Meyer was in possession of a loaded firearm and was additionally charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

He is now being held in the Ogle County Jail on a $10 million bond. He was arraigned the same day he was arrested.

Eric Morrow, Ogle County State's Attorney, said during the press conference that the investigation into the fatal fire was "active and ongoing" until the last few weeks. He said it produced more than 35,000 pages of documents and other evidence.

"I would note, if the defendant is convicted of the ... murder cases, this would be a natural life sentence," Morrow said.

ARREST: Called arson on the scene

Duane Meyer was the person who called in the fire at about 6:40 a.m., telling officials he was there to pick up Amos. The State Fire Marshal official on the scene determined the fire was arson at that time.

At the time of the fire, Byron Fire Dept. officials said there was no fire visible from outside the home, at 2020 Silverthorn Ave. A small fire was found in the living room of the home, where Maggie Meyers, 31, was also found.

The Ogle County Sheriff's Office began investigating the fire immediately, along with Byron Police, Illinois Police Zone 2 investigators, the Ogle County Coroner's Office, Illinois State Police Crime Scene, the Illinois Fire Marshal as well as technical assistance from the Illinois Attorney General's Office and the FBI.

Morrow said that in order to be released, Meyer would be required to post $1 million in cash.

Stillman Valley Teacher selected for fellowship

STILLMAN VALLEY – Bill Polasky, Stillman Valley High School Illinois Teacher of the year nominee, has been selected for the Teach Plus IL Teaching Policy Fellowship.

This position requires Polasky to meet virtually online every two weeks with other Teach Plus Policy Fellows and then twice per semester for a two-day seminar. Polasky said that the fellowship, "allows teachers to work with policy makers to influence educational problems or challenges in a particular state and still allows teachers to stay in the classroom."

Polasky has been assigned to the task force targeting Teacher Recruitment and Retention. Mr. He said his team will address teacher shortages in certain areas and, "turn the ship around to get qualified candidates in areas like agriculture and other Career and Technical Education courses, as well as special education, languages, math, and science. But attracting the candidates is only half the battle as the average new teacher works for 3-5 years before leaving the field. So, finding ways to retaining those candidates is just as important."

Stillman Valley High School and the Meridian School District are very lucky to have a teacher like Polasky.

"Advocacy and lobbying has become more and more essential in education," said Superintendent PJ Caposey." To have someone as passionate, intellectual, and committed as Bill representing our district – and profession –- is truly outstanding."

Community invited to give project ideas

OREGON – Each year, Oregon High School students in the "changemaker pathway" (Open Program, Social Entrepreneurship, and Senior Capstone classes) complete community-minded projects of their choice.

From yoga classes, to elementary school camps, to woodworking and welding, from volunteering their time to operating profitable social enterprises, OHS Changemakers take a leadership role in helping their small communities thrive. This year, the OHS Changemakers want to invite community members to submit project ideas. The guidelines are simple: Projects must be community-focused in some way, must be able to be completed within one semester and must be manageable for one student given 45 minutes a day. What projects would you like to see addressed in the community?

Submitted project ideas will be shared with Open Program, Social Entrepreneurship and Capstone students. Interested students will be given the option to "champion" an idea, making it their cause for second semester, and will work closely with community members and OHS faculty to help it become a success.

OHS would love to hear from you. If you have an idea for a project that could help the community in some way, please take a few moments to submit the idea via email to program instructor Aaron Sitze at asitze@ ocusd.net.

New statue sculpted by local artist

The grounds of the Boone County Museum of History are now graced by an iconic monument to Belvidere's, and in fact all, first responders.

Elected officials from Boone County, City of Belvidere, law enforcement leaders from Boone County and City of Belvidere and firefighters displaying a wealth of equipment were all on hand recently to commemorate the dedication of a new statue sculpted by InBronze studio of Mount Morris.

The larger-than-life bronze monument portrays a law enforcement officer, a blanket-wrapped rescued child, and a firefighter. Created and executed by sculptor Jeff Adams of Oregon/Mount Morris and sponsored by Jack and Peggy Wolf Family Foundation, the monument will be an inspiration for generations to come.

Adams is currently creating three more sculptures at his InBronze studio for the Illinois State Police Memorial Park in Springfield, as well as five 1.5X life size monuments to the Founders of the Lincoln Highway.

More information on sculptor Jeff Adams and in Bronze Studio is available at www.inbonze.com.

Project transforms garden at Education Center

Brian and Michel Williams spent their summer on a special garden transformation project at Chana Education Center.

Michel Williams, a former teacher of the school, had asked in the spring if there were any outdoor projects in need of some attention on the grounds. A former butterfly garden had become overgrown and was producing more weeds than plants. She enthusiastically took on the garden by clearing out the weeds and old plantings, re-tilling the soil, adding new native plantings, and mulching.

Monica Putnam and Jim Williams of Hidden Timber Gardens of Chana assisted in choosing plantings that would attract butterflies and other insects, and are drought resistant.

Chana Education Center greatly appreciates the time and effort of Mrs. Williams and her husband, and Hidden Timber Gardens. Students have been enjoying observing and cataloging the insects that are visiting this refreshed space.

BYRON – Hulsebus Chiropractic Clinics, one of the oldest healthcare facilities in Northern Illinois, are celebrating 70 years of service to the region.

Dr. Robert Hulsebus opened his first practice – the Byron Health Center – in 1949 in Byron, IL. He waited 6 weeks for his first patient to walk in the door and built the legacy from there.

Hulsebus is holding a celebration open to the public on Saturday, Oct. 26 from 9 a.m.-noon at the clinic, 105 S.Lafayette St. in Byron. Refreshments will be served and people can enter a drawing to win a Fitbit Versa watch.

Dr. Bob, as he was known, graduated from Palmer School of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa. At the time, it was illegal to practice chiropractic in Illinois if you were a graduate of Palmer. In addition to his practice and raising, along with his wife Ruth, their family of 3 boys, Dr. Bob successfully fought the state and won licensure for all chiropractors in Illinois in 1963.

In the meantime, Dr. Bob and his wife Ruth made themselves and their family an integral part of the community. They were involved in the church as well as having formed, with friends, one of the longest-running bridge clubs in the area. They were also active golfers.

The Byron Health Center became Hulsebus Chiropractic Clinic and went through 3 locations before arriving at its present location in 1982, at 105 Lafayette Street in Byron.

At the time, it was found Dr. Bob had over 50,000 families on file who traveled to Byron from 67 cities and towns. That would make his little office one of the busiest. In the 1970's, Dr. Bob's three sons – Dr. Roger, Dr. Mike, and Dr. Jim Hulsebus all became Palmer graduates and went into practice with their father. This entailed an expansion of locations and Hulsebus Chiropractic opened clinics in Oregon, Freeport, Pecatonica, Rockford, and Machesney Park among other.

Dr. Bob spent this time helping chiropractic legally and was directly responsible for having chiropractic included in Medicare. He also helped pass legislation and allowed students at chiropractic schools to be allowed access to federal financial aid so more students could afford to attend and obtain a degree as doctors of chiropractic.

The family's third generation of doctors began in practice when Dr. Roger's daughter, Dr. Tara Theisen and her husband Dr. Paul Theisen, graduated and went into practice together. Dr. Mike's son, Dr. Brandt Hulsebus, began in practice in Rockford. Two of Dr. Jim's sons – Dr. Ryan and Dr. Kyle Hulsebus began in practice in Machesney Park, along with Dr. Kyle's wife, Dr. Shanti Hulsebus.

Today, the Hulsebus Chiropractic Family is one of the largest in the profession. With all the associates and partners included, the clinics have seen an estimated 250,000 patients at minimum.

Dr. Bob passed away in 1995, shortly after seeing Chiropractic turn 100 years old, and after dedicating most of his life to his profession and to serving his community.

We at Hulsebus Chiropractic look forward to many more years of service to the Northern Illinois Community.

"Congress shall make no law. . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press" Published every Monday Mike Feltes, General Manager Brad Jennings, Editor

The Ogle County Life is a division of News Media Corporation.

MOMENTS IN TIME

* On Nov. 1, 1512, the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel in Rome, one of Italian artist Michelangelo's finest works, is exhibited to the public for the first time. After demonstrating his mastery of sculpture, Michelangelo was called to Rome in 1508.

* On Oct. 31, 1776, in his first speech before British Parliament since the Americans signed the Declaration of Independence, King George III acknowledges that all is not going well for Britain in the war. The British would formally surrender five years later.

* On Oct. 30, 1938, Orson Welles causes a nationwide panic with his broadcast of "War of the Worlds" -- a realistic radio dramatization of a Martian invasion of Earth. Welles had little idea of the havoc it would cause among radio listeners.

* On Nov. 3, 1948, the Chicago Tribune jumps the gun and mistakenly declares New York Gov. Thomas Dewey the winner of his presidential race with incumbent Harry Truman in a front-page headline: "Dewey Defeats Truman." Truman would win by 114 electoral votes.

* On Oct. 29, 1956, Israeli armed forces push into Egypt toward the Suez Canal, initiating the Suez Crisis. They would soon be joined by French and British forces. The catalyst for the attack was the nationalization of the Suez Canal by Egyptian leader Gamal Abdel Nasser.

* On Oct. 28, 1965, construction is completed on the Gateway Arch, a spectacular 630-foot-high parabola of stainless steel on the waterfront of St. Louis, Missouri. An internal tram system takes visitors to the top of the arch.

* On Nov. 2, 1982, a fuel truck in a military convoy explodes in the 1.7-mile long Salang Tunnel in Afghanistan, killing an estimated 3,000 people, mostly Soviet soldiers traveling to Kabul. Believing it to be an attack, troops closed both ends of the tunnel, trapping people inside.

Trying hard to not look creepy with my camera

Being a journalist is great, and I am very proud of what I have chosen as my life's work.

It comes with some good things – people recognize you and give you a compliment – and it comes with some bad things – people recognize you and tell you that you stink.

But I have found over the years that one thing is harder than pretty much anything else about this job. No, it is not asking tough questions. No, it is not going into a situation that you know in advance will be hostile. No, it is not taking the at times absolutely profane and threatening calls that journalists get from time to time. (That has not happened to me at this job, for the record).

For me, the hardest thing about this job is taking pictures. I don't mean the physical part of taking pictures. I actually took a photography class in college. I shot with a manual camera (this was before digital) and developed my own film. It was an involved process and fun, actually.

the Life By Brad Jennings

But once I got to a newspaper and went out on assignments, I realized something: A lot of people hate to have their picture taken.

And when I say hate, I mean Packers/Bears level hate.

Just recently I was taking pictures at Autumn on Parade. "Don't take my picture!" A woman barked at me. "I don't want to be in a picture!" I wasn't even pointing my camera in her direction. Women, often, simply don't like the way they look in pictures, so it can be a bit of a negotiation.

Me: Can I get a couple of pictures?

Her: Absolutely not. Me: I just need a couple of shots. It will give the story more impact. Her: Absolutely not.

Me: I haven't had this much resistance since I shot those photos with Cindy Crawford 20 years ago...

Her: You shot Cindy Crawford?

OK, I have never shot photos of Supermodel Cindy Crawford. But sometimes you have to get creative when you want to get a photo.

Men are even worse. Even if I give them advance notice, a lot of men just refuse to have their photos taken. The worst for me, however, are kids. Kids can give you some great, natural pictures. When they are just doing their thing and you are taking pictures, they can be so unguarded that you can't help but get some great photos.

The problem is approaching people to take photos of their kids at a place like Oregon Park West. I introduce myself and hand out my business card, but no matter what I just look like a creep with a camera taking pictures of kids. I know I am a good person, but it still makes me feel weird. And the withering looks from moms can really get to you. Trust me.

So, if you see me at an event taking a few pictures, just go about your business and ignore me. Trust me. I don't want to make anyone look bad. I just want to capture a moment. And hopefully not look creepy while I do it.

Storytelling and myths about leadership and luck

For want of a nail, the shoe was lost.

For want of a shoe, the horse was lost.

For want of horse, the rider was lost.

For want of a rider, the battle was lost.

For want of a battle, the kingdom was lost.

All for the want of a nail!

Tiny events can have big and unpredictable outcomes. Scientists studying the weather and other complex systems have coined the term, butterfly effect. It's the fanciful idea that a butterfly flapping its wings in Brazil can cause a tornado in Texas.

Life, like the weather, is inscrutably complex. The past is obscure. The future is a mystery. This is why Guest Opinion this field is known as chaos theory.

We resist the idea that life is chaotic. We cling to the belief that we can understand the past and thereby control our destiny. Risk analyst Nassim Nicholas Taleb calls it the narrative fallacy in his bestselling book, The Black Swan.

The stories that we create about the past come from the need to reduce and simplify information in a chaotic world. Knowing the outcome, we piece together or invent details that seem to support a flow of cause-andeffect, and ignore or forget the rest. This is such an inescapable part of human nature that none of us are free from it.

Taleb says that this inability to remember the true sequence of events instead of a reconstructed one "will make history appear in hindsight to be far more explainable than it actually was—or is."

Nobel Prize winning psychologist and researcher Daniel Kahneman, in his book, Thinking Fast and Slow, shows how this shapes our evaluations of our leaders. He observes that our stories "assign a larger role to talent, stupidity, and intentions than to luck." Using hindsight, we judge leaders on the basis of the outcomes of their decisions instead of on their reasonableness in the uncertainty of the moment.

Kahneman cites research showing how weak the relationship is between the abilities of business leaders and their success, as well as how much it relies on luck. "...even if you had perfect foreknowledge that a CEO has a brilliant vision and extraordinary competence, you still would be unable to predict how the company will perform with much better accuracy than the flip of a coin." Surely this also applies to our judgments of our political leaders.

Ronald Reagan is credited with the collapse of the Soviet Union, even though the wheels were falling off the communist system long before his presidency. Likewise, Fortune smiled on Bill Clinton when the tech boom of the 90's made him seem like a model of economic expertise. We rarely think of the role, on the other hand, that luck may have played in the perceived failures of Jimmy Carter and George W. Bush.

Stories about leaders provide a sense of order in a chaotic world, but they also attach unrealistic hopes and fears to these fallible and vulnerable people. With Donald Trump's impeachment looming, we all would do well to temper those feelings. Democracy is, after all, more about the people as whole than about its leaders.

Neither the President nor his opponents are in control of the wild ride ahead. Forces seen and unseen will be at work. Meanwhile, a healthy respect for chaos advises against placing too much weight on the survival or downfall of this or any president.

Potential treatment options after breast cancer diagnosis

A breast cancer diagnosis is something no one wants to receive. But the burden of breast cancer is substantial. In fact, the World Health Organization notes that breast cancer is the most commonly occurring cancer in women worldwide.

Thankfully, breast cancer survival rates are high in many parts of the world, particularly in developed countries such as the United States, Canada and Japan. While survival rates are lower in developing countries, it is encouraging to know that the average five-year survival rates are as high as 90 percent in some nations. That suggests that the strategies used to successfully fight breast cancer in developed nations may one day prove as effective in developing nations, potentially leading to a sharp decline in global breast cancer deaths.

Upon being diagnosed with breast cancer, patients will be educated about a host of potential treatment options. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention note that breast cancer is treated in several ways, and the course of treatment a doctor recommends will depend on the kind of breast cancer and how far it has spread. In addition, according to Breastcancer.org, breast cancer is made up of many different kinds of cancer cells, which often necessitates the use of various types of treatments to get rid of the cancer.

The following are some treatment options doctors may discuss with breast cancer patients.

• Surgery: Breastcancer. org notes that surgery is typically the first line of attack against breast cancer. The CDC says the goal of surgery is to cut out cancer tissue. Some common breast cancer surgeries include lumpectomy, in which the tumor and a small amount of surrounding tissue is removed, and mastectomy, in which all of the breast tissue is removed.

• Chemotherapy: Chemotherapy is used to treat various types of cancer and involves the administration of special medicines to shrink or kill existing cancer cells. Breastcancer.org notes that chemotherapy is sometimes administered prior to surgery in an attempt to shrink the cancer.

• Radiation therapy: Radiation therapy aims to kill cancer cells using high-energy rays that are similar to X-rays. Sometimes referred to as "radiotherapy," radiation therapy is overseen by a radiation oncologist who specializes in this type of treatment.

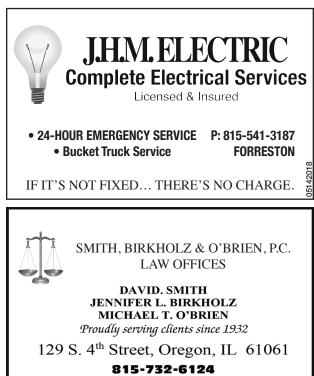

• Hormonal therapy: Estrogen makes hormone-receptor-positive breast cancers grow, and hormonal therapy, which may be referred to as "anti-estrogen" therapy, aims to reduce the amount of estrogen in the body and block its action on breast cancer cells.

• Targeted therapies: These therapies, which Breastcancer.org notes are generally less likely than chemotherapy to harm normal, healthy cells, target specific characteristics of the cancer cells. Cancer cells can have many characteristics, so there are various types of targeted therapies.

Breast cancer treatments can be highly effective in the fight against breast cancer, particularly when the disease is caught in its early stages.

Chiropractic care reduces opioid use

Opioids are a class of drugs that include the illicit drug heroin as well as the licit (legal) prescription pain relievers, oxycodone, hydrocodone, codeine, morphine, fentanyl and others. Opioids are chemically related and interact with opioid receptors on nerve cells in the brain and nervous system to produce pleasurable effects and relieve pain. Addiction is a primary, chronic and relapsing brain disease characterized by an individual pathologically pursuing reward and/or relief by substance use and other behaviors. Of the 21.5 million Americans age 12 or older that had a substance use disorder in 2014, 1.9 million had a substance abuse disorder involving prescription pain relievers and 586,000 had a substance abuse disorder involving heroin.

(Source: American Society of Addiction Medicine)

The opioid epidemic continues unabated. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), in a span of 17 years (1999-2016), more than 350,000 people died from an overdose involving opioids. While the nation's attention on the opioid epidemic has heightened, interest in options for non-pharmacological care for pain has also increased. More consideration is being given to chiropractic care as a safe, effective, drug-free solution – especially for people with low back, neck and headache pain. Doctors of chiropractic (DCs) are specifically trained to diagnose, evaluate and provide non-pharmaceutical care and rehabilitation to individuals suffering from acute, subacute and chronic back, low back and neck pain, headaches, neuro-musculoskeletal conditions and other related syndromes.

A 2018 study in the Journal of Alternative Complement Medicine by Whedon et al. used a retrospective cohort design to analyze health insurance claims data. The study measured likelihood of opioid prescription fill among recipients of services delivered by doctors of chiropractic compared with nonrecipients. The adjusted likelihood of filling a prescription for an opioid analgesic was 55% lower among recipients compared with nonrecipients.

Learn to make mammograms more comfortable

Mammograms remain one of the best methods to detecting breast cancers, giving women the opportunity to start treatment early if cancer is detected. In countries with early access to quality screening and treatment, breast cancer survival rates are now greater than 80 percent.

The organization Mammography Saves Lives says that, since 1990, mammography has helped reduce breast cancer mortality in the United States by 40 percent. Mammograms usually take around 20 minutes. During a traditional mammogram, a woman's breast is placed between two plates. One plate holds the breast in place, while the other takes images, and the breasts must be compressed to get clear pictures of breast tissue.

Some women find the process to be uncomfortable.

Even though mammograms can be essential parts of preventive healthcare, many women avoid them because of pain and other discomfort. However, women should not put off mammograms because they are worried about discomfort.

There are many ways to avoid pain during mammograms that can make the entire experience more comfortable.

• Schedule the mammogram for a week after a menstrual period when hormonal swings are less likely to increase breast sensitivity.

• Caffeine can make the breasts more tender. Reducing caffeine consumption for two weeks before the mammogram can help.

• Keep your feet and trunk facing forward and simply turn your head at the mammogram machine.

• Reduce tension by breathing deeply a few times before the procedure.

• Try a pain reliever before the mammogram.

• Ask the mammography center if it has padding, as cushioning between the breasts and the plates of the mammogram machine can reduce pain.

By taking these steps, women may be more comfortable during mammograms, which can play a vital role in the detection and ultimate treatment of breast cancer.

Debunking common myths associated with breast cancer

Cancer claims the lives of millions of people across the globe every year. But the fight against cancer is anything but hopeless, as the World Health Organization notes that between 30 and 50 percent of all cancer cases are preventable.

Learning about cancer is one of the best ways for people to protect themselves from this deadly disease. Researchers continue to learn more about cancer everyday and routinely discover that information once thought to be accurate was actually off-base.

Despite researchers' best efforts, some myths about cancer still prevail. Some of these myths are about cancer in general, while others refer to specific cancers, including breast cancer. Myths about breast cancer can be as harmful as accurate information is helpful, so learning the truth and debunking those myths can be an important part of women's preventive approach to breast cancer.

• Myth: Drinking milk increases your risk for breast cancer. The American Cancer Society notes that early studies raised concerns that drinking milk from cows treated with hormones could increase a person's risk for breast cancer. However, ensuing research failed to find a clear link between the two. In fact, a 2002 study published in the International Journal of Epidemiology found no significant association between dairy fluid intake and breast cancer risk.

• Myth: Lumps indicate breast cancer. The National Breast Cancer Foundation, Inc.® says that only a small percentage of breast lumps turn out to be cancer. However, abnormalities or changes in breast tissue should always be brought to the attention of a physician.

• Myth: Mammograms cause breast cancer to spread. This myth is rooted in the incorrect notion that breast compression while getting a mammogram causes the cancer to spread. However, the NBCF insists that cannot happen. In fact, the National Cancer Institute touts the benefits of mammograms while the ACS recommends women between the ages of 45 and 54 get mammograms every year. For additional breast cancer screening guidelines, visit the ACS at www.cancer.org.

• Myth: Women with a family history of breast cancer are likely to develop breast cancer, too. This myth is dangerous because, if taken at face value, it can give women with no family history of breast cancer a false sense of security. However, the NBCF notes that only about 10 percent of individuals diagnosed with breast cancer have a family history of the disease. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention note that a woman's risk for breast cancer is higher if she has a firstdegree relative, including a mother, sister, daughter, or even a male family member, who have had the disease. But breast cancer can affect anyone, regardless of their family history.

Information is a valuable asset in the fight against breast cancer. Learning to decipher between accurate and false information can be especially valuable.

Breast cancer signs and symptoms

Breast cancer is a formidable foe. According to the World Health Organization, an estimated 627,000 women lost their lives to breast cancer in 2018. But women are not helpless in the fight against breast cancer, as the WHO notes early detection is critical and could potentially save thousands of lives each year.

A proactive approach is a key component of protecting oneself against breast cancer. While the National Breast Cancer Foundation, Inc.® notes that many breast cancer symptoms are invisible and not noticeable without a professional cancer screening, women can keep an eye out for certain signs of breast cancer they might be able to detect on their own. Monthly self-exams can help women more easily identify changes in their breasts. During such self-exams, women can look for the following signs and symptoms and are advised to report any abnormalities they discover to their physicians immediately.

• Changes in how the breast or nipple feels: The NBCF says nipple tenderness or a lump or thickening in or near the breast or underarm could indicate the presence of breast cancer. Some women may notice changes in the skin texture or an enlargement of the pores in the skin of their breast. In many instances, skin texture has been described as being similar to the texture of an orange peel. Lumps in the breast also may indicate breast cancer, though not all lumps are cancerous.

• Change in appearance of the breast or nipple: Unexplained changes in the size or shape of the breast; dimpling anywhere on the breast; unexplained swelling or shrinking of the breast, particularly when the shrinking or swelling is exclusive to one side only; and a nipple that is turned slightly inward or inverted are some signs and symptoms of breast cancer that can affect the appearance of the breast or nipple. It is common for women's breasts to be asymmetrical, but sudden asymmetry should be brought to the attention of a physician.

• Discharge from the nipple: The NBCF notes that any discharge from the nipple, but particularly a clear or bloody discharge, could be a sign of breast cancer. The NBCF also advises women that a milky discharge when they are not breastfeeding is not linked to breast cancer but should be discussed with a physician.

Learning to recognize the signs and symptoms of breast cancer can increase the likelihood of early diagnosis, which greatly improves women's chances of surviving this disease.

Nate reluctantly agreed to accompany Abby to the Newman family dinner, where Victor's children opened up about the complications his plan to trap Adam had caused them. Tensions grew between Billy and Victor. Cane asked Phyllis about Adam's whereabouts, sparking her curiosity. Later, Phyllis was surprised to find that Michael was in possession of Adam's cell phone. Nick got upset when Chelsea revealed that she wouldn't be attending the New Hope event. Jack and Traci began writing a book about their family's history. Q: I know on this season of "American Ninja Warrior" the contestants could win prize money for conquering the Mega Wall, but do they receive any other money for participation? Also, it seems many contestants travel to the different cities even when they're not competing. I would think that could get fairly expensive if they're paying for it themselves. -- S.S.

A: NBC's "American Ninja Warrior" is an obstacle course competition held in various cities, culminating in the finalists competing in Las Vegas for a $1 million prize. However, only one person takes home that loot. Everyone else gets squat, although as you mentioned, competitors can win up to $10,000 if they're able to scale the Mega Wall.

According to Looper.com, the ninjas you see succeeding season after season "are finding new ways to make a living based on their athleticism. ... This includes doing commercials and making appearances at gyms and other events.

A self-proclaimed five-time competitor posted anonymously on Reddit that the athletes pay for all their travel expenses unless they're competing in the national finals. In that case, NBC does cover the cost of the flight, hotel and meals. As for those ninjas who travel to other cities to cheer on their competition, I would imagine that's on their own dime as well. However, due to the popularity of "ANW," many of these competitors likely make money off sponsorships and promotions through Instagram, and some have even opened their own gyms.

Q: What health issue does Frankie Muniz from "Malcolm in the Middle" have again? I thought I read he was dealing with something serious a few years ago. -- G.I.

A: Muniz, age 33, reportedly has suffered several TIAs (transient ischemic attacks) that have left him with serious memory problems. He recently told People magazine that he has no recollection of some things he's done, like vacations he took, but that he just tries to live the best and most fulfilling life he can. He's also looking forward to his upcoming wedding with fiancee Paige Price.

Q: We've noticed that Matt is not mentioned or seen on "Alaskan Bush People" anymore. What happened to him? -- Pat

A: Matt, the 37-year-old son of Billy and Ami Brown on Discovery channel's "Alaskan Bush People," completed rehab for alcohol abuse at the Betty Ford Center earlier this year. The 10th season was being filmed during this time, which explains his absence.

While he's not expected to be on the current season, he has signed on to appear in the 11th season. According to Heavy.com, it was Matt's decision to leave the show temporarily in order to focus on getting clean. According to father Billy: "He's fighting a hard road. He has for a long time. We just try to let him know that family's here no matter what.

"Toy Story 4" (PG) -- Woody (Tom Hanks), Buzz Lightyear (Tim Allen) and the gang return in the fourth installment of the Pixar powerhouse series "Toy Story." Our newly minted kindergartener Bonnie creates a best friend out of craft-pile remnants and a plastic spork, but the new toy emerges with an existential crisis -- Why am I alive and not garbage? Woody responds by taking "Forky" (Tony Hale) under his wing. But when Bonnie takes the whole gang on a road trip vacation, Forky gets lost and Woody will need to enlist some old friends (the long-lost Bo Peep, voiced by Annie Potts) and new friends (Keanu Reeves as a motorcycle stuntman) to save him. As always, the Toy Story franchise isn't afraid to tackle the big ideas -- mortality, and what makes us who we are -- and give it the empathy it deserves.

"Midsommar" (R) -- Troubled college student Dani (Florence Pugh) has had her fair share of personal tragedy. And although her relationship with fellow student Christian (Jack Reynor) is on the rocks, she joins him and his friends for a trip to Sweden to witness a rare midsummer festival in a remote village. The sun overhead is unrelenting, but so is Dani's growing sense of unease with the villagers' rituals. The visitors are given psychedelics, which only exacerbate the burgeoning paranoia. As the festival unfolds, the invitees become part of the ceremonies in ways that they hadn't imagined.

"Annabelle Comes Home" (R) -- Right on time for Halloween party fare, we revisit the incredibly creepy facets of the Conjuring Universe. Experts in the field of demonic possession, Lorraine and Ed (Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson) attempt to once and for all squelch the threat of Annabelle's porcelain pout by encasing her in sanctified glass in their locked room of other dark objects. But when the parents are away, the kids will play -- including a family friend who sneaks into the locked lair and unknowingly releases Annabelle and a whole host of her unholy friends. It's creepy-scary, but not terribly

"Red Joan" (R) -- Was Joan Stanley (Judi Dench in present time, Sophie Cookson in flashbacks) a patriot or a traitor? This is the determination to be made when the octogenarian is arrested in a quiet English village. As a young college physics student at Cambridge, she became embroiled in a love affair with a Russian sympathizer who influenced her into later giving up

nuclear secrets learned in her job at a hush-hush research facility. The pace is a little slow and tedious, and Dench really isn't in it much. Based on the real-life story of Melita Norwood.

HOLLYWOOD -- The CW is preparing a reboot of "Walker, Texas Ranger" with "Supernatural" star Jared Padalecki in the title role. Padalecki played Dean Forester in "Gilmore Girls" from 2000-05 and then went right into "Supernatural" as Sam Winchester for the past 15 seasons. This will be a taller, younger Cordell Walker. Jared is 37 years old and stands 6 feet, 4 inches tall, while Chuck Norris was 53 when he was Walker and stood 5 feet, 10 inches.

How did the CW get the idea for Padalecki to play Walker? Maybe it was that 2011 episode of "Supernatural," in which he played the Texas ranger. Jared also starred in "House of Wax" (2005), with CW star Chad Michael Murray and Elisha Cuthbert. Notably, the audience always applauded when the villain got Paris Hilton. Jared wed actress Genevieve Cortese (whom he met on the set of "Supernatural") in 2010, and they have two sons and a daughter.

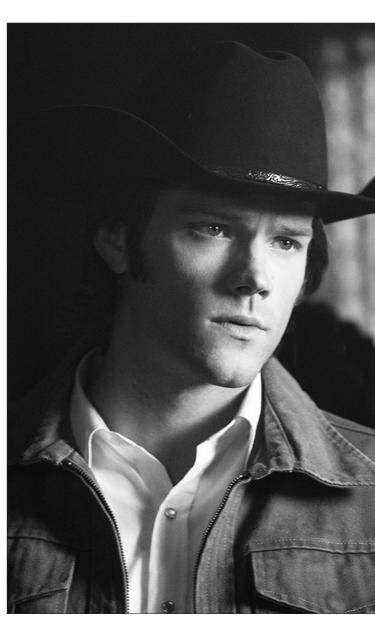

Norris, now 79, is wed to former model Gena O'Kelley, 23 years his junior. She brought two children to their union and had twins with him in 2001. Norris also has 13 grandchildren. His last film was "The Expendables 2," a virtual who's who of action stars with Sylvester Stallone, Jason Statham, Jet Li, Dolph Lundgren, Liam Hemsworth, Jean-Claude Van Damme, Bruce Willis and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Now that Sylvester Stallone has retired Rambo (so he says), he's far from retiring. He's currently shooting the thriller "Samaritan," about a young boy searching for a superhero who vanished 20 years earlier.

Could've eaten the "Downton Abbey" film with a spoon, it was that delicious. It was like the six years of the PBS series had never ended. Producers said before its release that a sequel would depend on how moviegoers greeted it, and judging from the box office response they're now considering making a "Downton Abbey" film every year as long as fans want them.

Ana de Armas, who impressed in "Blade Runner 2049," has three films ready for release: "Wasp Network," with Penelope Cruz and Gael Garcia Bernal; the mystery thriller "Knives Out," starring Daniel Craig, Chris Evans, Michael Shannon, Jamie Lee Curtis and Christopher Plummer (due Nov. 27); and the crime drama "The Night Clerk," with Tye Sheridan, Helen Hunt and John Leguizamo. She is set to play Marilyn Monroe next. The Netflix film is simply called "Blonde," and she'll have Oscar-winner Adrien Brody, Emmy-winner Bobby Cannavale and Lily Fisher supporting her. Also in the film is Chris Lemmon, whose father, Jack Lemmon, starred with Marilyn Monroe in "Some Like It Hot."

Carol Burnett returns to movies in the Netflix musical comedy "Sorta Like a Rock Star," about an abnormally optimistic teenage girl who must face a devastating loss. Does Carol pull her ear in movies? We'll find out!

Replace your cabin air filter

NE component that often goes unnoticed in late-model vehicles is the cabin air filter. This helpful filtration device is used to trap pollutants and dust traveling through your HVAC system before it enters the interior of your car.

Recommended interval changes dramatically differ based on your climate, driving conditions and time of year, but the American Automotive Association says most manufacturers recommend replacing it every 15,000 to 30,000 miles. The installation and part cost is relatively affordable so don't forgo a replacement at your repair facility's suggestion.

ls it really that important? Most vehicles

Most vehicles pre-2000 weren't equipped with cabin air filters. Instead, cabins were exposed to incoming particles caused by dust from other cars and exhaust from semi tractors. While it doesn't directly enhance or diminish your engine's performance like other filters, its presence is a huge contributor to the cleanliness of your cabin's air and integrity of the air conditioner.

Signs it's time for new The most common signs that it's time for a new cabin air filter is a musty odor coming from the vents. This occurs when contaminants and pollutants cause the filter to become clogged or overcome with debris.

The Car Care Council also suggests that a restriction of air flow from your HVAC system is a key indicator that there is trouble. Luckily, replacing the filtration unit is

Where it's located

While the location of a cabin filter may differ between automotive manufacturers, most are placed behind the glove compartment, under the hood or dashboard in most modern vehicles. If you plan to change the unit yourself, it can be a timesaver to refer to your owner's manual to quickly discover it. If you are without a guide, a professional repair facility can find it and determine if you are due for a replacement.

View your vehicle's computer

With cooler temperatures on the horizon, solving engine problems now can keep you from an uncomfortable situation on the side of the road.

OU already understand that a check engine light should be immediately addressed, but you may have been tempted to receive a free scan to see what the problem may be. Remember that these tools can only give you an idea of a persistent problem while sometimes leaving the real issue to become worse.

The best way to find out what your vehicle is trying to tell you is by visiting a repair shop with high-quality diagnostic tests. While they may charge a fee, some will cover the expense if you hire them to complete the repair. Building a relationship with a familiar facility is an efficient way to maintain your vehicle, affordably.

History of on-board diagnostics II

According to the International Council on Clean Transportation, the Air Resources Board adopted an OBD II Regulation in 1989. It replaced the previous OBD I system which required adapters to fit different vehicles and was limited to what it would reveal.

OBD II was standard beginning in 1994, but not fully implemented until 1996 for passenger cars and light-duty trucks. The software identifies issues through codes given from a vehicle's computer which is tuned in to nearly every emission-related component.

What it reveals When a check engine light is illuminated, it could be signifying an issue as simple as a loose gas cap or a serious problem being transmitted from an important sensor. Of course, this warning light should always be addressed but it can provide clues to its urgency.

For instance, during emergencies, the light will typically flash or beam red rather than amber. If this occurs, don't hesitate to park the vehicle and have it towed for a thorough inspection at your preferred repair facility. When the light is constant, the issue is less urgent but should still be addressed at your earliest convenience.

How consumers

The innovative system has changed the way technicians are able to diagnose and resolve complex problems. While software won't pinpoint a problem and explain in detail the repair, it provides knowledgeable mechanics a great perspective on where the issue lies, then, their expertise can take over.

This alleviates unnecessary repairs as techs aren't faced with guessing and making erroneous diagnoses. Consumers are also given foresight into issues that are on the verge of arising, allowing them to budget and prepare themselves for potential disaster.

Types of Tire Wear

Many view the wear and tear on tires as a necessary part of driving. While it's true the tread won't last forever, the way they wear can provide great clues into other problems and prolong their use once issues are resolved.

Traveling on degrading tires can leave you stranded with a flat or cause a dangerous blowout while driving. You can perform a quick check on your treads integrity by using an affordable depth gauge. This simple tool is pressed between tire grooves and reveals how much tread is left; the typical replacement level is when 2/32 of an inch is left but certain tire manufacturers may suggest it sooner.

If you don't have a gauge, the Car Care Council says to place an upside down penny between your tread. If any portion of President Lincoln's head is visible, the replacement threshold has been met. Here are a few ways your tires may prematurely wear and what it tells you about the condition of your vehicle.

CENTER WEAR

When you notice wear down the center but not on a tire's side, it usually indicates your rubber is overinflated. This instance causes them to bulge and leave the middle of a tire as the only section traveling down the road. To avoid this type of wear, inspect your pressure periodically and ensure it maintains levels which are recommended by the manufacturer.

SIDE WEAR

Alternatively, uneven wear featured on your tire's side often means they are underinflated. When you are adamant about filling them up to the correct levels but still notice the sides fading faster, it's a good indication that your car is out of alignment or a steering component is defective.

FLAT SPOTS

Another instance that affects the middle of a tire is caused by aggressive braking or emergency stops. If you notice this wear but don't remember making sudden stops, you should have an expert check the integrity of your braking system.

CUPPING

When you notice visual scoops missing in your tire tread, it's commonly due to faulty shock absorbers or other suspension components.

Fortunately, you can usually feel the vehicle bouncing as you drive so you can identify a problem that must be resolved quickly.

FALL CAR CARE | MAJOR SYSTEMS

Is your Exhaust System Exhausted?

Out of sight, out of mind. Underneath your vehicle is a crucial system of pipes that allow your vehicle to operate optimally. Without them, the roadways and environment would be completely different than how we view them today.

Make an exhaust inspection a part of your regular maintenance. Once your vehicle is on the rack for an oil change, a technician has a clear view of any defects or foreseeable problems. Cracks, leaks or loose joints can cause a world of problems and may even deem your vehicle inoperable in certain areas

THE ROLE OF AN EXHAUST SYSTEM

A key role of your exhaust is to keep the people inside the cabin safe. It reroutes dangerous gases created in the engine to dispel outside.

Understanding how your exhaust system works can encourage you to take its maintenance serious. Here is a breakdown of the important components, from the Car Care Council.

Muffler: Deadens the noises and explosions made by a properly functioning engine.

Catalytic converters:

Typically contains two catalysts one to subdue nitrogen-oxide pollution and the other to oxidize it to turn carbon monoxide into carbon dioxide.

Oxygen sensors: Mounted in the exhaust system, they monitor oxygen levels to ensure the engine and converters operate properly.

Fortunately, most exhaust system problems will be revealed by a check engine light.

SYMPTOMS OF DEGRADING EXHAUST

Besides a warning light, many exhaust symptoms can be realized by listening for unusual sounds. A muffler is loaded with baffles, or metallic chambers to cancel out the sound of the engine.

When they begin to be compromised, it often means the linkage inside is degrading, which may lead to a rattling noise. Catalytic converters also show physical signs of wear by the inside materials becoming loose. Rubber mounts are another key component to an efficient exhaust system. If they become loose, it's not uncommon for your pipes to cause a thumping sound as you travel over railroads or potholes. More serious issues include an exhaust smell inside the cabin. This commonly means there is a leak and should be addressed immediately. You may also notice differences in performance like reduced gas mileage or if a vehicle runs hotter than normal.

NEW CAR BUYING GUIDE | FINANCES

Get the most for your trade-in

One of your biggest forms of leverage when buying a brand new vehicle is the amount you receive on your trade

EPENDING on its value, it can make a significant difference on your financing terms and even interest rates. Do the research on your vehicle's worth and use it to your advantage during negotiations.

Before heading to the dealership, make sure your potential trade is in pristine condition. While a professional detail may be an unwelcome expense, it may be the difference between an acceptable offer or one that makes you look elsewhere. A key factor dealers and appraisers look for is the condition of a vehicle and how much it will cost them to recondition it before it's ready for their used car lot.

Determine the value

It's important to have a general idea of your trade-in's value before accepting an offer from a dealer. Use online resources like Kelley Blue Book to determine its worth based on its condition, features and mileage. This general guideline will reveal what you should expect at a dealership versus its value in a private sale.

Trade-in or private sale

When you're deciding which avenue to take to unload a vehicle, it's a question regarding value versus convenience. Selling to a dealer to put the cost toward a down payment makes the process simple. They will value the vehicle, consider how much attention it needs to be sale ready, and restore it for their used lot. However, the downside is you will walk away with much less profit than when selling to a private party.

If you have the time and budget to purchase a new vehicle without a trade in, there is great value in a private sale. Many choose to forgo this route because of the time investment it requires. You must be prepared to advertise, negotiate with buyers and ensure taxes and paperwork is transferred legally.

Negotiations

If you decide to take a traditional trade-in route, make sure to shop around with different dealerships. If one is offering a better deal, you can use it in your favor to negotiate more attractive terms between the facilities.

FALL CAR CARE | SAFETY

Check your lights

TTH fall around the corner, the days are getting shorter. Ensure your vehicle is safe to operate for nighttime driving by checking your entire lighting system.

Properly working bulbs are important to signify your intentions to other drivers and highlight the road in front of you.

It's important to understand how to change your vehicle's lights and the types of bulbs that are used for illumination.

For some newer vehicles, a simple headlight change isn't always the case and requires an expert to dismantle a front end or replace an innovative HID bulb.

Some options with LED brake lights may even require a complete replacement of the rear assemblies. Check with your local dealership to get estimates and prepare yourself for the costs you should budget for so you're not left in the dark due to an unaffordable repair.

Headlights

If you don't often drive at night, you may not realize you have a bulb out until it's too late. You may find yourself struggling to see the oncoming road or being stopped by a law enforcement agent and receiving a warning or expensive fine.

With someone else in the vehicle, ask them to flip on both the low- and high-beams. You should also inspect for working fog and daytime running lights. Some newer vehicles forgo a traditional halogen bulb and use an HID system. They are beneficial interms of longevity and brightness, but rely on an expensive system of components like ballasts and an igniter.

Interior

Inside your cabin are even more lights that help keep you safe. In addition to analyzing your dome bulbs, it's likely your dashboard relies on illumination to highlight essential gauges like the speedometer, fuel levels and warning systems. After you determine it's a bulb issue and not a blown fuse, replacing dash lights includes taking out the instrument cluster and may be best left to a professional.

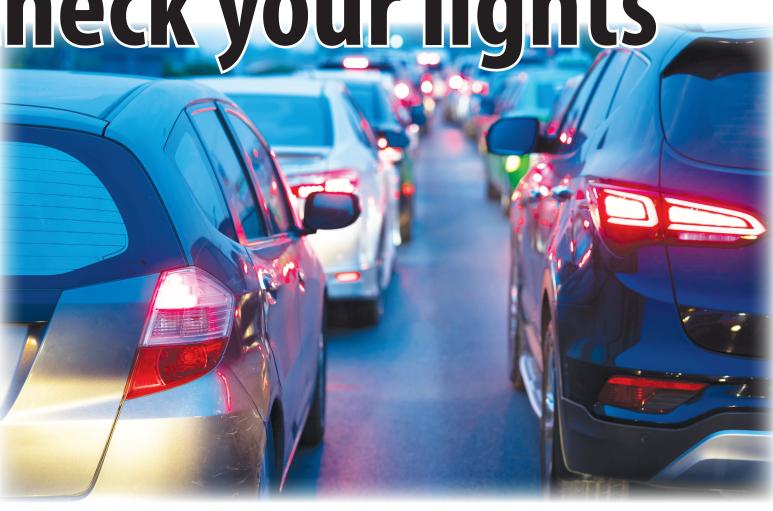

Stop and turn

You should also take the time to ensure the rear of your vehicle is illuminated. Make sure the stoplight and turn bulbs are working properly as well as license plate lights. Your blinkers will usually warn you of a problem inside the cabin by blinking quickly when the switch is engaged.

Did you know?

When shopping for auto loans, prospective car buyers should limit their loan shopping to a two-week period. Many auto buyers now shop for auto loans separately from shopping for cars, first arranging financing via a bank, credit union or other lender, and then beginning their search for their next car or truck. While that can help buyers secure low interest rates and borrower-friendly loan terms, buyers should know that each time they apply for loans their credit scores dip. The lower a prospective borrower's credit score, the harder it becomes for that person to secure the best loan rate. However, according to the online financial resource Bankrate.com, applicants who can file all of their loan applications within a two-week period will only have those applications count as one credit inquiry. That means applicants' credit scores will only fall once as opposed to several times for prospective buyers who apply for loans sporadically over the course of several weeks or months. Potential borrowers also should know that once they have prequalified for loans and found a car or truck they want to buy, they can then present their loans terms to the dealership and ask if the dealer can beat the terms, potentially saving them more money over the life of the loan.

We Do It All – Give Us A Try!

HILE we may not be able to set a destination and catch a quick nap while all our vehicles do all the work, technology has made staying safe on the road more feasible than ever. Here are some innovative features to look for in your brand-new vehicle, as suggested by the

Automatic emergency braking systems

Considered the next wave of potentially significant advances in accident avoidance, an AEB system detects an impending forward collision and uses tactics to avoid the impact. With the use of sensors and cameras, the system can automatically engage the brakes to lessen the risks of an accident or mitigate its severity.

Backup camera

These unique camera systems give us an eagle-eye view of the surroundings behind us. They are beneficial in avoiding backing into other vehicles and more importantly small children who may not be visible in the rear window.

Most systems engage when the vehicle is put into reverse and display a clear image on an infotainment center or even the rearview mirror. As of May 2018, the NHTSA requires this life-saving tool to be standard on all new vehicles.

Lane assist

Even drivers who are committed to safety can find themselves distracted. Sometimes, life happens when the kids are being rowdy in the backseat or our minds drift to stressful situations in our lives. Fortunately, lane assist features can alert us that we're drifting out of our space or even overtake steering controls to maintain a vehicle's place in its lane.

This same type of system is also beneficial in alerting drivers of hazards in their blind spot before changing lanes. Detection sensors will provide an audio or visual warning when it is unsafe to make a move. It's beneficial to avoid emergency braking for other drivers, rollovers and fatal collisions.

When researching different vehicles, make sure to check the available safety features. While some are available on a base package, more innovative technology is only included in more expensive sub-model options.

NEW CAR BUYING GUIDE | TRY BEFORE YOU BUY

Should you rent before buying?

VERYONE knows an important part of the car-buying experience is the test drive. While you can learn a lot about how a vehicle performs after taking a short cruise around the dealership, a way to get a more intimate experience is by renting the same model you are considering buying.

Not only will it take the pressure of a salesman off your shoulders, you can get a great idea about how it will fit into your daily life.

If your local dealership doesn't have a rental program, consider visiting an independent facility who offers a wide variety of vehicles. Unless a vehicle is undergoing a major upgrade from an automaker, it's common that previous models will be extremely similar to their brand new counterparts.

Before walking on to a dealership's lot to make an offer, consider making a long-term test drive to become familiar with the perfect vehicle.

Determine the right size

You may think that a heavy-duty pickup truck would make a great addition to your garage. However, it's common for unfamiliar drivers to be overwhelmed with the amount of power new models have and realize a smaller, more affordable option would have met their needs.

Whether you're looking for a small coupe or sedan or a spacious SUV or truck to travel the country with your family, renting different sizes of vehicles can be a beneficial tactic when choosing which model fits.

Incorporate it in your daily life

An advantage you gain by renting a vehicle is the amount of time you get to discover how it will perform during your daily routine. Spend a few days driving to the places you frequent like work, dropping the kids off at school and chores around town.

Since new vehicles can be such a significant investment, it's in your best interest to become familiar with its features and driveability. It can help you avoid buyer's regret by understanding exactly what you're buying.

Try a few models

Without digging too deep into your pockets, try and rent a few different vehicles before visiting a dealer's lot. Once you have the exact model in mind, the new car buying journey is streamlined as you already know what you're looking for.

You can typically choose from different engine and transmission options, interior features and aesthetically pleasing color schemes both inside and out. While advanced technology and luxury items can be enticing, premium models can also significantly raise the price tag. It's important to be honest with your budget and expectations of the new vehicle you plan to bring home.

Test different drivetrains

A common option that automakers offer consumers is the setup that powers a new car. Consider these different drivetrains and make sure to test drive these options to get an idea of how each performs.

Front-wheel drive and rear-wheel drive: When a car is advertised as FWD or RWD, it simply designates which set of wheels oversee propelling a vehicle.

Four-wheel drive: This setup is common in larger vehicles used for towing or heavy-duty purposes. Typically, the vehicle remains in RWD until a driver engages the front wheels, manually.

All-wheel drive: AWD is more common in small cars and SUVs and means that all wheels are constantly engaged. It is always beneficial when maintaining traction.

Common packages

When viewing new cars for sale, you should familiarize yourself with certain terms relating to available bundles. Here are two common packages you can expect, as suggested by Edmunds.

Cold-weather package: Usually includes heated seats, headlight washers and all-weather floor mats.

Technology package: Options include Bluetooth, navigation systems and adaptive cruise control.

Add on later

Additional accessories are also commonly sold and installed by dealerships to personalize a vehicle. Some items can include custom wheels, cosmetic parts or technological upgrades.

Rather than wrapping the costs of these options into your loan terms, you can save money by paying cash for these upgrades separately and avoid extra interest charges to your financing terms.
