High rates of virus seen in schools; outbreaks are being monitored

ROCK VALLEY SHOPPER

By Jeff Helfrich Rochelle News-Leader

ROCHELLE – Ogle County Health Department Public Administrator Kyle Auman provided an update to the Ogle County Board at its Sept. 21 meeting on the county's COVID-19 progress.

"Hopefully this will be one of the last times I come bearing bad news," Auman said. "It's not as bad as it's been in the past, but we're still averaging about 20 cases per day. We're seeing a plateau in cases in the rest of the state. In Region 1, we're still seeing that high risk transmission."

Ogle County's current positivity rate is 6.94 percent with a case rate per 100,000 of 302.11. The current regional ICU bed utilization is 16 percent, which Auman said is down 17 percent from about two weeks ago.

The OCHD is currently monitoring outbreaks and has issued two outbreaks this week. In September, the county has seen two additional COVID-19 deaths, one person in their 70s and one in their 80s.

Auman said the OCHD continues to administer vaccinations at both of its offices and is still partnering with Rochelle Community Hospital and KSB Hospital in Dixon along with county pharmacies.

Ogle County residents are currently 47.39 percent vaccinated. The OCHD is still getting all three versions of the vaccine and is partnering with hospitals, pharmacies and others that offer them to make sure they have access to doses.

In the past week, the OCHD has been able to order additional Johnson & Johnson vaccines and expects to receive that shipment this week, Auman said.

Autumn on Parade is back Annual festival back and bigger than ever for 50th anniversary

By Brad Jennings Editor

OREGON – It is crunch time for Marseyne Snow and the other volunteers who put together Autumn on Parade in Oregon.

The 50th anniversary of the event was cancelled last year due to COVID-19, but it is back this year and bigger and better than ever. "It feels good," Snow, president of the volunteer group that stages AOP, said of its return. "Everybody's excited to have something to do again. It's obviously really great for the community with all of the visitors it brings to town that weekend." The festival will be held in downtown Oregon Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 2-3. As usual, AOP with feature the Farmer's Market and Craft Fair as its centerpiece. There will be about 180 vendors this year. The Harvest Time Parade, which kicks off at 1 p.m. Sunday, is also a big draw. This year it will include a number of marching bands, floats, the Jesse White Tumblers and the South Shore Drill Team.

garden for a long time," Snow said. She added that the beer garden probably won't become an annual feature of the festival, but they wanted to do something "really special" for the 50th anniversary.

The live music will be provided by Blue Steel and Burn 'n Bush. Snow said Martin & Company are sponsoring the beer garden and bands.

The food selection will also be expanded this year. Snow said along with the non-profit organizations which have food available at AOP, there will also be businesses offering food. Those include Hector's Cocina, Northside BBQ and Thai Jasmine Rice and Noodles. Snow said the food will be set up in the parking lot of the old jail as well as the south side of Jefferson street. The goal is to not clog up the area and slow foot traffic as in past years.

which will be held at Oregon Park East - free shuttles to the car show from the festival site will be provided – and a 5K and Fun Run.

There are also some all new attractions this year at AOP. There will be a Fun Zone for kids that features inflatables, a magician and a petting zoo.

"And it's all free," Snow said.

And for the adults, for the first time AOP will feature a beer garden with live music on Saturday.

"People have been asking for a beer

"Before it would get so crowded," Snow said. "So, it's really opened up."

Snow said volunteers for the event are always welcome and encouraged people to give her a call at 815-341-5559 if interested. She said there is a free T-shirt in it.

A week before the festival, Snow was still working hard with the others in the group of about 10 regular volunteers to make sure AOP is ready to go.

"It's kind of stressful right now, because there's a lot of stuff that has to come together," she said.

AOP runs from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

COVID: Flu shots available

The OCHD is still not currently issuing or authorized to administer booster vaccines.

"That question comes up frequently," Auman said. "We're asked that every single day. There's been a lot of talk in the media about the 65 and over population and the general population as well. And the 5-11-yearold population. We're still waiting on approval for those populations to receive the booster or their first round of vaccination. As soon as we receive that authorization from the state and our federal partners, we'll make sure we administer those and come up with a plan to go out into schools and administer those directly."

Auman also talked about flu season and said the OCHD has received its first shipment of the flu vaccine and plans to target those in schools and the senior citizen population.

The flu vaccine and COVID-19 can now be administered together to avoid a second trip, Auman said.

The OCHD Public Administrator said his department is still seeing spread in county schools.

"We're still seeing high rates of COVID-19 in schools and working with our local school partners to address those situations," Auman said.

The meeting was held at Focus House in Rochelle.

Doris Snapp – medical technologist, mother, sister, grandmother, great-grandmother and all-around best friend – passed away surrounded by her family on Sept. 1, 2021, while in hospice in Fresno, Calif. Doris was born at home on Aug. 25, 1938 in rural northwestern Illinois in a house with no electricity or running water, and her life's journey ended shortly after her 83rd birthday with Doris having mastered texting, Portal calls and Zoom sessions in order to stay in touch with her large circle of family and friends. Doris is survived by her daughters, Catherine L. Snapp (Mark Ludwig) of Sacramento, Calif.; Laura A. Linville (James Linville) of Portland, Ore.; and Annette L. Snapp (Gloria Sajgo) of Fort Myers, Fla.; and nine grandchildren: Lynnette, Stephanie, Catherine, Miriah, Scott, Madeline and Jacqueline Linville; and Ashley and Christoph Ludwig; and great-granddaughter Samantha DaMota (Stephanie's daughter).

Doris is also survived by her sisters, Della "Polly" Martin and Donna "Duffy" Reuter of Freeport; Karen Kulas of Pearl City; and Edith "Jean" Donahue (Gerald) of Carbondale; and her brother, Kenneth Barnhart(Susan) of Weslaco, Texas; and numerous cousins.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert G. Snapp, her father, Earl Barnhart; her mother, Viola (Bonner) Barnhart; and her brother Richard Barnhart (Kathleen).

Her memorial service was at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, at Atwater United Methodist Church, 2550 Linden St., Atwater, Calif. A final memorial service will be held in northwestern Illinois in the summer of 2022.

Doris was born and grew up in Pine Creek Township near Mt. Morris in northern Illinois. She was the third-oldest of seven children. In a family with colorful nicknames, her nickname of "Snooky" or "Snooks" was bestowed upon her by her family after the mischievous radio character Baby Snooks and doll of the time.

Doris walked along Pine Creek on the way to a one-room schoolhouse, sledded down the frozen mill race in the winter with her sisters and brothers and helped to raise vegetables. She moved with family to "town" in Mt. Morris, where she attended Mt. Morris High School and graduated in 1956. Doris married Robert Grant Snapp on Aug. 30, 1957, at the Church of the Brethren in Mt Morris, and they raised three daughters.

Doris Snapp

Doris exemplified the pioneer professional woman of the 1970s: going back to school in her 30s, first at Highland Community College in Freeport, Ill and then at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, Ill. In 1974 she earned a bachelor's degree in clinical laboratory science/medical technology/technologist from NIU.

In 1974, Doris, Bob and the girls moved to Effingham, where Doris worked at St Anthony Memorial Hospital as a medical technologist and in 1981, the family moved to Merced, Calif. where she also worked as a medical technologist at what was then Mercy Hospital. In 1988, Doris and Bob moved to nearby Atwater, Calif., and Doris continued to work as a medical technologist and also earned a California real estate license. During this time, Doris and Bob sponsored a young Japanese exchange student, Kio Shimizu, who became part of their extended family as she visited them more than 20 times - in later visits bringing her sister and then her husband and two sons. Doris and Bob attended Kio's wedding in Japan.

We remember Doris for her love of learning – she was an avid reader and book club member - and her love of people. She treasured the friends that she made throughout her life. Doris enjoyed taking writing classes and sharing her writings with family. She was an active church member and very involved in her community, including as a Girl Scout leader who took her troop on overnight canoe and bike trips.

Doris also enjoyed traveling and the outdoors. She traveled with her daughter Annette to Mexico and later visited Annette several times in England. Her travels with family-including to and from family reunions - spawned a whole genre of family stories that were told and retold.

Doris and her daughter Annette relentlessly searched for the birth family of her late mother, Viola Bonner, and used DNA searches to find the family just a few years ago through her newly discovered first cousin, Janet McDonald. Doris met her mother's sister, Hildreth (Bruschwein) Grimes, and was elated by Aunt Hildreth's warm welcome. She felt very lucky to be accepted as part of the Bruschwein/Wiens family and to expand her family circle and repertoire of family stories.

Donations in honor of Doris' memory can be made to Atwater United Methodist Church, 2550 Linden St., Atwater, Calif. 95301 or to the Northern Illinois University Foundation, P.O. Box 746, DeKalb, Ill. 60115. In the memo field of checks to the church or to the foundation, please note: Doris Snapp Memorial.

while helping on the family farm and completed his high school education through the Job Corps, where he worked in many projects, including restoration of the Hensley Settlement in the Appalachian Mountains. The Job Corps brought him to Belvidere, IL in 1967 where he worked at Chrysler. He also worked at MGD Graphics, where he met his long time companion, Penny Gentzel. He did body work and painted vehicles and motorcycles at Strandquist and Kegel's. Ron's many years as an over-the-road truck driver took him on adventures across the United States, with routes to New York City, California, Louisiana, and many places in between. During the last several years, when his health no longer allowed him to drive his semi, he spent his time doing body work, painting vehicles, and enjoying time with friends and family. He was passionate about his Fords and Harleys.

Ron truly lived life during his 73 years and enjoyed the experience of whatever he did. He spent time boating on the Mississippi River and on

LOCAL NEWS Stock+Field rebranding to R.P. Home & Harvest

EDWARDSVILLE, III. – R.P. Lumber Co., Inc., has announced the rebranding of all 22 Stock + Field locations it acquired through the bankruptcy process this past spring to their new name, R.P. Home & Harvest.

Starting Sept. 7, the complete interior, exterior, and online rebranding started. After decades of operations, the stores – known as Big R until acquired in 2018 and renamed Stock + Field – entered bankruptcy and liquidation under previous ownership in early 2021.

R.P. Lumber Co., Inc. stepped in this past spring and, knowing the importance of the products and jobs these stores provide the communities they serve, worked hard with their great employees and vendors to keep these stores operating after a complete liquidation under prior ownership. With a new management team in place and the stores open and stabilized, the transition to this permanent brand is the start of the new beginning for these exciting stores and the customers they proudly serve. By rehiring and committing to the employees at these locations, rebuilding the culture that helped the company thrive in years past, and investing in the products and brands the customers crave, R.P. Home & Harvest has turned the page and will begin growing again.

Founded in Watseka, Ill., in 1964 as Big R Stores, R.P. Home & Harvest will continue to serve its customer base by providing quality products essential to rural lifestyles at affordable prices. Since the new ownership team reopened the stores, they have been vocal about partnering with their customers and the communities they serve to make the improvements that will anchor its stores in these towns for many years to come. Many of the new products and operational changes within the stores were specifically driven by their recent "It's Your Store" campaign where input was sought from customers across the 22 locations.

Based in Edwardsville, IL, R.P. Lumber Co., Inc. is a family-owned retailer that operates 74 full-service hardware and building material stores throughout Illinois, Missouri, Wyoming, and Iowa. The company was founded in 1977 by Chairman and CEO Robert L. Plummer in Staunton, IL.

As the new ownership group has stated in the past, their prime motivation for reopening these stores was to save jobs and invest in rural America.

MOMENTS IN TIME

* On Oct. 12, 1492, Italian explorer Christopher Columbus sights a Bahamian island, believing he has reached East Asia. Columbus, and most others, underestimated the world's size, calculating that East Asia must lie about where North America sits on the globe.

* On Oct. 17, 1906, Wilhelm Voigt, a German shoemaker wearing a stolen captain's uniform, impersonates an army officer and leads an entire squad of soldiers to help him steal 4,000 marks from the mayor's office cash box, exploiting their blind obedience to authority. The Kaiser thought the story was funny; the German army did not.

* On Oct. 16, 1946, at Nuremberg, Germany, 10 high-ranking Nazi officials are executed by hanging for their crimes during World War II after they were found guilty by the International War Crimes Tribunal.

* On Oct. 13, 1957, the science-fiction thriller "The Amazing Colossal Man" premieres in theaters. The film revolved around an Army officer who began to grow uncontrollably after he strayed too close to an atomic blast in the Nevada desert.

* On Oct. 14, 1968, the U.S. Defense Department announces that the Army and Marines will be sending about 24,000 men back to Vietnam for involuntary second tours because of the length of the war. The decision badly hurt troop morale and the combat readiness of U.S. forces around the world.

* On Oct. 11, 1975, "Saturday Night Live," a comedy sketch show, makes its debut on NBC, with George Carlin as its host, and Billy Preston and Janis Ian as musical guests. Since its inception, SNL has featured a different guest host and musical act each week.

As a guy who dreams of endless summers, the trees in my yard are always there to remind me that my never-ending summer is just a dream.

There is one tree in particular with leaves that turn yellow and fall fairly early each year – well, early for me.

And now I see others are starting to follow that tree's lead. The trees across the street are starting a slow turn as well.

My wonderful, warm, favorite season of summer is coming to an end. Well, according to the calendar it is officially over. But I tend to ignore the calendar for as long as I can.

In the history of summers, and I have more than a few under my belt, this certainly ranks up there as the shortest I can remember. It feels like I was chipping ice off of my back patio two days ago.

Did you have a busy summer? Did you take advantage of the glorious weather? I know that I did. I took a few long motorcycle trips, which

Living the Life By Brad Jennings

Another summer comes to an end

I have documented here. The last one was actually just over a week ago when I went to visit my daughter in Duluth, Minn. OK, that was only a little over 800 miles, but it counts.

There is still nothing quite like riding in the open air on a beautiful day, enjoying nature and dodging soccer moms in mini vans who are apparently trying to kill me. Get off the phone, Karen.

This was a pretty dry summer, too. That might not be good for farmers, but as a rider and frequent lawn mower I had no problem with less rain. I haven't mowed my large yard in weeks now, and although I am sure I have at least one more mow on the horizon this year, I can always hope that I am done for 2021.

Also, after being rained out multiple times last year, it looks like the band I am in will make it through the summer of 2021 with a total of zero rain outs. That is a very uncommon win in the Midwest, but I'll take it.

Unfortunately, the anger in the country does not seem to have subsided over this wonderful summer. Social media is still a seething cesspool of hate, anger and blame shifting.

And even out in the wild people seem on the edge of losing it. I saw a large truck – and I mean it was jacked up so high it could drive over small buildings – with "F*@$# Biden" painted in large letters on the tailgate. Except it was the real word, not code.

My first thought was, "Why do that to your truck?" Then I wondered what parents with children who see this truck driving around think. Dude, it is summer. Beautiful, beautiful summer. What are you doing? Enjoy life already!

Summer is no time for any of us to deal with knuckleheads like this. We have fun and smiles to focus on, am I right?

I know that I enjoyed our lovely summer, and I am already making plans for next year, including a late spring trip to Arizona to see my father. Yes, on my motorcycle.

In the meantime, I am starting to brace myself for a lot of gutter cleaning, as the trees in our yard start dropping leaves at an accelerated pace. And after that comes the snow, the ice and the cold.

And me, just waiting until the next summer so I can get out and enjoy the beautiful days we get here in our region.

These are not laws, they are mandates

Dear Editor,

In your (column of Sept. 6) you lamented that we have rules for a reason and people should just follow them. This is my response:

In a functioning Democracy, we are not governed by mandates but by laws enacted through a well-defined process that we all know if we watched "Schoolhouse Rock" as children. In a crisis, we have a mechanism for making quick decisions by way of Emergency Powers. Because those Emergency Powers are so easy to invoke, they are limited in scope and time.

Mandates with no end in sight are not Democratic. They do not help us to combat the pandemic because they are made in a vacuum and not debated or rigorously examined as they would be if subject to the legislative process. Most importantly, they are not transparent to the public. If people really believed they were killing others by not wearing a mask, would they continue to resist? I guess there might be a few but not many. People don't wear masks because they are selfish jerks, but because they see that the people making these mandates don't do so. They aren't wearing them because they can clearly see that your cloth American flag mask is not going to be incredibly effective. They aren't wearing them because they know that they aren't sick and rightly believe that people who are at increased risk should be accepting personal responsibility for their own health and take sensible precautions.

If people really thought they needed a vaccine for a virus that carries a greater than 99 percent recovery rate, they would get it. Instead, people have done the risk-benefit calculations for themselves and many have determined it is not in their best interests. It is puzzling how people who are vaccinated are so fearful of the un-vaccinated. Maybe it isn't so puzzling now that we are finding out a third booster might be required and an ever-increasing When our leaders take shortcuts from democracy we end up with some unintended consequences. Among them is lack of transparency and the resulting lack of trust that the government is doing its job properly. That is the real reason for the vaccine hesitancy and unwillingness to wear masks. People do not trust their government.

Americans have seen politicians and bureaucrats make rules and then not follow them. In March/April 2021 when Texas and other states ended their mask mandates, there were gloomy predictions about the death toll that never came to pass. We see so-called "super spreader" events that don't result in massive outbreaks. We see the country of Israel with draconian mask and vaccine requirements having more and more cases, but at the same time the country of Sweden, which has never given in to the mask hysteria, is enjoying a relatively low rate of infections.

During election times, no letters written by the candidates endorsing themselves will be considered for publication.

Editing may be necessary for space, clarity or to avoid obscenity or libel, but ideas will not be altered. Writers are urged to use discretion and refrain from sarcasm or personal attacks.

Criticism of individuals or organizations that is not broached tactfully will jeopardize the publication of a letter. Letters will be published in the order that they are received, unless there is a time factor involved, space permitting. number of people who are vaccinated are getting sick.

Yes, employers can require the vaccine and schools can ban you from attending without the vaccine, except that there are actual laws that make this illegal. (Healthcare Right of Conscience Act). I believe this and other laws were passed for some very good reasons and now, all of a sudden, we find ourselves facing a series of mandates that violate the law. It's weird that it now seems OK to ban people based on arbitrary rules without much basis in science.

But you say, "Follow the rules."

You mentioned that if our society of rules breaks down then society breaks down. That is not accurate. If the rule of law breaks down, that's when society breaks down. These mandates are not laws.

Change in this country starts or stops with you

I can hardly believe it is already September. This week I have seen combines driving down the road and the dust from the bean fields in the air. The high school football field lights are on, and the nights are cool. So I would be remiss if I didn't remind everyone to slow down and take their time.

As the fall season ramps up, there will be more farm equipment on the roads and more kids driving to and from school. Last month, I gave you a little tease about being mad, but I had no idea what this previous month would bring us.

The idea that I had for this month's column pales in comparison to what we have seen over the last month. Whether the failure is of the state legislature, the federal executive branch or our governor, we should all be upset and we should all be mad. And we should want change.

Guest Opinion

By Brian VanVickle

I cannot believe that the 20th anniversary of Sept. 11 is upon us. I still remember exactly where I was and what I was doing when the first plane hit the tower, when the second plane hit the tower and when they both came down. I still remember the feeling on Sept. 12, which, in part, is the reason why I sit at the desk that I do today. Sept. 11 shifted the trajectory of our country and our community, but have we forgotten why that shift occurred?

There seems to be a competition between the states of California, Illinois and Minnesota to again shift our trajectory. If these societal changes occur it will forever affect us and not in a positive way.

I challenge each one of you to remember what you felt on Sept. 11 as well as what you felt on Sept. 12 and to make sure that you continue to remember that sense of American pride.

As I am speaking at community events, the overwhelming discussion is the failures of the last month in Afghanistan, energy, crime and gerrymandered legislative maps. Our voices must be heard to effect change, not only here in the state of Illinois, but also in Washington D.C.

You do this by voting with your heart. While this topic isn't what I teased you with last month, I believe it is very relevant especially in light of the events of the last 30 days. You should be mad. It's your government, the people's house. Remember the United States constitution begins in bold letters and provides so simply, "We the People." Change starts or stops with you.

1,000 Books Before Kindergarten

Read a book (any book) to your newborn, infant, and/or toddler. The goal is to have read 1,000 books before your child starts kindergarten. It's very simple to start. Register by coming in or calling. Come in to the Library to pick-up your folder for recording your books. Then just start recording at home in your folder the titles of the books you read to your pre-kindergarten child. Children can listen to or read stories on e-book readers, tablet computers, or other devices as well as the old-fashioned way. You can even repeat books. Computer games do not count. Call the Library 815-732-2724 for more information.

Welcome to the 50th Autumn on Parade

After last year's event was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic, this year's event, slated for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 2-3, marks the 50th anniversary of this community festival in scenic Oregon, llinois. Hence the festival theme this year is "Rockin' 50 Years."

Here's a short rundown on what the 2021 festival offers. Be sure to review the schedule of events for times.

The heart of Autumn on Parade is its Farmer's Market and Craft Fair, located on the Ogle County Courthouse Square in downtown Oregon.

Craft booths surround the historic Ogle County Courthouse and surrounding streets and offer handmade, homemade and homegrown items as well as many other kinds of unique items.

On Saturday, antique tractors and classic cars will be on display at Oregon Park East, just across the Rock River.

Owners of Olivers, Farmalls, and Deeres are more than willing to share the history of their tractors. Focus House is again coordinating this year's car show with the Hub City. Lunch will also be available on site.

Visitors can also tour the Chana School on Saturday, also located at Park East. This unique two-room school, built in 1883, is celebrating its 138th birthday this year!

CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE NOVEMBER 11, 12 &13

PARADE: Fun for kids, great food

On Saturday, there will be fantastic entertain ment for kids of all ages by a festival favorite, Jason Kollum, who will be doing juggling routines and stilt-walking.

On Saturday and Sunday, the Fun Zone, located around the Coliseum will include a petting zoo and inflatables. A magician will also join the group on Saturday. And this is all free to kids!

New this year, on Saturday only, will be a beer garden featuring Burn N' Bush and Blue Steel bands. This will be located on Jefferson Street between 3rd and 4th streets.

Hungry? Don't forget to stop by the Food Court, which includes a variety of choices from booths run by local not-for-profit organizations.

Sunday morning starts with a 5K race and a one mile fun run.

At 1 p.m., on Sunday the Harvest Time Parade makes its way through the downtown and past the courthouse square. The Jesse White Tumblers and South Shore Drill Team are just two of the crowd favorites scheduled to return this year.

And don't forget to buy your official AOP 60/40 raffle ticket and maybe win some cash.

A community event 50 years in the making

Imagine for a moment the task of encapsulating the essence of 50 years of a much loved and highly anticipated community festival. An event whose seeds have taken root in the hearts of countless volunteers who have donated time, expertise, and often their own dollars to create an experience that brings families and friends together year after year after year. Then add the tens of thousands of annually attending participants, who share the typical busyness of life, yet dedicate this weekend to a regathering. A reconnection to simple fun, good food, and heartfelt reminiscences.

To begin the process, we open and delve into box after box after box of archives, revealing log books, dusty trinkets and memorabilia, crinkled newspaper clippings, creased and fading images of times gone by. Much of the information is familiar to some, and depending on your age and relationship to Oregon and this festival of ours, you may have had a hand in it somewhere along the way ...

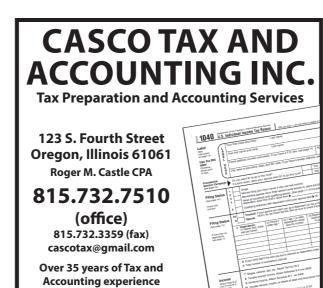

Byron Hutchins moved to Oregon in 1969. He served as an advisor with the University of Illinois Extension Service helping to create several committees for the betterment of small communities. One of these committees was for a festival. He was joined by other local leaders-Ray Appler, James Barnes, Ron Fafnis, Anne Jones and Cecelia Zimmerman. A contest was held to name the event, and Kathryn Gelander won a $25 Savings Bond gifted by the Oregon Woman's Club with her entry of "Autumn on Parade."

Seven booths lined up on Third Street on a rainy day in 1970 which has grown into an average of 180 booths surrounding courthouse square. Determination, some dreaming and creative input-perhaps sprinkled with a few lofty ideashas led to many additions and changes along the way. We've seen pig scrambles, canoe rallies, a fishing derby, Civil War Encampments, Quilt Shows, Big Wheel Races, the Duck Dash, many years of the Antique Tractor Shows and Auto Classics, as well as our ever-fabulous parade. We shine a light on our local history like Chana School and the Depot Restoration, and use our phenomenal parks and their services to support the needs of an event this size. Local civic and not for profit organizations form the backbone of the Food Court, and then put their hard-earned profits right back into our community. City and Emergency services work closely to keep us safe, creating a seamless transition from managing a population of 3800 to an instant 75,000 passing through the community throughout the festival weekend.

We can share historical data, and oh so many photos from our hold it in your hands albums to our tuck it in your shirt pocket flash drives. But the essence of Autumn on Parade? That's the spirit of the people. The people who work tirelessly all year round to create this one of a kind experience and who are then joined by the people who attend, filling this event with life and our community with the spirit of kinship and kindness.

What fully vaccinated seniors should know about safe travel

The efforts of researchers and public health officials in developing safe and successful COVID-19 vaccines was nothing short of historic. Vaccines typically take years to develop, but a combination of factors enabled researchers to make COVID-19 vaccines available to vulnerable populations by December 2020, or roughly nine months after the World Health Organization declared a global pandemic.

Researchers had already conducted years' worth of vaccine research on human coronaviruses, which the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention notes were first identified in the mid-1960s. That research proved invaluable as pharmaceutical companies raced to produce COVID-19 vaccines. In addition, a less linear approach to testing and vetting vaccines than was traditionally applied in past outbreaks enabled the vaccine to be rolled out more quickly, potentially saving millions of lives.

Men and women over the age of 65 were among the first groups to be given the COVID-19 vaccine. Many people within that group are retired and had looked forward to traveling, only to have those plans interrupted by the pandemic. Now that they're fully vaccinated, seniors are setting their sights on travel once again. Though the COVID-19 vaccines have made vulnerable groups like seniors less likely to suffer severe illness from the virus, there's still a few things adults over 65 should know when making travel plans.

The virus

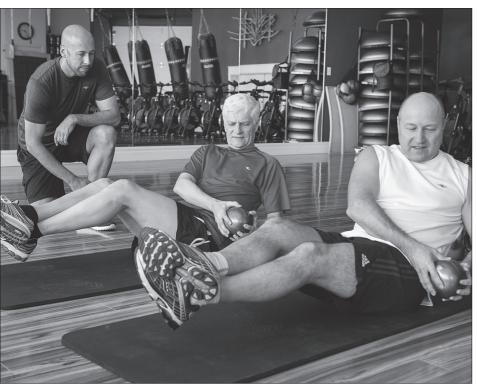

Data from the CDC indicated that more than 87 million people in the United States had been fully or partially vaccinated as of April 20, 2021. Among those, just 7,157 had become infected with COVID-19, and only 331 of those required hospitalization. That's an encouraging figure that illustrates just how effective the vaccines are at preventing infection and serious illness. Recognizing that efficacy may help calm any concerns fully vaccinated seniors have about traveling.

Restrictions

Though a significant portion of the eligible populations in the United States and Canada had been fully or partially vaccinated by mid-spring, overseas travel restrictions may still be in place. Some countries, such as India, continued to confront devastating waves of the virus and may not be allowing overseas visitors anytime soon. In addition, in midspring the European Union was still devising a strategy to allow fully vaccinated foreign tourists to visit the continent. Proposals suggested such travel could be allowed by late June, but it's important that seniors learn of any potential restrictions before booking trips.

Here are some Innovative fitness programs for seniors

It is important to stay active and eat healthy foods in an effort to promote fitness and well-being. This is especially true for seniors, many of whom lead increasingly sedentary lifestyles as they age.

The American Heart Association says adults should get at least 150 minutes of moderate exercise per week, or 75 minutes of vigorous aerobic activity, and a Harvard University study says that exercise can be an insurance policy for heart health.

Today's seniors have more fitness options at their disposal than ever before. SilverSneakers® is the leading community fitness program for older adults in the United States. SilverSneakers® members can participate in specially curated programs at participating gyms and community centers across the nation. According to the organization, there are more participating fitness locations available than there are Starbucks® coffee establishments. Classes are fit for everyone, no matter their experience level.

Those concerned about gym costs may find that SilverSneakers® already is included in their Medicare Advantage plan for no additional cost. Plus, there is access to healthy living discounts from participating businesses.

Canada has begun to develop its own seniorcentric fitness programs. The Healthy, Safe and Strong group exercise program is an introduction to safe exercises available for adults age 60 and older in the province of Ontario. The program can help develop better stamina, maintain or improve balance and increase strength and endurance. StrongerU Senior Fitness is a relatively new program of pre-choreographed group fitness offering instruction in four program types: cardio, strength training, stretching, and circuit training. The program addresses a need in Canada for quality and consistent senior fitness programing.

As studies show that engaging in physical activity is the most effective way for aging men and women to stay healthy, more adults may be compelled to join fitness groups that cater to the 50-and-over market.

VACCINATED: Know the rules

Attractions

When planning a trip, seniors may want to look for areas with plenty of outdoor attractions. The CDC continues to recommend that people, even those who are fully vaccinated, gather outdoors, where the virus is less likely to be transmitted. When traveling, seniors may be spending time around people who have not yet been vaccinated, and despite the efficacy of the vaccines, that might make some travelers nervous. So choosing locales with plenty of outdoor attractions can be a great way to quell any travel-related concerns seniors may have.

The remarkable achievements of researchers involved in developing COVID-19 vaccines has helped seniors return to something resembling normal life. Seniors with their eyes on travel can safely book trips after doing some research about their destination and giving careful consideration to their comfort levels.

This is a great time to give energy to volunteering

Charitable organizations rely on the efforts of volunteers to meet their missions every day. People of all ages can volunteer, and a great number of volunteers are seniors.

A 2016 survey from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics found that nearly one-quarter of American volunteers are age 65 and over. That was never more apparent than during the COVID-19 pandemic, when many nonprofit organizations were suddenly forced to confront a volunteer shortage due to the adoption of social distancing guidelines that were designed to keep populations, vulnerable such as seniors, as safe as possible. One study from Fidelity Charitable found that two out of three volunteers decreased or stopped contributing time during the pandemic.

The rollout of various COVID-19 vaccines has allowed vaccinated individuals to return to a certain degree of prepandemic normalcy.

However, the threat posed by strains of the virus like the Delta variant has made some seniors apprehensive about returning to volunteering. Though each individual should consider various factors before returning to volunteering during the pandemic, the following are some options seniors can consider as they aim to safely pitch in once again.

· Look for contactless opportunities. Interactions with the people they help and work alongside is what drives many volunteers to lend a helping hand. That's especially so for seniors whose children have grown up and moved out. In person interactions may be too risky during the pandemic, but seniors can still volunteer via contactless opportunities. For example, in lieu of delivering meals by hand, seniors who work with organizations such as Meals on Wheels can deliver prepackaged meals outside recipients' residences.

٠ Pitch in with fundraising. A report from Giving USA released in 2021 revealed that Americans gave more to charity in 2020 than in 2019. That increase came in spite of an economic downturn that saw millions of people lose their jobs or take pay cuts as companies scrambled to deal with lost revenue related to the pandemic. Though giving might have increased in 2020, many nonprofit organizations, including local community theaters, likely suffered due to cancellations and audience restrictions. As a result, many local nonprofit organizations are in need of financial support. Seniors who want to pitch in but stay safe can volunteer to help local organizations raise funds. Seniors can participate in fundraising efforts from the comforts of their own homes.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 2021

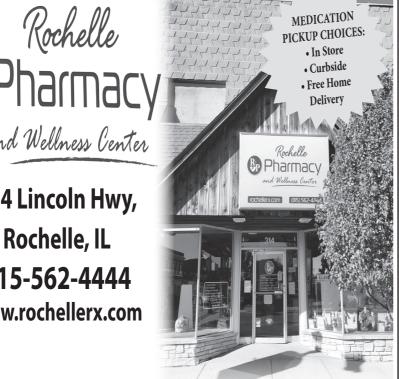

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 2021

 Offer professional expertise. Many seniors retired after spending decades mastering their crafts, and that experience can be an invaluable resource to local nonprofit organizations. Seniors can offer professional advice and mentor youths remotely via apps like Zoom without putting their physical health at risk.

Seniors concerned for their safety can still lend a hand by volunteering with their favorite nonprofit organizations.

Home security tips for seniors

Seniors are often targeted by criminals. Though many criminals target seniors from afar via telephone or internet scams, criminals seek to enter seniors' homes.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics offers that, between 2003 and 2013, the ratio of property crime to violent crime was higher for the elderly and persons between the ages of 50 and 64 than it was for younger persons between the ages of 25 and 49.

Home security is important for people of all ages, but especially so for seniors and aging individuals living alone. By following certain safety tips and developing a home security plan, seniors can feel safer at home.

• Lock windows and doors. It may seem like common sense, but failure to repeatedly lock windows and doors can, and often does, give burglars easy entry into the home.

• Think about a smart doorbell. Technology now enables doorbells to provide a video feed to a person's smartphone or tablet over WiFi. This allows residents to see who is at the door and speak to this person without having to open the door. Some products like Ring® will even register motion activity and record short videos from outside of the house.

• Don't share or leave keys. Avoid leaving keys under a mat or in a flower pot. Others may be watching your actions and gain access to your home while you are away.

• Ask for ID. When service people or other individuals come to the door, verify their credentials by asking to see some identification.

• Get a home security system. The best protection against burglars is a home security alarm, states HomeSecurityResource. org. Such an alarm often deters burglars from breaking in.

• Install a lockable mailbox. Locked mailboxes restrict access to sensitive information, such as bank account numbers, sent in the mail. Make sure retirement checks or other payments are deposited directly into bank accounts instead of having them sent by check.

• Use home automation. Home automation, or a "smart home," can be utilized to turn on lights, set the thermostat, lock doors, and much more.

• Adopt a dog. Dogs can be an asset to seniors. Dogs provide companionship and can bark or alert seniors if someone is around or inside of the home.

Home security is serious business for seniors who are vulnerable to criminals.

What seniors should know about herbal medicines

A lifelong commitment to healthy living can improve life expectancy and quality of life while reducing a person's risk for various conditions and diseases, including cancer and heart disease.

Healthy lifestyle choices like eating a nutritious diet and exercising regularly can greatly reduce a person's risk for various ailments, but such choices don't eliminate that risk entirely. As a result, even health-conscious men and women may need to rely on medication to stay healthy. That's especially true for seniors since age is a risk factor for various conditions.

A 2014 analysis that appeared in the Archives of Gerontology and Geriatrics examined nearly 1,300 published articles that focused on the use of herbal supplements by elderly patients. Though only 16 of those articles met the researchers' criteria, the analysis concluded that herbal supplement usage is common among elderly patients, as was a lack of dialogue about such supplements between medical professionals and seniors. A concerted effort to initiate such dialogue on the part of both patients and health care providers can help shed light on herbal medicines so people taking them, including seniors, can learn more about what they're putting into their bodies.

What are herbal medicines?

The National Health United Service of the Kingdom, widely а respected and publicly funded health care system, describes herbal medicines as those with active ingredients made from plant parts like leaves, roots or flowers. Because herbal medicines are made from plant parts, many people assume they're safe to take without consulting а physician. However, the NHS urges people to medicines treat herbal with the same care and respect as they would more conventional medicines. Herbal medicines can affect the body in various ways. A frank discussion with a physician can shed light on the potential side effects of herbal medicines and whether or not they're safe.

Why should seniors be concerned about herbal medicines?

The NHS notes that seniors taking other medications may experience problems if they begin taking herbal medicines as well. The National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health, which is part of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, notes that more well-designed studies are necessary to fully evaluate interactions between herbal medicines and prescription drugs. However, the NCCIH notes that some evidence points to some harmful effects of mixing the two. For example, the NCCIH reports that prolonged exposure to concentrated garlic extracts may reduce the efficacy of some drugs. The potential for these types of interactions should be enough to compel seniors to think twice before taking herbal medicines without first consulting their physicians.

How to build friendships in your golden years

Making friends as a child or even as a parent to school-aged children is relatively easy. Classrooms school functions and facilitate the building of friendships. Even as one gets older and enters the workforce, it's not uncommon for people to become friends with their coworkers.

Aspeople near retirement age, their situations may have changed considerably. Children have moved out, careers are coming to an end and friendships may be hard to maintain due to people relocating or traveling. Older adults may aspire to make new friends, but they may not know how.

According to Irene S Levine, Ph.D., The Friendship Doctor and contributor to Psychology Today, it is not unique for seniors to want to make new friends. Age can be a barrier because there are stereotypes that pigeonhole people of certain ages. But Levine notes that state of mind and physical ability is not directly tied to chronological age. Making friends is possible at any age. These guidelines can help along the way.

٠ Explore online connections. A 2016 study published in the Journal of Gerontology found seniors (even those in their 80s) who stay connected with friends and family using social media report feeling less lonely and better overall. Connected seniors also demonstrated higher executive reasoning skills. There are plenty of ways to meet new people online by joining social media groups that cater to your interests. In person meetings in particular cities or regions of the country also can make for great ways to make new friends. Exercise caution when meeting people in person after contacting them online. Bring another person along, whether it's a spouse or an adult child, to ensure that you are safe.

• Volunteer your time.

Private, Studio

& One-Bedroom

www.hw-dekalb-slf.com

One way to meet new people is to get involved with causes or activities you love. This serves the double benefit of getting you outside and active and puts you in touch with people who share your passions and interests.

• Attend alumni events. If you have an interest getting in touch with someone from your past and reconnecting, make the time to attend school reunions and other alumni activities. It can be fun to reconnect with friends from high school or college.

• Join a gym. The local gym isn't just a great place to get physically fit. Group exercise classes also can be ideal places to meet other people who enjoy working out. Strike up a conversation with another class participant you see on a regular basis. Once you develop a rapport, schedule lunch dates so your friendship grows outside of the gym.
