Next year's school calendar in flux as Amboy waits for decision from state

BY BONNIE MORRIS

AMBOY - Changes in the rules for what constitutes a full school day has had some unintended consequences for Illinois school districts. In presenting Amboy's proposed 2019-2020 school calendar, Superintendent Joshua Nichols said next year's calendar may have to be amended later.

"We do not yet have guidance for next year from ISBE (Illinois State Board of Education)," Nichols explained at the March 21 District 272 Board of Education meeting. "Even so, we have to have a calendar so we can begin planning and scheduling.

Nichols explained later that currently, there is no time limit for a full school day. Prior to this year, however, a full school day was "five clock hours" in which students had to be in session receiving instruction. If a day was longer than five hours, schools could "bank" the extra minutes. The banked minutes allowed schools to have an 11:30 a.m. dismissal for school improvement once a month and still have it count as a full school day.

'We do not know yet if they will let us bank minutes or not," Nichols said. "The removal of the five clock hours created interesting opportunities for students particularly at the high school level and the use of electronic instruction days for snow days."

Once the law regulating the number of hours in a school day is finalized by the state legislature, Nichols said he can bring the information back to the calendar committee for discussion.

"Start dates and end dates probably will not change - we have to get those established," he said prior to the board approving the calendar.

As the 2019-2020 school calendar stands now, students will start school on Thursday, Aug. 15 and the year will end on May 20, 2020. Nichols emphasized that the calendar is still subject to change depending on what Springfield decides.

Ketchum, Mercer honored by Lee County Board

BY MONETTA YOUNG Reporter LEE COUNTY - The

Lee County Board presented the families of former board members Ike Mercer and Rick Ketchum with plaques commemorating their time serving on the Lee County Board. Mercer and Ketchum both passed away recently. On the left side of the plaques were letters from the county board expressing their gratitude to the families for the years of commitment Ketchum and Mercer provided to the county.

Ketchum's letter said that "Rick's desire to lead as Chairman of the Board also made a lasting impression and impact on other members of the Lee County Board."

The letter continued, "Rick's vision of betterment for our County and his community showed through his passion to actively serve his constituents in a fair, unbiased, logical manner. No matter what the topic, he applied an open mind to decision making and was focused on finding solutions that would be the most justifiable for all."

Balayti, who recently moved back to her hometown of Dixon from the Chicago area, has been painting the windows at the Dixon Dairy Delite as well. Balayti is no stranger to the Dairy Delite in Amboy - she worked at the Dairy Delite as her first job when she was 15. For this project, Balayti drew a sketch on the pink paper taped to the window. The sketch was done in reverse, so that it be facing the customers coming up to the window. Balayti was doing the outline first on Monday morning, and then will focus on the colors in the different menu items. She said the whole process would be done on Monday. Molly Meusel said the design of the windows on the Dixon store Balayti came up with. For the Amboy design, the two collaborated on how the windows would look. By doing the paint on the inside, Meusel said it will help protect the paint and design from the weather.

amendments to the Lee County Employee Handbook.

The board tabled the nonunion employee raise until next month. They did approve the Teamsters Local No. 722 Union Contract for the next three years, with $1,125 raise each of the first two years and no raise on the third year.

The board approved the appointments of Terry Zinke as weed control superintendent, Randall Ebert and Lori Hillison as trustees of the Ashton Fire Protection District and Bruce Forster to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Amboy Education Foundation to host annual Wine and Cheese Gala teams participating. This is served by the Amboy School AMBOY— The Amboy Education Foundation enjoyed another successful year of fundraising. They have also been grateful recipients of contributions from the United Way of Lee County, generous alumni and memorials on behalf of individuals that held the students of Amboy and their schools near and dear to their hearts.

As a result, they were able to allocate $30,000 to the Amboy School District for the 2019-2020 school year. This is a $2,000 increase over last year. This level of support to the schools is only possible through the generosity of our sponsors and all that participate in our events. The next fundraiser is the Wine (beer) and Cheese Gala to be held at the Amboy Community Building on Saturday, April 6. This event has certainly evolved over the years. This year they are featuring beer made at two local breweries, Hairy Cow in Byron and Prairie Street in Rockford. Live Wire Hops, a local producer, supplies hops RA is provided to eligible households if a) it will ensure reconnection and b) if the household has made a good faith effort to maintain energy services and/or can pay a portion of the balance due to the energy vendor, when applicable.

"We understand we're coming out of an extremely cold winter and Illinois residents' heating bills are probably higher than they anticipated," said Erin Guthrie, Acting DCEO Director. "This program was created to help our most vulnerable residents remain healthy, safe and warm during the winter months."

A single-person household can qualify with a monthly gross income of up to $1,518; a two-person household up to $2,058; a family of three can earn up to $2,598; and a family of four can earn up to $3,138. Benefits are paid directly to

Customers must bring all required documentation when applying for assistance, including:

- · Proof of gross income from all household members for the previous 30-day income period, beginning with the date of the application.
 - A copy of their current heat and electric bills issued within the last 30 days (if they pay for their energy directly).

- A copy of their rental agreement (if they are renting) showing that utilities are included, the monthly rental amount and landlord contact information

LIHEAP is a state and federally funded energy assistance program for low-income families in which heating bill payments are made on behalf of households. LIHEAP applications are processed through a network of 35 local administering agencies around the state.

illian Cantor's historical novel, "The Lost Letter," is a heartfelt story of loss and renewal, but it is marred by rather glaring historical inaccuracies. The novel consists of a double narrative, alternating chapters of Austria 1938 and Los Angeles 1989. In Austria, young Kristoff becomes apprentice to a famous Jewish stamp engraver. He is warmly welcomed into the Faber family, and instantly falls for Elena, the beautiful, older Faber girl. The family lives in the Alps, far from the momentous events that will be of such profound consequence to them.

Fifty years later in Los Angeles, Katie Nelson, on the brink of divorce, comes upon an unopened letter with a curious upside down stamp in her father's massive stamp collection. Her father, who suffers from Alzheimer's disease, lives in an assisted care facility, and so Katie has his stamp collection appraised. Benjamin Grossman, the appraiser, takes an immediate interest in the 1939 Austrian stamp, which is of an Edelweiss, a magical Alpine flower symbolizing purity and devotion, against the famous Viennese St. Stephen Cathedral. Did the stamp convey a secret message and to whom? The mystery propels Katie and Benjamin to hunt for the origin of the stamp and the engraver who made it.

The novel's pivotal historical event is the German annexation of Austria in March 1938. Cantor mistakenly depicts the annexation as a brutal German invasion. But in fact, the Austrians welcomed the annexation, not too surprising, considering that Austria was the German-speaking heart of the defunct Austro-Hungarian Empire. More than 800,000

Pray and fast for the legal protection of unborn

BY FATHER TIMOTHY DRAPER

ast Wednesday (March 13), six of my parishioners joined me down in Springfield at our Illinois State Capitol. The seven of us were among over five hundred men, women, and children there to speak with our Illinois House Representatives and Illinois Senators about the extreme pro-abortion legislation that was introduced into our Illinois State Legislature the week of Feb. 11th. House Bill 2495 introduced by Kelly Cassidy (D) and Senate Bill 1942 introduced by Melinda Bush (D) seek to establish the "Reproductive Health Act."

This act would define abortion as a "fundamental right" in Illinois and say that a fetus does not have any "independent rights under the laws of this state." This act would repeal the state's ban on partial-birth abortion and remove all limitations on abortion, such that an abortion could be performed at any time during the nine months of pregnancy for any reason whatsoever. This act would also repeal the Abortion Performance Refusal Act, thus attacking the conscience rights of doctors and hospitals who refuse to participate in an abortion. Moreover, this act would mandate insurance coverage of abortion and expand public funding for it by requiring all insurance plans subject to state regulation to cover abortion "without deductible, co-insurance, co-payment or any other cost sharing requirement."

House Bill 2467 introduced by Chris Welch (D) and Senate Bill 1594 introduced by Elgie Sims (D) seek to repeal the Parental Notice of Abortion Act. This law currently requires a parent or legal guardian to be notified when a minor seeks an abortion (and includes a judicial waiver for those children who have been physically or sexually abused).

This law was passed in 1995 and has been enforced since 2013, after the Illinois Supreme Court unanimously found the law to be constitutional. Since this law has been enforced, there has been a 57 percent decline in abortions performed on minors in Illinois, according to the stats of the Illinois Department of Public Health. By repealing this law, Illinois would become the only state in the Midwest which would not require parental notification of their minor daughter seeking an abortion. Under current Illinois law, a minor between the ages of 14 and 17 needs parental consent for using an indoor tanning bed and for getting a tattoo or body piercing. Such minors cannot vote, buy cigarettes or lottery tickets, or serve in the military. Yet, repealing this common sense law would allow these same minors to make the life-changing decision to have an abortion at any time, for any reason, without even their parent's knowledge.

The logic of the Catholic Church's pro-life stance is rather straightforward. It is rooted in reason and science as well as revelation and faith. Human beings have human rights. These rights are rooted in who we are, not in who happens to hold political power. They ultimately come from God, not from politicians. The first and most fundamental of our God-given rights is the right to life, as our own Declaration of Independence testifies.

It is a scientific fact that human life begins at conception. Since the unborn child is a human being, it too has human rights, including the right to life. And as our human rights deserve the protection of law, so the unborn child's right to life deserves legal protection. Such legal protection is not an "imposition" of religious beliefs, but rather a simple recognition of human Hence, I invite all Christians and all people of goodwill reading this newspaper to reach out to their IL House Representatives and Senators and urge them to oppose these extreme pieces of pro-abortion legislation. To do so by email, you can go to: www. ilcatholic.org.

This Lent, let us all pray and fast for the legal protection of the unborn and for our legislators that they may wisely enact laws that protect life from conception until natural death. "I came that they might have life and have it to the fullest" (Jn 10:10).

Parents seeking status for themselves

Then I read that some rich parents were indicted last week for allegedly paying bribes to get their kids into some hoity-toity schools, I couldn't help but just scratch my head.

It would appear these parents weren't seeking educations for their children, but status for Pursuing an education is fulfilling. But seeking a higher social status is just plain boring. You know the types of folks I'm talking about. They have to be chosen by the "right" sorority or fraternity, later they just have to belong to the "right" country club and then live in the "right" neighborhood and later have their kids admitted to the "right" colleges.

Such behavior is alien to me. I grew up in Many of my high school classmates sought to work in factories, farm or just be good parents. No degrees were required.

Kids who went on to a university were about as common in some neighborhoods as a purebred dog.

If you told someone you would attend someplace like Wellesley, Vassar or Grinnell, you'd inevitably be asked, "Now, are those four-year schools?"

Those youngsters who went off to college were special - often the first in their family.

The idea of going to the "right" college was alien. Just going to college made you extraordinary.

A number of years ago, Rock Island attorney

Thomas Kilbride was running for the Illinois Supreme Court against a politician with a Harvard law degree.

I asked Kilbride if he was intimidated and his response has stuck with me: "I've never had someone come to my office with a legal problem and ask where I went to law school."

The voters apparently agreed. Justice Kilbride has served a distinguished 18 years on the Illinois Supreme Court.

About a decade ago, the University of Illinois was enmeshed in a scandal in which it was admitting less qualified students with political connections. Illinois politics being what it is, no one should have been surprised.

After all, children of alumni and donors as well as athletes have long been given advantages in the admissions process at elite universities across the country. We shouldn't be surprised that less qualified but politically connected students got a break too.

Now we are learning that the wealthy parents are bribing their kids' way into elitist universities.

Those who participate in a system that gives a leg up to the children of the privileged but fails to give a hand up to those who have overcome obstacles deserve the antipathy of those passed over.

Why Illinoisans can't trust Pritzker's tax promises five-letter word should sink Gov. J.B. Pritzker's new tax plan: trust.

Illinoisans have a lower level of trust in their state government than residents of any other state, according to Gallup polling. This has been the case for years, with good reason. So why should they trust J.B. Pritzker's promise to lower their taxes in exchange for eliminating the most important taxpayer protection in the state?

Neither taxpayers nor lawmakers should believe Pritzker when he makes claims of tax cuts - specifically that 97 percent of Illinoisans would see one – as part of his effort to scrap Illinois' constitutionally protected flat income tax. Here are four reasons why.

1) Pritzker's plan does not raise what he says it will. Pritzker claims his tax plan will raise $3.4 billion. But even under a "static" revenue estimate that doesn't take into account the economic effects of a tax hike, his proposal would raise about $1 billion less than his office claims. A "dynamic" estimate that models those effects shows Pritzker comes up nearly $2 billion short. Despite Freedom of Information Act requests to multiple departments, his administration has yet to detail its methodology for producing this estimate.

Illinoisans deserve complete transparency on a tax hike this large. They're not getting it. And that doesn't build trust.

2) Pritzker's plan does not raise what he wants to spend. Even if Pritzker's estimate were accurate, it's not nearly enough to cover the $14 billion to $19 billion in new spending he's promised. Under Pritzker's proposed tax structure, the typical Illinois family with two children making around $79,000 a year would see a tax hike of up to $3,500 to fund his spending promises. That's not relief.

One of the loudest cheerleaders for a progressive income tax, union-backed Center for Tax and Budget Accountability Executive Director Ralph Martire, has publicly acknowledged that Pritzker's "fair tax" is not enough to pay for the governor's promises.

Who makes up the difference when those dollars fall short? Get out your wallet.

3) State lawmakers just broke the same promise Pritzker is making.

One reason Pritzker's claim of tax cuts for 97 percent of Illinoisans is so frustrating is that the cuts are a pittance compared with what families had to fork over in 2017, when lawmakers broke their last tax cut promise.

The seeds were sown in ised a temporary income tax hike, moving the rate up to 5 percent from 3 percent. They promised that tax hike would partially sunset in 2014 to 3.75 percent, and sunset again in 2025 to 3.25 percent.

"We have some temporary tax increases that are designed to pay our bills, get Illinois back on sound fiscal footing and make sure that our state has a strong economy," Gov. Pat Quinn said in 2011. Senate President John Cullerton said lawmakers would "establish caps on how much we can appropriate ... and it is going to work."

So in 2017, lawmakers broke the sunset promise. They passed the largest permanent income tax increase in Illinois history, costing the typical family around $800 a year. Now Pritzker is promising that same family around $200 back.

That's not a tax cut. It's a partial rebate on a tax hike, subject to change.

4) The elephant still in the room About 90 cents of every dollar of the "temporary"

from his new tax plan will go to pay for pensions.

Without pension reform, lawmakers will go back to the well for yet another tax hike should Pritzker get his Standard & Poor's Global Ratings recently confirmed that Illinois cannot avoid a junk credit rating without a "practical reduction in liabilities," which can only be achieved through pension reform. Amendments currently filed in both chambers of the General Assembly - SJRCA9 and HJRCA21-would allow reasonable pension changes that protect every dime of current checks cut to retirees, and benefits earned to date by current employees. Specifically, lawmakers would be allowed to make changes to compounding 3 percent benefit increases for life, as well as retirement ages.

If Pritzker is serious about adequately funding social services while putting the state on sound fiscal footing, he would back pension

He's pursuing political promises instead. And when they're inevitably broken, Illinoisans will pay.

 Ag teacher Deanna Drew and four of her students reported on the status of renovations in the welding lab. The lab now has eight new welding booths for students to use, a huge improvement according to the students who said it was "really terrible" welding in the old booths.

Drew said funding for the project came from various sources including a grant that helped pay for much of the ventilation along with fundraisers and other donations. Following the presentation, board members and others attending the meeting were invited to take a tour of the ag room and see the new welding booths first hand.

Pritzker-tied group launches first TV ad promoting 'fair tax'

BY JERRY NOWICKI

Capitol News Illinois

Jnowicki@capitolnewsillinois.com

SPRINGFIELD - A dark money group that counts Democratic Gov. J.B. Pritzker among its donors has launched its first television advertisement supporting the governor's signature graduated income tax proposal. Think Big Illinois, whose other donors have not yet been made public, launched an ad called "hole," framing Pritzker's tax plan as a solution to Illinois' $3.2 billion budget deficit. It will run in media markets across the state, the group announced Thursday. "There's a $3.2 billion hole in Springfield. And after years of ignoring it, we can't keep doing more of the same," a narrator in the ad says over informational graphics and video of Pritzker engaging with constituents. Minutes after Think Big announced the 30-second spot in a press release Thursday, Ideas Illinois, a dark money group on the opposite side of the tax fight, announced a longer digital-only ad in a press release. "Pritzker and Madigan want to change the constitution to allow a permanent jobs tax on middle class families. 'Trust us,' they say: we'll use your money to fund our schools, fix our roads, shore up pensions and cut property taxes. Do you trust them?" a narrator asks. Passage of a constitutional amendment to allow for Pritzker's graduated tax plan would require approval from 60 percent of those voting on the question or half of those voting in the November 2020 presidential election, should the Legislature muster the three-fifths majorities in each chamber to put a question on the ballot. If the constitutional amendment is successful, the Legislature would have the authority to pass a graduated structure, and the one proposed by Pritzker lowers the tax rate modestly for all single- or jointly-filing earners with an income of $250,000 or less in a year.

The current tax rate is a flat 4.95 percent on every Illinoisan. Under Pritzker's plan, only earners whose income exceeds $1 million would be taxed at a flat rate — 7.95 percent — on every penny of income.

For all other earners, filing jointly or alone, different rates ranging from 4.75 percent to 7.85 percent would apply to different margins of income. The lowest bracket's rate is 4.75 percent and it applies to an earner's income from $0 to $10,000. Once an earner's income reaches the second bracket, the 4.75 rate would still apply to the first $10,000, and a 4.9 percent rate would apply from income between $10,001 and $100,000. This structure continues through bracket three (4.95 percent on income margins between $100,001 and $250,000), bracket four (7.75 percent for income margins between $250,001 and $500,000) and bracket five (7.85 percent for income between $500,001 and $1 million). Per this structure, fewer than 20,000 Illinois households claiming more than $1 million in taxable income would provide $2.7 billion of an estimated $3.4 billion in added revenue, according to the governor's office. Ideas Illinois portrays the ad as a "jobs tax" and a "blank check" to Springfield lawmakers that have "broken promises" in the past. Think Big calls it a "fair tax," the preferred language of the governor.

The ads have been launched a full 20 months ahead of the November 2020 election, which is the earliest the question could be put on the ballot.

Both Ideas Illinois and Think Big Illinois are 501(c)4 organizations, which means their donor lists do not need to be disclosed publicly, although Think Big has said they will release their donors eventually.

Illinois Policy, the 501(C)4 advertising wing of the Illinois Policy Institute, has been running digital ads against the tax plan as well.

The things they teach us

BY PASTOR JACK M. BRIGGS

Then I met Elmer, he was already 96 years old and as a young man herded cattle out in Montana. He related the story of the day one of his bulls escaped and proceeded to the middle of a shallow pond where it stood, stubbornly refusing to return to shore where it could be corralled. As the men stood around, scratching their heads, trying to figure out what to do, Elmer's dog Lucy sized up the situation, jumped into the pond, paddled out to the bull, and proceeded to bite on its tail. The startled bull scampered out of the water, with Lucy hanging on for dear life. Mission accomplished.

Fast forward seventy years or so. Early one Sunday morning I received a call asking whether I could spend some time with a hospice patient whose daughters were all gathered at her bedside. I had some time, since Sunday worship wasn't until 9 a.m. As I arrived at the facility around 7:30 a.m., one of the daughters asked, "Where is Murphy?" I replied that he was out in the car. For those of you who don't know, Murphy is my canine companion, adopted from a local shelter a couple years ago, is a certified therapy dog.

"Well, bring him in," she requested.

The Murphmeister trotted in, assessed the situation, looked at me and the girls, and sensed immediately what was needed. He marched to the bedside, gently hopped up, circled twice, and cuddled with their mom, who by now was unresponsive. Not a dry eye in the room as the girls witnessed the tender moment, knowing what a critter lover their mom had been. She passed from this life later

Before you think that this is simply "Dog Tales from PJ," I suggest that there is an element to our Christian life that Lucy and Murphy teach us by their tail-wagging examples.

In fact, a Google search of "things dogs teach us" will yield 9,440,000 results including books, blogs, Youtube videos, and of course, Facebook pages. And you can probably predict some of the most common lessons mentioned: the value of loyalty, the notion of unconditional love, etc. But I suggest that what both Lucy and Murphy illustrate is the importance of taking action. It seems that we upright, two-legged critters spend a whole lot of time thinking and pondering and weighing all possible angles rather than... acting. In the process of delay and deliberation, the moment passes and we miss the opportunity. It is like the local chapter of Procrastinators Anonymous that can't seem to get around to scheduling their first meeting.

Sin generally falls into a couple of categories: sins of commission (doing what you should not) and sins of omission (not doing what you should). In other words, failing to act is just as much of a sin as acting in the wrong. James 4:17 makes it clear: "Anyone, then, who knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, commits sin." As we go through daily life, we will likely encounter people and circumstances that call for action. Most often, they will be in the form of caring for the most vulnerable among us, or those who are marginalized, described as "the hungry and thirsty, the stranger, the naked, the sick, and the imprisoned..." (Matthew 25:34-36). We may hesitate, worrying that our "friends" might chastise us for helping "those people" over there. But let us be careful to remember who "those people" represent. In the words of our Lord, "whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me." (Matthew 25:40), and conversely, "whatever you did not do for one of the least of these, you did not do for me.' (Matthew 25:45). Just a friendly reminder.

The road to "heck," they say, is paved with good intentions. So, when you see the opportunity to make a difference, even if for one person in a little way on any given day, just do it. There is no need to think long or hard, for in your heart you know it is the right thing to do.

Thanks be to God, day by day.

Game two ended with a 5-4 Milledgeville

Maverick Lindenmeyer singled twice for the Clippers, while Boehle also had two singles and an RBI.

Amboy dropped both games of a double-header with Westmont on March 23 at City Park.

In game one, Westmont scored six runs in the first inning en route to a 12-1 victory.

Kemp, McLaughlin and Hayden Montavon each had one hit for the Clippers.

Montavon started on the hill and struggled in the first inning before being replaced by Mason McCoy, who worked 4 1/3 innings

The Clippers were on the short end of a 12-4 scored in the second game of the Amboy (1-3, 1-1) collected eight hits, including a pair of doubles and a RBI by Kemp and two singles and a run batted in by Zimmerly.

Lady Clippers softball season off to solid start

AMBOY - It was a solid start to the softball season for the Amboy Lady Clippers as they posted a pair of impressive wins on AHS's home turf.

Amboy opened the campaign with a 10-2 triumph over conference foe Milledgeville on March 21.

The Lady Clippers took a quick 3-0 lead after the first inning and doubled the count to 6-0 in the third. Amboy scored a pair of runs each in the fifth and sixth frames, while Milledgeville only dented the scoreboard in the sixth with its only two tallies.

Three Amboy players collected two hits apiece – Savannah Ikens (two singles, two RBI), Kyleigh Donna (single, double, one RBI) and Noelle Jones (single, double, one RBI).

Bailee Highbarger got the start in the circle for the Lady Clippers and mowed down Lady Missile batters to the tune of 18 strikeouts. Highbarger gave up six hits and only walked one.

Amboy swatted the ball all over the vard and got another outstanding pitching performance from Highbarger as it cruised to a 14-0 win over Westmont in a game halted by the 10-run rule on March 23.

Highbarger was baffling in the circle as she fired a no-hitter and struck out 10 in the process. She did not issue a walk.

The Lady Clippers jumped out to a 7-0 advantage after the opening inning and added five more runs in the second to take a commanding 12-0 lead. They tacked on two more runs in the fourth.

Alison O'Rourke had a perfect day at the plate, pounding out four singles in as many at-bats. She drove in two runs. Dani Hochstatter was also perfect at the dish with two triples, a single and three RBI.

Other offensive standouts were Jones with a single, triple and two RBI, Shannon Lytle with a single, double and three runs batted in, and Donna with a single, double and two RBI.

First plans to legalize sports betting in Illinois released

BY GRANT MORGAN

Capitol News Illinois gmorgan@capitolnews il lino is.

SPRINGFIELD – An Illinois lawmaker leading the charge to bring sports betting to the state has laid out the first concrete details on how that might happen.

Four amendments were filed to Riverside Democratic Rep. Michael Zalewski's House Bill 3308 Thursday, each of them providing a different avenue for legalizing sports betting in the state. Gov. J.B. Pritzker supports and has already budgeted to bring in more than $200 million of new state revenue next fiscal year from licensed sports gambling.

But that revenue hinges on the ability of the Legislature to pass a sports betting bill by May, a task Zalewski thinks will be difficult.

"Any gaming bill is difficult to get through, and we're probably going to need the governor's help to pass something like this," Zalewski said. "But I'm also confident my colleagues are interested in this topic and want to see the state benefit

If successful, Illinois would become the eighth state to legalize sports betting since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against its prohibition in a case last May. The practice was already legal in Nevada.

New Jersey Model While no two systems are the same, Zalewski said the "classical" New Jersey model is the most likely to get broad support from Illinois stakeholders. That model, according to one of the amendments filed Thursday, would allow for both brick-andmortar betting at the state's casinos and racetracks and online betting on digital platforms, with a tax rate of 15 percent for the former and 20 percent for the latter. Licenses in the New Jersey-based plan would cost $10 million with a $250,000 renewal every five years, while each licensee would be allowed two contracts with partners to provide mobile and online betting -known as skins - at $1 million per skin with a $500,000 renewal every five years.

'I think the New Jersey model is what most people expected [Illinois'] to look like," Zalewski said, adding that he does not have a preference. "It's kinder to existing bricks-and-mortar and racetrack casinos, gives them the first slice at implementing it, and has a reasonable tax rate.

The second amendment to HB 3308 contains details for the "Mississippi Model," which allows for brick-and-mortar betting at the state's racetracks and casinos, but limits online betting to 10 operators that must be partnered with brickand-mortar properties.

The $10 million license fee is the same as in the New Jersey-based model, but must be renewed at higher costs along with other fees totaling $850,100 every four years. Both plans would be overseen by the Illinois Gaming Board.

Professional Sports Leagues

The third option, called the "Professional Sports Leagues" plan, connects sports betting in the state to the leagues on which people bet by limiting the gaming facilities to sports venues, giving a .25 percent royalty on wagers to the leagues, and providing for data sharing between sports betting operators and the leagues for accuracy and to watch for illicit activity.

Details for the administration of this plan are less clear than the

Illinois Lottery Plan

The fourth plan, meanwhile, gives the Illinois Lottery jurisdiction over all the state's sports betting operations by relying on just one state-issued license. The tax rate on this plan would be 50 percent.

Moving Forward

Because the Legislature is still in the earliest stages of developing a plan, Zalewski said, those laid out in HB 3308 are nothing more than conversation starters until more groups have a chance to testify in committee.

Ivan Fernandez, executive director of the Illinois Gaming Machine Operators Association, said the group is happy conversation has begun with the various plans, although none of them are "etched in stone." "And we're going to be active participants in that conversation, because Illinois has a unique gaming environment that can make sports betting a powerful winner for the state, small businesses and the players that are interested," he said. Fernandez added he is unsure of details on the sports league model, but the three other options "all have merit and could bring a benefit" to Pritzker spokesperson Jordan Abudayyeh did not specify which of the early plans is most desirable, but said the governor looks forward to "bringing sports betting off the illicit market and into a legal, regulated space." "Because this is a new market, Illinois has the opportunity to move expeditiously and be the first state in the Midwest to legalize sports betting," she said.

The Illinois Gaming Board could not be reached in time for Zalewski said he expects the largest opposition to the bill to come from anti-gaming groups, while complications could also arise as casinos and racetracks negotiate licensing, taxes, royalties and administrative structure.

'But overall, the response has been pretty good so far," he said.

HB 3308 is assigned to the House Revenue and Finance Committee, which Zalewski chairs. As the bill moves through the legislative process, Illinois joins a wave of 29 other states with active bills to legalize sports betting, and two other states that have passed but not implemented it yet.

Springtime is wildlife breeding season, and Illinoisans are encouraged to leave young wildlife alone

SPRINGFIELD-Spring is a busy breeding season for wildlife, and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) reminds Illinois citizens not to bother or handle baby birds and other young wild animals.

Wildlife biologists are often contacted during the breeding season by well-meaning people who believe incorrectly that they may be protecting young wildlife by taking possession of baby birds, rabbits, fawn deer, and other animals that may appear to have been abandoned or orphaned. In most cases, these animals and birds are still being cared for by their parents, which likely stay away from dens and nests if people are provides legal protection for wildlife. It is against the law to keep wild animals as pets, or to raise wild animals believed to have been abandoned. Additionally, responses by agencies like the IDNR to incidents involving wildlife can be costly to taxpayers.

Anyone with questions about care for possibly abandoned wildlife can contact a licensed wildlife rehabilitator. To learn more about potential wildlife conflicts, and keeping people, pets and wildlife safe, visit the new Wildlife Illinois website at https://www.wildlifeillinois. All wild birds, except the

Some additional reminders about wildlife in Illinois:

• Birds often leave the nest before they can fly. These birds, known as fledglings, will live on the ground for a few days while they grow flight feathers; you may hear them making noises calling for their parents to feed them; it doesn't mean they are in trouble. Keep children and pets away.

 Do not attempt to rescue fawns. Fawn deer often stay still to conceal themselves until they are old enough to keep up with their mother; the female deer may not stay near the fawns for fear of alerting predators to their presence. People should leave fawns alone and the mother will

• It is illegal in Illinois to feed wild deer. When deer congregate, it can facilitate the spread of disease and cause other unintended consequences.

 Wild birds and animals can become habituated to people when they are provided food, so don't leave pet food outside at night, clean up under bird feeders, secure the lids on garbage cans to keep raccoons and other wildlife out, and don't feed Canada geese and coyotes in urban/ suburban areas. Nuisance animals can become dangerous to people.

Handling wild animals can result in the handler being bitten. According to the Centers for Disease Control, wild animals that bite a person must be euthanized immediately to be tested for rabies.

The IDNR urges everyone to enjoy wildlife by observing, but not interfering, and by leaving wildlife in the

SPRINGFIELD

Multi-platinum, record-breaking band, Shinedown, will headline the Illinois Lottery Grandstand on Saturday, Aug. 17 at the Illinois State Fair.

Record-breaking doesn't even begin to describe Shinedown. In their career they have already sold more than 10 million albums worldwide, earned 11 platinum and gold singles, four platinum and gold albums, and garnered over 1.5 billion total streams so far. This doesn't stop with their albums; each of the band's released singles have reached the Top 5 on Billboard's Mainstream Rock Songs Chart.

After performing "GET UP" on Live with Kelly & Ryan and having the song featured as part of TODAY's look back at 2018 - the band broke yet another record. Shinedown obtained the title of most Rock Airplay Top 10s ever with their 13th number one on Billboard's Mainstream Rock Songs Chart. This 13th number one ties them with Van Halen for the second most in the history of the chart.

Their latest album "Attention Attention" already has momentum with singles "Get Up" and "Devil" and doesn't show any signs of slowing down.

Bracket offered to narrow down Lincoln's greatest words

SPRINGFIELD – As March Madness heats up, a battle to determine Abraham Lincoln's greatest words is getting underway, too. The public can vote on 32 of his most famous quotes, eliminating them one at a time until a champion emerges.

Stand-outs in the "War of Words" tournament, organized by the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum, include "A house divided against itself cannot stand" from an 1858 campaign speech, "government of the people, by the people, for the people" from the Gettysburg Address, and "with malice toward none, with charity for all" from his Second Inaugural Address.

The brackets include some less-exalted quotes that might be hoping for a Cinderella story.

"If we never try, we shall never succeed" demonstrates Lincoln's firm belief in striving even against long odds. "Whenever I hear anyone arguing for slavery, I feel a strong impulse to see it tried on him personally" mixes his biting wit with his disdain for slavery.

The competition began March 21. Anyone can cast votes on the presidential library's Facebook page, www.facebook.com/Lincoln.Museum, or at http:// bit.ly/LincolnQuotes.

"Obviously, we're having some fun with this, and we hope the people who take part have fun, too. But we also think it's a great way to encourage people to study Lincoln's words, to think about what they mean and decide which ones resonate the most in modern America," said Alan Lowe, executive director of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum.

The final round of voting begins April 3. The winner will be announced April 5.

The Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum uses a combination of rigorous scholarship and high-tech showmanship to immerse visitors in the life and times of Abraham Lincoln. Visitors can see ghosts come to life on stage, watch TV coverage of the 1860 presidential election, roam through the Lincoln White House, experience booming cannons in a Civil War battle and come face to face with priceless original Lincoln artifacts.

The library holds an unparalleled collection of Lincoln books, documents, photographs, artifacts and art, as well as some 12 million items pertaining to all aspects of Illinois history.

CGH Health Foundation honors more than 50 Tree of Life donors, youth groups STERLING – More than 50 Tree of Life donors were recognized during the March 14 CGH Health Foundation Annual Appeal reception at CGH Medical Center. Youth groups from throughout the Sauk Valley were also recognized for stepping up as the new philanthropists of tomorrow.

Foundation Chair Amy Downs expressed gratitude to the more than 100 contributors and friends present.

"What a legacy we are continuing to build because of all of you," she said. "Our Tree of Life Grove represents thousands of lives impacted. Your continued support is celebrated year in and year out. We are honored to be your chosen charity, grateful for the passion you show toward the wonderful projects you make happen."

Gift levels highlighted during the ceremony included 1 Stone, ($25,000 or more); 6 Pine Cones ($10,000 to $24,999) and 45 Leaves ($1,000 to $9,999). Individuals, businesses and groups were honored.

CGH Health Foundation Campaign

General Chair Scott Wolber announced over $361,000 had been raised toward the $380,000 goal, with more gifts expected. He thanked the many volunteers who were vital to the success of the annual fund drive. Special mention was made of the late Pam Topper, who served as Business Division Chair during the campaign, until her unexpected death last August.

"It was an honor to serve with Pam," said Mr. Wolber. "She was such an ardent supporter of one of our newer projects – to raise awareness about women and heart disease. She shared her own story of dealing with heart disease during the campaign. We mourn her passing and extend our heartfelt thanks to her family for her efforts in behalf of the Foundation.'

A combined total of $10,666 was raised for the Foundation by the following youth groups: Amboy High School basketball and volleyball teams, Erie-Prophetstown volleyball and football teams, and St. Andrew's School. Foundation Executive Director Joan Hermes praised the students for working so diligently to benefit their communities by focusing on the needs of others.

During the last 31 years, over $10 million has been donated and invested right back into the community. Under-served children and adults have received free to low cost healthcare services.

Wellness education centering on heart disease, stroke, cancer, diabetes and obesity has been a major focus. Scholarships have been awarded to several hundred college-bound students and capital items have been funded.

Tree of Life honorees included: Stone: Angelo's Pizzerias; Pine Cone: Erie-Prophetstown Volleyball Team, Geraldine Leftwich Memorial, Bruce and Mary Jane Munsell, Don and Maxine Olson, Prophetstown Lions Club, and Jim and Maggie Wike.
