Bill may save station

Senate expected OK legislation, governor to sign it into law

By Brad Jennings Editor

The Illinois Senate is expected to pass an energy bill today with incentives aimed at saving the Byron Generating Station.

Illinois Gov. JB Pritzker has said he will sign the bill into law, "as soon as possible."

With the Byron nuclear station set to close today, area officials who have been keeping a very close eye on the process were optimistic after the Illinois House passed the bill on Sept. 9.

"SB2408 is another step towards achieving the goal to keep Byron Nuclear Station operational and the State of Illinois achieving their clean energy goals," said Erin Folk, executive director of the Oregon park District and part of FAIRCOM (Fair Assessment Information Resource Committee). "I have remained optimistic throughout this process and I am confident the Senate will push us past the finish line on Monday."

Exelon has said the Station would close today if the measure was not passed. In fact, power was already being reduced at the Byron station even before the bill was passed by the House, said Paul Adams, senior manager for corporate communications with Exelon.

Exelon did not have a comment in reaction to the vote on Thursday, but did point to a what the company has said earlier.

"With so much at stake for our employees, plant communities, consumers and the environment, we have gone to extraordinary lengths and considerable cost to establish off-ramps that will allow us to reverse the retirement of Byron up until the last moment. That includes ordering fuel for the plant that can be redirected to another of our nuclear units if legislation fails, and prepositioning hundreds of outside contractors to either refuel or defuel the plant. As we have said before, Monday, Sept. 13, is the day we will need to either commence work on refueling or begin the process of permanently defueling the plant and removing it from service. There is no option for extending that deadline past Monday," the statement read.

The bill includes nearly $700 million in incentives for the Byron and Dresden stations. Dresden is scheduled to be shut down later this year.

As reported by Reuters, Illinois Senate President Don Harmon said the Senate will vote on the bill today.

"Today, with the House passage of SB 2408, the State of Illinois is one historic step closer to reaching a 100 percent clean energy future,' Pritzker said Thursday.

man killed in motorcycle accident

By Jeff Helfrich Rochelle News-Leader

ROCHELLE – A GoFundMe fundraiser has been established for the family of a Creston man killed in a motorcycle accident on Aug. 28.

Andrew J. Smith, 32, leaves behind two daughters, Karlee, 12 and Sadie, 5 and his fiancé Christina.

"Andrew was loved by many and was known as an all-around good guy who loved his family, sports, fitness competitions and his motorcycle," the GoFundMe said. "Andrew was very close to his family, they told me he was the glue that brought them all together for cookouts and gatherings."

The GoFundMe was established by Smith's employer, Pemberton Plumbing Heating & Cooling. The goal of the fundraiser is $20,000, with the hopes of raising money to cover Smith's funeral expenses and money to help his fiancé finish her courses in the radiology program at Kishwaukee College so she can give her girls the best life possible now that their father is gone, the GoFundMe

"If you can, please donate to give Christina, Karlee and Sadie some help and hope," the GoFundMe said. "Andrew worked for our family business for the past three years as a plumbing and HVAC technician. All of our customers would comment on how much they liked Andrew and how polite and efficient he was in his work. We will miss him very much, he was a great person and a great

Smith was in a one-vehicle accident in the 3,000 block of North Mulford Road. A passerby driving through the area observed a motorcycle on its side in the east ditch and then called 911 to report the accident.

Ogle County Sheriff deputies, Monroe Center Fire Department/Ambulance, Lynn-Scott-Rock Fire Department/Ambulance, Stillman Valley Ambulance and Life Flight helicopter were all dispatched to the scene. After an on-scene investigation it was learned that a gray 2017 Victory motorcycle driven by Smith was southbound on North Mulford Road when the motorcycle drove into the northbound lane and then left the roadway in the east ditch while approaching a curve. BILL: Governor will sign it into law

"I look forward to SB 2408's swift passage in the Senate, and signing it into law as soon as possible, because our planet and the people of Illinois ought not wait any longer."

The votes come more than a year after the closure was announced. Exelon Generation announced on Aug. 27, 2020 that it intended to retire its Byron Generating Station and Dresden Generating Station in fall 2021. Community leaders immediately jumped into action to save the station, which provides about 700 jobs as well as millions in local tax revenues.

Paul Dempsey, Communications Manager of the Byron station, said that the station's 2017 tax bill was more than $38 million. The taxes went to a variety of taxing bodies, including the Byron School District, Ogle County and the Byron Museum and Library District.

There are also the charitable donations giving by the station, which Dempsey said amount to about $250,000. Donations have gone to Rock River Center in Oregon, Pinecrest Community in Mount Morris, Hub City Senior Center and many others.

The Byron CUSD #226 paid for the economic impact study, and it showed that about 74 percent of the district's revenue comes from the Byron Station.

The study showed that the Byron Station's direct contribution to the regional economy (GDP) is estimated to be more than $288 million. That is 1.6 percent of the total GDP of the region. For the Ogle County, Byron Station's total contribution to the economy is estimated to be $338 million; 17 percent of the county's total GDP.

MOMENTS IN TIME

- * On Sept. 27, 1854, two ships collide off the coast of Newfoundland, killing 322 people. The wooden-hull Arctic slammed into the iron-hull steamer Vesta and was severely damaged. In trying to beach the ship, the Artic's captain ran over several lifeboats, causing more people to drown.
- * On Oct. 1, 1908, in Detroit, the first production Model T Ford is completed. Its 22 horsepower, four-cylinder engine could reach speeds up to 40 mph and run on gasoline or hemp-based fuel.
- * On Sept. 28, 1928, a lab accident led Sir Alexander Fleming, a young bacteriologist, to one of the great discoveries of modern medicine. Having left a plate of staphylococcus bacteria uncovered, Fleming noticed that a mold that had fallen on the culture had killed many of the bacteria. He identified the mold as penicillium notatum, similar to the kind found on bread.
- * On Oct. 2, 1948, the first American road race since World War II takes place in Watkins Glen in New York. The New York Central railroad agreed to suspend train service so the drivers could safely cross the tracks.
- * On Sept. 29, 1969, the U.S. Army drops murder charges against eight Green Berets accused of killing a Vietnamese national, citing reasons of national security after the CIA refused to release highly classified information.
- * On Oct. 3, 1981, a hunger strike by Irish nationalists at the Maze Prison in Belfast in Northern Ireland is called off after seven months and 10 deaths. Afterward, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher agreed to several of the protesters' demands, including the right to wear civilian clothing.
- * On Sept. 30, 1999, large doses of radiation are released at Japan's Tokaimura nuclear plant in an accident caused by a serious error made by workers at the plant. Instead of pouring 5 pounds of powdered uranium into nitric acid, workers poured 35 pounds.

As I write this, we are less than a week away from the Byron Station closing its doors for good. And I have no idea if it is going to stay open or not.

That is not a good

I would like to say right from the top here that I do not work for Exelon. I have never worked for Exelon. I am not a paid spokesman for anyone, except my wife when she insists on it. And honestly, she doesn't pay me. We learned last year that Exelon was planning to close the Byron nuke plant without a bill that it found was more favorable to its nuclear operations. This obviously sent a shockwave through Ogle County and local officials jumped into action. The signs in support of the station sprouted in yards all over the county, most heavily in Byron. People worried about their home values, their jobs, their schools, their parks. And they were and are – right to worry. The Byron Generating Station pumps millions into the county and has the Life

By Brad Jennings

If that money spigot runs dry, make no mistake that it will hurt. It will hurt a lot.

I am writing this a week before the station is scheduled to run out of fuel and close its doors. I don't plan on going back to change this column if an energy bill is passed, or if something else pops up that will prolong the life of the station. I want to talk about being here, in this moment, and not having any idea what is going to happen. I can't imagine how the people who work at the station feel. Their livelihoods are on the line. Will they have a job in a week? What about that their kids be staying in area schools? All good questions that would concern anyone. And I have no idea what the answers are for them. They don't either ... right now, in this moment.

Neither do the politicians in Springfield, and in my opinion, that shows a clear failure of leadership. They have had more than a year to pass a new energy bill that addresses this and they have failed to do so. Failed. They are a failure. Democrats? Failures.

Republicans? Failures. Gov. JB Pritzker? A failure. Sure, Pritzker has all along said he supports the stations and wants a good bill, but he obviously has zero power over those in his own party in the state House. The buck stops with him, and this will be his loss.

And Republicans don't get off the hook either. Yes, they are in the minority, but when all I ever see out of Springfield is partisan bickering, how can we ever expect anything to get done? Work across the aisle for the good of the people. Give and take. Compromise. When you don't do that, you fail. There is still a chance this bill can be completed and signed. That might happen Thursday, when I put the paper together. It could happen Friday, when the paper prints. It could happen when it is being stacked in area retail locations.

Or it might not happen at all, despite all of those saying they feel "positive" about the bill being passed. Well, I wish I had confidence that those in Springfield were working hard to get it done. But excuse me while I turn a skeptical eye toward a group of elected men and women who have failed to get this done for more than a year.

They have failed us with the process thus far, even if they pull out a bill at the 11th hour they have failed. It is hard to have faith in people who do their jobs so poorly.

The Taliban and the Art of War

The front-page photograph in the August 19 Wall Street Journal would have seemed absurd if it weren't so real and so telling. In it, Taliban fighters in sandals and loose-fitting traditional clothing stride confidently through the streets of Kabul, like David after slaying Goliath. The stunning upset portrayed in that picture caught many of us off-guard, but it would have been no surprise to a Chinese general who lived over 2,000 years ago.

"No country," said Sun Tzu, "has ever benefited from a protracted war." The Taliban understand this. "You have the clocks," they said to the Americans who fought them, "we have the time."

They're indebted to Sun Tzu, whether they realize it or not, for this insight and much more. Their success arises from a basic understanding that he set forth in his book, "The Art of War," the first of all written treatments of the subject. It's studied by military strategists to this day.

Translator Samuel Griffith tells us that "Sun Tzu was well aware that combat involves a great deal more than the collision of armed men. 'Numbers alone' he said, 'confer no advantage.'" He insisted that strategy and psychology play a more important role than military might. "In Sun Tzu's view," explains Griffith, "the army was the instrument which delivered the coup de grace [the final blow] to an enemy previously made vulnerable." The goal isn't to crush the adversary in combat but instead to weaken its morale so that it collapses with little or no resistance.

Guest Opinion

By Lowell Harp

Sun Tzu described in detail how to do it, with battlefield tactics that confuse and unnerve the other side, infiltration behind enemy lines, bribery, rumors, propaganda, and terrorism. An opponent that's riddled with corruption and self-interested leadership is highly vulnerable to these methods, as we've seen again and again in Afghanistan, Iraq, Viet Nam, all the way back to the fall of the American-backed government in China seventy years ago. In each case, large, wellequipped armies melted away against smaller and less sophisticated forces.

But this scenario is much older than that. Jack Weatherford, in his book, "Genghis Khan and the Making of the Modern World" explains how the Mongol leader forged the largest empire in history 900 years ago, using strategies that mirror those of Sun Tzu. The story follows the pattern we've witnessed in today's Afghanistan: Poorly led government soldiers give up without a fight against small and lightly armed Mongol forces. Towns and cities fall like dominoes. Terrorized refugees flood into the cities that remain under government control. Soldiers and citizens descend into a cycle of defeatism, panic, and, finally, collapse.

America met with that same chain of demoralization and defeat in China 70 years ago, when Mao Tse-tung, a student of Sun Tzu's' teachings, used them against our corrupt and poorly led ally, the Chinese Nationalist government. The U.S. spent billions of dollars in military and financial aid to prop up the Nationalists during and after World War II, according to Griffith. Their forces were superior to Mao's Communists in every way except for leadership and morale –

By simply surviving, they wore down the government's resources and confidence. "Real estate, as such," says Griffith, "was never an important factor with the Reds, who were experts at running away...The morale of the enemy is the target of high priority, its reduction an essential preliminary to the armed clash." The Nationalists finally collapsed, after almost 20 years of conflict and massive American support, in 1949.

Echoes of these events are hard to miss in our recent defeat at the hands of the Taliban. They say that history doesn't repeat itself, but our experiences in China, Viet Nam, Iraq, and Afghanistan bring to mind Groundhog Day, the movie in which Bill Murray repeats the same day over and over, trying and failing to get things right. In each case we supported a weak and corrupt government against insurgents who knew how to defeat it from within.

Sun Tzu's timeless insights about the limitations of military might, the overriding importance of strategy and morale, and the costs of long wars can help us to find a better way. No one doubts America's ability to defeat an opponent like the Taliban in battle, but, as we've seen, military superiority can't ensure victory. Remembering Sun Tzu's warnings, we might in the future develop better strategies, or simply refrain from commitments that we're unable or unwilling, in the end, to keep. Lowell Harp is a retired school psychologist who served school districts in Ogle County. His column runs monthly in The Ogle County Life. For previous articles, you can follow him on Facebook at http://fb.me/lowellharp.

Oregon Library News

September is library card sign-up month

Since 1987, Library Card Sign-up Month has been held each September to mark the beginning of the school year. During the month, the ALA and libraries work together in a national effort to ensure every child signs up for their own library card. September is Library Card Sign-up Month. Oregon Public Library joins the American Library Association (ALA) and libraries nationwide to remind parents, caregivers and students that signing up for a library card is the first step on the path to academic achievement and lifelong learning. Library Card Sign-up Month

September is National Library Card Sign-up Month! A library card not only gives you access to books, dvds, and magazines here in Forreston, but also allows you to check out materials from area libraries and request items from anywhere in the country! Resident cards are free to anyone who lives or owns property within the village limits and nonresident cards are $45.00 per year. Stop in today and sign up for yours!

Display Cases

Several vintage photos from past Sauerkraut Days celebrations have been added to our display case. Stop in and see if you can identify any of the former Sauerkraut queen contestants and past community members! Our smaller case features a back to school theme, including items and pictures from Summer Hill School and Forreston Grade School class photos from the 1940's. If you have a collection you'd like to share with the community, please contact Julie at the library.

Library Hours

The library is open the following hours: Monday 10am-1pm, 2-7pm, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 10am-1pm, 2-6pm, and Saturday 9am-12pm. We are closed on Friday and Sunday. Libraries by their very nature are "green" in that their resources are shared by the larger community. Please come and see what difference you can make with this traveling exhibit. Open during our normal business hours. Want to bring a group, no problem, call to schedule a time at (815) 732-2724.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

Why should you see a financial advisor?

The social distancing and stay-at-home orders necessitated by the coronavirus have led many of us to feel isolated. Still, we've fought back through social media, "virtual" gatherings and walks in the neighborhood, where we could greet friends and neighbors (from 6 feet away). But when you're dealing with the financial effects of the virus and you're investing alone, you could encounter some problems that may prove costly. Of course, with so much investment-related information available online, on television and in any number of periodicals, it's not surprising that some people feel they can invest without any assistance. But the volatility of the financial markets over the past few months has also pointed to the dangers of going solo in the investment world. And you might find that a professional financial advisor can help you in several ways, including the following:

Taking emotions out of investing. During this period of market turbulence, many self-guided investors are letting their emotions drive their investment decisions. As a result, they sell investments when their price is down, "locking in" their losses. Furthermore, if they then stay out of the financial markets, they will miss out on the eventual recovery - and some of the biggest gains in market rallies usually occur right at the beginning. But if you work with a financial advisor who has helped you develop a personalized investment strategy based on your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon, you will be far less likely to react to extreme market conditions by making ill-advised decisions.

Maintaining perspective. When you're putting away money for the future and you suddenly have a lot less of it, you might start to wonder if that future is somehow in jeopardy. But if you've been working with a financial advisor and following your investment strategy, you'll know that you don't have to immediately cash out those investments that have lost value, and you may not need to liquidate them for decades if they were designed for a long-term goal, such as retirement. By the time you do need to sell them, their value may well have appreciated significantly. And if you've got a well-constructed portfolio, you'll also own shorter-term, less volatile investments to help meet your current cash flow needs.

Understanding the history of investing. The recent market instability is unique in the sense that its cause – a worldwide pandemic – is so highly unusual, and it hopefully will be a once-in-a-lifetime experience. Typically, prolonged market downturns are triggered by explainable financial or economic factors, such as the bursting of the "dot-com" bubble in 2000. However, market drops of 20 percent or more – generally referred to as bear markets – are not at all unusual and have happened every few years over the past several decades. Financial advisors are well aware of this history and share it with their clients. And for many people, the knowledge that "we've been here before" is reassuring and makes it easier for them to continue following their investment strategies.

The road to your financial goals is a long one, with many twists and turns. So you might like to have some experienced company along the way.

Get in the habit of saving more money each month

Saving is a vital component of financial planning. However, more than half of Americans are saving too little and do not have an accurate grasp of their spending habits.

A recent survey from Intuit Mint Life found that, in 2019, 59 percent of Americans were living paycheck to paycheck and 65 percent didn't know how much they were spending on a monthly basis. The situation is similar in Canada, where the annual BDO Canada Affordability Index indicates 53 percent of Canadians are living paycheck to paycheck and 25 percent say their debt load is overwhelming.

While there's no magic formula to save money, and the amount of money one should save each month depends on how he or she wants to live now and in the future, a handful of strategies can help people save more money each year.

• Follow the 50/30/20 rule. The popular 50/30/20 rule advocates for allocating 50 percent of your budget to essentials like rent, food and housing, 30 percent for discretionary spending and 20 percent for savings. Many people cannot save 20 percent of their income. In such instances, people can make a concerted effort to save 10 percent of their take-home pay.

· Build an emergency fund. The credit reporting agency Experian recommends consumers keep between three and six months' worth of expenses in an emergency fund. The fund should cover expenses on the absolute necessities paid each month, like utilities rent/ mortgage and groceries.

 Set goals. Savings goals can help a person stay on track and provide motivation to put money away. Establish separate savings accounts for each goal to reduce the temptation to spend. For example, if the goal is to save more for vacations, then a person can open an account where funds are used exclusively for vacations.

 Automate with your employers? help. Certain employers allow workers to direct deposit a paycheck into more than one bank account. It's easy to request the payroll manager put 10 percent or 20 percent of a paycheck into a savings account while the remainder is deposited into a checking account. Automated deposits can help individuals get accustomed to living on less.

Saving money isn't always easy, but with goals and certain strategies in mind, it's possible for individuals to grow their savings and secure their financial futures.

Ready for retirement?

What ecurity Month. But what does retirement security mean to you? And how can you work toward achieving it?

Here are some sugges-

Build your resources. While you're working, save in tax-advantaged accounts such as your IRA and 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan. In your 401(k), contribute at least enough to earn your employer's match, if one is offered, and increase your contributions whenever your salary goes up. Remember, especially early in your career, time is often your biggest asset. Be sure to save early, since the longer you wait, the more you'll need to save to help reach your goals.

Look for ways to boost retirement income. When transitioning to retirement, you can take steps to align your income with your needs. For example, consider Social Security. You can start collecting monthly payments will be much larger if you can wait until your "full" retirement age, typically between 66 and 67. (Payments will "max out" at age 70.) So, if you have sufficient income from a pension or your 401(k) and other retirement accounts, and you and your spouse are in good health with a family history of longevity, you may consider delaying taking Social Security. You also might want to explore other income-producing vehicles, such as certain annuities that are designed to provide a lifetime income

Prepare for unexpected costs. During your retirement, you can anticipate some costs, such as housing and transportation, but other expenses are more irregular and can't always be predicted, such as those connected with health care. Even with Medicare, you could easily spend a few thousand dollars a year on medical expenses, for these costs as part of your emergency savings, and possibly purchase supplemental insurance. You may also want to consider the possibility of needing some type of long-term care, which is not typically covered by Medicare and can be quite expensive. The average annual cost of a private room in a nursing home is more than $100,000, and it's about $55,000 per year for a home health aide, according to Genworth, an insurance company. To address these costs, you may want to consider some form of protection, such as long-term care insurance or life insurance with a long-term care component. Do your estate planning. It's hard to feel totally secure in retirement if you're unsure of what might happen if you have an unexpected health event, become incapacitated or die earlier than expected. That's why you'll want to create a comprehensive estate plan.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

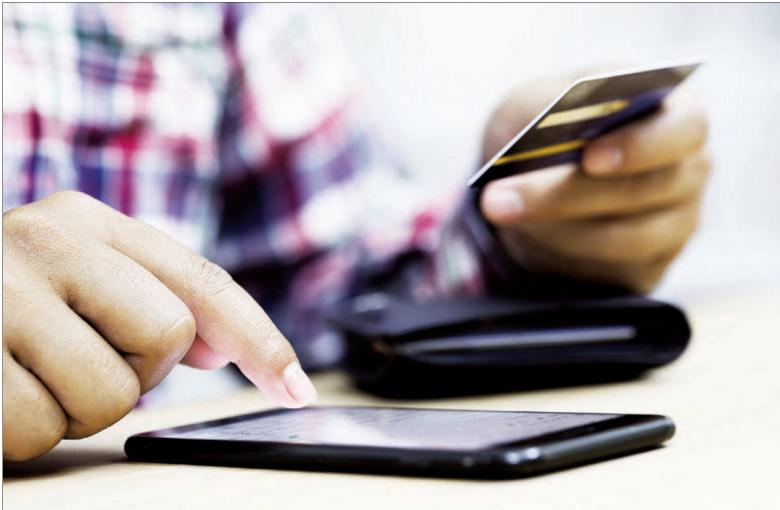

Behaviors that can hurt your credit score

Credit plays a vital role in helping people realize their personal and financial goals. A good credit score can help people qualify for favorable home loan terms, ultimately paving the way for them to move into their dream homes. Strong credit histories also can help consumers earn perks, and young people who learn to use credit wisely can avoid potentially costly interest charges that tend to hamper many young adults' financial freedom.

Many consumers struggle with managing credit. According to FICO®, a data analytics company that developed the FICO score that many lenders use to determine consumer credit risk, more than 10 percent of consumers in the United States have credit scores lower than 550. Any score below 550 is considered very poor.

No two consumers are the same, but many struggling to establish good credit histories may engage in certain behaviors that can hurt their credit

• Taking out too many lines of credit: Consumers without much experience managing their finances, such as college students and young adults, often find credit offers hard to resist. Retailers may offer significant discounts at checkout counters to shoppers willing to sign up for store credit cards. Inexperienced consumers may not recognize that such cards often feature inflated interest rates, especially when compared to more consumer-friendly cards. Avoid opening too many credit accounts, as doing so can adversely affect your credit score and make it easy to lose track of spending.

• Letting interest charges pile up: Paying interest on consumer debt like credit cards will not help consumers improve their credit scores, so pay balances off immediately. That's easier to do if you only have one or two lines of credit that you monitor regularly.

• Using credit for daily purchases: Credit is not cash in your pocket and it isn't money withdrawn directly from a checking or savings account, which is the case when using a debit card. So it's easy for consumers to lose track of their daily spending if they're doing that spending with a credit card. Balances can quickly pile up and, if they can't be paid off in full when the bill comes due, interest charges will begin to accumulate. This trap can be avoided if consumers commit to using credit only in emergency situations or when purchasing big-ticket items that they know they can pay off when the credit card bill is due.

• Failing to monitor credit score: It's now easier than ever for consumers to track their credit scores. In fact, many credit card companies provide free monthly updates to card holders, who won't have to lift a finger to see if their scores have improved or worsened over the last 30 days. Consumers should take advantage of this relatively recent perk so they can see just how their use of credit is affecting their overall scores. They can then use that knowledge to improve their scores going forward.

Certain behaviors can negatively affect consumers' credit scores. By learning about such behaviors and taking steps to avoid them, consumers can take a big step toward realizing their short- and long-term financial goals.

Potential passive income streams

Jobs may be how many people earn their money, but there are other ways to generate income that may not require the level of effort of a nine-to-five gig.

Passiveincomestreams can be a great way to earn substantial amounts of money. Passive income can be earned through investing in stocks, money market funds, real estate, livestock, or savings bonds. Lending money also can provide passive income. Though such income streams are described as "passive," they require an investment of time and/or money to get started.

Passive incomestreams enable the average person to make some extra money without taking on a full-time job. Unlike active income, where the more you work the more you earn, passive income often generates a flat level of return over time without the same level of commitment. Passive revenue streams are continually evolving. Modern passive investments are varied, and can include the following ideas.

Home-rental service

Popular sites like Vacation Rental By Owner (Vrbo®) and Airbnb put interested parties in touch with potential landlords. Vacation property owners or people who do not spend a lot of time at a primary residence may find this is a lucrative way to earn some extra money. Properties located in popular tourist areas may garner considerable income.

Digital products

Digital items, such as expert advice guides, books, informational articles, digital photography, digital artwork, and more can be sold online. The product only needs to be created once, and then it can be sold infinite more times to generate an ongoing revenue stream.

Peer-to-peer lending

According to the financial wellness site MyMoneyWizard.com, peer-to-peer lending (P2P) is the practice of lending money to borrowers who may not qualify for traditional loans. P2P is a growing market that removes large financial institutions from the lending process. Lenders serve as the "bank," and the consumer pays interest on the principal. The loans can be handled through an intermediary like The Lending Club, which is regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Real estate investment trusts

Real estate investment trusts, or REITs, offer the benefits of being a landlord without the hassle of dealing with fixing broken pipes or handling rowdy tenants. REITs are like stocks in real estate market. You purchase a share in a company that
