County moves wind project forward

County board approves four Alta Farms II items, sends one to land use committee

Gordon Woods
gwoods@theclintonjournal.com

CLINTON — Barring outcomes of two lawsuits currently pending against Tradewind Energy, the company is another step closer to beginning work on its Alta Farms II wind energy project in northwestern DeWitt County.

The DeWitt County Board voted Tuesday to approve several items to advance the project, including a construction observation contractor scope of services, a building permit review contractor scope of services, an insurance agreement and engineering services contract.

The board voted to table the sound study agreement and send it first through the land use committee.

County land use committee chairman Terry Ferguson reported during Tuesday’s virtual meeting that county zoning administrator Aaron Paque met earlier with representatives of Cummins Engineering, Springfield. Paque talked to Cummins about the county’s expectations in regard to work the company will perform in connection with the wind project.

“Cummins is a reputable firm out of Springfield,” Ferguson said. “I’ve had them do work for our township doing a bridge design.”

Ferguson is also a township official. Cummins has performed other work in DeWitt County.

Cummins was selected by Tradewind Energy to perform work on the wind project. This has been a point of contention between board members on opposite sides of the wind farm issue and between board members and members of a group called DeWitt County Residents Against Wind Turbines. Some disagree with Tradewind’s choosing the engineer for the project, feeling that the county should have that prerogative.

GOP pushes back on new virus rules

Says evidence lacking that bars, restaurants are major source of COVID-19 spread

Peter Hancock
Capital News Illinois

SPRINGFIELD — Republicans in the Illinois House and Senate pushed back Wednesday against Gov. JB Pritzker’s efforts to mitigate the spread of COVID-19, arguing that lawmakers should be involved in crafting the state’s response to the pandemic.

In back-to-back virtual news conferences, GOP leaders in the House and Senate argued that they believe there is scant evidence that bars and restaurants — which will be closed to indoor service in eight of the state’s 11 regions by the end of the week — are a significant source of COVID-19 spread.

“Many Illinoisans have invested their life savings into restaurants in their state,” said Senate Minority Leader Bill Brady, R-Bloomington. “This is a cornerstone to many of our communities.”

Soils are drying out across Illinois during October

Jennie Atkins
Illinois State Water Survey

CHAMPAIGN — Dry weather in October has led to declining soil moisture across Illinois, according to Jennie Atkins, Water and Atmospheric Resources Monitoring (WARM) program manager at the Illinois State Water Survey.

Rainfall was lower than average throughout the state in the first half of October. According to the Midwestern Regional Climate Center, Illinois received 1.36 inches from Oct. 1 to 15, 1.08 inches below normal. Combined with a dry September for southern and parts of central Illinois, these conditions have caused soil moisture levels to fall to near the wilting points for most of the state.

Soil moisture at 2-inch depths averaged 0.17 water fraction by volume (wfv) on Oct. 15, a 23 percent decline from the beginning of the month. The largest declines were in northern Illinois, which saw a 32 percent drop. Levels fell only 6 percent in the east with soils already dry due to a lack of rain in September.

Similar decreases were seen in depths from 4 to 20 inches. Soil moisture remained high at 39 and 59 inches with changes of 2 percent or less in all regions.

But, a representative of Cummins said his firm would work with the best interests of the county in mind. The company’s representative said his firm had worked on wind projects before, this one being its first for Tradewind Energy.

“We haven’t had a land use meeting for the past couple of months, when the zoning administrator could have brought this forward to us,” said board member Melonie Tilley.

Tilley felt the matters on Tuesday’s agenda that dealt with the wind project should have gone through the land use committee before going to the full county board.

“Terry, until you just spoke right now, none of us board members even knew that happened,” she said.

Ferguson apologized for not convening the land use committee, “to talk about this.”

On Wednesday, he voted to approve most of the items moving the project forward.

Tilley felt the wind farm items should have been sent back to the land use committee before going to the board, citing the county’s usual practice.

State’s attorney Dan Markwell, however, said since the special use permit already passed the county board, issues in connection with the permit did not necessarily need to go through the committee screening process. He said the decision was at the discretion of the county board.

Betsy Shifflet, a member of DeWitt County Residents Against Wind Turbines, addressed board members on Tuesday.

Tradewind Energy issued a statement after the meeting.

“The items up for vote are just like the decommissioning agreement you voted to approve in August,” Shifflet said. “Tradewind is submitting an engineering contractor or consultant that they have picked for your approval. We already know Tradewind has trouble submitting complete applications.”

Shifflet suggested Tradewind would have too much control over the engineering aspect of the project by naming the firm to perform the work.

“We already know this county board has trouble complying with its own ordinances,” Shifflet said.

Those opposing the wind project, including some board members, feel Tradewind’s special use application was submitted incomplete.

Tradewind officials maintain the company’s application met all requirements of the county’s wind energy ordinance.

Tradewind issued the following statement

after the county board’s Tuesday meeting:

“The Alta Farms II wind project enjoys the support of DeWitt County residents and has earned the special use approval of the county board. We appreciate the continued attention of the county board to administrative items related to Alta Farms II, particularly during this challenging time. The county board left one item in the development process unfinished, and we will continue dialogue with county officials in an effort to resolve it. We look forward to generating new economic growth in DeWitt County.”

Tradewind Energy and DeWitt County are named as defendants in lawsuits brought by DeWitt County Residents Against Wind Turbines and the Village of Wapella to stop the Alta Farms II project.

They barely survived the shutdown that was initiated by the governor earlier this year. But after that, they scraped together to take the proper health precautions to operate their restaurants in a safe manner, employing the people who worked so hard for them and providing a livelihood for those employees.”

The Republicans’ comments came on the same day the Illinois Department of Public Health announced it would impose enhanced mitigation measures effective Oct. 31 in northern suburban Lake and McHenry counties, which make up Region 9 of the state’s reopening plan. And it came one day after those same measures were announced for the city of Chicago, which makes up Region 11, effective Oct. 30.

Soil temperatures have remained steady the first half of October. Temperatures at 4 inches under bare soil averaged 59.7 degrees on Oct. 15, a 0.7 degree increase from Oct. 1. Highs reached the mid-60s with lows mainly in the low to high 50s. Temperatures were slightly warmer than normal, averaging 4.8 degrees higher than last year and 2.7 degrees higher than the long-term average.

That means that by Saturday, eight of the state’s 11 regions will be under enhanced mitigation measures, which include the closure of bars and restaurants to indoor service, limits on the size of public gatherings and other measures.

Pritzker and IDPH Director Dr. Ngozi Ezike said last week that bars and restaurants are the second most frequently identified source of virus spread, based on data from contact tracers. The governor’s office distributed a graphic on Oct. 20 showing 2,300 of 17,939 contacted COVID-19 positive individuals said they had been at a bar or restaurant within 14 days prior to diagnosis. That was second only to “other,” which included social gatherings such as weddings, parties and more. The governor’s office said the report included data from 69 of 97 health departments.

They have also cited, among others, a study by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention which showed COVID-19 positive individuals studied were “twice as likely to have reported dining at a restaurant” than those who tested negative.

But Republicans on Wednesday questioned those findings, saying the administration has not been forthcoming with the specific contact-tracing data they are using.

“There has been an absolute lack of transparency with regards to the governor’s office and Department of (Public) Health regarding the data that is being used to determine whether bars and restaurants are, in fact, significant contributors to the spread of the virus,” said Sen. Don DeWitte, R-St. Charles.

Republicans haven’t been the only ones questioning data about bars and restaurants. Tuesday night, Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot, a Democrat, was interviewed on the PBS NewsHour where she said the mitigation plan there would effectively shut down one of the city’s major industries.

“Two-thirds of the people that are testing positive and are talking to our case investigators are telling us that they got it from somebody that they knew, and that they got it in a home or other social setting that’s not in public,” Lightfoot said.

During a separate news conference, House Minority leader Jim Durkin, R-Western Springs, presented data from DuPage County, which is part of Region 8, showing that most of the cases reported there were associated with long-term care facilities and skilled nursing facilities.

“And restaurants don’t show up,” Durkin said. “Contact tracing during the month of October did not show one case that appears on their list of confirmed cases that came from restaurants.”

Rep. Brad Stephens, R-Rosemont, in suburban Cook County, also questioned the accuracy of the data that state and local health officials are using.

“There is no exact data that shows that at a certain time, and on a certain day that that’s when I’m contracting the virus,” he said. “And if there is, we haven’t been shared that information. But how does somebody know that? What if I’m at five different restaurants over five different days, and I’m also at Target and the shopping mall and Walmart? People are free to move about.”

Speaking in Chicago during his daily press briefing Wednesday, Pritzker said the state will start sharing its data publicly in the coming days.

“Let me begin by saying we have 97 local public health departments in Illinois. Some are more technically proficient than others,” he said. “And so it’s taken us some time to work with those departments to get them up to speed working on the same system so that they’re reporting into the Department of Public Health all of the data in all of those 97 public health departments.”

Brady called on Senate leaders to form a committee that could meet and review the data being used by IDPH and provide feedback to the agency. And when asked what kinds of mitigation measures he and other Republicans would support, he suggested reducing occupancy limits to 25 percent of capacity instead of closing restaurants to indoor service altogether.

He also said the state should put more focus on testing, contact tracing and isolation of people who test positive.

“We don’t think we’ve moved quick enough to do that,” Brady said. “And this is why we’re calling for evidence within the contact tracing that will tell us what we need to do based on science and based on the evidence in terms of mitigating. But so far, there’s no proof that restaurants are mass spreaders of this, and particularly if they were reduced to 25-percent occupancy.”

Your vote matters trail. That strategy may well be working. Biden is ahead in the polls. As a candidate, Biden cannot make too many verbal gaffes if he is not out talking to the people. It is a very strange candidacy, but it does appear to be effective.

Trump on the other hand is the energizer bunny. He has been doing at two and three campaign rallies daily. The rallies are well attended and the participants are fervent Trump supporters. It appears that Trump is gaining ground in the rust belt states, which should trouble Biden.

Biden is running an any body but Trump campaign.

He has not enthused his base and perhaps he doesn't need to. Biden had a significant lead in most polls two and three weeks ago. We have a lot of early voting and those votes may very well reflect the polls at that time. Good news for Biden and bad news for Trump. So Biden sits on his lead and waits out the election.

Trump then doubles down and does massive campaigning, after his COVID 19 hospitalization. Trump is on the campaign trail with passion, while Biden stays home. People notice. Trump improves his poll ratings and the race tightens in the swing states. Too little. Too late. Or does Trump grasp victory from defeat? We will know when the votes are counted.

A message to Illinois patients: B.E. W.E.L.L.

As we approach the holiday season and we continue to grapple with the COVID-19 pandemic, now is the time to double our efforts to minimize our exposure to the virus and to do everything possible to prevent its spread.

Therefore, we would like to provide you with friendly reminders about health and wellness tips that everyone should constantly be practicing:

Be Respectful: Wear a Mask! – Wear a mask when you're in public to help slow the spread of COVID-19. Avoid masks that are made of materials that make it too hard to breathe. Also avoid masks with valves or vents that allow virus particles to escape and masks that should be saved for healthcare workers. Wear masks with two or more layers to help protect yourself and others from COVID-19.

Establish Social Distancing – Practice social distancing by putting space between yourself and others who are not from your household. As we move most of our activities indoor, this is critically important. The CDC recommends staying at least 6 feet or about 2 arms' length from others.

Wash your Hands – Wash your hands often and thoroughly to help slow the spread of COVID-19. Encourage your family members, particularly children, to wash their hands frequently.

Eradicate Influenza Risk: Get a Flu Shot – the CDC recommends annual influenza vaccination for everyone 6 months and older. Research suggests patients can get sick with both the flu and COVID-19 at the same time, which could amplify the effect of both infections.

Listen to Your Body: Don't Ignore Routine Healthcare – putting off regular visits to your physician or postponing care for chronic diseases may only exacerbate your condition. Be careful, but do not ignore your ongoing healthcare needs. And, IF you think you're sick, stay home! Monitor your symptoms, avoid close contact with everyone, and call ahead before visiting your doctor.

Limit Holiday gatherings, especially indoor events. When planning to host a holiday celebration, you should assess current COVID-19 levels in your community to determine whether to postpone, cancel, or limit the number of attendees.

New candidates trying to make a change for the better

It is clear that new candidates running for DeWitt County Board have been unfairly mentioned by an anonymous faction in mailings, postcards, phone calls and online posts. Having attended most board meetings over the past several years, I can attest to why these candidates decided to run for office.

In a recent mailing, it was questioned about whether new candidates (so-called "no show candidates") didn't want to show lack of knowledge about issues affecting the county at a recent radio forum. Each new candidate was named in this letter and accused of numerous things.

One new candidate was called a "Manchurian candidate," a reference to "political thriller about the son of a prominent U.S. political family who is brainwashed into being an unwitting assassin for a Communist conspiracy."

Why is it necessary to name-call?

In a recent newspaper ad, the claim was that wind turbines are being built all around. They don't list counties implementing ordinances protecting residents from falling blades or radar impediments, both real safety issues.

In recent postcards, it was claimed that the new candidates were recruited by a local group. In fact, after attending many board meetings, it became obvious to each that safety of residents was not being considered at board meetings, and incumbents rarely stated reasoning for votes.

What the new candidates observed during county board meetings was unsettling and drove each to try to make a change for the better.

Thank you for making museum event a huge success

The DeWitt County Museum Association would like to publicly thank all who made our “Back to Our Roots” ham and bean grab and go drive-through event such a huge success, those who volunteered and those who purchased meals. The first Apple ‘n Pork Festival was little more than one kettle of ham and beans and a stack of ham sandwiches sold to raise funds to help establish the C.H. Moore Homestead DeWitt County Museum. Then, just as on Sept. 26, they sold out quickly (even with 135 gallons of beans filing 3 large kettles) because of the generosity of this community and those who have made the festival an annual tradition.

With sincere gratitude,

Would you fire someone for doing a great job?

To all DeWitt County residents,

If you were going to fire someone for something they did that you felt was wrong, for which of the following reasons would it be?

They were good stewards of company money and always stayed within budget?

They have been able to work together with other employees regardless of differing views to get the job done?

They didn’t cause unnecessary scrutiny by news sources?

They found ways to bring the company from being in the red to being in the black?

They have worked extra hours without compensation to get the job done?

They volunteered their skills to enrich their employer (at no charge and not needing recognition)?

When a critical employee safety component of the business was about to be lost they found a less expensive solution while protecting more?

They found a way to decrease utility costs at no extra expense for the employer?

They lobbied to keep an important source of revenue for the company?

They transformed a company disgrace into a state-of-the-art facility?

They protected the company from chemical contaminants insuring all employees stayed safe?

They made sure all departments had the resources needed to perform properly?

They looked forward to ensure that the revenue needed to survive was being addressed?

They proactively made required minimum wage increases less of an impact on the company’s bottom line, while working at well below minimum wage levels to do their own jobs?

They are willing to keep their positions even though they know the road ahead is going to be difficult because of revenue losses created by Covid19 and other factors?

They continually look for a revenue stream which doesn’t cost the employees any financial burdens...even when not all support their efforts?

There have been no layoffs during their tenure because of good budgeting and fiscal responsibility?

They make decisions because it was good for the company and other employees rather than what a minority thought of them?

They were willing to voice their opinions in public when others who are applying for their jobs wouldn’t?

Now, substitute DeWitt County for company and workplace, residents of DeWitt County for bosses and other employees, and they for incumbent board members now running for reelection.

Looking at the very possible loss of revenue that we may face down the road, it is more important now more than ever, to keep experienced and proven leaders in the offices of the County Board.

$350,000 ... IS THAT ENOUGH?

As you are reading this, the County Finance Committee has proposed a balanced budget to the DeWitt County Board for the next fiscal year. The tax levy has had to be increased by $100,000 for the Liability Fund to start forward with the lawsuits filed by the DeWitt County Residents Against WindFarms and the City of Wapella.

Will that be enough?

Who is going to pay for these lawsuits?

We, the taxpayers, will be funding these lawsuits!

How and from where will these funds come? Increased taxes and fewer services will have to happen. We all know lawsuits are very costly.

What are examples of services that could be affected?

Ambulance Service?

DeWitt County Sheriff’s services?

Senior services?

Mental health services?

Reduced service hours at the DeWitt County Courthouse?

County employee layoffs?

Road and bridge repair and maintenance?

Only sixty-nine people of the DeWitt County Residents Against WindFarms signed the petition to sue the county. The leaders and spokespeople of the group did not sign. The mayor of Wapella is the only signature on the Wapella suit. This is going to take a lot of work and time by all the DeWitt County Board members to deal with these suits and for how long? Who knows?

DeWitt County 1st recommends retaining the incumbents, David Newberg, Camille Redman, Lance Reece, Scott Nimmo, and Jay Wickenhauser. They have worked hard keep our county in a balanced budget. They will work hard to keep our county growing and prospering.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Once we recognize the interdependence of the world, we can shape a better future

Sovaida Ma’ani Ewing

If there is one lesson that the COVID-19 pandemic and the ensuing global economic recession have taught us, it is that we live in a world that is so interconnected and inextricably interdependent that it has effectively become a single organism. This is a reality that no amount of denial will change. On the contrary, such denial will only cause us to suffer more intensely. We will be better off if we fully recognize and embrace this reality.

It is worth pondering what acceptance of this reality means. Two thoughts come to mind. The first is that if the world is so interconnected that it is truly akin to a single body, it is futile for any single organ or member to claim that it can go it alone without the support and aid of the rest of the body. Just as it would be nonsensical for the liver to tell the kidneys that it does not care if the kidneys are diseased because it is only concerned with its own health, it is similarly untenable for any nation to tell another nation that its problems are its own and are of no interest to others.

The growing litany of challenges that have been plaguing the world for years — ranging from climate change to the current pandemic — are demonstrating with increasing clarity that in today’s world the advantage of one nation can only be guaranteed by assuring the advantage of the whole world, just as the well-being of any one organ of the body is dependent on the systemic health of the body as a whole. Once we have deeply understood this truth, the next logical step for humanity is to put aside the childish fetish of nationalism and develop new capacities such as consultation, collaboration, and cooperation, worthy of its growing maturity toward unity and the capacity to meet its current needs as a single organism.

The second thought that comes to mind is that while many of our most intractable challenges are global in nature — including climate change, the threat of nuclear war, COVID-19 and other pandemics, global economic recessions, and terrorism, to name a few — and therefore demand global solutions, we find ourselves entirely lacking the collective decision-making and enforcement institutions we so desperately need to effectively tackle these global challenges.

Now, more than ever, we need to have an infrastructure of global governance that includes a world legislature that has democratic legitimacy, allowing for the voices of people of all nations to be properly heard in the context of frank and respectful consultation and a fair and transparent system of decision-making that leads to effective results. Imagine how much better off we would all be during this pandemic if such a system of global governance existed today.

Equally important, however, we need to develop the skill of electing worthy leaders who possess the skills and qualities of character necessary to make service to humanity’s collective interest a prime consideration in all their decisions. This skill is vital to ensure that any new global institutions we create are not subject to abuse.

We can begin to hone this skill of picking fit leaders who are aware of the interconnectedness of our world and our oneness by practicing it in our elections at home. Every time we think about electing a public servant, whether at the local, state, or national level, we should mindfully seek out a person who recognizes that their job is to guarantee the well-being of the people who elect them while also taking into account the collective interests of the community of nations.

Board incumbents need to answer a few questions

In 2018 and 2019, the wind company for Alta Farms Wind Project II submitted two special use permits. Each permit filed required a sizable fee to be paid by the wind company.

In each case, it was reported that the monies, much more than $250,000, were added to the general fund. These monies could have instead been earmarked to pay for independent engineering and/or legal costs. What was this money used for, and why wasn’t it placed in a special fund?

In the years before the filing of these permits, several amendments to wind ordinances were recommended to the board that would have prevented legal and engineering costs, among others, from being incurred by the county (residents). I believe the term “indemnification” (compensation for harm or loss; security against legal liability for one’s action) was part of the recommended amendment wording, which was brought forward by one of the new candidates. Why did all the incumbents vote against this recommendation? Why weren’t these questions asked during the radio forum or the latest pro-incumbent letters to the editor, or all the postings, mailings and newspaper articles?

All these communications suggest the apparent shortcomings in the incumbents’ operation of this county board and are deemed to be the fault of those affected by this project. Now, the liability falls on the county’s residents. Where is the incumbents’ share of responsibility?

Krannert Center to present free virtual chamber concert

Friday, November 6
at 3 p.m. | Free

URBANA — Krannert Center for the Performing Arts is joining forces with the College of ACES' Natural Resources & Environmental Sciences (NRES) and the Institute for Sustainability, Energy, and Environment (iSEE) to present a live, virtual chamber concert featuring the University of Illinois School of Music's quartet-in-residence, Jupiter String Quartet.

This free performance of Michi Wiancko's To Unpathed Waters, Undreamed Shores and ensuing conversation will take place via a one-hour, Zoom webinar format on Friday, November 6, at 3 p.m. with the quartet performing live from the Memorial Room in Smith Hall.

To Unpathed Waters, Undreamed Shores, a multi-movement work for string quartet that had been intended as part of Jupiter String Quartet's fall Krannert Center concert, celebrates the beauty and vitality of the natural world, suggesting hope and inspiration as humanity addresses fears and worries for our planet. The central themes of regeneration and resilience highlight the need to protect each other and the most vulnerable populations.

The work was written by composer Michi Wiancko for the Jupiter String Quartet with commissioning support from Bay Chamber Concerts in celebration of the organization's 60th anniversary, and from Krannert Center for the Performing Arts/University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. This performance, a collaboration between the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Sciences (NRES), Institute for Sustainability, Energy, and Environment (iSEE), Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, and the School of Music, marks the Champaign-Urbana premiere of the work.

Following the performance, NRES Associate Professor Daniel Miller and Krannert Center's Associate Director for Artistic Services, Tammy Kikta, will moderate a conversation with the members of Jupiter String Quartet (Liz Freivogel, Meg Freivogel, Nelson Lee, and Daniel McDonough) and composer Michi Wiancko.

Governor, IDPH announce halt to winter school sports

IHSA announces it will defy state order

Peter Hancock
Capital News Illinois

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. JB Pritzker and the Illinois Department of Public Health announced new guidelines for youth and adult winter sports on Tuesday that temporarily put a halt to competitive basketball, hockey and wrestling events.

Although participants in those sports may continue with non-contact training and drills, they will not be allowed to participate in competitive games or matches.

“As with sports in the fall, nothing is ‘cancelled,’ just put on hold until we’re through the thick of this pandemic,” Pritzker said in a news release. “We adapt as we learn. That has been our mantra throughout this pandemic, and as is true in every other facet of life, we know this virus is of most concern when people are indoors with high contact, especially in vigorous situations that bring about heavy breathing — like in wrestling, hockey and basketball.”

The new restrictions were announced in response to a continuing surge in COVID-19 cases throughout the state. They apply to school-sponsored competitions as well as travel clubs, private leagues and clubs, recreational leagues and centers, and park district sports programs. They do not apply to collegiate or professional sports.

Like the fall sports guidelines that the state first issued in May, the winter sports guidelines divide events into low, medium and high-risk categories.

They also provide for four different levels of activity, ranging from level 1, in which only no-contact practices and training are allowed, to level 4, in which tournaments are allowed, including out-of-conference and out-of-state play is allowed.

Basketball was originally classified as a medium-risk event in the fall guidelines, but the winter sports guidelines classify it as high risk due to close contact between players and the fact that it is played indoors. That means it is limited only to no-contact practices and training.

Other high-risk sports include football, lacrosse, martial arts, rugby and ultimate Frisbee.

Medium-risk sports — including fencing, flag football, paintball, soccer and volleyball — are allowed to take part in level 2 activities, such as intra-team scrimmages with parental consent for minors but no competitive play.

Lower-risk sports include competitive cheer and dance, as long as masking and social distance rules are enforced, as well as bowling, gymnastics, swimming, archery, track and field and weight lifting. Under the guidelines, people in those sports can take part in level 3 activities, which include games or meets within a conference or an Emergency Medical Services region or intra-league events. Level 3 also allows for state and league championship events for low-risk sports. Under the current pandemic guidelines, no events are allowed to compete at level 4.

A full list of winter sports and their risk categories is available on the Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity website.

Capitol News Illinois is a nonprofit, nonpartisan news service covering state government and distributed to more than 400 newspapers statewide. It is funded primarily by the Illinois Press Foundation and the Robert R. McCormick Foundation.

IHSA statement about the state order stopping winter school sports

“The Illinois High School Association Board of Directors made the decision today to continue with the IHSA basketball season as scheduled in 2020-21. In August, the Board slated basketball to take place from November to February based on the Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH) assigning a medium risk level to the sport. The IHSA Sports Medicine Advisory Committee (SMAC) offered additional mitigations, such as masks during play and social distancing on benches, that the SMAC believed would allow basketball to be played safely.

The high school basketball season was potentially put on hold on October 27, when Governor Pritzker announced that IDPH had changed basketball’s risk level from medium risk to high risk.

After diligent discussion, the Board has made the decision today to follow the recommendation of the IHSA SMAC as it relates to basketball. The Board remains considerate of rising COVID-19 cases in Illinois and understand the importance of adhering to safety guidelines for the good of all citizens. However, the Board has not been presented any causal evidence that rising COVID-19 cases make basketball more dangerous to play by the IDPH or any other health organization nationally or internationally. On the contrary, the IHSA has been looking to bordering states who have sponsored both medium risk and high risk sports in the fall that have noted a low incident rate of COVID-19 spread.

Instead, we will require all IHSA basketball teams to adhere to those SMAC mitigations, and allow local school officials to make decisions related to participation.

Mounting challenges, from increased mental health issues among our students to a shrinking calendar that limits our ability to move sport seasons this school year, were instrumental in this decision to move forward with basketball as scheduled. We see our students regularly leaving the state to play sports, or covertly continuing to play locally. Students can be better protected in the high school setting, and the Board remains steadfast that playing under IHSA rules and SMAC mitigation is the safest way to conduct athletics at this juncture.

Illinois is a large and diverse state, and the IHSA membership is reflective of that. We understand that this decision will impact each high school and district differently. Some schools who remain in remote learning may not be able to start winter sports on time, and we feel for those in that situation. However, we have also learned that we cannot continue to look down the road to a season that may never come.

Contact days for our teams this fall have been an incredible boon to our students’ well-being. We fear for the mental health of students who attempt to traverse a long winter with no athletic outlet available. So much about dealing with this virus has been learned in the past eight months, and this decision will grant the membership the opportunity to apply that knowledge during their basketball season.

Each member of the IHSA Board volunteered for this position because they are passionate about high school sports and activities, and the positive impact they have on our students’ physical and mental health.”

The Lady Maroons, minus their top runner, finished well down the line in 10th place. Clare Holland was the top Lady Maroon in this race.

The men’s race began a little later, and that race was dominated by Olympia. The Maroons finished in 9th place as a team, but Ethan Black (our conference champion) took 6th place and earned a berth in the state sectional run to be held this coming Saturday, October 31.

The sectional will be run at Maple Lane Country Club in Elmwood, Ill. The course appears to be fairly flat and well laid out.

On this deal, West trusted Declarer's bidding and found a brilliant shift at Trick 2. And Declarer trusted West's bidding enough to find a clever counter and bring home her slam.

On lead against 6♠, West cashed a high Heart and had to decide what to do at Trick 2. If he had tried to cash a second Heart then there would be no story to tell, as Declarer would ruff that, draw trumps and run the Clubs. But West was in a trusting mood, and concluded that Declarer was unlikely to have two Heart losers on this auction. So he found the fiendish shift of the Club Ten, knocking out Dummy's only side-suit entry before trumps had been drawn.

What should Declarer do now? One possibility was to hope for 2-2 trumps, in which case trumps could be drawn, ending on the board, and the Diamond losers then disposed of on the Clubs. But Declarer reasoned that West had done a considerable amount of vulnerable bidding and probably had 8 or 9 Hearts. That being so, it seemed more likely that West had a singleton trump. So, Declarer cashed just one trump on the board and started running the Clubs, pitching Diamonds. East ruffed the fourth round of Clubs, Declarer overruffed, returned to the board with a trump (drawing East's last trump in the process), and got rid of the last Diamond loser on another Club winner. Well bid, well defended, well declared!

Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥ RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.

Hints For Homeowners

Seven tips to ready your outdoor power equipment for winter

(NAPSI)—After your lawn gets its last cut before winter, it will be time to put away spring and summer outdoor power equipment, like lawn mowers, leaf blowers, and trimmers. What's next? Snow throwers, generators and other small engine equipment need to be readied for winter use. How and when you prepare your equipment for seasonal changes can save you time and money later, says the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI).

With record-breaking sales of outdoor power equipment, homeowners are spending more time during the COVID-19 pandemic working or renovating their family yards. This means more people are using outdoor power equipment, and OPEI reminds everyone the importance of proper outdoor power equipment storage, maintenance and safe handling.

"During this very challenging pandemic, we've learned our outdoor spaces are more important than ever," says Kris Kiser, President and CEO of OPEI and the TurfMutt Foundation, which encourages outdoor learning experiences, stewardship of our green spaces, and care for all living landscapes. "Our yards, parks and schoolyards are our safe space for connecting with friends and family, acting as outdoor classrooms and offices. Green space also contributes to the health and wellbeing of people, pets and wildlife, and having the right outdoor power equipment to take care of it is key. But preparation is everything — understanding how to store equipment and get it serviced, how to operate it safely, and how to ready your space to use that equipment."

He adds, "Always follow your manufacturer's guidelines, and remember to keep kids and dogs away from operating equipment at all times."

Here are a few tips from OPEI to ensure your lawn mower and other spring equipment will be available for use when warmer temperatures return, and snow throwers and other winter equipment will be ready for use when the snow falls.

1. Review owner's manuals. Re-familiarize yourself with how to handle equipment safely. Lost manuals can be found online. Save a copy on your computer if possible, so it can be consulted when needed. Be familiar with your equipment, and all its features, including how to turn it off quickly and safely.
2. Service all equipment. Before storing spring and summer equipment, clean and service it or take it to a small engine repair shop. Drain and change engine oil and safely dispose of the old oil. Service the air filter, and do other maintenance as directed by the owner's manual. Check winter equipment and see if any maintenance and repairs are required.
3. Handle fuel properly. Unused fuel left in gas tanks over the winter can go stale and even damage equipment. Before storing equipment, add fuel stabilizer to the gas tank, then run the equipment to distribute it. Turn the engine off, allow the machine to cool, then restart and run until

- the gas tank is empty. For winter equipment, buy the recommended type of fuel no more than 30 days before use. Use fuel with no more than 10% ethanol in outdoor power equipment. Use a fuel stabilizer if recommended by the manufacturer. Get more information on safe fueling for outdoor power equipment at LookBeforeYouPump.com.
4. Charge the battery. Remove and fully charge batteries before storing. Don't store batteries on metal shelves or allow them to touch metal objects. Store them on a plastic or wood shelf in a climate-controlled structure.
5. Shelter equipment from winter weather. Store spring and summer equipment in a clean and dry place such as a garage, barn or shed. Winter equipment should be kept away from the elements, but be easily available for use.
6. Prepare, prepare, prepare. Make space in the garage or basement before the weather changes, so there is room to store larger yard items. Clean up the yard of sticks, debris, dog and kid's toys and other items that can damage or destroy equipment. Clear the paths used regularly in your yard, especially during the winter when snow can "hide" things.
7. Have the right weather appropriate extension cord for your generator. Keep heavy duty weather proof extension cords on hand to use with it. Ensure the length of the cord is necessary to operate the generator a safe distance from the house or building. Never operate a generator indoors, in a garage, breezeway or under an open window.

Seven tips for buying a new mattress

(NAPSI)—A mattress is one of the most important purchases you'll ever make—after all, you spend approximately a third of your life in bed. Although the number of choices can feel overwhelming, you don't have to lose sleep over it if you heed these hints:

1. Size matters. If you're sharing a bed, you should buy at least a queen-size mattress. A healthy person moves 40 to 60 times a night and makes lots of full-body turns. For sound sleep, you need freedom of motion.

2. Test-drive different models. Wear comfortable clothes and shoes you can easily slip off so you can lie down. Compare a variety of support levels and styles within your budget.

3. Look under the hood. Ask the salesperson to show you illustrated or actual "cutaways" of the interior of the different mattresses and foundations. The mechanics of inner-springs and foams vary widely, which can greatly affect comfort.

4. Use a reputable dealer. Furniture stores, department stores and sleep specialty shops all sell mattresses. Ask friends and family for referrals. If you don't feel your salesperson is knowledgeable or helpful, take your business elsewhere.

5. Buying online? If you choose to buy a mattress online, you won't have the chance to try it out, so read the reviews, carefully check return and shipping policies—and be certain there's customer support should a problem arise.

6. Go for the best value, not the lowest price. To ensure long-term performance, buy the highest-quality sleep set you can afford. View it as a 7- to 10-year investment in your health and well-being.

7. Be sure it contains certified foam. A key consideration is that the flexible polyurethane foam in the mattress meets standards set by CertiPUR-US—a certification program administered by a not-for-profit organization—for content, emissions and durability. This internationally recognized foam certification program was established to combat sub-standard imported foams, some of which contained substances banned in the U.S. or listed by environmental and regulatory groups as containing chemicals that may cause cancer or genetic defects or damage fertility. The foam used in pillows and upholstered furniture can be certified, too.

What Certification Means

When you buy products containing CertiPUR-US-certified foam, you can be confident that the flexible polyurethane foam inside has been tested and analyzed at least annually by independent accredited laboratories and is:

- Made without ozone depleters
- Made without PBDEs, TDCPP or TCEP ("Tris")

flame retardants

- Made without mercury, lead and other heavy metals
- Made without formaldehyde
- Made without phthalates regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission
- Made with low VOC (volatile organic compound) emissions for indoor air quality (less than 0.5 parts per million)
