest percentage of its citizens of any nation in the world.

Shortly after Pritzker signed the legislation, another act of mercy caught my attention. The California Parole Board voted to recommend the release of Sirhan Sirhan, who murdered U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy 53 years ago. Kennedy had won the Democratic presidential primary in California the day he was shot.

Ultimately, it will be up to Gavin Newsom to decide whether Sirhan becomes a free man. Six of Kennedy’s children lobbied the parole board for the assassin’s continued incarceration. And two called for his release.

And there is the rub.

Family members often equate the worth of the loved one they lost to the severity of punishment given to their killer.

It’s a strange phenomenon. Guzzardi calls it uniquely American. Perhaps it is.

Twenty years ago, when Gov. George Ryan contemplated commuting the sentences of everyone on Illinois’ death row, families of those murdered made pilgrimages to Springfield and Chicago to speak against it.

I stood outside the Illinois Governor’s Mansion as family member after member told me they needed an execution in order for their family to have “closure.”

I hear similar things today when families demand life without possibility of parole.

But to be honest, I don’t understand how the severity of the punishment someone else receives equates to one’s own sense of peace or resolution.

Craig Findley, chairman of the Prisoner Review Board, said the suffering murder victim’s families endure is unfathomable.

“I don’t know what they go through because I never experienced a loss like that. A murder is like dropping a stone into a pond. The ripples keep going outward. It can affect future generations as well.”

Findley, who has served on the board for 20 years, said victim families rarely lose interest in the punishment of the offender, even decades after the crime.

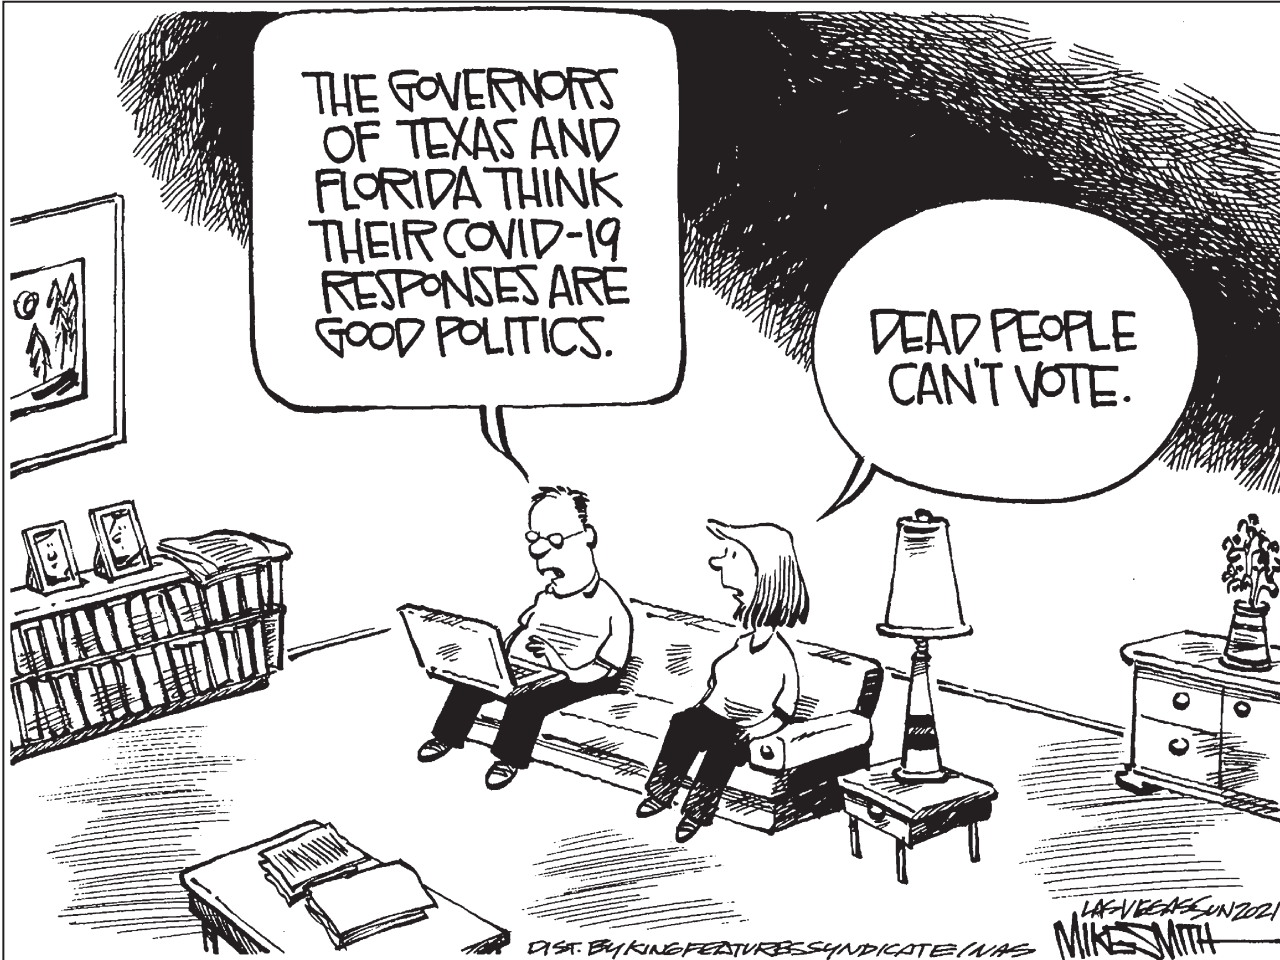

The measure signed by Pritzker will for the first time allow the board to use mercy as a criterion for releasing someone from prison, Findley said.

Is that good public policy? Well, it’s certainly not a new concept.

I was raised in a home where forgiveness was considered a sign of strength. Unfortunately, many of our elected officials have taken a different view, believing retribution is the key to justice.

But for me, the words of the Hebrew prophet Micah ring loud: “And what does the Lord require of you? To act justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with your God.”

Recycling drives in Mendota – 1990

(The following is from Jessica Nashold’s Backtracks & Sidetracks column reprinted from Sept. 13, 1995.)
By Jessica Nashold

In 1990, recycling in Mendota was accomplished through drives. Students at Blackstone School sponsored a collection on Sept. 8 and reported a total of 4 tons of paper and cardboard, 1500 pounds of glass, 500 pounds of plastic and 500 pounds of aluminum taken in.

Families of Lincoln Kids (FOLK) announced a collection of recyclables for Sept. 22. Everything was to be brought to the swimming pool parking lot on that day between 8:30 and 12:30.

Mendota band students planned drives for Oct. 6 and Oct. 20. Proceeds from the sale of recyclables were earmarked for the sponsoring organizations.

Groundbreaking for a building south-east of the fairgrounds to house a trash compactor was accomplished on Sept. 10, 1990. Wirth Disposal was furnishing the equipment and would manage the facility. Phalen Construction was erecting the building. The system was expected to result in savings to the city on the cost of garbage disposal.

Since the city now charged on a cubic yard basis, compaction will allow more trash per cubic yard.

The Reporter introduced a new editor. He was Jim Dunn of Ohio, Ill. Dunn had spent 12 years with the Bureau County Republican in Princeton, 10 of them as editor. He had been a staff writer with the Daily Gazette in Sterling before coming to Mendota.

However, he was not a stranger here. During his college years he had worked during the summer at Wayside Press. He also had another connection with Mendota, which he explained –

I remember when my father and his 1929 Buick belonged to the Antique Car Club some 20 years back. My older sister represented the club in the Sweet Corn Festival Queen contest that year.

Sears moved its store on Meriden Street to a new building at 1205 Washington, east of 13th Avenue. At the new location, the store featured home appliances and electronic equipment while maintaining its catalog service.

Backtracks & Sidetracks

The Growing Place, specializing in children’s clothing, opened on Washington Street in downtown Mendota. Owners were Karen Waudo and JoEllyn Gahan. They were welcomed to the business community by the Ambassadors, a delegation from the Mendota Area Chamber of Commerce.

The plumbing contract in connection with the renovation of the Mendota swimming pool was awarded to Triple Service. Their bid of $20,467.26 covered replacement plumbing in the pool, the poolhouse, bath house and deck drains.

A double page Trojan Tattler in the Sept. 20, 1990 issue of The Reporter was dedicated to former MHS superintendent Morris Morgan, who died on Sept. 7. Before becoming superintendent, he had been a math teacher, coach and guidance counselor. His tenure at MHS at the time of his retirement had spanned a period of 32 years.

The issue of the Tattler included a report on a two-week tour on London, France and Spain by six students led by French instructor Linda Thompson. The girls making the trip were Sue Friant, Dawn Mills, Sherry Possley, Jennifer Schultz, Cathy Steele and Heather Vaughan.

The Tattler also carried profiles of three foreign exchange students enrolled at MHS. They were Birget Handl of Vienna, Austria; Javier Sendin of Vitoria, Spain; and Anette Eghoff of Denmark. Anette’s older brother had been an exchange student in 1987.

New faculty members for the 1990-91 school year were the new superintendent, Michael Duffy, physical education instructor Phil Bodine, U.S. History teacher Mike Kilmartin and math teacher Mike Mueller.

The Reporter and local businesses sponsored yellow ribbons in the Money Saver for Sept. 12, 1990.

People back home can show their support of servicemen by displaying the yellow ribbons.

Among area men serving in the Persian Gulf and Saudi Arabia were Darrell Collings, Francis Campeggio, Hal Barsky, John Strohman, Chris Motter, Mike Harris and Scott Wheeler.

At Northbrook School, Mrs. Lovgren’s eighth grade Social Studies class tied red, white and blue ribbons to the trees in the schoolyard as an expression of support for servicemen who had graduated there.

Police chief Dennis Franklin tendered his resignation effective Sept. 17, 1990. He had served as chief since 1988. During his tenure, the Drug Awareness Resistance Education program had been initiated in Mendota schools. In leaving, Franklin said –

I just hope that they keep up with the programs the department has started. We have a lot of good people here.

Ken Haun was named temporary chief of the Mendota Police Department.

The Mendota Area Christian Food Pantry was coordinated by Sister Marie Edele in the basement of the Holy Cross residence at Jefferson Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. There had been an increase of 48 families in the number being provided with groceries and other necessities. The 1990 total was now 252 families. Volunteers were needed for a number of tasks in connection with the project.

Said Sister Marie Edele –

If anybody’s even remotely interested, please give me a call.

A local grocer, Gil Dempsey, serving on the pantry board, also emphasized the need for more volunteers.

The problem isn’t as much money as that we need people to give their time. The time you give is returned to you in joy.

Figures from the 1990 census were released revealing a slight drop in the population of Mendota since 1980. The new figure was 7,000, down from 7,134 in 1980. City clerk Mike Wasmer commented that the city would probably not challenge the count.

The number (of residents) per household has diminished. That’s a regional and national trend.

Organizers of Sylvan Shuffle 5K in Amboy should be commended

Dear Editor:

I was a first-time participant in the Sylvan Shuffle 5K Run/Walk during Amboy’s Depot Days. This is one of four fundraising events sponsored by the Amboy Education Foundation each year. The AEF’s singular goal is to provide resources to the Amboy School District to aid teachers and students.

I was thoroughly impressed with the level of professionalism and commitment shown by the AEF members and volunteers in putting on a first-rate 5K event. From the quick and easy online registration, the convenient race packet pick-up, the well-marked course with supporters throughout, the post-race snacks and cold water, and finally the fun and congenial awards presentation – the entire event ran flawlessly. That does not happen without many hours of planning and lots of dedicated volunteer involvement.

AEF President, Mark Becker and his entire team are to be commended for putting on an outstanding event.

I’m looking forward to walking again next year and I would encourage anyone who wants to have some fun while supporting a great cause to join us. And for those who have never participated in a race before and may have some apprehension, this would be a great starter event since it is three miles on a flat paved route. Plus, the race is only as competitive as you make it. Feel free to join me as I walk toward the back of the pack.

Nancy Butler, Bartlett

Many benefits to playing sports

Many children are introduced to sports at an early age. Though young children may enjoy the recreational aspect of playing sports, a serious passion for a particular sport may develop as children reach high school. Such passions can be encouraged, as participating in sports can be highly beneficial for young people.

1. Learn resilience: Compared to generations past, when children may have had jobs during the school year, today's children do not have many demands placed on them beyond schoolwork and maybe some light chores around the house. The average student may use sports as a way to learn about and overcome challenges. Participating in sports can teach kids how to recover from setbacks (being the losing team) or dealing with adverse situations (sports-related injuries).

2. Improve fitness: School sports require ongoing physical activity, which is advantageous to children in an age when lifestyles are increasingly sedentary. A report from the National Federation of State High School Associations found that when female students are given more opportunity to engage in athletics in high school, their weight and body mass improve. School sports can help students overcome the negatives of sedentary lifestyles.

3. Relieve stress: Exercise in any shape or form can help relieve stress. The camaraderie that develops within a team setting also can boost self-esteem and help some students overcome any feelings of isolation they may confront during adolescence.

4. Boost brainpower: School sports may work the body but they also benefit the brain. A report from the Institute of Medicine indicates children who are physically active show greater attention, have faster cognitive processing speed and perform better on academic tests than those who are sedentary.

5. Develop confidence and leadership skills: A study from Cornell University says teens who played sports developed stronger leadership skills and developed better confidence. That can work in a team or solitary setting, and translate into skills that serve a person well throughout life.

Protective eyewear can help prevent eye injuries

The Vision Council notes that roughly 200,000 sports-related eye injuries occur in children each year. Concerned parents should know that estimates from Boston Children's Hospital suggest that as much as 90 percent of sports eye injuries can be prevented with protective eyewear.

Celebrity Extra

By Dana Jackson

Q: Could you tell me why “Evil” was moved to Paramount Plus? It’s a great show, but I don’t want to pay extra to watch it. -- Frank in New York

A: According to an article from “Variety” back in May, the first season of “Evil” was a big hit for CBS, but its audience grew even more substantial when it re-aired the episodes on Netflix. “Variety” explains that “again and again in recent months, media conglomerates have demonstrated that streaming services are the priority in this landscape. ... CBS moving ‘Evil’ to Paramount Plus in order to capitalize on its streaming success is another example of this new world order.” CBS is obviously hoping that cable and Netflix subscribers will follow “Evil” to Paramount Plus for $5 a month.

For those who aren’t familiar with the show, “Evil” stars Katja Herbers as a forensic psychologist and Mike Colter as a priest who work together to solve supernatural mysteries for the Catholic Church. The series was created by husband-and-wife team Robert and Michelle King, who also were the masterminds behind CBS’s “The Good Wife” and “The Good Fight” on Paramount Plus.

Q: I was watching a commercial for the new series about Monica Lewinsky. I didn’t recognize anyone in it. I’m especially intrigued about who is playing President Bill Clinton -- he sounded just like him. -- E.E.

C. Owen

A: The newest installment of “American Crime Story” premieres Sept. 7 on the FX channel and focuses on the Monica Lewinsky-Bill Clinton scandal. In fact, “Impeachment” is co-produced by Lewinsky herself and stars Beanie Feldstein (“Booksmart”) as the infamous intern.

British actor Clive Owen was initially skeptical about taking on the role of our 42nd president, telling producer Ryan Murphy, “I don’t really look like him,” but the makeup department did a fantastic job on Owen with modifications to his forehead and nose. The voice is all a result of Owen’s talent.

Rounding out the cast are Edie Falco as the formidable Hillary Clinton and Sarah Paulson as Lewinsky’s freemurderer, Linda Tripp. A chameleon, Paulson previously played prosecutor Marcia Clark in “The People v. O.J. Simpson: American Crime Story.” As for Owen, he’s been in countless projects, but is probably best known for his Oscar-nominated role in the 2004 film “Closer,” opposite Natalie Portman and Julia Roberts.

Q: Who is the actress playing four versions of herself in the Buick commercials? She looks so familiar, but I can’t figure out where I’ve seen her. -- R.S.

A: Vanessa Curry is the model/actress driving her three alter egos around in her Buick Envision after a “brutal” spin class. She’s a former NBA Laker Girl who also was once part of the pop group Pussycat Dolls. She appeared in a slew of national commercials for Target, AT&T and BMW before landing the Buick campaign. Curry has guest-starred on numerous prime-time shows, so perhaps you saw her on “Glee,” “CSI: New York” or “Pump.”

Hollywood

By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- In 1955, Clint Eastwood began his career in “The Revenge of the Creature” (from “The Black Lagoon”). He landed the lead in the CBS series “Rawhide” in 1958, then went to Italy in 1964 and starred in “A Fistful of Dollars,” the first of three spaghetti Westerns. At 40, Eastwood directed his first film, “Play Misty For Me” (1971). He kept acting, but it was directing that earned him four Oscars (from 11 nominations). On Sept. 17, at 91, his 40th film will open, “Cry Macho,” which he directed, produced and stars in.

Clint cast country singer Dwight Yoakum as his co-star. Yoakum’s memorable films are “Sling Blade” (1996), “Panic Room” (2002), “Wedding Crashers” (2005) and most recently “Logan Lucky” (2017), with Channing Tatum, Adam Driver, Seth MacFarlane and Sebastian Stan.

Famed director Frank Capra won six Oscars and made his last film at age 64. Alfred Hitchcock directed 59 films (and never won an Oscar, though he did receive the Irving Thalberg Award from the Academy), directing his last one at 76. While Capra had two wives and four kids, and Hitchcock had one wife and one kid, Eastwood juggled his career with two wives, two partners and eight children. At least five of his kids have successful acting/directing careers, including Scott Eastwood, who can be seen in the recent hit “The Suicide Squad.” Clint had many memorable moments as an actor, but as a director, he’s in a class of his own.

At long last, Shari Lewis (who died in 1998) and Lam-bchop -- who made their TV debut in 1956 with “Captain Kangaroo” on CBS, won 13 Emmy Awards and a Peabody -- will finally be the subject of an upcoming documentary.

Not so lucky is Johnny Depp, whom the San Sebastian Film Festival is giving a Lifetime Achievement Award and getting backlash from women’s groups, including Spain’s Association of Female Filmmakers. It follows the decree of an English judge who found the accusation of Depp beating his ex-wife, Amber Heard, “was substantially correct” (despite her beating him too?).

More bad news for Harvey Weinstein. Pulitzer Prize-winning New York Times writers Jodi Kantor and Megan Twohey’s best-selling book “She Said” is becoming a movie with Carey Mulligan playing Twohey and Zoe Kazan as Kantor, as well as Patricia Clarkson and “Brooklyn Nine-Nine”’s two-time Emmy-winner Andre Braugher, plus Brad Pitt as one of the producers. The film is a dramatic retelling of the sexual harassment investigation that took down Weinstein and sparked the #MeToo movement. It will focus on their efforts to uncover and expose decades of allegations against Weinstein, who has already been sentenced to 23 years in prison on charges of sexual assault and third-degree rape, and is now facing more charges in Los Angeles. Tick, tick, boom ... time’s up!

Couch Theater

“Doogie Kamealoha, M.D.” (TV-PG) -- As the trend of TV reboots continues, we now have this updated version of the early ‘90s sitcom “Doogie Howser, M.D.” This time around the teenaged physician is a girl who’s balancing hospital rounds with time off surfing with friends in her home state of Hawaii. The 10-episode series stars 17-year-old Peyton Elizabeth Lee (who isn’t actually Hawaiian, so slight casting fail there). The original theme song now played on ukulele is a nice nostalgic touch. (Disney+)

“Sweet Girl” (R) -- In a very timely plot, Jason Momoa plays Ray Cooper, a Pittsburgh blue-collar worker who loses his young wife to cancer. Blaming a pharmaceutical company’s CEO for his wife’s death after the company pulls a life-saving medication from the market, Ray vows vengeance against him. His teenaged daughter, Rachel, insinuates herself into Ray’s violent attacks, and the two soon find themselves fleeing authorities. Fair warning, there are lots of graphic fight scenes that are painful to watch. But a plot twist changes the whole dynamic of the film, so you may end up watching it twice. (Netflix)

“9/11: Inside the President’s War Room” (NR) -- With all the previous documentaries that have come out over nearly 20 years, it’s hard to imagine there is still unseen footage, but such is the claim by the BBC production team bringing this doc just prior to the anniversary of 9/11. Narrated by Jeff Daniels, the film centers on the vantage points of President George Bush’s main advisers in the 12 hours following the Twin Tower strikes, from Vice President Dick Cheney and national security adviser Condoleezza Rice, to the president’s Secret Service detail, his press secretary and the pilot of Air Force One. Hundreds of never-before-seen photographs and archived film give a new insight into the decision-makers on that horrific day. (Apple TV+)

“First Wives Club” (TV-14) -- This BET original series isn’t really a reboot of the hugely successful 1996 movie, it’s more like a reinterpretation of it in episodic form. It still focuses on three long-time friends who all find themselves divorcing their cheating or otherwise dubious husbands at the same time, but that’s where the similarities end. The jokes fall flat and the writing is uninspiring. Singer Jill Scott is dynamic, but her talents are underutilized here. (BET+)

In Case You Missed It “I Don’t Like Mondays” (NR) -- This 2006 documentary tells the story of 16-year-old Brenda Spencer, who perpetrated America’s first mass school shooting. The 1979 tragedy inspired the pop song “I Don’t Like Mondays” by the Boomtown Rats.

Practical keys to overcome enemy attack

As children of God, we have power and authority over the devil. And we are to use that power and authority for good...and for service to others. That almost sounds like something you could say about a superhero, doesn't it?

It reminds me of a letter I once received from a woman, telling me about her four-year-old son and his cousins playing together one day. They were all pretending to be superheroes. One of them exclaimed, "I'm Superman!" Another said, "I'm Superwoman!" And this lady said her son proudly wielded his imaginary sword and proclaimed, "I'm Joyce Meyer!"

What a compliment to the Christ in me! That child saw something in me that he thought was "super" and wanted to imitate! What he saw is simply a result of the work God has done in my life through His Holy Spirit. And isn't it interesting that while the other kids' superhero gear included a cape, his little weapon was a sword! (See Ephesians 6:17.)

We are often referred to as soldiers in the Word of God. Soldiers are well trained in combat; they carry all kinds of offensive, as well as defensive equipment, and are taught to be vigilant, alert, and aware.

Whether we view ourselves like soldiers or superheroes, our warfare is spiritual. And our weapons and armor are also spiritual.

Doing Warfare God's Way

In this spiritual war, we fight on the battlefield of the mind. Every day we are subjected to unrelenting attacks in our thoughts, such as worry, fear, doubt and other concerns. The devil is behind many of our problems, and some we create ourselves.

But Ephesians 6:11 tells us to "put on the full armor of God, so that [we] can take [our] stand against the devil's schemes" (NIV). Our thoughts are very important in this warfare...what we think of ourselves as well as what we think of others or of our circumstances. The reason is that "our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms" (v. 12).

And, while the devil may have power, we have the power and authority of Jesus Christ at work in us by His Holy Spirit. Our job is to get to know God for ourselves—get to know who we are in Him and the power that is available to us through Him.

We need to learn how to follow the Holy Spirit, because He wants to lead us in our individual battles according to what is right for each of us. The truth is God is on our side, and that already makes us more than conquerors in Him! (See Romans 8:31, 37.)

What to Wear to Battle

In this war, there's both offensive and defensive equipment. With our weapons we fight the enemy. And we are protected from him by our armor. Both are vitally important to our success.

Colossians 3:12-14 (NIV) says, "Therefore, as God's chosen people, holy and dearly loved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness and patience. Bear with each other and forgive one another if any of you has a grievance against someone. Forgive as the Lord forgave you. And over all these virtues put on love, which binds them all together in perfect unity."

These verses reveal the weapons and armor of our spiritual warfare. We defeat the enemy's tactics every time we forgive instead of hold a grudge...every time we have patience with someone rather than rush them...every time we speak with humility rather than arrogance.

Ephesians 4:25 says to "put off falsehood and speak truthfully to your neighbor...." Verse 31 goes on to say, "Get rid of all bitterness, rage and anger, brawling and slander, along with every form of malice." These are things that will hinder and weigh us down in life—and certainly in a spiritual battle.

The Battle Plan

To win our battles, we have to learn to cooperate with the Holy Spirit as He leads us, according to His purpose and plan for our lives. Practically speaking, we do this as we commit to seeking God in prayer and by studying His Word, and then choosing to trust what He says above and beyond anything else. That means we believe the Truth of who God is and His promises to us in the Bible no matter what our circumstances look like, what we feel, or what lies the enemy is trying to put in our mind.

So, tighten up your belt of Truth (Ephesians 6:14). In other words, learn the truth of God's Word, especially what His Word says about you. Then do what you know to do...what you can do...and God will do what you can't. Don't be so concerned about how everything will work out; just trust God to do what's right for you!
