Illinois again leads nation in soybean production in '19

☐ Average yield was 54 bushels per acre

BLOOMINGTON – Illinois continues to top the annual crop production report estimate for soybean production, according to 2019 USDA estimates. Despite a tough growing season for most of the Midwest, Illinois farmers consistently produced strong soybean yields, all while remaining committed to stewardship and efficient crop management.

Illinois soybean farmers raised 532,440 million bushels of soybeans in 2019 on 9,860 million harvested acres with an average yield of 54 bushels per acre. Iowa ranked second in production with 501,660 million bushels raised on 9,120 million acres.

"I won't say it was easy because 2019 will be remembered as the most challenging growing season on record for many Illinois producers," said Doug Schroeder, soybean farmer from Mahomet and Illinois Soybean Association (ISA) chairman. "Yet, I think this report reflects the Illinois soybean industry's resiliency and ability to produce a consistent, high quality product year after year, despite the weather and economic challenges of 2019."

ISA Production and Outreach Committee chairman David Wessel and soybean farmer from Chandlerville believes that ISA's commitment to robust farmer education efforts helps Illinois maintain its edge.

"Continuing to educate on best practices and new industry innovations makes sure that Illinois growers have a partner in maximizing their yield potential and profitability per acre," said Wessel. "An example would be the award-winning ILSoyAdvisor platform funded by the checkoff that's chock full of actionable, in-season advice that is making a difference with Illinois soybean farmers."

Another large contributing factor to Illinois' soy success is the focus on generating worldwide soybean demand.

"One of ISA's key priorities is to create marketplace preference for Illinois soy in export markets, biodiesel, animal agriculture and beyond," said Roberta Simpson-Dolbeare, soybean farmer from Nebo and ISA Marketing Committee chairwoman. "In 2020, you will see continued focus on nurturing existing markets and opening new. We hope to remain Illinois' No. 1 ag export for years to come."

Will '20 be a better year for farming in Illinois?

☐ Some climate specialists predicting wetter than normal February and March

The Center Square

BLOOMINGTON – Last year's record rains took a toll on the state's farmers.

Instead of planting in the spring, they had to wait until June and even July just to get started. Soggy soil was not the best growing medium, harvests happened late and in colder weather, and many fields were harvested so late that the ground was frozen before farmers could till it for the next planting.

In 2019, some estimate, Illinois farmers earned 20 percent less than they did the previous year.

Some climate specialists are predicting more of the same in 2020, which has already seen higher-than-average rainfall in most of the state. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said February and March will be wetter than usual. Trent Ford, the state's climatologist, said it is likely that every year will be wetter than normal, meaning farmers may need to adapt.

Farmers in Illinois are hoping to get back to a more normal planting season in 2020.

Mike Doherty, senior economist and policy analyst for the Illinois Farm Bureau, is not so sure. "Last year was an anomaly," he said. "I'm not too concerned. At this point, it's premature to worry about soggy planting conditions. We'll see.

"Our farmers roll with the punches on weather variability," he added. "They know it's going to happen, but hopefully [we'll be] back to normal weather patterns this spring. And you know that they'll get a crop in the ground. I'm confident about that."

Both NOAA and Ford attribute a progressively wetter Illinois to climate change and they don't expect to see that change any time soon.

Doherty said so far he had seen little impact.

"It really has not affected us very badly at all in Illinois," he said. "We have not been negatively impacted much.

"We compete against other growing areas," he said. "So even if our climate is changing a little bit, as long as the competition is faced with a worse situation, it's actually not bad for us. We win on the world market."

IRS warns of 'ghost tax preparers' who could get taxpayers in trouble

By COLE LAUTERBACH
The Center Square

The Center Square

SPRINGFIELD – The Internal Revenue Service is warning of "ghost" tax preparers who promise big returns.

As the tax-filing season begins, the IRS said some tax preparers are promising bigger returns that might seem tempting.

"They may invent income so that you qualify for tax credits, they may claim fake deductions so that you qualify for a larger refund," IRS spokesman Michael Devine said.

But these ghost prepares won't sign the return and often ask for cash so they're not tied to the return in anyway. Devine said the filer will then get audited, fined, or worse.

"It could even cross over into tax fraud," he said. "That's when you get into criminal penalties."

An April 2019 report by the U.S. Treasury found that the IRS "identified 3,529 tax returns with approximately $15.8 million claimed in fraudulent refunds and prevented the issuance of $12.2 million (77.2 percent) in fraudulent refunds."

No matter who prepares the return, Devine encouraged taxpayers to review it and ask questions about anything unclear before signing. He said anyone who suspects they are a victim of a ghost preparer to contact the IRS immediately.

Taxpayers also can look for the tax preparer's P-TIN number. Devine said never to trust a deal that seems too good to be true.

Both the IRS and the state of Illinois began accepting tax filings on Jan. 27. The deadline for filing tax returns is Wednesday, April 15.

Social Security launches new campaign to fight scammers

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Social Security Administration launched a new Public Service Announcement (PSA) campaign to continue warning people about the ongoing nationwide telephone impersonation scheme. The PSAs feature a message from Social Security Commissioner Andrew Saul. Social Security and its Office of the Inspector General (OIG) continue to receive reports about fraudulent phone calls from people falsely claiming to be Social Security employees. The scammers mislead victims into making cash or gift card payments for help with purported identity theft, or to avoid arrest for bogus Social Security number problems.

"I want every American to know that if a suspicious caller states there is a problem with their Social Security number or account, they should hang up and never give the caller money or personal information. People should then go online to oig.ssa.gov to report the scam call to Social Security," said Commissioner Saul.

People should also be on the lookout for a new version of this scam. Fraudsters are now emailing fake documents in attempts to get people to comply with their demands. Victims have received emails with attached letters and reports that appear to be from Social Security or the OIG. The letters may use official let-terhead and government jargon to convince victims they are legitimate; they may also contain misspellings and grammar mistakes.

The new PSA addressing the telephone impersonation scheme is available online atwww.youtube.com/socialsecurity

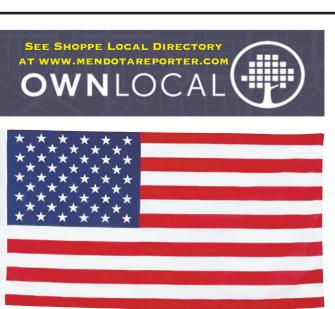

Social Security employees do occasionally contact people--generally those who have ongoing business with the agency--by telephone for business purposes. However, Social Security employees will never threaten a person, or promise a Social Security benefit approval, or increase, in exchange for information or money. In those cases, the call is fraudulent and people should just hang up.

Generally, the agency mainly calls people who have recently applied for a Social Security benefit, someone who is already receiving payments and requires an update to their record, or a person who has requested a phone call from the agency. If a person is not in one of these situations, they normally would not receive a call from the agency.

Social Security will not:

- Tell you that your Social Security number has been suspended.
  - Contact you to demand an immediate yment.
- Ask you for credit or debit card numbers over the phone.
- Require a specific means of debt repayment, like a prepaid debit card, a retail gift card, or cash.
- Demand that you pay a Social Security debt without the ability to appeal the amount you owe.
- Promise a Social Security benefit approval, or increase, in exchange for information or money.

If there is a problem with a person's Social Security number or record, in most cases Social Security will mail a letter. If a person needs to submit payments to Social Security, the agency will send a letter with instructions and payment options. People should never provide information or payment over the phone or Internet unless they are certain of grow together, whether it's for the youth or the seniors.

"I believe the major way the Mendota Y is going to succeed is the community contributes to the Y as much as the Y contributes to the community. I grew up here and I know the things this community has done and can do. I want to help bring back those things. Fitness and sports is really important to me and I want to make that accessible to all ages."

Donnell said he is looking forward to working with the Mendota Area Chamber of Commerce, the city of Mendota, the schools and anyone else that wants to help make the Y a successful and prosperous venture.

"We have to be active in the community, hosting programs, being visible," added Donnell. "The Y should be synonymous with Mendota."

Donnell is still very early in the position of Mendota Y manager, but he already has many ideas about ways in which he can make the Y an integral part of the Mendota

One of those ideas is staging the Mendota Y Games with a series of tournaments in sports such as volleyball, basketball, softball and "I have a dream of doing this and getting everyone involved," he said. "That's one of the major things I want to work on."

Please remember, our students are still continuing to collect Box Tops for Education and pop tabs to be donated to St. Jude Hospital. We appreciate our family and community support with these two great programs.

Our schools have been hit hard with sickness this past week. We have been spending extra time each night sanitizing and doing some deep cleaning to try to help minimize the spread of germs. During these times, it's a great that all parents consider washing coats, snow pants, gloves, hats, scarves, etc. more frequently. We also greatly appreciate parents following our "24-hour rule," which is in the student handbook, so students don't return to school too quickly after being sick.

Glaucoma, 'The Sneak Thief of Sight,' continues to affect vision of millions of Americans

♦ Prevent Blindness provides free resources to the public for National Glaucoma Awareness Month

CHICAGO – Estimates from the Prevent Blindness report, "Future of Vision: Forecasting the Prevalence and Costs of Vision Problems" state that more than 3.2 million Americans ages 40 and over have glaucoma in the year 2020. The number is expected to increase as the population ages.

Glaucoma, often referred to as the "the sneak thief of sight," is a leading cause of vision loss that damages the optic nerve. Although symptoms may not be noticeable at first, glaucoma slowly diminishes peripheral vision (side vision), making activities such as driving increasingly difficult.

During National Glaucoma Awareness Month in January, Prevent Blindness, the nation's oldest volunteer eye health and safety nonprofit organization, seeks to educate the public on the disease, including risk factors, types of glaucoma, treatment options and more.

Peru kindergartner's fundraiser results in toy donations

PERU - A fundraiser organized by an enterprising Peru 5-year-old resulted in a donation of toys to the Peru Primary Care medical practice and OSF Children's Hospital of Illinois in Peoria.

Charlotte Hughes, a kindergarten student at Northview School, is a Peru Primary Care patient who recently had thumb surgery at Children's Hospital in Peoria. She decided to set up what she called a "hot coco stand" outside her house over Christmas break. From that sale, she raised enough money to be able to purchase toys and kids' books for both her local doctors' office as well as the Peoria hospital where she had surgery.

Charlotte's mom, Alicia Hughes explained that her daughter's motivation to raise money for the toys and books was very simple, "Charlotte is just one of those girls who likes to help others."

Politics and personal attacks

By Scott Reeder

SPRINGFIELD - Politics has never been a place for the thin-skinned, but today candidates are more likely to face personal attacks than any time in recent history.

Instead of criticizing a candidate's voting record or stand on issues, politicians are ridiculing things like looks, physical disability or speech.

I was thinking about that recently when former Vice President Joe Biden spoke of overcoming a childhood stutter and former White House Press Secretary Huckabee Sanders tweeted, ""I I I I I I I I I I I I I I I hhhave absolutely no idea what Biden is talking about."

What kind of person makes fun of a stutter?

I asked Mike Lawrence, who was once press secretary for former Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar, for his thoughts. "It just shows a lack of decency for a person to ridicule a challenge that another person has faced," he said. Lawrence, who lives in Springfield, was born with a cleft palate that was not surgically corrected until he

"All the way through childhood and college I lived with it," he said. "Kids made fun of me because of the way I talked. I worked hard to speak distinctly.' And he overcame that challenge to become the spokesperson for a sitting governor. That's an incredible accomplishment in anyone's life. "I always felt bad that neither of my parents lived long enough to see me become press secretary – after overcoming the challenge of a cleft palate."

A recent article in "The Atlantic" explored whether any remnants of Biden's stutter emerged during the Democratic debates. In the article, Biden described the ways both students and teachers mocked him for his speech as a child, and the ways he'd practice passages from literature in the mirror at night to work on speaking fluidly.

To my way of thinking, those are accomplishments to be extolled. After all, isn't this supposed to be the land of opportunity?

But why are personal attacks becoming more commonplace?

Former Peoria Congressman Ray LaHood says there has been a breakdown in political civility.

"Republicans have moved further to the right and Democrats have moved further to the left and there is less of a desire to work together in a bipartisan manner," he said. But it goes beyond the polarization of the political parties, he said. The advent of social media has contributed to making political discourse coarser.

"I think Facebook and other social media has contributed to the ability of people to say things that would never otherwise be said of a person. .... President Trump sends out degrading tweets about persons of the other party – and sometimes his own party."

It's worth noting that LaHood is a Republican leveling this criticism of a president of his own party.

It's worth noting that both Republicans and Democrats bear responsibility for this breakdown in political comity.

Sanders herself has been branded by commentators as "Miss Piggy." Her weight and looks have been disparaged. Criticize what she says, not how she looks, folks. Is this the new normal? Will personal attacks become an accepted part of political discourse?

I sure hope not. But what can we as voters do?

The most obvious thing is not to reward candidates who behave this way. (They do it because they think it helps them at the polls; they'll stop if voters withhold their support.)

Schools have made it a mission to fight bullying. And I'm glad. But it's a hard lesson to teach when our youngsters see adults electing bullies.

We deserve better and they certainly do.

Perhaps Biden exhibited the best response to a personal attack when he responded this way:

"I've worked my whole life to overcome a stutter. And it's my great honor to mentor kids who have experienced the same. It's called empathy. Look it up." (Scott Reeder is a veteran statehouse journalist and freelance reporter; ScottReeder1965@gmail.com.)

Hotel Faber condemned - 1980

(The following is from Jessica Nashold's Backtracks & Sidetracks column reprinted from Jan. 26, 2005.)

By Jessica Nashold

Not everyone was in favor of razing the hotel, which, since 1868, had occupied the northwest corner of Main and Jefferson streets. First as Pohl's Hall, then as Pohl's Hotel, later still as Hotel Faber, it had been expanded and gone through several changes of ownership. Its Gold Room had been a meeting place for Kiwanis and Rotary. However, before he died, Mayor Louis Koopersmith had viewed it as a "hazard" and during his administration there had been complaints. The muttering continued under his successors, and when Ken Roling was elected mayor, some steps were taken to preserve the historic structure. An effort was made to interest out-of-town investors in rehabbing the building and perhaps providing downtown residences for senior citizens. Even though this concept had support, when the city council met on January 21, 1980, a majority of the alderman voted for condemnation.

At the time, Mike Silverman was editor of The Mendota Reporter. He had joined the staff, as a recent graduate of the Medill School of Journalism, and did not back away from the controversy. His editorial comment was headlined –

Council gives city a "hole in the ground."

The Dean Otterbach Family was honored as Conservation Farm Family of the Year for LaSalle County in 1980. They had adopted a number of measures recommended by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to slow down soil runoff, measured in tons per acre. Otterbach's wife, Ruth, and children, Bill, Susan and Ken, had all participated in the projects.

in Mendota's Museum complex.

Much distress had been generated by a grain embargo in 1980. The Farm Bureau was urging farmers to avoid "panic selling" of their grain. The National Farmers' Organization elected officers in January 1980. It was headed in LaSalle County by a Stremlau, and all officers were full-time farm operators.

They proposed a two-week moratorium on the sale of grain.

James Lazano, an exchange student attending Mendota High, presented a program on Spain to ladies of Zion United Methodist Church. He was introduced by Joan Richardson, as the Richardsons had been his host family in Mendota. Lazano had been singing with the Madrigals at MHS and included song and guitar music in his program.

Northern Illinois Gas Co. made free surveys of Lincoln and Northbrook schools with its thermographic infrared camera. It was capable of pinpointing areas where heat was escaping. The survey was to be extended to the other schools as well.

A survey of the municipal building is also planned.

Jodi Slingsby, Tri-County Fair Queen in 1979, was among the top 10 candidates being considered for the title of Illinois State Fair Queen. She was accompanied to Springfield for the competition by Tri-County Fair directors Tim McConville and Earl Waldorf. Barbara Waldorf took pictures.

Senior citizen activities on the calendar at the community building, one week in January, were: Monday - NOA lunch, followed by sing-a-long.

Tuesday-Name That Tune contest & square dance.

Wednesday-White elephant bingo Thursday-Driver's training class. Saturday - Project NOA bus trip to either Chicago or Rockford shopping center. Prizes for white elephant bingo will be neatly wrapped, "unwanted" Christmas gifts, contributed by players. Members of the Moose Lodge and their guests enjoyed a chicken fry on January 26, 1980, followed by dancing from 9:30-1:30.

Music was by "The Accents."

Tom and Phyllis Bowne announced the grand opening of their South Main Liquor Store on January 25, 26 & 27, 1980, at the southwest corner of Main and Fifth streets. Mrs. Bowne, the former Phyllis Parsons, represented the third generation of the Parsons family to conduct a business at that location. Her grandfather, George Parsons, and father, Charles Parsons, had operated a junk yard there, beginning in 1914.

The Bownes put up a new building.

The Reporter featured an illustrated article about Millie Zinke and her hobby of soap-making.

She provided her recipe and was pictured performing each step of the process.

Lori Ann Hochstatter and Michael Turk attended the Presidential Classroom in Washington, D.C., in January

They were members of the National Student Body.

Mitch McConnell is master of the Senate

By Rich Lowry

Every hostile nickname that Mitch McConnell gets is further confirmation of his effectiveness.

The latest is "Midnight Mitch," a reaction to his resolution setting out the road map for the Senate impeachment trial. The measure stipulated that House impeachment managers could make their case over two days of 12-hour sessions, possibly pushing the presentations into the wee hours. Hence, the latest alliterative moniker for McConnell, also known to his enemies as "Moscow Mitch."

McConnell relented slightly on the resolution, giving the managers -- and the president's team -- three days, instead of two, for opening arguments. But he still got his way on the broader question of how to run the trial -- unsurprisingly, because McConnell is a master at what he does When all is said and done, he'll be remembered as one of the most effective Senate majority leaders in the modern era. A portion of an early Democratic presidential debate was devoted to asking candidates how they'd get around McConnell as president -- and none of them had a good answer. He now looms as a hate figure for the left at the same time he's won the grudging admiration of conservatives who once scorned him as too establishmentarian.

Nancy Pelosi has gotten more than her share of good press as a powerful and shrewd speaker of the House. Yet her one false move in the impeachment saga was to believe, on the basis of sheer wishfulness, that she could somehow force McConnell into shaping the Senate trial to her liking by withholding the articles of impeachment. Since McConnell never panics, knows his caucus better than anyone and understands who has leverage in any negotiation, the contest with Pelosi was a mismatch from the start.

McConnell held his Republican senators together and waited Pelosi out, giving her no choice but to transmit the articles to the Senate after getting exactly nothing.

The majority leader returned to the Senate's rules for the Clinton impeachment. They had passed unanimously in 1999, so they had legitimacy as precedent while still serving McConnell's purposes. They created the predicate for an expeditious trail, with the potentially divisive question of witnesses put off until later. McConnell is so sure-footed because he is truly a creature of the Senate. He's an institutionalist in the best sense. He loves the Senate, and serving in it has always been his ambition. He has absorbed the rules, the tempo and the role In the main, McConnell doesn't care about what the media says about him. He's been called Darth Vader and worse for a long time, at least since his days killing off ill-advised campaign finance legislation earlier in his Senate career.

He's not afraid to wield his power, and proved it with his opposition to President Barack Obama's legislative agenda, his block of the Merrick Garland nomination and his historic bout of judicial confirmations over the past three years. If McConnell is careful and calculating, he's not a cynic.

Operating within the realm of the politically possible, as a Senate leader with a narrow majority must, he seeks the public good as he understands it within those constraints.

There will be more nicknames to come -- perhaps before the Senate trial has ended.

Hutchinsons donate to Princeton Public Library

PRINCETON - The Princeton Public Library received another generous donation from Dr. Harold and Mrs. Jeanne Hutchinson in December. The library was grateful for this $20,000 donation, which covered the ancillary costs associated with the library's updated HVAC system.

Although the project stayed within the initial estimated amount, the installation around the ducts needed repairs. The Hutchinsons' donation not only took care of those expenses, but covered the payment for the architectural/engineering consultant as well.

The Princeton Public Library has named the Youth Services area in honor of the Hutchinsons' past donations and continues to appreciate their generosity. Because of this gift to the library, the HVAC replacement, completed by John's Service in Oglesby, was finished in December, much sooner than initially planned. ### Certified Livestock Manager Training Workshops scheduled SPRINGFIELD – The Illinois Department of Agriculture (IDOA) along with the University of Illinois Extension Service is hosting Certified Livestock Manager Training Workshops for 2020. The workshops will provide Illinois livestock producers the manure management training they need to meet the requirements of the state's Livestock Management Facilities Act.

Area workshops will be held on Feb. 19 at DeKalb County Farm Bureau in Sycamore, Feb. 20 at Stephenson County Farm Bureau in Freeport, and Feb. 26 at Illinois Department of Agriculture in Springfield.

"This partnership, between the Department of Ag and the University of Illinois Extension, provides the tools, education and training for our state's certified livestock managers to become skilled in best management practices," said IDOA Director John Sullivan. "The goal is for our livestock facilities to be good neighbors and stewards of the land."

The Livestock Management Facilities Act of 1997 equires:

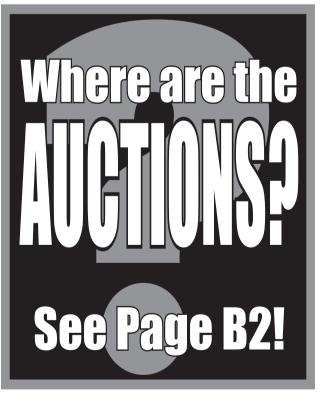

- Facilities with 300 or more animal units to have at least one employee certified in proper manure handling procedures.
  Facilities with 300 to 999 animal units, the employ-
- ee either must attend a training workshop, complete online CLM training, or pass the Illinois Department of Agriculture's Certified Livestock Manager exam.
- Employee of facilities with more than 1,000 or more units must complete one of the training options and pass the Certified Livestock Manager exam to achieve certification.

To register for a workshop, call the University of Illinois Extension at (815) 858-2273 or go online to https://extension.illinois.edu/jsw/certified-livestock-manager-training-workshops-2020. The cost is $35. If more than one employee from the same farm signs-up, each registration after the first will cost $25.

The workshops will use the instructional manual for the national Livestock and Poultry Environmental Stewardship (LPES) Curriculum, which are available for free online at the link below. Materials are also available for purchase by contacting the University of Illinois, College of Agricultural, Consumer and Environmental Sciences, Marketing & Distribution at 1-800-345-6087. Please note, if you have a manual or CD from 2003 or newer, you will not need to purchase a new one.

Producers also have the option of taking an online training that consists of five modules and four quizzes. Passing them is the equivalent of having attended a training but does not substitute for passing the Certified Livestock Manager exam. There is no charge to take the quiz online, other than the cost of the manual. To register for the online program option, go to https://web. extension.illinois.edu/clmt/. Any questions relating to the online program can be directed to Professor Richard Gates at (217) 244-2791.

On the day of the workshop, registration will open at 8:30 a.m. with the training program starting promptly at 9 a.m.

Farmers can access Illinois Soybean variety data to protect farm revenue

An updated list of high-feed-value soybean varieties is now posted at soyvalue. com to help farmers make more fully informed seed selection decisions that help counter farm revenue losses from synthetic feed ingredients in critical livestock markets.

The new data is offered by the Illinois Soybean Association (ISA) as a continuation of the ongoing checkoff-funded High Yield PLUS Quality (HY+Q) program. The HY+Q program encourages the selecting and planting of soybean varieties with the highest nutritional value for our largest market sector – livestock.

The list includes feed-value data from 248 soybean seed varieties and 40,250 soybean samples between 2013 and 2018. It ranks varieties according to feed-value scores. Feed value is based on the levels of seven essential amino acids that are most important to livestock nutritionists when formulating feed rations.

These varieties represent soybean farmers' best options to reverse revenue losses and protect livestock feed market share from synthetic amino acids and other grains.

Results range from 1 (lowest) to 10 (highest), with results at or above a value score of 5.5 representing a variety that had higher-than-average value for livestock consumption.

"Because of declining soybean feed value over the past 30 years, livestock producers—especially in swine—have significantly increased the amount of synthetic amino acid products and other grains in rations at the expense of soybean meal," says Linda Kull, Ph.D., di-

	Bushels Affected	Bushel Price (11/23/19)	Farm Revenue (11/23/19)
-	Soybeans: 7,069,747 fewer bushels purchased	$9.05	$63,981,210.35
1	Corn/corn byproducts: 5,410,714 more bushels purchased	$3.68	$19,911,427.52
Farm Re	venue Loss*		$44,069,782.83

*These annual figures are taken from a 90,000-sow herd operation that reduced soybean meal purchases while increasing corn/corn byproduct and synthetic amino acid purchases at the same time. The financial results are shown in today's dollars. The example assumes it takes 45.5 bushels of soybeans to make a ton of soybean meal and that corn equals 56 pounds per bushel.

Keep in mind these figures represent one year's purchases for one hog operation. Multiply this example across the swine industry and the lost revenue adds up to billions rector of ag innovations for the ISA. "Not only does this affect market share and the industry's future, this drop in soybean inclusion rates negatively impacts farmers' bottom lines today."

of dollars over time.

Kull emphasizes that soybean producers should include feed value as an important part of their seed-selection criteria. "Nearly half of soybean varieties available today offer superior feed value, and most of these varieties also feature high yield potential and the most desired agronomic traits.

"If you are debating between two varieties, choose the variety with the higher feed value," she suggests. "This is the fastest, most effective way to help reverse the declining feed-value trends that are working against soybeans in livestock markets."

Visit soyvalue.com to view the list of high-value varieties, learn more about the High Yield PLUS Quality program (HY+Q) or to request a sample kit for your 2020 soybeans.

Losses in the Billions

A single example from a 90,000-sow swine operation represents the magnitude of the challenge and cost facing soybean growers if soybean feed value continues to decline. Swine operation nutritionists actively monitor soybean feed value—defined by amino acid content—and source feed ingredients accordingly because those are essential nutrients needed by animals to maximize growth and productivity.

Over a 10-year period, this swine operation:

Decreased soybean meal by 6,222 semi-loads (25 tons per load) annually

Increased corn/corn byproduct purchases by 6,060 semi-loads annually

Increased synthetic amino acid product purchases by 46 semi-loads annually

If corn byproducts replace soybeans in soybean meal due to use of low feed value soybeans, then these purchasing decisions affected 155,550 tons or 7,069,747.50 bushels of soybeans and 151,500 tons or 5,410,714.29 bushels of

The above chart (Figure 1) shows the estimated value for each crop and the sales loss to growers due to reduced soybean meal purchases by the livestock operation. Note that the gains to increased corn/corn byproduct inclusion do not make up for the losses in soybean sales.

Any time that soybean utilization and market share are reduced, the influences of supply and demand impact the price of your soybeans and therefore farm income, just as the reductions in exports to China have reduced the selling price of your soybeans.

Illinois Pork Producers Association invests in Feed Technology Center

URBANA – Advancing its longstanding support of the College of Agricultural, Consumer and Environmental Sciences at the University of Illinois, the Illinois Pork Producers Association (IPPA) has announced a financial commitment to the new Feed Technology Center currently under construction south of campus.

"Our relationship with Illinois Pork has been incredibly important for advancing the swine industry in the state and nation," says Rodney Johnson, head of the Department of Animal Sciences at U of I. "Their generous gift will assist the Feed Technology Center in becoming a national hub for new discoveries and advancement in animal nutrition."

Research innovations from the Department of Animal Sciences have shaped the swine industry for decades, in partnership with Illinois swine producers. For example, during the 1950s and early 1960s, Illinois scientists pioneered the modern corn-soybean meal diet for swine and built one of the first indoor swine production units with slatted floors in the U.S., providing practical insights to an industry in transition. Later, a partnership between Illinois animal scientists and producers led to the weanto-finish production system that has revolutionized swine production throughout the U.S. and the world.

According to Johnson, the new Feed Technology Center will further strengthen relationships between the college, industry, and producers, and make possible animal nutrition innovations that could impact the agricultural industry on a global scale.

"We are confident that our contribution will benefit the pork industry in Illinois and beyond," says Pam Janssen, IPPA President. "With the threat of foreign animal disease transferring through feed ingredients, we welcome more research in that capacity."

The University of Illinois and the College of ACES have committed $6 million toward the $20 million project, with private partners invited to contribute toward the balance. Having broken ground last June, the project is on track to wrap up in fall 2020.

"Private gifts, such as this commitment from Illinois Pork, assist with sustaining and advancing the valuable discoveries, training, and translation this facility will support," Johnson says. "We welcome other stakeholders to join us in this investment."

College of ACES Dean Kim Kidwell adds, "This generous gift from the Illinois Pork Producers Association reflects our longstanding co-commitment to advancing the success of the swine industry through research, education, and outreach. We are truly grateful to IPPA for their support of feed science innovation, which will benefit livestock producers across the region."

URBANA - Like most plants, soybeans pair up with soil fungi in a symbiotic mycorrhizal relationship. In exchange for a bit of sugar, the fungus acts as an extension of the root system to pull in more phosphorus, nitrogen, micronutrients, and water than the plant could on its own.

Mycorrhizal fungi occur naturally in soil and are commercially available as soil inoculants, but new research from the University of Illinois suggests not all soybean genotypes respond the same way to their mycorrhizal relationships.

"In our study, root colonization by one mycorrhizal species differed significantly among genotypes and ranged from 11 to 70 percent," says Michelle Pawlowski, postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Crop Sciences at Illinois and co-author on a new study in "Theoretical and Applied Genetics."

To arrive at that finding, Pawlowski grew 350 diverse soybean genotypes in pots filled with spores of a common mycorrhizal fungus. After six weeks, she looked at the roots under a microscope to evaluate the level of colonization.

"It was a little bit of a gamble because we didn't know much about soybean's relationship with mycorrhizae and did not know if differences in colonization among the soybean genotypes would occur. So when we screened the soybean genotypes and found differences, it was a big relief," Pawlows-ki says. "That meant there was a potential to find genetic differences, too."

The process of root colonization starts before fungal spores even germinate in the soil. Roots exude chemicals, triggering spores to germinate and grow toward the root. Once the fungus makes contact, there's a complex cascade of reactions in the plant that prevents the usual defensive attack against invading pathogens. Instead, the plant allows the fungus to enter and set up shop inside the root, where it creates tiny tree-like structures known as arbuscules; these are where the fungus and plant trade sugar and nutrients.

The study suggests there is a genetic component to root colonization rates in soybean. To find it, Pawlowski compared the genomes of the 350 genotypes and honed in on six genomic regions associated with differing levels of colonization in soybean.

"We were able to use all the information we have on the soybean genome and gene expression to find possible causal genes within these six regions," she says.

According to the study, the genes control chemical signals and pathways that call fungus toward roots, allow the plant to recognize mycorrhizal fungus as a "good guy," help build arbuscules, and more. "For almost every step in the colonization process, we were finding related genes within those regions," Pawlowski says.

Knowing which genes control root colonization could lead breeders to develop soybean cultivars with a higher affinity for mycorrhizal fungus, which could mean improved nutrient uptake, drought tolerance, and disease resistance.

"This environmentally friendly approach to improving soybean production may also help reduce the overuse of fertilizers and pesticides

American Soybean Association celebrates its 'First Soy Century'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. - What began on an Indiana soybean farm 100 years ago developed into an organization that quickly grew to be the leading advocate for soybean farmers and foster the building of the U.S. soybean industry - the American Soybean Association (ASA). ASA is celebrating its "First Soy Century" as it recognizes its 100th anniversary throughout 2020.

The roots of ASA were formed when brothers Taylor, Noah and Finis Fouts hosted the first Corn Belt Soybean Field Day at their Soyland Farms operation in Camden, Ind. on Sept. 3, 1920. The event drew nearly 1,000 farmers and their families from six states, who were interested in discovering more about this emerging new commodity called soybeans.

The National Soybean Growers' Association—later renamed the American Soybean Association—was formed that very day. Taylor Fouts was elected as the first president of the association.

In the century since those humble beginnings on an Indiana soybean farm, ASA has continually been on the leading edge - focused on sustaining and improving the prospects and opportunities for profitability for U.S. soybean farmers.

Throughout the years, ASA has been at the forefront - engaged, committed and working diligently on behalf of U.S. soybean farmers on a variety of issues including:

 Helping remove interstate commerce restrictions and protect domestic markets for U.S. soybeans and soy food products.

· Leading the charge to improve soybean grading standards in order to meet the quality demands of domestic processors and international soybean buyers.

· Working with USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service

decades ago to initiate market development projects for U.S. soy and soy products in what was just a few countries starting in the mid-1950s, growing to more than 40 countries in the 1960s, and reaching today's globally strong position of exporting U.S. soy to more than 100 countries. • Funding initial research

MENDOTA - An early lead by Mendota evaporated in the second half as Dixon pulled away for a 41-34 win over the Lady Trojans in a Big Northern Conference match-up on Jan. 21 at the MHS gym.

The Lady Trojans played solid defense in the first quarter and held Dixon to just six points while scoring 10 of their own. The Duchesses dialed up their offense a bit in the second period by scoring 13 points, but Mendota still carried a 21-19 lead to the locker room.

Dixon finally overtook the Lady Trojans in the third quarter and owned a 31-27 advantage with one quarter to play. The Duchesses scored the first six points of the fourth frame to build their biggest lead of the game (36-27). Mendota got as close as four on several occasions, the last being with 57 seconds to go, but Dixon tallied the final three points of the contest.

But only three points were scored over the final 4:20 of the game, all by Oregon, as the Hawks pulled out the victory. Bromenschenkel launched a desperation three-point try from half-court that missed the mark at the final horn.

Bromenschenkel ended with 18 points, 10 points and six steals. She was limited to just two second-half points. Arteaga chipped in with 14 markers.

The Lady Trojans looked like they were headed for their third straight loss before they came alive in the second half to rally past Plano, 57-49, in a nonconference battle

With Plano leading 13-12 after the opening stanza, the Lady Reapers took off in the second quarter keyed by hot shooting from the three-point arc. The Lady Reapers hit five shots from three-point territory and at one point led by 18 points. They settled for a 12-point halftime advantage (35-23).

But Mendota started to peck away at the deficit in the third quarter and cut the margin to three (42-39) heading to the fourth. Then in the final frame, Bromenschenkel took over at the offensive end. A conventional three-point play from Bromenschenkel to start the quarter tied the game at 42-all, and she followed that up with a bucket to put Mendota on top.

The Lady Trojans (17-9) finally began to pull away midway through the quarter when Bokus connected on a three-pointer to give her team a 54-49 edge. Mendota's defense rattled Plano down the stretch and held the Lady Reapers scoreless the final half of the fourth quarter.

"The first half was probably our worst half of basketball this season," said Hansen. "But in the second half we smartened up on defense and played much better offensively. I was proud of our fight and hard work to come back and get the win." Bromenschenkel poured in 19 second-half points and finished with 31 in the game. She also led with eight rebounds and eight steals. Arteaga provided 10 markers, while O'Donnell had seven points, five rebounds and five assists.

at the MHS gym. The Lady Trojans fell behind 14-0 after the opening stanza and didn't score their first basket until the 4:57 mark of the second quarter. Dixon took a 25-4 lead to intermission and held a 33-9 advantage after three.

"We had too many turnovers and gave up too many second chance points," noted Mendota coach Brian Blumhorst. Natalie Bodmer and Naitzy Garcia each scored six points for Mendota.

Mendota battled Oregon for four quarters, but ultimately came up short in the end, 43-31, in a BNC game on Jan. 25 at the MHS gym.

The Lady Trojans trailed 11-9 after one and 19-12 at the half. A 17-point third quarter by Oregon put some separation between the two

"I thought this was probably our best game of the year, despite what the scoreboard says," said Blumhorst. "Going against their four juniors will only make us better in the long

Oregon's starting lineup consisted of four juniors and one freshman, while Mendota started two sophomores and three freshmen.

Emily Stewart dropped in 10 points for Mendota (0-7 BNC), while Katie Jenner and Bodmer supplied seven points apiece.

The Lady Trojans posted a much-needed 28-11 victory over Plano on Jan. 27 at the MHS gym.

Mendota (5-19) held a narrow 10-8 halftime lead, but outscored Plano, 15-3, in the second half to get the runaway win.

"Very balanced scoring and very good defense led to our first win since December," stated Blumhorst. "We just kept getting better each quarter."

Jenner led the scoring column with eight points, followed by Bodmer with six, and Lilly Gehant and Garcia with four apiece.

Hollywood

By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Regina King, who won a supporting actress Oscar for "If Beale Street Could Talk," announced she'll direct the civil-rights drama "One Night in Miami," based on the book and stage play by Kemp Powers. The film, set in 1964, will have Malcolm X, Cassius Clay (pre-Muhammad Ali), Jim Brown and Sam Cooke played by actors. King has come a long way since playing Marla Gibbs' daughter, Brenda Jenkins, for 107 episodes in the 1985-90 TV series "227." She's directed TV shows such as "Southland," "Being Mary Jane,""Scandal,""The Catch," "Animal Kingdom," "This Is Us" and "The Good Doctor." In addition to her Oscar, she's won a Golden Globe and three prime time Emmy Awards for acting.

"Bombshell" is a bomb, and "Cats" is a CATastrophe! Despite having multiple Oscar winners Nicole Kidman, Charlize Theron, Allison Janney and nominees Margot Robbie and John Lithgow, "Bombshell" could only recoup $26.6 million of its $32 million cost. What happened? It could be the seven-episode Showtime miniseries, "The Loudest Voice," which won a Golden Globe for Russell Crowe's portrayal of Roger Ailes, stole their thunder and made people lose interest. Or perhaps women are just not into watching films about the "Me Too" movement. 'Cats" is a different matter. I saw the Broadway production three times and can say there was a fascination watching catlike actors moving through the audience and on stage. But getting up close and personal with them on film, with inadequate CGI, made them seem creepy. Perhaps they should have considered doing it like the "Lion King" remake, which used CGI animals. It's sad they've only recovered $58 million of their $90 million investment.

Also sad is Lana Wood, 73, sister of the late Natalie Wood, whose biggest film role was in the 1971 James Bond epic, "Diamonds Are Forever." She sent out an "SOS" via Facebook: "Please ... I don't have much money monthly, but I really feel to be able to live a peaceful life ... I must leave my home. I must take my dog and go. I would like a small private place, and I can pay rent. I really can't handle this abuse any longer. Help?"Our prayers are with you Lana ... and hope you find the peace you're seeking.

In happier news, some of your favorite TV stars are returning to television. Pauley Perrette ("CSI") has her own mid-season comedy series on CBS in "Broke." Kim Cattrall ("Sex and the City") and "Simon & Simon" star Gerald McRaney preem in May in "Filthy Rich" on Fox. "Nurse Jackie" Edie Falco returns Friday, Feb. 6, on CBS in "Tommy," and "The Nanny" herself, Fran Drescher, becomes "Indebted" with "Wings" star Steven Weber, at NBC. And the horses are at the gate ...

Q: Is it true that there will be a sequel to "The Big Lebowski"? Will Jeff Bridges be in it? -- Anon.

A: There is what is being called a "spinoff" of "The Big Lebowski, but it won't be directed by the Coen Brothers. It will focus on John Turtur-ro's "The Big Lebowski" character Jesus Quintana and also will star Jon Hamm and Bobby Cannavale, with Turturro also directing. "The Jesus Rolls" will be in theaters starting Feb. 28.

Turturro has been getting accolades for another project of his, the HBO series "The Night Of," which was originally supposed to star James Gandolfini ("The Sopranos") until his untimely death. It's based on the BBC series "Criminal Justice." Gandolfini is still listed as an executive producer for the American version for the work he did behind the scenes before he passed away.

Q: When will "Mindhunter" be back on Netflix with new episodes? I just rewatched them all and can't wait for more. -- R.F.

A: "Mindhunter," a fictional drama that is based on true-crime cases, is about an FBI agent who confronts some of America's most notorious serial killers. It's been several months since the second season was uploaded to Netflix, but a third season has been put on hold while executive producer David Fincher completes his other

In the meantime, leads Jonathan Groff and Holt Mc-Callany aren't being tied down to the show, so it's possible that if "Mindhunter" comes back, it might have new stars. The reason, Netflix stated, is that Fincher "felt it wasn't fair to the actors to hold them from seeking other work while he [Fincher] was exploring new work of his own." Hopefully they all can time their other productions so that they can regroup and continue with a third season of "Mindhunter" by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, look for the upcoming movie "Mank" on Netflix directed by Fincher, which is about screenwriter Herman J. Mankiewicz's efforts to bring Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane" to the big screen. It will star Gary Oldman and Lily Collins.

Q: When will the Obi-Wan Kenobi series begin on Disney+? Will Ewan McGregor play him again, or will it be about Obi-Wan's younger or older life? -- X.M.

A: There are plans for a live-action series centered around Obi-Wan Kenobi on Disney+. After the success of "The Mandalorian" on that same streaming service, fans are eager for more "Star Wars" series in addition to motion pictures. All that's known so far is that the scripts for each episode have been completed and that it will begin filming some time in 2020. Best of all, McGregor stars in it. However, no other cast members or a specific premiere date has been set.

In addition to this series and an upcoming second season of "The Mandalorian," Disney+ plans a show centered around the character of Cassian Andor, who was featured in the movie "Rogue One." Diego Luna will reprise the role.

(Movies reviewed in this week's column have just been released on video and DVD.) "The Addams Family"

(PG) -- America's kookiest family goes head to head with a makeover design TV host in this cute, if relatively mild, animated tale. After being chased out of town after town, the Addamses settle in an abandoned, haunted mental institution on a hill in New Jersey to raise a family, safely away from the judgmental eyes of others. But in the valley below, egomaniacal Margaux Needler (Alison Janney) has built a whole idyllic town to film and sell, marred only by a view of the Addams house. The pressure is on to oust Gomez and Morticia, as children Wednesday and Pugsley fight their own adolescent battles.

"Zombieland: Double Tap" (R) -- In 2009, four forces of nature -- Tallahassee, Columbus, Little Rock and Wichita (Woody Harrelson, Jesse Eisenberg, Abigail Breslin and Emma Stone, respectively) -- banded together and formed a makeshift family, a little slice of heaven in a world overrun with zombies. But it's been a long 10 years and they could use a few fresh faces. Back out on the road and once again facing threats from zombies, other tough survivors and weird doppelgangers, the crew is just as funny and dangerous as ever.

"Jay and Silent Bob Reboot" (R) -- The convenience-store-lurking duo who made their iconic debut in "Clerks" return to the screen with another misadventure featuring inside jokes, self-deprecating humor and inside jokes. Did I mention the inside jokes? Jay (Jason Mewes) and Silent Bob (Kevin Smith) were immortalized in comic book form as Bluntman and Chronic, which Hollywood then monetized without shame. Now, famed director "Kevin Smith" is rehashing the buddies for a movie reboot, and the pair have three days to stop it, with a cavalcade of celebrity cameos along the way. If you love Kevin Smith movies, it's more of what you already love. But for everyone else, it's packed with 25 years' worth of references that aren't funny if you don't "get it."

"Countdown" (R) -- The

latest craze in smartphone apps is a countdown to your own death. Just plug in your identifying information and the app will tell you, to the second, when you will die. It seems like harmless fun, in the vein of a Buzzfeed quiz -- everybody's doing it and sharing their results. So Quinn (Elizabeth Lail) downloads the app and is given less than three days until her time is up. She links up with stories of other short-timers and tries to find a way to beat the clock. A few fun jump scares are included, but mostly you'll be wishing for a shorter countdown to the end of the movie.

Locked up in the prison of hope

God is good. And He has a good plan for each of our lives. That's true even when we're struggling and don't understand why or what's going on. In those times, Romans 12:12 tells us to "be joyful in hope, patient in affliction, faithful in prayer" (NIV).

This is wise advice, especially when it feels like we've been waiting and waiting...and waiting for something to happen in our lives. Hope is vital in times like these and it will keep us looking ahead, anticipating and expecting whatever it is we're hoping for.

Over the years I've learned how to lock myself up in a prison of hope, knowing that God has nothing but His best planned for me. He put big dreams in my heart regarding my ministry and my life, and most of them took years to come to pass. Hope is what helped me hold on in those early years when it got hard.

The Effects of Expectation

I remember it was just three weeks into my marriage to Dave, when he asked me one day, "What's wrong with you? You have such a negative attitude!" And I said, "Well, if you don't expect anything good to happen, then you won't be disappointed when it doesn't.'

That was what I believed based on my past experiences. I had a very negative outlook on life, so I spoke negatively about it.

This is the way I used to live...before I became a prisoner of hope. As I grew in my relationship with God, I learned how to trust Him, how to stand on His Word, and how to stand my ground in prayer when circumstances got tough.

Today my outlook on life is completely different from what it was many years ago. Now I enjoy my life and I encourage others to enjoy theirs as well. Jesus died for us to live an abundant, fulfilling life (see John 10:10), and hope is the confident, favorable expectation of this life.

Double for Your Trouble

I realize there are many things that can happen to

And that can make it difficult to grasp the idea of enjoying life. So, think of it this way: What are you hoping for or expecting in life? What are you looking forward to? Focus on that.

My negative outlook was due to my attitude about all the bad things that had happened to me. I was stuck in the pain of my past, so I didn't believe anything good would happen in my future. My experiences from years ago caused me to believe that negative things would always happen. I had no hope.

But God was with me and He kept loving me and dealing with me, promising me what Isaiah 61:7 (NIV) says: "Instead of your shame you will receive a double portion, and instead of disgrace you will rejoice in your inheritance. And so you will inherit a double portion in your land, and everlasting joy will be yours."

That's a promise for you, too—a promise of double for your trouble! Double the blessing, double the joy, double the peace. Doesn't that inspire hope in your heart?

Your Double Blessing Now, this double-blessing promise isn't for the double-minded. When you walk it out in everyday life, there will be times when doubt, fear, unbelief and weariness will come against you. It's in these times that you'll need to fight the good fight of faith.

You will need to guard your mind against negativity about your situation. I encourage you to find out what God says about it and then stand on the promises in His Word.

We must hold on to whatever He promises us and be confident that He is working in our situation no matter how things look, how we feel or what we think. Because hope releases the power of the Holy Spirit in our hearts when we're going through painful or difficult situations.

I want to encourage you to make a decision to cultivate an attitude of hope in your life. Speak positive things about your future and refuse to be negative. You may not always feel hopeful but don't give in to your feelings. Catering to bad feelings feeds and empowers them. But standing your ground and not giving in to negative feelings starves them and causes them to lose their power over you.

Ask the Holy Spirit to lead you. Line your will up with His and get excited about serving God. Then your life will inspire others to become prisoners of hope!
