Guilty plea in fraud case

Former Rochelle city employee to be sentenced June 29

ROCKFORD — A former resident and employee of the City of Rochelle pleaded guilty Tuesday before U.S. District Judge Iain D. Johnston to wire fraud for fraudulently obtaining at least $150,000 from a non-profit business association.

Scott Koteski, 58, of Rochelle, was an employee of the City of Rochelle and was selected by the city to sit on the board of directors of a non-profit business association that provided broadband internet technology to smaller municipalities in northern Illinois. According to the written plea agreement, starting in 2011, Koteski was selected as the treasurer of that association. As treasurer, Koteski handled the invoicing and billing of the member municipalities, and as of February 2012, Koteski had signatory authority on the association's bank account.

From September 2012 through April 2018,

Koteski fraudulently obtained at least $150,000 from the association, which he used for his own benefit without the association's knowledge or consent. Koteski wrote numerous checks to himself from the association's bank account, which he deposited into his personal bank account for his personal benefit. Koteski concealed his acts by writing false information on the memo line to make it appear the checks were for reimbursement of personal monies Koteski spent for the association when, in fact, Koteski was not entitled to reimbursement.

Additionally, according to the plea agreement, in 2018, Koteski made online payments from the association's bank account to a credit card company to pay for balances on his personal credit card and to an online loan financing company to pay for balances on Koteski's loan.

Koteski faces a maximum sentence of 20 years imprisonment, a term of supervised release of up to three years following imprisonment, and a fine of up to $250,000, or twice the gross gain or gross loss resulting from that offense, whichever is greater. The actual sentence will be determined by the United States District Court, guided by the Sentencing Guidelines.

Sentencing for Koteski is set for June 29 at 10 a.m.

The guilty plea was announced by John R. Lausch, Jr., United States Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, and Emmerson Buie, Jr., Special Agent-in-Charge of the Chicago Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The Illinois State Police assisted in the investigation. The government is represented by Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott R. Paccagnini.

Today, its purpose remains intact, to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote leadership and to develop character in

LOCAL NEWS NIU Engineering professor explains how to harvest the power of wind energy

DEKALB — Wind flows a lot like water, according to NIU associate professor of mechanical engineering Nicholas Pohlman. "The same fluid mechanics applies to hydro power that has been used since the 18th century, just with a lower density, intermittently available resource," he says. In other words, harnessing the kinetic energy of wind to create electricity relies on many of the same principles that are well established in the energy industry – but it also requires some changes in our thinking and behavior.

Dr. Pohlman will discuss the conversion of wind energy to electricity and answer audience questions at the next NIU STEM Café, online on Tuesday, March 16, at 6 p.m. Register for this free event at go.niu.edu/ windenergy.

"Pivoting to wind energy may require power balancing of the grid because wind is intermittent – are you willing to turn off the TV and lights so that the toaster works?" Pohlman asks. It also requires a willingness to see where and how energy is converted into the electricity that we rely on in our daily lives

"When energy was converted remotely (coal, nuclear, etc.), few people cared where the facility was located," Pohlman says. However, he notes that many people have a "not in my backyard" attitude towards wind energy, which is generally located closer to the end user.

The only limit on size of wind turbines is the transportation mechanisms used. Here, wind turbines are being transported by rail through northern Illinois.

Such proximity to consumers can have positive effects, however, not the least of which is to decrease transmission losses-the energy lost as heat when electricity is transmitted along power lines from the plant to your home or business. "If urban areas could incorporate wind energy into their architecture, then we might be able to reduce transmission losses," he explains.

Perhaps even more important is the mental shift of learning to see our own energy consumption instead of taking it for granted. "Wind energy is widely available and increasing in capacity, but we all need to be willing to SEE the energy harvesting rather than just hope power comes out of the outlet," Pohlman notes.

"Fossil-fuel based energy had millions of years to collect sunlight and be compressed underground, but we are consuming at a rate that far exceeds its multi-million-year collection. If we can learn to harness and immediately use the lower energy density forms, such as wind, then we will have greater sustainability and decrease impact on climate change."

Dr. Nicholas Pohlman

"Seeing the energy conversion will hopefully help us recognize our own energy needs."

Dr. Pohlman will be joined by Derek Hiland, DeKalb County Community Development Director, who will address questions related to growth, zoning and land-use changes in the county.

"This is a wonderful chance for the public to learn about wind energy - something that has been in the news often lately," dinator Judith Dymond.

"Dr. Pohlman and Derek Hiland will help us sort fact from fiction, so we can make informed decisions about energy use."

"Fossil-fuel based energy had millions of years to collect sunlight and be compressed underground, but we are consuming at a rate that far exceeds its multi-million-year collection," says Pohlman. Lewis went on to thank parents for the part they have played in their child's academic accomplishments.

"Parents, the 2021 school year has been incredibly challenging. The hard work of your child's academic work is appreciated. Your child's success would not happen without your support," he said. Accumulated precipitation shall be placed next to the head of the curb for collection by the street department. Accumulated precipitation shall not be placed in the gutter or street.

Council members also approved an ordinance revising Chapter 34 of the Rochelle Municipal Code pertaining to civil emergencies. The amendment adopts the authorities provided to city leaders in the Illinois Municipal Code and the Illinois Emergency Management Act. These two statutes grant the mayor the authority to declare a municipal state of emergency and describe what additional authority or powers are available once the declaration is made.

Zoning

Council members approved the preliminary and final plat of subdivision for the Grove Industrial Park Subdivision located at 920 S. Main St. in Rochelle. The City of Rochelle Planning & Zoning Commission approved the preliminary and final play of subdivision with a 6-0 vote on Monday, March 1. The purpose of subdividing is to re-subdivide the 13.15-acre parcel into a one-lot subdivision, as well as dedicate right of way and easements for use by the City of Rochelle.

Council members approved the continuation of a public hearing for Rochelle Solar (15537 E. Twombly Road) to the April 12 council meeting. The Planning & Zoning Commission voted to continue the public hearing to April 5 regarding the proposed preliminary and final plat of subdivision, plat of annexation, zoning map amendment, rezoning to rural development, special use for a solar farm and variance of municipal code sections 82-14 and 110-405 for the property located at the southeast corner of Twombly Road and North Caron Road.

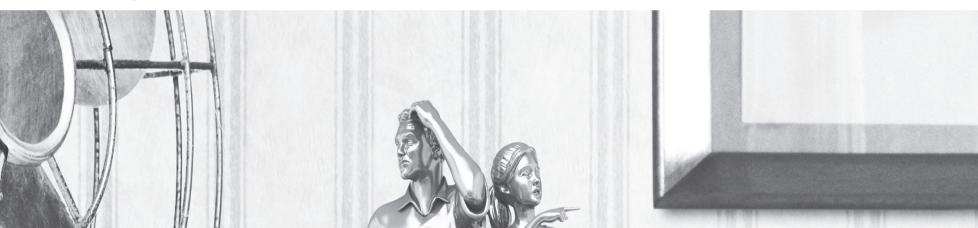

Agenda Items

Council members approved the purchase of 300

Cherry Avenue in Rochelle for $15,000. The city will purchase the property for redevelopment or other public use.

Council members approved an agreement amounting $49,400 with BHMG for a system planning study of the city electric system. The study will assess the existing electric infrastructure in support of current load demand and future development. The study will analyze the electric system, including substations, generation and distribution lines to determine areas of needed improvement and quantify probable future needs of the system.

Council members approved an engineering services agreement amounting $24,750 with Fehr Graham and Associates for modifications to the Caron Road Lift Station. With the anticipated addition of a new industry on that sewer, the lift station will need to be upgraded to handle projected flows from this industry. The city will have about one year to complete the work.

OREGON—December usually sees Ogle County Democrats gather for the annual holiday dinner.

However, because of the pandemic and with food insecurity at a record high, instead of gathering together, members voted to help feed those in need. The vote was unanimous; money that members typically spend on that dinner has been donated to Ögle County Food Pantries.

"This is a difficult time for many of our friends and neighbors and we hope that these donations to Ogle County Food Pantries will help relieve some of the burden to our local community," board chair Christine Ballard said.

Letters to the Editor

Thankful for crossing signal work

Dear Editor,

On behalf of many people on the north side of Illinois Route 38, a big thank you to the City of Rochelle and especially Sam Tesreau, for their work on installing new crossing signals at Brookside and Springdale off Illinois Route 38.

I personally know that Sam has been working on this project for a couple of years. Crossing five lanes of traffic on foot, especially around rush hour, has been difficult for adults and especially for children on their way to school both in the morning and afternoon. These crosswalk indicators are "on demand" and not blinking 24 hours a day. Hopefully, they will grab the attention of drivers to be courteous to the pedestrians trying cross.

Thank you again to the City of Rochelle for reminding the residents that the city does work for them.

Guest column

You take what you want and forget the rest

R. Seuss, P.D. Eastman and Beverly Cleary were among my favorite authors when I was learning to read.

But by far my favorite series was Dan Frontier by William Hurley. Frontier was a fictional Daniel Boone-type character who hunted and trapped. The books, which were published in 1959, were exciting and engaging and actually could hold the attention of a child like me who couldn't sit still for more than 15 seconds.

So, when it was time to teach my oldest daughter Grace to read, I purchased on eBay the entire series, which is long out of print. I figured since I enjoyed them so much as a kid, that my daughter would as well.

But one night as I read a book aloud to my then 4-year-old, I was brought up short. I didn't like what I read.

American Indians were portrayed as thieves. In other references they were identified as sneaky and untrustworthy.

It wasn't something I wanted my children to be taught. So, I put Dan Frontier back on the shelf and read other titles to my kids.

Censorship? Nope. It's called parenting.

When children are older I want them to read and discuss works that use controversial language and images. Works like "Huckleberry Finn" deserve to be debated and discussed, provided historical and literary context is given.

But for youngsters just learning to read we need to be careful that their first books don't become primers for hate.

I was thinking about my "Dan Frontier" experience this past week when I read that the firm created by Theodor Seuss Geisel's family discontinued six titles because they contained images and words that were hurtful.

Immediately, pundits came out of the woodwork and screamed about the "Cancel Culture."

My Dad loved to read "Green Eggs and Ham" to me. In fact, it's the only book I can remember him reading with me. My Mom loved to read "Are you my Mother" by P.D. Eastman, a work which Seuss edited.

I have no recollection from my childhood of any of Seuss' works being offensive. If anything, I associate them with lots of parental love.

But nostalgia and memories are a bit like food and smorgasbords. You take what you want and forget the rest.

And there is a lot of nostalgia out there for Dr. Seuss, just as there was for me and Dan Frontier.

Seuss wrote many wonderful books. Some of his works fought antisemitism in the United States. And he literally illustrated the evils of fascism.

But there is no denying some of his images, particularly in some of lesser known works are flat out racist. Blacks and Asians are the object of ridicule with both his words and his paint brush.

Here is how NBC news described some of his work: In "And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street," a white man is shown using a whip on a man of color. In "If I Ran the Zoo," a white boy holds a large gun while standing on the heads of three Asian men. "If I Ran the Zoo" also features two men from Africa who are shirtless, shoeless and wearing grass skirts while holding an exotic animal."

On the other hand, some of Seuss' works like "Horton Hears a Who" are stories preaching against bigotry

"We live in a culture that is very polarizing. People want to know whether his work is racist or not. Some of his work is and some of it isn't," said Philip Nel, a professor at Kansas State University who is considered an authority on all things Seuss.

When I chatted with Nel on Monday, he said when he heard that six Dr. Seuss books were no longer to be published he wasn't surprised by which ones. Their content has long been a point of contention among scholars.

These are works that are being discontinued: "And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street," "If I Ran the Zoo," "McElligot's Pool," "On Beyond Zebra!" "Scrambled Eggs Super!" and "The Cat's Quizzer."

The news became public March 2 on Dr. Seuss' birthday.

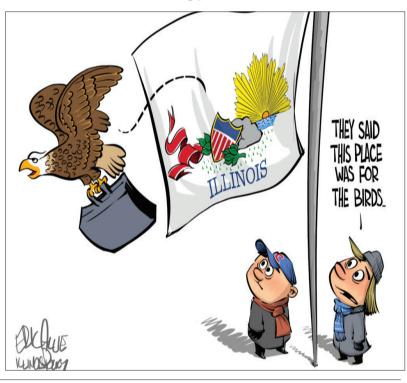

The public outcry shouldn't be surprising. After all, nostalgia can be a tricky thing. We want to remember the happy memories and forget the uncomfortable ones. But that doesn't make for a better world. It's better to look at life with clear eyes and an open mind.

To quote Seuss: "Unless someone like you cares a whole awful lot. Nothing is going to get better. It's not."

BOYS: Hubs earn road win over Sandwich on Friday

Brown sunk a pair of open triples from the right elbow for six of his 15 points, while Schlenbecker followed later in the period with a 3-pointer of his own. Rochelle (6-6, 6-5 Interstate 8 Conference) will face Morris on the road Wednesday, March 10 at 7 p.m.

Sandwich

With his team needing a bounce-back win after dropping two straight conference matchups, Tanner Lager delivered an all-around solid offensive performance when the Rochelle Hub varsity basketball team faced Sandwich on the road Friday evening.

The junior guard had his scoring talents on display, leading Rochelle with a season-high 21 points on nine made field goals including three 3-pointers. The Hubs opened the second half with a strong third quarter, defeating Sandwich 75-59 and improving to 5-6 overall. Rochelle moved to 5-5 in the Interstate 8 Conference with three games remaining in the season.

"I kept attacking the basket and my shots were falling tonight," Lager said. "It felt really good. We were getting the ball up the court pretty fast and their defense wasn't the greatest, so we were able to score layups on the other end by moving the ball up the court quickly. If we can play better defense, push the ball and shoot it well, we can hopefully pull three wins out."

Rochelle successfully held Sandwich guard Marial Puou in check Friday evening, limiting the 6-foot-7 standout to 15 points and forcing him to shoot multiple off-target shots from the perimeter. Lager and senior Garrett Burdin paced the Hub offense Friday evening, with Burdin knocking down a pair of field goals including a corner triple in the first quarter of play.

pushing the ball up the floor," said junior Noah Brown, who scored nine points and made two 3-pointers on Friday. "We need to stay locked in over this last week and win out. We need to stay healthy and get our legs underneath us."

Lager took over in the second quarter, using his dribble-drive and his 6-foot-3 frame to convert three baskets around the rim while also hitting an open 3-pointer from the elbow. Despite Puou's difficult evening, Sandwich forward Jacob Heilemeier utilized his mid-range offense to keep the Indians competitive, scoring 10 of his team-leading 18 points in the first half. With the Indians seeking their first victory of the season, Rochelle remained tied 36-36 at the half.

"We didn't want to be the first team to lose to Sandwich," Brown said.

"We knew we had to win and coach [Tim] Thompson always tells us to play every game like it's a regional game."

Third quarters have been a sore spot for the Hubs this season, but that wasn't the case on Friday, as Rochelle outscored Sandwich 19-8 in the period to take control of the game. A pair of 3-pointers from both Lager and Burdin sparked the resurgent Hub effort in the second half, while junior Ryan Simmons buried a corner triple for three of his seven points Friday night.

Sophomores

The Rochelle Hub sophomore basketball team edged Sandwich 34-32 on Friday. Rochelle faced Plano on Tuesday, falling 48-46 to go to 6-6 overall. The sophomores will face Morris on the road Wednesday, March 10 at 5 p.m.

A memorable effort

Rochelle approaches triple digits in 97-79 Senior Night win over Plano

BY RUSSELL HODGES SPORTS EDITOR

ROCHELLE — Hub senior Garrett Burdin walked off the basketball court at Rochelle Township High School one last time to a standing ovation and his team holding a large lead over the Plano Reapers on Tuesday. One of the most prolific scorers in school history, Burdin led all scorers with 27 points as Rochelle dominated the second half and cruised over Plano 97-79.

It was a Senior Night to remember for Burdin and teammates Spencer Warborg and Mike Schlenbecker, who were honored before tip-off for their contributions to the Hub basketball program. A three-year varsity starter for the Hubs, Burdin has made many memories throughout his prep career including when he surpassed the 1,000-point threshold earlier this season. But with COVID-19 considered, Tuesday night was was my last time stepping on that court and it's truly been an unforgettable experience. I've loved all my teammates throughout the years, but this was a special moment tonight... I'll always remember the culture, the community, my teammates and the coaches. I wouldn't have had it any other way. This is where I'm from."

Plano emerged with the early lead Tuesday night, moving ahead 21-17 after the first quarter behind junior guard Mason Accidentale, who scored on two nifty layups under the basket and hit a pair of free throws for six of his team-high 19 points. Rochelle worked its way back during the second quarter, feeding junior forward Zach Sanford inside for two layups and rallying behind three of Burdin's game-high five 3-pointers to take a 42-36 lead at halftime.

While the third quarter has been a sore spot for the Hubs this winter, that wasn't the case on Senior Night. Sanford and juniors Noah Brown and Ryan Simmons each knocked down triples to extend the Hub advantage. Leading 64-53 3-pointers for nine of his 13 points in the game.

Sandwich sweeps season series with Rochelle

Lady Hub shooting woes continue in 35-22 loss against Indians

BY RUSSELL HODGES SPORTS EDITOR

ROCHELLE — The Rochelle Lady Hub varsity basketball team was unable to snap its cold shooting streak when the girls hosted Sandwich for an Interstate 8 contest Saturday.

Looking to end its fivegame losing streak, Rochelle relied on its defense early, limiting Sandwich standouts Claire Roberts and Josie Ness to seven combined points. But the Lady Hubs couldn't shoot their way into a rhythm, scoring only two fourthquarter points on a buzzerbeating basket from junior Josie Lundquist as the Indians defeated Rochelle 35-22. The Lady Hubs, who fell to 2-8 overall, will face Plano on the road next Tuesday, March 9 at 7 p.m.

"We were a little flat in the first half and I thought that dictated a lot of our turnovers," head coach Tony Rowan said. "We picked our energy up in the third quarter, but when we're playing from behind, we exert so much effort into coming back that we lose energy at the end. I thought we defended well, but we have to keep finding ways to score the basketball."

Leading 8-6 after the first quarter, Sandwich scored six consecutive points to start the second quarter. But Rochelle recovered quickly, forcing three Indian turnovers that resulted in two free throws for junior Zoey Tabor and layups for both junior Lucy Bunger and senior Sofia Lenkaitis, who led the Lady Hubs with 10 points on Saturday. Rochelle trailed Sandwich 20-14 at the half.

Sandwich forwards Ness and Claire Allen each converted closerange baskets for the Indians in the third quarter, but a corner triple from Lenkaitis and a put-back shot from senior Afi Gati kept Rochelle in the mix. Down 28-20 after three quarters, Rochelle went scoreless for nearly eight minutes as Sandwich cruised forward on a 7-0 run. Ness led the Indians

"We need to find different ways to score," Rowan said. "I like the shots we're taking and we may have what we really need right now. We need to put the ball in the bucket.'
