Otto Dick, Ogle County Historian Comes to RRC May 8

Mr. Otto Dick, Ogle County Historian brings his wealth of knowledge to Rock River Center on Wed., May 8, 2019 at 10:30 a.m.

He is aware of the many things have happened in Oregon and Ogle County since John Phelps founded Oregon in 1836. Otto plans to share with us his favorite photos that he has collected over the years.

Otto and his family moved to Oregon from Frankfort, Indiana. His parents were both educators. He attended seventh and eighth grades at Nash Grade School and Oregon High School.

After graduation, he worked in construction and started attending Northern Illinois University and then was drafted into the Army. The Army was a good experience where he was a Morse Code Radio Operator. After finishing college, Otto married Marilyn who received her degree in nursing at Northern Illinois University. During this time, he tuned pianos at the piano factory in Oregon.

His recent activities in Oregon include serving as President of the Riverside Cemetery, Past President of the Historical Society and working to establish a museum at the Oregon Depot. Writing 369 history articles for the Republican Reporter is definitely a challenge for Otto. He does this with the help of his partner, Marilyn.

A hoppin' good time

BY DOUG OLESON Contributing Writer

HAN and Brooklyn Buhler had a plan.

"We were just going to run and grab," 11year old Ethan said.

"I was going to start at the end and just get whatever I could," his 9-year old sister added, noting they "scoped out" the place before the madhouse began.

They were just two of approximately 1,000 children who participated in the 11th annual Great Easter Egg Hunt last Saturday morning at Cooper Park, which was sponsored by 102.3 The Coyote radio station and various merchants.

According to morning show host Chuck O'Brien, over 5,000 brightly colored plastic eggs – which were assembled by the Hub City Senior Center - and an equal number of Peeps were scattered throughout the park. As in other years, the park was roped off into different sections for the different age groups.

"We couldn't have done this without all our sponsors," he said. "They really stepped up for this. It kind of warms your heart."

"This is one of the biggest turnouts that we've had," the station's program director and operations manager Kris Wexell added.

"It's a beautiful day, and it's Easter," Nicole Buhler said, explaining why theycame out. She said her family comes to Rochelle from Davis Junction every week for Brooklyn's dancing lessons. "We heard about the egg hunt and decided to come."

Like Ethan and Brooklyn, many children went for the eggs first and then went back for the Peeps.

"I guess the kids like plastic eggs better," one grandmother said.

"I saw something with a golden wrapper," Brooklyn said. "But it was just a wrapper and I was sad."

Ethan and Brooklyn weren't the only ones from out of town.

Three-year old Bristol Couch, dressed pretty in pink, came all the way from Georgia.

Her mother, Brandy, explained that they're in Rochelle because her husband is involved in a local construction project. "We live in a bus and travel so much, this is her first (egg hunt)," she said of her daughter.

Although they didn't come from quite so far away, Cheryl Snyder said she and her five-year old daughter, Brielle Reese, of North-western Indiana were visiting her aunt, Vickie Snyder-Chura, and decided to participate as well. Brielle ended up with five Peeps and a bucket of eggs.

Unable to wait until he got home, one local youngster – Zane Florence of Hillcrest – decided to try out one of his five boxes of Peeps. "It tastes like pancakes and syrup," the fiveyear old Hillcrest boy said. "It's sweet."

But reality is complicated. How, for example, do we explain the fact that our prisons are full of people who believe in God? According to fivethirtyeight.com, an affiliate of ABC news, only about a tenth of a percent of federal prisoners claim to be atheists, a much smaller proportion than is found in the general public. Most of the rest profess to be Christian. Only Pentecostals produce fewer federal convicts compared to their population outside of prison than atheists do.

A look at the annual Global Peace Index, based on data collected by the Economist Intelligence Unit, brings more surprises. As cited in a Los Angeles Times website article on October 30, 2015, it showed that: "each of the 10 safest and most peaceful nations in the world is also among the most secular, least God-believing in the world. Most of the least safe and peaceful nations. conversely, are extremely religious." A Pew Research study comparing American states with the highest and lowest levels of belief in God produced a similar outcome.

The answer to these contradictions lies in how we define religion. Putnam and Campbell questioned people about their beliefs as well as religious practices, such as praying and reading scripture, and found that none of them correlated with their moral behavior. The only thing that was strongly connected to the moral benefits of religion was how actively involved people were in their religious community.

The lesson here is twofold. First, atheism doesn't necessarily lead to moral decay. Second, churches and other religious institutions can play an important role in the moral health of a society when their members are fully engaged. If atheism is on the rise, as indicated by polling data from Gallup International since 1944, that second point should be as compelling to atheists as it is to believers.

Atheists can and do maintain high standards of morality, but few of them participate in the kinds of close-knit communities, focused on fellowship as well as morality, that are available to believers. That could pose a problem. A society of atheists may not have to invent God, in spite of what Voltaire said. but it seems likely that it would find itself needing to create something much like the religious communities that were built around him.

Socialism is a philosophy

Dear Editor

We hear the term socialism being thrown around lately in the political arena.

Per Dictionary.com socialism is: A theory or system that advocates the vesting of the ownership and control of the means of production and distribution of capital, land, etc., in the community as a whole. (i.e. government control).

I have been told that socialism is based on honesty. I think it goes beyond honesty, I think socialism is based on altruism; the practice of unselfish concern for or devotion to the welfare of others.

In my life I have met a number of honest people but never have I met an altruistic person! I have read about only one that was altruistic, and that was Jesus Christ.

Ask yourself, do you think the politicians who are pushing for socialism are altruistic? Myself, I have a hard time believing they are honest, let alone altruistic. Politicians (the ruling class of elitists) have placed themselves above the law (the definition of tyranny), and they do not intend nor will they live under the same set of rules and the lifestyle the general population will be forced into.

You can look at world history and find no examples of a socialistic society that has withstood the test of time. You can look at the history of this country and look at the lack of success of government controlled programs.

Socialism (utopia) sounds good but does not stand for long.

In the words of Winston Churchill; "Socialism is a philosophy of failure, the creed of ignorance, and the gospel of envy, its inherent virtue is the equal sharing of misery."

Byron Forest Preserve District to offer Rock Hounding Hike at Bald Hill on May 4

BYRON — The Byron Forest Preserve District will have a special Rock Hounding Hike on Saturday, May 4 from 9 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. at the Bald Hill Prairie Preserve at 5502 North Silver Creek Road, Mt. Morris.

Bald Hill is composed of over 150 feet of deposits from the last glacier to cover part of Illinois 20,000 years ago. The ice carried and rolled the bedrock from the Great Lakes Basin, and when it melted, much of the material was washed into the Rock River and over the land to the west. Since then, rain has washed many of these rocks into the many gulleys on this property and we have found amazing specimens of quartz, jasper, limonite, geodes, and even float copper. If you are a rock hound, then this is the hike for you.

Participants should be prepared to hike at least 1.5 miles over rough terrain and dress for the weather. We will have a four-wheel utility vehicle for transporting our finds as we walk, but bring your own bag of bucket.

This free program is for ages 8 and up and advance registration is required as participant space is limited by calling the Byron Forest Preserve District at 815 234-8535 extension 200 by Thursday, May 2.

DLR Chaperones needed for trip

MOUNT MORRIS — Traditionally, the seventh and eighth grade students of David L. Rahn Junior High in Mount Morris have used the final days of the school year to take community service trips. This year, the seventh graders will travel to the Northern Illinois Food Bank in Geneva on Thursday, May 16th.

The following week on Tuesday, May 21, the eighth grade will be at the 'Feed My Starving Children' facility in Aurora. At the food bank, the students do a variety of activities that have included sorting produce, relabeling canned goods and inspecting donated items. The students help assembly food packets at the 'Feed My Starving Children' building for distribution around the world. In order for these trips to be possible, adult chaperones are needed.

The buses will depart DLR around 7:50 a.m. both days and return before the end of the school day. Chaperones are able to ride the buses with the students or simply meet DLR at the location. Scheduled times at the food bank are 9-11:30 a.m. and 9:30-11:30 a.m. for 'Feed My Starving Children.'

If you are interested and available to help, please contact the DLR office at 815-732-5300 ext. 3900.

The office will inform you of the paperwork that needs to be completed. Thank you for your support.

Spring Health & Wellness

Taking care of the basics

BEING healthy starts well before you ever get sick and need a doctor. Preventative health care can go a long way toward keeping your immune system strong and helping you physically and mentally cope better with stress.

Eating Right

Everyone knows to eat a balanced diet, but it's still one of the most important factors in good health. Eating lots of fruits, vegetables and whole grains, while avoiding too many rich and heavy foods, can help you have more energy and feel better. A healthy diet can also help stave off conditions like diabetes, heart disease and obesity or help you in controlling those conditions.

Exercising

Regular exercise can also help you feel better overall, in addition to managing long-term health conditions such as diabetes. Your joints last longer and hurt less if you're exercising regularly, plus getting outside and working up a sweat is good for your mental health. Find physical activity that you enjoy and can do regularly. This can be high-intensity exercises like running, hiking, kickboxing or weightlifting, or low-intensity exercises like walking, yoga and pilates.

Sleeping Enough

The CDC suggests seven to nine hours of sleep a night for adults. Simply being in bed for that long isn't sufficient, though; you need good quality sleep at night. If you're waking up after eight hours of sleep and still feeling tired, waking up multiple times a night or if you snore or gasp for air while you sleep, you're probably not getting enough deep sleep. Try to go to bed and get up at the same time every day and cultivate other good sleep habits, including reducing screen time right before bed; having a quiet, dark room; keeping screens out of the bedroom; and not eating large meals of drinking caffeine right before you go to bed.

Getting Regular Health Care

See your doctor for an annual physical to get your blood pressure and cholesterol checked and get any tests you may need (such as for mammograms and pap smears for women and prostate exams for men). Make sure you're up to date on vaccines, and take this chance to talk over any concerns or ask questions. You should see a dentist twice a year and see an eye doctor regularly as well.

Thoracic Outlet Syndrome can cause tingling fingers

BY JEFFREY R. CATES, DC, MS, DABCO, DABCC

OREGON — Thoracic outlet syndrome (TOS) is a condition where the nerves and blood vessels are compressed in the upper thorax. The nerves and blood vessels, known as the neurovascular bundle, course together in the upper chest area in a passage call the thoracic outlet.

There are three narrow areas in the thoracic outlet; the scalene triangle, costoclavicular triangle, and the subcoracoid space. Compression of the neurovascular bundle occurs often in these narrow regions and can cause tingling numbness or weakness in the upper extremity. Tight muscles, cervical ribs, fibrous tissue, and stiff joints can contribute to the problem. Trauma and posture can also cause compression of the neurovascular bundle.

Symptoms are common in those 20-50 years old and affect females more than male. The symptoms can include referred pain and or tingling into the neck, upper back, arm, and often into the ring and little fingers. Symptoms can vary in any combination and are often associated with body positions such as lying down or holding the arms up in a driving position.

The condition is sometimes misdiagnosed as carpel tunnel syndrome. A general physical exam will often be normal; however, provocative orthopedic tests may aid in the diagnosis of the condition. Sometimes x-ray studies can identify bony anomalies such as enlarged transverse processes or cervical ribs that can contribute to the condition.

Many forms of TOS respond well to stretching exercises and a short course of tissue and joint mobilization. Some patients suffer recurring problems and in rare cases surgery is required to remove a cervical rib or other space occupying lesion. If you have tingling into any extremity you should see a physician promptly. Your doctor can help evaluate the cause and make appropriate treatment recommendations.

Stress management

OW you handle stress is a huge factor in the rest of your health as well as your overall quality of life; poor stress management can make you feel under the weather, exacerbate conditions you already have, interrupt your sleep, and cause you to have a shorter fuse in dealing with people or issues and feeling overwhelmed when dealing with problems.

If it goes on long enough, your brain is exposed to cortisol, which can weaken your immune system as well. The National Association of Mental Illness talked about stress, what to watch out for and how you can handle this normal part of life in a healthy way.

Signs

Like other conditions, stress can cause physical symptoms, including headaches, difficulty sleeping, jaw pain, appetite changes, frequent mood swings, having difficulty concentrating and feeling overwhelmed and unable to deal with difficulties that come your way.

Triggers

Stress is a part of everyday life, so it's important to know where it is likely to come from in your life. Your job, family relationships, financial worries, school, health concerns, not getting enough sleep and not eating well can all lead to stress, which, while it not be overwhelming at first, can become that way if not handled well. On top of this stress, other life events can make you even more vulnerable, such as experiencing a major life change (moving, the death of a loved one, starting a new job, having a child, getting married), feeling alone or without a social network for support.

Reducing Stress

Everyone handles stress a little differently, so don't feel bad if your friend's way of coping doesn't work for you. NAMI suggested starting with accepting your needs — know what your triggers are, avoid them if possible or allow time and energy to handle them. Schedule your days so you have time to take breaks as needed, you're getting enough sleep, you have time for hobbies or reading or other self-care; exercise; and eat well. Lean on your support network and consider talking to a therapist or support group. Be careful not to self-medicate with alcohol and drugs.

Healthy by the numbers

VERY time you go to the doctor, she's going to take a couple of numbers that can tell you a lot about your health. High cholesterol and high blood pressure can both lead to or be symptomatic of serious chronic diseases like heart disease, diabetes and stroke.

The CDC talks about both of these conditions, what to know and how you can make lifestyle changes to keep these numbers in a healthy range.

Cholesterol

Blood cholesterol is a waxy, fat-like substance that your body produces naturally and uses to make hormones and digest fatty foods. Animal products like eggs, meat and cheese contain dietary cholesterol.

High cholesterol, which about one in six Americans has, could be caused by a number of factors, including family history, health conditions like obesity and lifestyle habits such as a diet high in saturated and trans fats, not getting enough exercise, smoking or drinking too much alcohol.

While there is medication to treat high cholesterol, you can make several lifestyle changes to manage your cholesterol more naturally. Eat foods that are low in saturated fats. like fruits, vegetables and whole grains; high in fiber, like beans; lean meats like fish and chicken; and foods with unsaturated fats like nuts and olive oil. Regular exercise, quitting smoking and keeping your weight under control also can help you manage your cholesterol.

Blood Pressure

High blood pressure, also known as hypertension, has two measurements: systolic blood pressure, the top number, measures the pressure in the blood vessels when the heart beats, and the bottom number, the diastolic pressure, measures the pressure in the vessels when the heart is resting between beats. A normal blood pressure is 120/80; anything over 140/90 is high.

Hypertension can make your arteries hard, which means less oxygen is moving through your body, which can lead to heart attack, heart failure or a stroke. Left untreated, it can lead to chronic kidney disease.

Although about a third of Americans have high blood pressure, it doesn't have any symptoms, so without getting checked by a doctor, you may not know if you have it. There isn't any one identifiable cause, in most cases, although genetics, age, obesity and a poor diet. To manage it naturally, it's a similar diet if you're watching your cholesterol, with the added measure of watching out for your sodium intake.

Are you fully vaccinated?

ANY people are familiar with the vaccination schedule for children, but did you know that adults need vaccines as well? According to the CDC, immunity from childhood vaccines can wear off, requiring boosters. Additionally, adults are at risk of different diseases than children are so require different vaccinations.

These shots are among the most convenient, effective and safest preventative care options available, particularly for people who are traveling to exotic places or working with Vaccinations are generally covered by health insurance.

What Vaccinations Do I Need?

Adults and children should get a flu vaccine every year. Protection doesn't last from year to year because the flu virus mutates; scientists determine the strains of the virus that are most likely to infect people each year and prepare a vaccine for those strains. Although getting a vaccine doesn't guarantee you won't get sick, those who get the flu will likely be less sick if they got the flu shot.

The Tdap vaccine protects against whooping cough, tetanus and diphtheria and is safe for use in adults and children older than 7 years. Other routine vaccinations include the measles-mumps-rubella, chicken pox and polio vaccines. Most people get those as children.

What About When I Travel?

Depending on where you're traveling, certain vaccinations are recommended or may even be required. The CDC recommends hepatitis A and typhoid vaccines when traveling to Mexico, for instance, as contaminated food or water could be a risk. Parts of Africa have an increased risk of cholera, and jungle areas are full of mosquitoes, so getting vaccinated one's favorite topic, but it is an important factor in your health. Being overweight or obese puts people at greater risk of being diagnosed with chronic conditions like diabetes, arthritis and heart disease, it puts greater stress on your joints and can make exercise harder and have an overall greater sense of dissatisfaction with your health.

That means maintaining or reaching a healthy weight or reaching a healthy weight. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, what that number looks like is different for everyone; talk to your doctor to find out what range you should be in, and, as you're making lifestyle changes, think more about how much energy you have, how your clothes are fitting and how you're feeling than just the number on the scale.

Healthy weight management will not happen through fad diets or even short-term changes. For most people, it doesn't mean cutting out certain foods either. If you love cookies, any long-term diet that doesn't include cookies isn't likely to be successful for you. Instead, find a lifestyle that includes a mix of healthy eating and regular exercise.

The first step is to determine the number of calories you need in a day. The standard 2,000 recommended daily allowance is more than many American adults need.

Once you know your calorie count, start planning meals that fit into your intake, provide the nutrients you need and taste good. A healthy diet is full of fruits, vegetables, whole grains and low-fat dairy products; lean meat like poultry and fish, as well as other lean proteins like beans, eggs and nuts; and is low in saturated and trans fats, cholesterol, salt and added sugars.

This necessitates avoiding processed foods, which means more cooking and meal preparation on your part, but there are shortcuts or different methods that will still taste good and be healthy use frozen, already sliced or canned fruits and vegetables (just make sure canned fruit is packed in juice, not syrup); substitute brown rice for white rice; and find healthier substitutions for ingredients in your favorite dishes or different ways of cooking, such as sautéing instead of deep fry-

For high-calorie foods like desserts, chips, French fries, cheese and anything with butter, keep them as part of your diet, but cut back how much you eat and how frequently.

Talk to your doctor about activities that could put you at risk for other diseases. Travelers who may come into contact with wild animals should consider a rabies vaccination. Depending on where you're going and what you're doing, meningitis, yellow fever and hepatitis B may be an issue. Check the CDC's websites for recommended and required

What if I'm Pregnant or Breastfeeding?

Getting a vaccine while pregnant also offers your baby that protection, so the CDC recommends pregnant women get vaccinated for whooping cough and, if appropriate, the flu. Newborns do not get vaccinated for whooping cough right away, and this disease can be deadly for them. Other vaccines, like the MMR, should happen before pregnancy.

It also is safe to get vaccines while breastfeeding. Talk to your doctor about questions.

Spring Health & Wellness

Avoiding the Flu

NFLUENZA isn't just a cold on steroids. This disease, which resurfaces every fall and can be a health risk well into the next spring, can knock even the healthiest people out of commission for a week to 10 days.

While flu can be dangerous to infants, elderly adults, pregnant women and people with weakened immune systems or chronic illness, for most people it's not deadly, just extremely unpleasant. It's good to be aware of the symptoms and know how to treat them.

According to the Mayo Clinic, early symptoms of the flu appear like a common cold, though they are likely to come on quickly and then get much worse than a cold. Common symptoms of the flu include a fever higher than 100 degrees; aching muscles; chills and sweats; headache; a dry, persistent cough; fatigue; weakness; nasal congestion; and a sore throat.

Most people with the flu don't need to see a doctor; stay home for at least a full day after your fever subsides (your coworkers and fellow students will thank you), rest, drink lots of fluids and treat the symptoms as necessary to remain comfortable. If you or a family member are at risk of complications, see a doctor immediately. Taking antiviral drugs within the first two days may shorten the length of your illness and help prevent other problems.

Those who are at risk and should seek medical care include the elderly and very young; people who live or work in facilities like hospitals or nursing homes; people with weakened immune systems, like those who have cancer or are going through chemotherapy; people with chronic illnesses like asthma, diabetes or heart disease; pregnant women; and people with obesity.

Getting a vaccine is your first and best option for prevention; it makes you less likely to get sick and likely will reduce the severity of the illness if you do get sick. Other ways to prevent the spread of disease is regularly washing your hands, using alcohol-based hand sanitizer if soap and water aren't available; cover your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze; and avoid crowds. Flu spreads more easily when people are close to each other, such as in child care centers, schools, auditoriums, public transportation, and perhaps most importantly, doctor's offices and emergency rooms during flu season.

Preventing heart disease is the No. ■ 1 cause of death for Americans, for both men and women and most ethnicities; for American Indians and Asians/Pacific Islanders, heart disease is second to cancer in causes of death. More than 600,000 people die of heart disease every year; that represents 25 percent of all deaths in this country. The good news is that while some aspects of heart disease are hereditary and all risk factors can't be fully controlled, there are a number of lifestyle changes that can reduce the risk of a serious heart condition, like a heart attack, or help protect yourself from acquiring a heart condition. And, while heart disease looks different in everybody, there are symptoms to watch for. Since early action is critical in treating heart disease, that knowledge can save a life.

Signs and Symptoms

Most people recognize that chest pain is symptomatic of a heart attack, but there are other signs to look for as well. Pain or discomfort in the arms, back, neck, jaw or upper stomach; shortness of breath and nausea, lightheadedness or cold sweats all could indicate a heart attack. Women with heart disease are more likely to report chest pain that is sharp or burning.

When in doubt, it's better to seek treatment immediately. Almost half of sudden cardiac deaths occur before a person can get to a hospital, which likely means early warning signs were ignored.

Risk Factors

High cholesterol, hypertension and smoking are the major risk factors for heart disease; the CDC said about half of people with heart disease have at least one of these risk factors. Other chronic conditions or lifestyle choices that are risk factors are diabetes, being overweight or obese, having a poor diet, not getting sufficient exercise and excessive alcohol use.

Prevention

Healthy habits like a balanced diet (whole foods with lots of color on your plate that comes from fruits and vegetables, not colored candy), getting plenty of exercise, quitting smoking and reducing your alcohol intake all reduce your risk of heart disease or a heart attack. You also want to keep your cholesterol, blood pressure and diabetes under control; take any medication you should be and see your doctor regularly.

Eating to lose weight

OSING weight and getting fit and toned is a combination of working out and eating better.

Most dietitians will say that reducing the number of calories you eat is the biggest step; while true, it can be tricky to cut back on your calories without feeling hungry much of the time.

Smart eating, however, can help you to feel full and keep you feeling full longer. WebMD has some advice on how to lose a few pounds while still having the energy for your day, including a good workout.

Eat the right kind of protein

Protein helps to slow the digestive process, which will help you stay fuller longer and helps with building muscle and providing long-term energy. Find lean proteins like fish, nuts, avocados and beans and keep red meats to a minimum.

Eat lots of produce

One good way to get more vegetables into your diet is to eat lots of salad. Replacing a meal with a salad full of good stuff like romaine lettuce, spinach, carrots, celery, tomatoes, cucumbers, grapes, berries, apples and more. But be careful with your add-ons; croutons, bacon bits, cheese, nuts and heavy salad dressing can add more calories to your salad than you realize. Keep these additions light, adding a tablespoon or two of those calorie-heavy items and use vinaigrettes or lighter dressings.

Eat fiber

Whole grains like oatmeal, whole wheat bread, beans and brown rice, along with fruits and vegetables, are full of fiber, which help curb your appetite and help prevent constipation and bloating. This helps your stomach look flatter as well, which everyone in a swimsuit wants. Just make sure to include a lot of water in your diet as well.

Avoid salt and beer

Salt causes water retention, which leads to bloating, and that can last for days. The best ways to reduce salt in your diet is to reduce how much processed food you eat. Cook your meals from scratch and look for ways to spice up your food without using as much salt.

As much as summer fun includes drinking, cutting back is a good way to get healthier. One can of beer is about 150 calories, beer and sparkling wines cause bloating and alcohol slows down your body's ability to burn fat

HERE are lots of exercises you can do either at home or at the gym, with weights or relying on your own body weight, and adjust them to your skill level. If you're not sure about form, get a session or two with a personal trainer to make sure you're doing it right or do these exercises in front of a mirror to check your own form.

Anytime you start a new exercise regime, check with a doctor to ensure you're healthy enough to do so, and listen to your body, stopping or pulling back if you experience pain.

WebMD and Self Magazine offer a number of

Squats

Squats are the single best exercise to maximize your workout, tone muscles and burn a lot of calories. This exercise primarily works your glutes and thighs, but you'll also feel them in your calves, hamstrings and abs. You can do these using your body weight or adding free weights or a shoulder bar.

Make sure you don't arch your back, and keep your knees from extending beyond your toes.

Pushups

This exercise, depending on how you do them, can hit biceps, triceps, deltoids, pecs, abs and glutes— all muscles you want to show off in a swimsuit. Keep your back straight and your rear end even with your back and lower yourself until your arms are at a 90-degree angle. To make it less intense, put your knees on the ground.

To add intensity, lift one leg or arm off the ground or put your feet on a bench or exercise ball.

Dead lifts

You need weights, either free weights or a bar, for dead lifts. These work out your entire body, especially your legs, back and rear end. Your form makes a big difference with this one; stand with your legs just wider than your shoulders and keep your knees soft as you lower the weights to the ground, keeping your back straight.

Planks

There's a reason Ruth Bader Ginsburg does this exercise. Get into a pushup position; this can mean elbows or hands on the floor and feet or knees on the floor, placed hip width apart.

Keep your spine straight and hold this position for a set period of time.

You can make this harder by picking up one appendage at a time.

Should I get a trainer?

EOPLE who want to make a big change to their fitness routine should consider getting a personal trainer. You can sign up for a few sessions or opt for a more involved commitment, working out with a trainer a couple of times a week. If you can afford it, spending some time with a trainer may help you achieve your fitness goals more quickly and effectively.

Kicking up your intensity

According to WebMD, a trainer can benefit even a seasoned exerciser, introducing you to new exercises or routines, helping you hone your form to make sure you're getting the most from your workout and pushing you past the point when you might normally quit.

Meeting specific goals

Whether you want to tone certain muscle groups, improve your posture, flexibility or metabolism or focus on decreasing joint or back pain, a trainer can help you create a routine that helps you accomplish those goals. A trainer can also help ensure you're doing exercises correctly and that you're warming up and cooling down to help you reduce the risk of injury.

Keeping you consistent

Getting to the gym regularly can be hard, but if you've already paid for a session with a trainer, you're more likely to get there, according to Ace Fitness. The trainer will hold you accountable, even on days you don't work out with him or her and may ask you about your eating and sleeping habits as well.

Helping with injuries or medical conditions

If you're coming back from an injury (or just prone to injuries) or have a medical condition that complicates your workout, having a trainer keep an eye on you and help you design a workout that takes those issues into account can help you be more successful. If you have diabetes, heart disease, arthritis or hypertension, talking to a trainer about ways to help manage those conditions and ensure your safety.

Making the most of your workout time

Most people can't dedicate two to three hours a day working out, so you want to maximize your time at the gym. According to LiveStrong, a trainer can help you boost your efficiency, teaching you exercises and routines that increase your metabolism, bump up your calorie burn and help you achieve your goals.

Mighty Clovers keeping active

SUBMITTED BY CLARE MONTAVON Club Reporter

HE Mighty Clovers have been busy with many activities since winter and we continue to charge forward with much more to come.

On Jan. 26, some club members participated in Day of Dabbling. This event was a great way to engage in many creative activities and our club members participated in various capacities such as: check-in/check-out, leading sessions, teaching assistants, and participating in sessions. It was a good way to stay busy and have fun on a very chilly day.

On Feb. 14, some members of our club visited the City Limits Sheep Farm in Maple Park. Club members were informed about many aspects of their farm which included: breeding, caring, and showing. The Slutz family is very passionate about their business, and we want to thank them for allowing our club to tour their facility.

The Mighty Clovers 4-H Club enjoyed their time participating at the Penny Carnival on March 2. We had a few junior leaders assist with ticket sales while other members, and their parents, took shifts at our booth. The theme this year was "4-H...the Greatest Show on Earth." Our club made a Plinko game called 'Mighty Carnival' and we had many visitors at our booth. We offered a lot of great candy prizes – which was the most popular? Airheads. The participants could not get enough of them!

At our last meeting, on March 14, our club members began their demonstration speeches. We learned how to make string art and how to build a bird house. In addition, we had a culture night which included Taekwondo demonstrations from two of our club members and tasty snacks to try from South Korea.

In addition, our April 11 meeting brought more demonstrations as we learned about the different aspects of rabbits and what one needs to do to care for them. We also watched a club member demonstrate how her dog responded to commands with treats. Once speeches were completed, our junior leaders began their workshops which included: making slime, growing vegetables, and making a paracord bracelet. The younger club members enjoyed each workshop as they were able to learn something new from each experience.

All about peonies

URBANA – Herbaceous peonies are a common sight in many gardens and are some of the most beautiful flowers you will find, says Ken Johnson, a University of Illinois Extension horticulture educator.

Herbaceous or garden peonies belong to the genus Paeonia, which is native to Asia, Europe, and western North America. "In addition to their beauty, they can be quite long-lived," says Johnson. "Many plants have been growing and flowering for more than 50 years and some plantings have been recorded to be over 100 years old."

Depending on the species and cultivar, peonies will bloom from late spring to early summer. According to Johnson, "Peonies were traditionally white, blush, pink, and red in color. However, due to breeding efforts, coral, yellow, and patterned peonies can now be found." In addition to a wide variety of colors, blooms also come in a variety of different shapes. The American Peony Society recognizes six different types of flowers: single, Japanese, semi-double, bomb, and double.

According to Johnson, if your peonies aren't producing buds and blooming, there are several different things that could be causing this:

* If you planted/transplanted peonies in the last year or two and they aren't producing flowers, don't be alarmed; it can often take two to three years for them to establish and

* Excessive shade can also lead to poor flower development (peonies prefer full sun, but can take some shade). If this is the case, dig up peonies in the fall and place them in a sunny location.

* One of the more common reasons peonies don't bloom is that are planted too deeply. The crown of the plant should be no more than two inches below the soil surface.

* Over fertilizing can also reduce the bloom of your peonies. Too much nitrogen fertilizer will cause the plants to produce a lot of foliage and a reduced number of blooms. Established plants with good growth only need to be fertilized every few years, if at all. If you decide to fertilize, do so after they are finished blooming, and use a balanced fertilizer or one with a higher phosphorous content (the middle number on a fertilizer package).

Ants are commonly seen on closed flower buds of peonies, and many think the insects help pry the flower buds open.

"Despite the old wives tale, peonies do not need ants to help them flower," says Johnson. Peonies have glands called extra floral nectaries on their sepals and floral bracts that release nectar.

These are different than the nectaries that are inside of the flower that produce nectar and provide food for pollinators. It is believed that plants have these extra floral nectaries to attract beneficial insects. The beneficial insects, such as ladybugs and ants, will feed on the nectar and protect the plant from pests, Johnson explains.

To get rid of ants on the flowers before bringing them inside, stick the flowers in some water and swish them around. This should remove most of the ants.

Just like roses and other flowers, it's a good idea to remove flower heads and/or seed pods when plants are done blooming. This will help the appearance of the plants and also prevent the plant from sending energy into producing seeds.

Love travels to New York for senior showcase

ago when God called me to teach the Word full-time, my life was much different than it is now. We had three children at home and I was teaching one Bible study each week in our living room. Dave and I both had good jobs and we were comfortable financially. But God began dealing with me about quitting my job so I could stay home and study the Word more to prepare for full-time ministry.

Now, even though I believed with my whole heart that God was leading me to make this change and I had a strong desire to teach the Word and help people, it was scary to take this step of obedience. If I quit working full-time, we would be about $40 short of what we needed just to pay our bills each month. Along with that, at that time, it wasn't popular for women to have a teaching ministry like this.

I kept my job until I was so miserable I couldn't stand it. Then I quit my job and got a part-time job so I still had enough money to take care of myself instead of completely trusting God and obeying His direction.

I'm a hard worker and a good employee, so it was amazing to me when I got fired! And it became obvious to me that God was saying, "I told you I didn't want you out in the work force, trying to take care of yourself. I want you to be home, studying and preparing by faith to do what I've called you to do."

Does Part-time Obedience Count?

This experience taught me how important it is to promptly and fully obey what God puts in my heart to do. When I finally submitted to His direction, somehow every month He provided the miracle we needed so we could pay our bills on time. And I had the time I needed to focus on studying the Word so God could prepare me to teach others how to have abundant life in Christ.

The truth is if I hadn't been willing to trust God and obey Him completely, I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing today.

It's the Best Choice You'll Ever Make

Romans 12:1 (AMP) says, "I urge you...by the mercies of God, to present your bodies [dedicating all of yourselves, set apart] as a living sacrifice, holy and well-pleasing to God, which is your rational (logical, intelligent) act of worship.'

The apostle Paul is saying here, "I'm begging you to make a decision that you're not going to live a mediocre, half-baked, sloppy life!' Notice that he also said doing this is "rational (logical, intelligent).'

It's so easy to settle for less than God's best for us because we don't always feel like taking responsibility for our behavior or exercising discipline to do what we need to do so we can accomplish great things for God and help people. But the cost of settling for less is actually harder than being completely obedient to God's will.

It's Always Worth It to Pay the Price

You may be thinking, "But Joyce, it's so hard to do the right thing all the time! It's hard to forgive the people who have hurt me. And it's hard to keep a good attitude at work when my boss is unfair. It's hard to be nice when people aren't nice to me. It's so hard to overcome the temptations I face every day...

The truth is, what's really hard is having no hope, peace, joy or the righteousness of God. It's hard to be angry all the time and live with bitterness and unforgiveness. It's hard to be miserable and deal with the consequences of ungodly behaviors, like being sick, or having hangovers or addictions to things that are just killing us anyway.

I really want you to get this: Everything God tells us to do is for our good. Whether it's direction you find in His Word or something He's put in your heart to do in your situation, the best thing you can ever do is obey Him promptly and completely.

The Pathway to the Best Life

Obedience to God is the pathway to the life you really want to live. It's the answer to overcoming sin and any problem you face. It's the way we learn how to grow up and let God work in our lives, changing us so we can be what He created us to be.

When you feel like it's too hard to obey God, remember that He will never tell you to do something without giving you the grace and ability to do it. The key is to trust Him fully and depend on Him for the strength you need. God loves you and wants the best for you. Humble yourself before Him, and enjoy living with His peace, power and joy every day of your life!

Q: Is "Inside the Actors Studio" still on the air? I just realized the other day that I haven't seen it in years. -- J.K.

A: Yes, as a matter of fact it's been running since 1994, but the esteemed host, James Lipton, announced last year that he was retiring. It's hard to believe he's 92 years old. When the new season begins in October, the show will have moved from Bravo to the Ovation channel and will use a rotation of hosts interviewing actors about their craft.

Ovation executive Scott Woodward said America's arts television network is "perfect" as the new home for "Inside the Actors Studio." "We plan to honor the legacy of James Lipton's master class while also exploring the craft with eclectic, talented guests," he said.

Students of Pace University's Actors Studio MFA program will once again be audience members. I still remember seeing a young Bradley Cooper watching Lipton interview his guests. Cooper would one day be a guest himself on the show as well as a multiple Academy Award nominee.

The new season will debut Sunday, Oct. 13, at 10 p.m. ET. Guest hosts include Jane Lynch ("Glee") interviewing fellow thespian David Oyelowo ("Selma") and Alec Baldwin ("30 Rock") interviewing Henry Winkler ("Barry").

Q: Is Sophia Bush coming back to "Chicago P.D."? I heard she was leaving for good. -- D.B.

A: You are correct: Actress Sophia Bush isn't returning to the hit series. She chose to depart, and her character left to take a iob with the FBI. Bush has a development deal with 20th Century Fox TV that could have her starring in another series soon, but in the meantime, she has the upcoming film "Hard Luck Love Song," with Dermot Mulroney.

Bush says she chose to leave "Chicago P.D." due to intolerable conditions on the set. On Dax Shepard's podcast "Armchair Expert," she said they often had to film scenes for hours in below-freezing temperatures in Chicago and that people on the set were getting sick.

Bush also allegedly was verbally abused on the set: "When someone assaults you in a roomful of people, and everyone literally looks away ... and you're the one woman in the room, and every man who's twice your size doesn't do something, you go, 'Oh, that wasn't worth defending? I'm not worth defending?"

According to TVline. com, at the end of the third season, she told producers that if conditions did not change by the end of season four, she was leaving.

Q: Will "Blue Bloods" be back next season? If so, when? -- J.E.

A: Yes, "Blue Bloods" has been renewed by CBS for its 10th season. It's not known at this point whether it will be its last, but either way star Tom Selleck has signed on for one more year. No premiere date has been set, but it will be back
