ROCHELLE — The Rochelle Municipal Utilities electric department was recently recognized by the American Public Power Association (APPA) for achieving exceptional electric reliability in 2023.

The APPA is a trade group that represents more than 2,000 not-for-profit, community-owned electric utilities like RMU. APPA helps electric utilities track power outage and restoration data through its subscription-based eReliability Tracker service. Once per year, APPA's Reliability Team compares this data to national statistics tracked by the U.S. Energy Information Administration for all types of electric utilities.

RMU Superintendent of Electric Operations Blake Toliver said RMU was recognized due to being in the top 25 percent of reliable utilities in the nation. The City of Rochelle's electric utility also achieved the same recognition last year and in 2020.

"By law, we're required to log every outage we have to the federal government,"Toliver said. "At the end of every year, the

The Rochelle Municipal Utilities electric department was recently recognized by the American Public Power Association (APPA) for achieving exceptional electric reliability in 2023.

APPA looks at everybody's outage statistics and we were recognized. That's comparing us against all utilities, not just municipal utilities. All utilities are allowed to throw out their largest outage so it's a fair comparison. But we don't throw that out. We leave all of our outages in. I'm very happy to see we made it into the top 25 percent despite leaving the largest outages in there."

City Manager Jeff Fiegenschuh called the recognition "very important" especially among large utilities. He believes it shows the city's utility is serving its purpose and recent reinvestment into electric infrastructure is working. He praised RMU's staff for minimizing outages.

Toliver said the award "means a lot" to his department.

"It means the money we're reinvesting in our system is working and improving the reliability of our system," Toliver said. "With being recognized two years in a row, we're seeing our reliability going up and our outage times going down. In a lot of our outage statistics, we're under 60 minutes for restoration, which is huge. We used to be at about 90 minutes and now we're under 60 in most cases. Recently we had a storm and we were all geared up for it. We didn't have a single outage. And it did get pretty windy and we had some heavy rains."

Roberts to retire after 17 years, two stints with OCEC 'It's contagious when you see such commitment from other people...'

BY JEFF HELFRICH MANAGING EDITOR

ROCHELLE — At the end of the school year, Rochelle Township High School School Psychologist Chris Roberts will retire after serving at the school since 2007.

Roberts' position at the school is through the Ogle County Educational Cooperative. He also does school psychologist work at Steward Elementary School. The OCEC provides special education services and programs for students with disabilities who are 3-21 years of age and residents of Ogle County. It also provides services for some Lee County schools.

Roberts started his school psychologist career with an internship in Kankakee before working in Freeport for three years. He came to the OCEC in 1987 and during that time he primarily worked in the Rochelle Elementary School District and early childhood program. He then left the profession for 12 years before returning to the OCEC in 2007, placed full-time at RTHS. He has previously worked with St. Paul Lutheran School in Rochelle as well.

Roberts graduated from Princeton High School and Illinois State University. His inspiration to get into the school psychology field came from a neighbor and his parents.

"I'd never heard of a school psychologist or what that was," Roberts said. "My next door neighbor was a director of special education. I was in my senior year and she and I were talking one day and she told me to think about becoming a school psychologist. It was out of the blue and she was wondering what I wanted to do."

RMU: Rochelle department honored by APPA for service in 2023

"The money that we're reinvesting is truly going to work.'

Toliver has worked for RMU's electric department for 11 years. He recalls times where it couldn't go a week without an outage, and now there are times where RMU makes it a month or two without one.

"And back then outages would occasionally even happen on nice, sunny days," Toliver said.

"We're changing our construction practices, doing better with vegetation management, focusing on problem areas, and undergrounding lines. All of these little things that we're doing with the money we have are making a difference."

Mayor John Bearrows said the APPA recognition speaks volumes about RMU's staff and its dedication to keeping the lights on for customers and responding quickly to outages and fixing them. Fiegenschuh agreed.

"We talk about rates and providing the best service at the lowest cost, but at the end of the day what people really want is reliability," Fiegenschuh said. "They want to flip the switch and have the lights turn on at their home or business. When you receive an award that recognizes our reliability and our efforts to reinvest in our system, that's the best award we can receive."

In its system, RMU maintains 170 miles of overhead line, the most susceptible of infrastructure to nature, wildlife and accidents.

"It takes a long time to make improvements to and maintenance all of that," Toliver said. "It's trimming trees, putting wildlife protection up, and having current transformers. There's a lot of work that goes into making sure that this stuff is reliable equipment that's going to be there for the long haul for us. We focus on our problem areas to make them more reliable."

"She explained it to me and told me there was a huge shortage, which there still is. She kind of planted that in my head. My mom was an English teacher and my dad worked with adults with disabilities. So in some ways, what I do is kind of a combination of that. I was exposed to those professions."

Along with watching the OCEC itself grow over the years, Roberts has witnessed changes in his field and in education in general.

"Computers have been a big change," Roberts said. "We've gone basically paperless this year and we've had online individualized education programs (IEPs) and special education documentations since 2009. Technology has been the biggest change in my career that I can remember. And working through that change has been a challenge. It all boils down to having a good relationship with teachers. People tend to learn more when they have a good relationship with teachers."

While he may do some part-time work in retirement, Roberts said it will be "emotionally tough" to leave the school upon his retirement this year. He plans to spend more time with his family and friends and less time on his work, which he said can be high-pace.

Among the things Roberts will miss most is seeing educators that he's built connections with over the years on a daily basis.

"I've had so many connections through the years," Roberts said. "When you're in the same school for quite a few years, you build a lot of goodconnections and see all of the wonderful work the staff does that some people never see. You're amazed at the dedication of these educators."

In 2020 and the years that have followed, Roberts saw the COVID-19 pandemic's impact on education and the students and staff he works with. He said more issues have been seen with anxiety, anxiety disorders and depression, and social emotional needs of students have intensified.

The effects of the pandemic have caused Roberts and staff to reorient thinking on what services and supports those students need.

"We've had to go and do some structured interventions and services,"Roberts said. "Some kids got to the point where they needed a plan of accommodations that they might need to be successful throughout the day or an IEP for special education services and support. And it's been like that in the entire country. That's been a significant need here. I've spent a lot of time with teachers and counselors talking about certain students, especially in the past two years in particular. It all started with the pandemic. We had a huge increase in that concern."

Roberts said he has three interconnected reasons why he enjoys his work: Students, staff and parents. He said positivity and wanting students to succeed is contagious among all three of those groups, and for his own work.

"Almost without exception, kids want to succeed, the parents want them to succeed academically and in life, and the teachers do too,"Roberts said. "It's contagious when you see such commitment from other people that you're working with, and you just join that team. It's infectious. And that's the way education should be. And it should be fun too. I think the teachers doanawesomejoboftrying to make it fun. That's the main reason I've stayed here for 17 years, that infectious spirit of trying to reach and educate these kids. In this community, it's easy to have that infectious spirit. It's not like that everywhere."

Roberts started his school psychologist career with an internship in Kankakee before working in Freeport for three years. He came to the OCEC in 1987 and during that time he primarily worked in the Rochelle Elementary School District and early childhood program.

In his 40-year career, Roberts has been amazed by the accomplishments he's seen by students with special needs. He's seen students with disabilities with an inner drive to succeed, disregarding their limitations. He's always felt part of his job was to assist students in trying to be successful in whatever work or personal independence they could achieve.

"There have been some kids that have done some phenomenal things both academically and in sports," Roberts said. "I've seen students achieve in paralympics and travel the world doing it. And I've seen students achieve at a very high level in college. That's been a fantastic part of my job to see that growth."

Roberts has watched the culture in special education change over the years. Now when making IEPs, the first thing on the list is strengths of the student, not challenges. He's enjoyed seeing that point reached in the industry.

Another shift Roberts has seen is more overlap in special education and general education.

"I've always been impressed by the dedication of people I've worked with," Roberts said. "The administration and staff have all been very supportive and complimentary, working as a team. Over the years, sometimes people think special education and general education are separate. They've merged more and more and we work as a team. That's another huge change I've seen in 40 years and that mentality is present here at RTHS."

Pretrial Success Act: A $15 million investment in our communities' renaissance ber, Illinois em-I barked on a trailblazing journey toward justice by enacting the Pretrial Fairness Act, making it the first state in the nation to eliminate money bail. The law's smooth and successful implementation has ensured that more people are now able to return to their communities while awaiting trial. That means more people are maintaining employment, housing and connections with loved ones, which makes us all safer. Illinois is now poised to take another bold step forward, with the Pretrial Success Act, introduced by state Sen. Elgie Sims and state Rep. Maurice West. This legislation builds upon the Pretrial Fairness Act by constructing a support system for people awaiting trial in the community, with a proposed $15 million investment designed to expand access to health and sources will help increase court appearance rates by addressing practical barriers such as transportation and child care, and will also improve community safety by expanding access to case management, mental health care, and substance use treatment. These services are not just crucial for individuals' ability to engage in their defense but are instrumental in addressing the root causes of harm and violence. By focusing on underlying challenges that might have brought someone into contact with law enforcement, the Pretrial Success Act is poised to help minimize future legal system encounters, creating a more preventative rather than punitive approach to justice.

Sims' and West's legislation will transform lives and communities. By prioritizing investment in our state's most marginalized neighborhoods — those most affected by the injustices of the money bond system — the lawmakers aim to help rebuild com-

At the heart of the Success Act is a commitment to empowering community-based organizations. While it's important to acknowledge that the $15 million allocated by the act won't fully address the need for services, it represents a significant step toward better resource accessibility within our communities. This funding will empower case managers to tailor their support to meet individuals' specific needs in their unique circumstances. A perfect example of such support is the Specialized Case Management program offered by Treatment Alternatives for Safe Communities (TASC), which is designed to guide individuals through challenging times by addressing their immediate needs and fostering a supportive partnership. The Pretrial Success Act will facilitate organizations like TASC in extending this kind of personalized assistance to more Illinois residents, helping them navigate their lives positively while awaiting trial at home. Historically, the money bond system extracted millions of dollars from Illinois' Bradley most marginalized Bullock neighborhoods, amplifying cycles of poverty and instability. The Pretrial Success Act represents a significant shift. By funding services that address the root causes of harm and violence, the bill promises not only to reduce pretrial detention rates, but also to foster a holistic healing and strengthening of communities most impacted by systemic inequities. Providing individuals with the resources they need to address underlying challenges contributes to a safer, more stable environment for everyone. When people receive support for mental health issues or substance use, they are less likely to re-engage with the criminal justice system, thereby reducing the cycle of crime and incarceration. For instance, programs like those offered by Treatment Alternatives for Safe Communities (TASC) have shown promising outcomes in reducing recidivism; participants in such programs were 44% less likely to return to prison within three years compared to similar individuals who did not receive these services.

The path toward safer communities and a fairer justice system is paved with support, not detention. Now is the moment for Illinois to lead once again by example. The Pretrial Success Act is our chance to financially invest in a healthy, safe, and more just society, to demonstrate that we are committed to the wellbeing of all our citizens, regardless of their circumstances. This is a perfect opportunity to advance pretrial justice to ensure that our justice system is a source of support and not a barrier to progress.

Bradley Bullock is the director of adult criminal justice and treatment services at TASC. He oversees TASC's statewide adult criminal justice services, from pre-arrest diversion through court and probation. In recovery from addiction since 1988, Brad sits on many community-based committees and is a strong advocate for individuals and families affected by justice involvement, substance use disorders, and mental health conditions.

Chambers: The teacher shortage is real

Kimberly

have been fortunate to spend 22 years in the school human resources role. More recently, I have also been working as the executive director of the Illinois Association of School Personnel Administrators (IASPA) representing more than 560 educational human resources professionals in Illinois. We are here to tell you: The teacher shortage is real. At the start of my career, it was so easy to find teachers in some areas (looking at you, high school English and PE) that filling vacancies was not a worry. The landscape has completely changed. Join any group of educational human resources folks, and you will hear us worrying about staffing shortages. We search high and low to find qualified candidates for all our positions traveling to job fairs and posting our jobs on sites far and wide. While some districts are struggling to find a single, great candidate for a position, other districts are forced to go without. Whether it is an elementary art position or a high school science position, there are classrooms in Illinois where students do not have the benefit of a qualified teacher ... all year long.

The statistics are alarming. According to the National Center for Education Statistics, 53% of public schools reported being understaffed entering the 2022-23 school year. Nearly 20% of teachers leave their positions within the first three years, and approximately 40-50% leave within the first five years (NCES). This turnover not only disrupts continuity in classrooms but also places a significant strain on school resources as we continue to invest in recruitment and retention of new talent. Furthermore, we know the pandemic exacerbated this issue. The challenges of remote learning, concerns about health and safety, and the overall stress of the past couple of years have driven even more teachers out of the profession. How could this not impact students' decision to go into the field of education? It's no wonder that enrollment in teacher preparation programs has been declining steadily indicating a shrinking pipeline of new educators entering the field.

As educational leaders, it is our responsibility to address these systemic issues and create an environment where teachers feel respected, valued, and adequately compensated for their contributions. This requires a multi-faceted approach that encompasses policy reforms, increased investment in education, and innovative strategies to attract and retain educators. This year's Illinois Association of Regional Superintendents of Schools (IARSS) survey on the teacher shortage indicates that while schools are making encouraging progress in filling classrooms, more work needs to be done.

IASPA is working hard to be part of the solution. We routinely offer professional learning to help combat the teacher shortage. This year's annual conference in January included six breakout sessions related to hiring, retention, the educator pipeline, student teachers, and creating pathways to teaching.

Our April 26 online Administrator Academy, Managing Bias In Hiring-Inclusive Hiring Practices, aims to ensure that hiring administrators are trained to manage a fair and equitable hiring process. Since 2022, IASPA has hosted the Illinois Virtual Educator Job Fair, an opportunity for school districts and candidates to connect in a synchronous, online fashion without needing to be out of the office or incur the expenses of travel. Our March 6, 2024, job fair included more than 1,200 candidates! The next is scheduled for June 6, 2024. The teacher shortage is a complex issue that requires a concerted effort from all stakeholders. By investing in our teachers and administrators, supporting their professional growth, and advocating for policy reforms, we can build a stronger future for all kids in Illinois.

Dr. Kimberly Chambers serves as executive director of IASPA and is director of human resources at Adlai E. Stevenson High School District 125 in Lincolnshire

Fehr Graham recognized as Engineering News-Record Top 500 Design Firm

ROCKFORD – Fehr Graham, a leading Midwest engineering and environmental firm, again secured a spot on the Engineering News-Record (ENR) Top 500 Design Firms list, ranking No. 474. The firm ranked No. 494 in 2022 and 471 in 2023.

This marks the third consecutive year the firm has been featured on the prestigious list, which ranks the largest engineering consulting firms in the United States based on design service revenue for the previous year.

Fehr Graham President Mick Gronewold is happy with the firm's steady recognition.

"Every day, our team is committed to solving problems for clients," Gronewold said. "Being named to the ENR list again doesn't just recognize our firm's capabilities – it celebrates thepositivechangewemake in the communities where we operate and where our employees call home."

Founded on Sept. 15, 1973, in Freeport, by Al Fehr and Joe Graham, Fehr Graham has expanded from a single office with five employees to 15 offices across three states with 230 people. LOTS: Bearrows, Fiegenschuh discuss potential fixed bus routes in Rochelle

City of Rochelle Mayor John Bearrows and City Manager Jeff Fiegenschuh spoke with the News-Leader on April 17 and said they hope to see the fixed bus route come to fruition in Rochelle.

"I think it will help lift peoples' quality of life," Fiegenschuh said. "It's not just about getting to work, it's about getting to the doctor, going shopping and more. There are a lot of opportunities with it. Transportation is key to quality of life. I really hope they determine it's something that's feasible in Rochelle and I'd urge the mayor and council that we try to find some funding to help them if they ask for it. Because I do think it will greatly benefit residents."

LOTS is publicly-funded and has not asked the city for funding help for the potential bus route. The project is still in the information-gathering phase. The eight-month study will be wrapped up in August and a final report will be made. There will be more opportunities for the community to provide input. In June, another community presentation will likely be held that will include draft routes and schedules. Fiegenschuh said the city may be interested in helping with a one-time funding contribution if asked, and if the mayor and city council approved it. The city manager said the potential bus route likely wouldn't necessitate infrastructure improvements on the city's Bearrows said that the council is "always supportive" of programs that will benefit seniors and residents. He said that along with quality of life, a potential fixed bus route could help to improve safety in the city.

"We have plants down

A brief survey to gather information on the potential fixed bus routes can be found at surveymonkey.com/r/ LOTS. City of Rochelle Mayor John Bearrows and City Manager Jeff Fiegenschuh spoke with the News-Leader on April 17 and said they hope to see the fixed bus route come to fruition in Rochelle.

on Wiscold Drive that folks ride their bikes to and they're crossing train tracks and in an area where there's truck traffic," Bearrows said. "They do it because they have to get to work. If we had this bus route, it could pick them up at one of the many stops in town and get to their job without any risk of getting hit on a bike trying to come down Illinois Route 251 or Wiscold Drive. Safety is a key element along with quality of life. This is something we as a city have to help with to try to help our residents. I'm all for it. My first question was what the cost will be to the city. They just wanted to talk for the study and weren't asking for money."

LOTS currently provides an advanced reservation-based, sharedride public transportation system, operating Monday-Friday 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The in-town fare is $2 ($1 for seniors, veterans and those with disabilities). The out-of-town fee is capped at $10 or $5 for the discounted categories. Getting into the fixed-route service would be new for LOTS.

Public meetings covered where bus stops could potentially be located, how many routes there would be, what times the routes would take place, and what the cost would be, if there is a cost at all. Fixed bus routes are required to be ADA-compliant.

Bearrows said he'd like to see commercial and industrial businesses work with LOTS on a potential fixed bus route by sponsoring bus stops and possibly shelters for people waiting for the bus.

During his time in a previous position in Rantoul, Illinois, Fiegenschuh saw a fixed-route system instituted that found success. He provided that experience and feedback to LOTS in a recent meeting.

"They interviewed me and I gave them specific locations," Fiegenschuh said. "It needs to serve all residents. You want to focus on folks with disabilities and our seniors and people of low-to-moderate income. And I told them to temper their expectations in initial ridership. You have to get the word out about it. People go for groceries, to healthcare facilities, banks, The REC Center, parks, and downtown. It's not easy to figure out. It's a great opportunity for a lot of partnerships. I hope if they deem it as something that can be sustainable in our community, that we start small and work our way out."

Hub vaults to school record

Nuyen breaks 41-year-old mark during 50th Annual Ogle County Invitational

BY RUSSELL HODGES

SPORTS EDITOR

ROCHELLE—Spectators slowly clapped their hands as Rochelle sophomore Andrew Nuyen attempted to make history during the 50th Annual Ogle County Invitational on Tuesday evening.

Already an indoor state champion in the pole vault from earlier this season, Nuyen found himself inches away from breaking Rochelle's 41-year-old school record of 15 feet set by John Place in 1983. Having cleared 14 feet 9 inches during Tuesday's meet, which broke the previous meet record set by Oregon's Jake Mennen in 2019, Nuyen set his sights on the school record.

Nuyen failed on his first two attempts at the record height, but with his third and final attempt still remaining, the sophomore stood on the runway, raising his hands as onlookers began to clap their hands in support. With a burst of speed, Nuyen started his third attempt, planting his pole into the ground and soaring high into the sky, maneuvering his body over the bar with just a few inches to spare and landas Rochelle's new school record holder.

"It feels amazing," Nuyen said. "I was really excited and I had a lot of friends run up to me to congratulate me after setting the record. I used the energy from my friends and that helped me get over the bar. I just told myself think I'm peaking at the right time. I knew I had the height, but I wasn't able to put it together until today.

Nuyen's record-setting performance won him first place in the pole vault and helped the Rochelle Hub varsity track and field team finish second out of five schools with 119 points in Tuesday's meet, which featured boys and girls from Oregon, Byron, Stillman Valley and Forreston. The Rochelle Lady Hub varsity track and field team also took second in the meet, scoring 96 points. Both teams honored their senior student-athletes in a brief ceremony near the start of the meet.

Hubs celebrate Senior Night with win over Harlem Rochelle honors five senior athletes before 4-1 victory on Wednesday evening

BY RUSSELL HODGES

SPORTS EDITOR

ROCHELLE Wednesday was a successful Senior Night for the Rochelle Hub varsity tennis team, which honored its five seniors before facing the Harlem Huskies in nonconference play.

After scoring a road win over Dixon on Tuesday, Rochelle returned home on Wednesday and continued rounding into form with the Interstate 8 Conference tournament and the IHSA 1 A Sectional around the corner. The Hubs swept both singles matches while taking two of the three doubles matches to secure a 4-1 win over the Huskies. Rochelle celebrated five seniors including Jimmy Chavez, Parker Lenkaitis, Alex McBride, Eli Luxton and Austin Raleigh.

"It's rare to have a kid in any sport for all four years, so having both Jimmy and Parker here to lay the groundwork for what we started has been great," head coach Kristy Eckardt said. "Both of them have been leaders. Alex has been a solid returning player and both Austin and Eli have been a pleasant surprise this year... We're starting to peak when we need to and we've played some really good tennis over the last few meets. We're ready to show what we're made of."

Rochelle (5-8, 1-4 Interstate 8) took a 1-0 lead over Harlem after sophomore Philip Winters took the No. 2 singles match against Gerardo Valadez, dropping only one game in a 6-0, 6-1 win. The Hubs claimed their first doubles points soon after, with Luxton and Raleigh defeating Avery Coyle and Connar Edwards 6-1, 6-4 in the No. 3 doubles match to put Rochelle ahead 2-0.

"Senior Day was a day I had been looking forward to since my freshman year," Chavez said. "I would always get emotional seeing all of the guys I looked up to have their Senior Days, so it meant a lot to win because I've been in this program for all four years of high school and I've given my all to this program... We had a rough start to the season, but that doesn't matter anymore and we're at full form now. We're excited for sectionals and I know we can handle it."

Chavez clinched the team win for the Hubs, beating Luka Miljanic 6-3, 6-3 in the No. 1 singles match and giving the Hubs

"I've put in a lot of hard work over the last four years and it feels great to be playing well at the end of the season, especially with conference and sectionals coming up," Lenkatis said. "We're starting to clean up a lot of our mistakes and we're playing much more consistent tennis, which is a good thing... The

Hubs start LaSalle-Peru series with two losses

RTHS falls to 0-11 in Interstate 8 after back-to-back defeats against Cavaliers

LASALLE — Solid outings from freshman Brody Bruns and junior Brandyn Metzger weren't enough for the Rochelle

Hub varsity baseball team on Wednesday evening, when the purple and white continued their Interstate 8 Conference series against the LaSalle-Peru Cava-

Bruns tossed the first four innings and struck out four batters while holding LaSalle-Peru to two earned runs on four hits. Metzger followed with two innings of relief, limiting the Cavaliers to one earned run on one hit with one strikeout. But the Hubs were unable to generate much offense on Wednesday, finishing with only four hits in a 3-1 loss. Rochelle (4-15, 0-11 Interstate 8) will at-lead in the bottom of the first inning. Seth Adams hit a one-out single before scoring on a sacrifice fly from Jacob Gross in the bottom of the third inning, allowing LaSalle-Peru to surge ahead 2-0. The Cavaliers went ahead 3-0 after an RBI single from Alex Galindo in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Rochelle avoided the shutout with one run on two hits in the top of the seventh inning, where juniors Carson Lewis and Brandyn Metzger smacked back-to-back singles to start the frame. Lewis eventually scored on a fielder's choice grounder from senior Chandler Cunningham.

Juniors Elijah Harley and Breydan Andrews each hit RBI singles to spark the Rochelle Hub varsity baseball team during Monday's Interstate 8 game against LaSalle-Peru.

Trailing 5-0 entering the bottom of the fourth inning, Rochelle cut the deficit to three after a trio of singles including two run-scoring knocks from Harley and Andrews. The Hubs threatened to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth inning, but a strikeout ended a promising opportunity and allowed the Cavaliers to escape with a 5-2 win. Rochelle (4-14, 0-10 Interstate 8) will continue its three-game set against LaSalle-Peru with a road matchup on Wednesday evening.

Jack Jereb smacked a lead-off single and scored on an RBI double from Brendan Boudreau, who then crossed home plate on a wild pitch to give the Cavaliers a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning. The Hubs loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the first inning, where junior Ethan Goodwin reached on an error before senior Brock Metzger and freshman Brody Bruns each slapped singles. But a flyout and a groundout dashed Rochelle's scoring chances.

the second inning, where Brandon Foreman scored on a wild pitch and Brady Romagnoli doubled before touching home on a steal. Jackson Piecha put the Cavaliers ahead 5-0 after an RBI double in the top of the third inning that scored Jacob Gross. Harley and Andrews made the score 5-2 with RBI knocks in the bottom of the fourth. Metzger started on the mound and threw six innings for Rochelle, striking out four batters. Goodwin entered in relief and fired a scoreless frame, retiring the Cavaliers in order.

MOTHER'S DAY

Great gifts for moms from all walks of life

OTHER'S Day is an opportunity to show moms how much they're loved and appreciated. Though many moms may insist they don't want anything beyond spending the day with their children, gifts are a big part of Mother's Day.

No two moms are the

No two moms are the same, and though standards like flowers and greeting cards will always have a place on Mother's Day, the following are some gift ideas that can put smiles on the faces of moms from all walks of life.

There's no end to the gift options for mothers who love to curl up with a good book. Of course, some new books may delight Mom, but gifts that can improve the reading experience also merit consideration. For example, an ergonomic backrest reading pillow can make bedtime reading sessions more comfortable and ensure Mom's neck and back get ample support as she reads the latest page-turner. A nightstand book holder also can be ideal for moms who can't seem to keep track of their bookmarks.

Some moms simply love to get in a good workout. Shoppers whose mothers or wives love to break a sweat might want to look into home gym equipment, as many fitness enthusiasts transformed part of their homes into exercise areas during the pandemic. If that sounds like the mom on your shopping list, then a suspension training system won't take up much room but can provide an intense, full-body workout. A new yoga mat, some wireless Bluetooth headphones or a compression stretching mat are some additional gifts that might make exercise-loving moms smile this Mother's Day.

Moms whose children still live under the same roof may not have much opportunity to travel, but empty nesters and grandmothers might. For such moms, a foldable, hanging travel bag can make it easy and convenient for mom to carry all of her toiletries and access them without taking up what's often minimal hotel room counter space. For moms who want to document their excursions, a leather travel journal encourages them to note their experiences and gives them something they can revisit for years to come. Of course, some new luggage can make the perfect gift for newly retired moms who can't wait to start visiting places on their travel bucket lists.

Millions of moms manage to juggle the obligations of family life with a challenging career.

Mother's Day can be a great time to recognize as that balancing act. A selfheating coffee mug can ensure Mom's morning cup o' joe doesn't go cold as she traverses her way through a hectic morning routine. Another great gift is a charging mouse pad that can charge all of Mom's devices even while she's working. If you want to a sample of the she's working. If you want to a sample of the she's working. NURSES WEEK

The role of certified nursing assistants

THE nursing profession is vast and attracts an array of talented people. A career as a nursing assistant can be a rewarding path for those who want to get into the profession. According to the U.S.

Bureau of Labor Statistics, health care jobs are expected to grow by 13 percent between 2021 and 2031, making a nursing career an attractive option. According to Premier Nursing Academy, a certified nursing assistant is an entry-level step into the medical field. A CNA is not a nurse, but these individuals will work very closely under the supervision of licensed nursing staff, physicians and other health care providers.

Many people are drawn to becoming a CNA because the job presents a start in a career in health care. While some are content to remain CNAs for the duration of their careers, other CNAs use the position as a way to get on-the-job experience that can help them decide if they want to go further in the field of nursing. CNA certification does not require extensive education. On average, it takes between four to 10 weeks to complete the necessary coursework to become a certified nursing assistant.

According to Indeed, a CNA can expect to perform these tasks on any given day.

- Administer medications to patients.
- Assist patients with activities of daily living.
- Bathe and dress pa-
 - Check vital signs.
- Serve meals and help patients eat.
- Watch for changes in patients' behaviors or worsening conditions.
- Reposition bedridden patients.

CNAs work in many different settings, including at hospitals or in residential nursing homes. The BLS estimates that demand for certified nursing assistants will increase by 5 percent by 2031. Interested parties can expect to earn a median annual wage of $30,290. Should one want to go on to becoming a registered nurse, he or she can expect a salary of $77,600. Certified nursing assistants play important roles in the nursing careers.

medical field. CNAs hone their skills in facilities and can choose to stay put or go on to more advanced can recognize nurses tion that benefits health

HE vital role nurses play in health care settings across the globe was perhaps never more apparent than in recent months. When COV-ID-19 was declared a pandemic by the World Health Organization in March 2020, nurses were on the front lines in the battle against the virus, and have remained there ever since.

In recognition of the sacrifices nurses and other health care workers have made to help the sick, individuals across the globe have placed signs in their yards thanking essential workers. In addition, many more have taken to social media to highlight the lengths individual nurses have gone to while helping them or their loved ones who caught the virus or fought other illnesses. Communities can follow such individuals' lead by making collective efforts to thank the nurses who call their towns and cities home.

 Sponsor fundraising efforts. Town officials can help to organize a community-wide fundraising effort or a 50-50 raffle with the ultimate goal of donating to a charitable organization chosen by local nurses. Health care facilities have been stretched incredibly thin during the pandemic, so a donation to a charitable organizacare workers can be a great way for communities to honor local nurses.

 Encourage residents to lend a helping hand. The work frontline medical workers have done during the pandemic has been endless and exhausting. In recognition of that, community organizers can promote volunteer programs designed to lift some of the burden off local health care workers' shoulders. Local hospitals, blood banks and health centers may need volunteers, and this is a great way for local residents to show health care workers their efforts are appreciated.

National Nurses Week is not a federal holiday, communities can still come together during the week to highlight the work their local nurses do. Township or in the community to offer special discounts to nurses during the week, while schools can take part in collective efforts to thank nurses. For example, students from all grades can work on a banner thanking nurses and then showcase the banner by the entryway to campus so passing motorists can see it.
