Snoop Dogg scheduled for State Fair

SPRINGFIELD

American rapper, singer and songwriter Snoop Dogg will perform at the Illinois State Fair Grandstand on Wednesday, August 13.

Snoop Dogg has reigned for nearly three decades as an unparalleled force who has raised the bar as a globally recognized innovator. Along with being a rapper, Snoop is an actor, record producer, DJ, media personality, businessman and icon.

"We are excited to bring Snoop Dogg back to Springfield and the Illinois State Fair," said Illinois Department of Agriculture Director Jerry Costello II. "We know from past experience that he is a crowd favorite with incredible energy."

In addition to his extensive work in music, with hits like Gin & Juice and Drop it Like it's Hot to his new album 'Missionary,' Snoop Dogg is a serial entrepreneur with endeavors in Web 3.0, tech, entertainment, lifestyle, global consumer brands, food/beverage and cannabis industries.

Tickets for Snoop Dogg are on sale via Ticketmaster. The cost is $85 for Tier 3, $90 for Tier 2, $110 for Tier 1, $125 for the track, and $165 for Blue Ribbon Zone. A $30 Pre-Show Party ticket is offered as an additional upgrade for all paid concerts.

Trump administration cuts funding for grants supporting Illinois farmers, food banks

Illinois Department of Agriculture (IDOA) announced the Local Food Purchase Assistance Program (LFPA) and the Resilient Food Systems Infrastructure Program (RFSI) can no longer operate in Illinois due to the Trump Administration cutting funding for the programs.

Without explanation, the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has informed states that it was ceasing reimbursements for any costs incurred after January 19, 2025.

The USDA established the LFPA program to strengthen statewide food systems, using federal funds to buy food from growers and producers at fair market value that is distributed to communities in need at no cost. In Illinois, 883 community sites have distributed food from 176 farmers, 58% of whom meet the USDA definition for new farmers.

In addition, Illinois is the only state committed to sourcing 100% of products from socially disadvantaged farmers. Illinois was approved to distribute $43 million under the course of the multi-year agreement and $17.8 million remains outstanding from the federal government.

The purpose of the RFSI program is to expand the middle of the food supply chain capacity for locally and regionally produced foods to offer better market opportunities and new streams of revenue to small and mid-sized agricultural producers. IDOA was in the process of selecting grantees for the RFSI program, which would have provided $6.4 million in grant funding to entities.

Recently, states were notified by USDA that LFPA and RFSI invoices are being processed only for costs incurred on or prior to January 19, 2025. Reimbursement claims submitted for costs incurred after that date are being returned with no explanation or timeline for reimbursements to resume.

"Cutting funds for these programs is a slap in the face to Illinois farmers and the communities they feed," said Governor JB Pritzker. "The Trump Administration's refusal to release grant funds doesn't just hurt farmers in the program, it devastates our most vulnerable, food-insecure communities relying on meat, fresh produce and other nutritious donations."

"This program requires Illinois farmers to invest in upfront input costs which is no longer possible given that the federal government has said they will no longer provide reimbursements," said IDOA Director Jerry Costello II.

"Without federal funding, the program that has helped to create local food systems in Illinois is unfortunately no longer able to operate."

"Agriculture drives so much of the economy and innovation in Illinois – this loss in support for our farmers, especially those from communities that have historically been disinvested in, is a loss for everyone in our state," said IDHS Secretary Dulce M. Quintero. "Access to nutrition is a human right, and I join our Governor and State leaders in calling on the federal government to do the right thing and help sustain our food system with the grant funding that had been established."

Food Truck Monday was thought to be a one-off event in 2023. However, great feed back to organizer Kirstyn Carter brought it back in 2024 for a spring and summer schedule. The third reinactment, second full year, will feature 13 different food trucks from April through October.

Food Truck Monday set to return in April

By BRANDON LaCHANCE

Amboy News Editor

AMBOY – The spring and summer sensation known as Food Truck Monday is returning to the Amboy Depot Museum parking lot from April through October.

After a test run event three years ago and a full 2024 schedule, organizer Kirstyn Carter didn't see any reason to not bring the different food options back to Amboy.

"It makes me happy to see everyone visit and enjoy some good food," Carter said. "I didn't think it was going to work. I actually thought it was going to flop and no one was going to enjoy it.

"Through the warmer months, the crowd grows. We're all busy but people enjoy having different food options they normally wouldn't have, so they come out."

So far, Carter has 13 different trucks scheduled throughout the seven-month schedule.

Taco Guzman, Philly Factory, The Press Box, The Bluesy Box (affiliated with The Press Box offering different food items), and Main Squeeze will be accounted for during each of the dates.

The selected Mondays are April 28, May 12, June 16, July 14, August 4, September 15, and October 13.

Also available during the Food Truck Monday schedule is JYD's, T D BBQ, Naiho's Eggrolls & More, Cousins Main Lobster, Flo's on Pulasky, Bumble Bites, Little O's Frozen Treats, and Kona Ice.

With the help of vender fees and all donations by patrons, funds are donated to different organizations and charities in Amboy.

To date, Carter and Food Truck Monday has donated a total of $2,063 to Clipper Kiddies, Amboy Lions Club, Amboy Police Department, Amboy Fire Department, a can food drive, Teen Turf, Amboy High School, Amboy Park District, and Lee County Shop with a Sheriff.

Carter hopes to bring in larger donations this time around.

IDOA director testifies at Illinois General Assembly on federal funding cuts

SPRINGFIELD – Illinois Department of Agriculture (IDOA) Director Jerry Costello II, along with key stakeholders representing farmers, research institutions, and food banks, appeared before the General Assembly>s House Agriculture & Conservation Committee hearing to discuss federal funding cuts and tariffs, which amount to taxes on working farmers.

Costello's testimony in Springfield focused on several agreements between USDA and IDOA, including the Local Food Purchase Assistance Program (LFPA) and the Resilient Food Systems Infrastructure Program (RFSI).

Illinois was the only state in the nation to prioritize socially disadvantaged farmers. These same farmers will lose over tens of millions of dollars in fair market value payments for crops and livestock they are currently raising as well as the ability to invest in infrastructure for growth and sustainability.

The purpose of the LFPA program is to "maintain and improve food and agricultural supply chain resiliency."

Amboy High School Report

Janet Crownhart, Principal

End of the third quarter is upon us, and we are entering the final stretch.

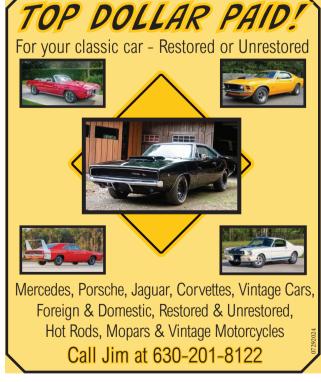

At the end of the year, we try to do a Community Service Day. A day that we take students to numerous places in the Amboy area to help out with different activities.

If there is any organization in town that could use the assistance of 15-20 high school students, for an hour or two, please contact the Amboy High School office to get on our list. We hope to have students able to work from about 9:30-11 a.m. on projects around the community to help those who support us.

This week in sports history class, students studied the rivalries between the Bulls and Pistons in the 1980's and 1990's when the tide turned and the players were physical with each other.

The Detroit Pistons were nicknamed the "Bad Boys" because of their physical style of play and aggressive defense. The team embraced the nickname and made it part of their identity.

ICC encourages house-hold water conservation during Fix-a-Leak Week

SPRINGFIELD – The Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) is encouraging Illinoisans to check their household plumbing fixtures and irrigation systems for leaks as a part of national Fix-a-Leak Week this March 17-23.

"Household leaks waste approximately 1 trillion gallons of water in the US each year. That's enough to fill 1.5 million Olympic swimming pools or supply water to 11 million homes," said ICC Chairman Doug Scott. "With minor fixes, Illinoisans can easily conserve water and save as much as 10 percent on their utility bills."

EPA's WaterSense® program has several tips to help detect and fix leaks:

Look at your winter water bills. If your water usage exceeds 12,000 gallons/ month for a family of four or less or you see spikes on your water bill, you likely have a serious leak.

Read your water meter before and after a two-hour period when no water is being used. Any changes to the meter mean you have a leak.

Place a few drops of food coloring into the tank of your toilet. If after ten minutes the color shows up in the bowl.

you have a leak. Replace worn-out toilet flappers to stop a running toilet.

Make sure there is a tight connection between your showerhead and pipe stem to stop leaks. Pipe or Teflon tape is an easy fix to control minor leaks. For serious showerhead leaks, contact a licensed plumber.

Replace worn-out faucet washers and gaskets to stop faucet leaks.

Always be sure to turn off the water line before starting repairs. Unsure about how to start? EPA WaterSense® has a list tutorials to fix minor leaks or call a licensed plumber.

ICC 2024 Supplier Diversity Report shows steady investment growth from "Big 6 utilities"

SPRINGFIELD-The Illinois Commerce Commission's Office of Diversity and Community Affairs' 2024 Annual Report shows that diverse spending by the state's largest investor-owned utilities has grown steadily for the fourth year in a row at over $2 billion.

Some utilities reported a nearly 45 percent share of their total spending with diverse suppliers, including minority, women, veteran, and small business enterprises.

"The ICC's supplier diversity outreach and inclusion efforts are having a positive impact on Illinois' women-, veteran- and minority-owned small businesses," said ICC Chairman Doug Scott. "While challenges remain, we are committed to ensuring minority-owned business groups have the opportunity to compete in Illinois' energy market."

The report provides a summary and analysis of data from nine years of reports submitted by Illinois' "Big 6" public utilities, Ameren Illinois, Aqua Illinois, Commonwealth Edison (ComEd), Illinois American Water, Nicor Gas Company, and Peoples Gas /North Shore Gas Company.

Illinois law requires the Big 6 utility companies to report their annual supplier diversity outreach and inclusion efforts to the ICC. Statistical data demonstrates this reporting requirement has resulted in the state's largest utilities growing their diverse spend from an average of 15 to nearly 45 percent of all procurement spending. Supplier diversity reports now include each utility company's future buying plan for goods and services. This change alerts diverse suppliers and assist agencies about upcoming procurement opportunities.

"The Office of Diversity and Community Affairs is pleased with the growth in diverse spend, but our work is far from over," said ICC Director of Diversity and Community Affairs, have identified areas where there is room for improvement by the utilities in 2025, including fleet services, information technology outsourcing, and software maintenance."

ODCA works to bring together utilities, non-profits, and diverse suppliers to foster relationships and nurture mentoring programs to build a pipeline of diverse suppliers.

Diverse businesses interested in assistance and one-on-one support are encouraged to participate in the Office of Minority Economic Empowerment's initiatives run through the Illinois Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity. OMEE is committed to providing minority-, women-, persons with disabilities, and veteran-owned small businesses and entrepreneurs across the state with equitable access to opportunities and resources. Individuals and diverse businesses interested in upcoming energy programs born from the Climate and Equitable Jobs Act are encouraged Jeanine V. Robinson. "We to explore the CEJA Implementation program, also administered through DCEO.

Senator Arellano, Jr connects high school students with state government only being in high school and learnfrom a really small school, and we

SPRINGFIELD – High school students from across the 37th Senate District traveled to Springfield on Wednesday, March 12 to participate in State Senator Li Arellano, Jr's (R-Dixon) inaugural Youth Advisory

"It was a great day having our future leaders here at the State Capitol and giving them a glimpse into state government," said Senator Arellano, Jr. "The law-making process is incredibly important, and providing students the opportunity to see the work we do as legislators is a key part of our civic duty. Educating our youth is the first step in energizing constituents and giving these young citizens a voice--especially since they will be inheriting the results of our work."

Nearly 50 students from 12 high schools attended the spring council meeting. The YAC is a two-part series that begins in the fall with a district meeting and concludes in the spring at the State Capitol.

"I like meeting all of the other kids from different schools. I come really only talk to people who are in our school district or who are really close to us," said Allie Peterson of Indian Creek High School. "It's fun to meet new people who I haven't spoken to before and talk about something that's academic.'

"I have never been to Springfield and so this is my first experience," said Norah Schultz of Princeton High School. "I really enjoyed seeing the Senate, the House of Representatives and seeing how everything comes together."

During the spring visit, students hear from guest speakers, tour the House and Senate floors, and participate in a mock committee meeting -giving them hands-on experience of the legislative process.

"I got picked to be the sponsor for the bill so I have been researching to get what I know down about the bill so I can answer questions," said Ian Gillespie of Illinois Valley Central High School. "It's just more knowledge about how to pass a bill and gain some greater experience, ing more about what I want to do in the future."

Students had the opportunity to hear from Representative Ryan Spain and Representative Bradley Fritts. The Illinois Senate Republican Events and Engagement Director, Lori Yates, also gave a presentation on her path to public

"In school I have always loved learning about government and history and coming here has taken it to the next level," said Alayna Young of Polo Community High School. "A lot of kids don't have the opportunity to learn about this at a young age and I think it is important to learn about the government process just to understand how everything works, when you go out into the world and will be able to vote."

Senator Arellano, Jr looks forward to welcoming high school students once again to his fall council meeting. Lunch for this year's YAC was provided by Meridian Health.

Kish College enrollment increases for eighth consecutive semester

MALTA – Kishwaukee College is continuing its trend of increasing enrollment with spring 2025 students up approximately 15% compared to spring 2024.

Kish's upward enrollment trend began in Fall 2022 and has continued each semester.

"Kish is pleased to report spring enrollment is now exceeding pre-pandemic levels. We believe the decisions the College has made are positively impacting enrollment, including the elimination of all student fees which started this fiscal year," said Dr. Laurie Borowicz, President of Kishwaukee College.

Enrollment increases are spread evenly across college programs. Specifically, online enrollments continue to go up, with a significant increase for spring 2025.

"The College works incredibly hard to provide our community members with the education and support they need to meet their goals. Through thoughtful planning, Kish responds and adapts to the changing needs of our community. The continued enrollment increases are a positive signal we are providing the best opportunities for our students," said Bob Johnson, Chair of the Board of Trustees.

Kishwaukee College serves approximately 4,000 students annually, offering transfer programs, career-ready degrees and certificates, fast-track programs and more.

The cooperative agreements between USDA and states allow states "to procure and distribute local and regional foods and beverages that are healthy, nutritious ... and meet the needs of the population." The program was intended to serve "food banks and organizations that reach underserved communities" and would help "build and expand economic opportunity for local and underserved producers."[1] The intent of the program is to target socially disadvantaged farmers.[2]

"LFPA was designed to support both ends of the food chain – farmers and those they feed. Cutting the funding leaves farmers on the hook for expenses they incurred believing they would be reimbursed and leaves our most vulnerable, food-insecure communities without meat, fresh produce and other nutritious donations they were promised," said IDOA Director Jerry Costello II. "The federal government broke its promise, and the people of Illinois are paying the price."

IDOA announced on January 17, 2025, an additional $14.7 million was awarded by the federal government for this program. The USDA recently announced the funds were terminated.

The purpose of the RFSI program is 'to build resilience in the middle of the better markets to small farms and food businesses. The RFSI program requires farmers to make upfront investments in input costs with the promise of grant dollars to reimburse them. Without those federal funds, the program is unable to

The RFSI program would have provided $6.4 million in grant funds to build resilience in the middle of the food supply chain, supporting activities that happen after harvest and prior to retail such as processing, storing and transporting Illinois products. In recent surveys of Illinois farmers, infrastructure and equipment were identified as the greatest obstacle to creating local food systems.

"Governor Pritzker called the move 'a slap in the face to Illinois farmers and the communities they feed' and I couldn't agree more," Costello said. "These are federal funds that were passed by Congress, a coequal branch of government, signed into law, and promised to Illinois farmers. They have been cut with no explanation or timeline, and farmers are left to deal with the consequences."

Other federal funding sources of concern are the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) Region(RCPP) which launched the successful Conservation Planner program creating a talent pipeline attracting a workforce to implement boots on the ground conservation measures; Specialty Crop Block Grants which funded research to increase the state's competitiveness in the industry; the I-COVER program, a three-state initiative to encourage cover crop adoption and technology advances; and the agreement for state inspectors to ensure food safety at more than 190 meat and poultry processing plants in Illinois.

In addition to federal funding cuts, Costello explained to the committee the impact of Trump's tariffs on Illinois farmers before testimony from industry groups and others.

Three countries – Canada, China and Mexico – account for 48% of all US agricultural exports, $91 billion of the total $191 billion exported annually.

Illinois is the third largest exporter of agricultural products in the nation. Illinois farmers export $2 billion in products to Canada; $2.9 billion to Mexico and $1.9 billion to China.

"These tariffs are an attack on Illinois food supply chain, to provide more and al Conservation Partnership Program farmers. Countries forced to pay them may

Thank you Pam Herrera, rest in peace

If I were to write a pros and cons list of being a journalist in your hometown, the pros would outweigh the cons in terms of number of items on the list, but there is a con which may hit home the hardest.

We receive the obituaries for people who pass away whether they still live in Mendota and the surrounding area or in Mendota and the surrounding area or not. There is no warning when they are coming or who the obituary is going to be about, they just randomly show up in your email.

When I saw the obituary for Pamela

(Pam) Herrera (Dec. 16, 1950 to March 8, 2025), I instantly saddened although I hadn't seen her or talked to her in over 20 years.

Before I met all three of her sons throughout the years (Tony, Jose, Nick), I learned who Pam was when I was new to Mendota as a 12 or 13 year old who transferred from bigger, urban cities to a rural area with two stop lights, no arcade, no movie theater and a misunderstanding of someone dressed in too big of clothes who talked and acted different than everyone.

It took a year or two before I had friends or at least close friends. There were many days I left school early because I was either being bullied or I was the bully because I simply didn't fit in, and in my head, didn't belong. I was actually expelled from Northbrook School for fighting when I was in the eighth grade and had to finish the year in an alternative school in Streator just to get into high school.

There were a few people from 1997 when I moved to Mendota to now, who helped bridge the transition to making a place I didn't want to be at eventually become my home I've come back to after college or taking jobs and touring other parts of the country.

I can't say if Herrera was the first of these positive influencers who I came across, but she is one I never forgot and when I saw her photo in the obituary, streams of memories cruised through my mind.

Don't judge, but in the late 1990s coming from an area where family members of mine were in gangs (some still are) and they were my only role models or people in front of me, I copied them in terms of clothing. I came to Mendota in Fubu jeans (my nickname from a group of Mendota kids who became my lifelong friends, turned family, is Fubu) and bandanas neatly folded around my head with a stocking cap over them in the winter.

The Y.O.U. program, a youth program formed to assist youngsters through all transitions including the one I was going through, used to host dances at Northbrook. I'll never forget walking to the door with my bandana under my skully and meeting Herrera for the first time. She took one look at me, shook her head no, and used her hand to gesture me to come toward her.

With a smile on her face, she said, 'I know you're a new kid and I want you to enjoy yourself at the dance, but I can't have anyone wearing bandanas in because we want this to be a safe place. I think you want this to be a safe place for you. I think you're a safe kid. So, why don't we pocket the bandana and all of us have a good time.'

This was over 25 years ago and I remember what she said verbatim.

She didn't yell.

She didn't look at me in disgust.

I didn't feel judged.

My normal defensive mechanisms I usually had up every day of my early Mendota days were untriggered.

Over the next few years as I went through junior high and high school, I saw Herrera on a normal basis since her office was next to where my mother worked. She would always say hello and was always friendly.

I got into legal trouble because of boneheaded decisions I made. Instead of not wanting to talk to me or be around me after I'd return from the detention home, she actually addressed my situation and asked me why such a good kid wanted to be so bad. More words and a conversation I've never forgotten. Herrera never bought me anything, bribed me to change my behavior or lied to me. She told me I was making the wrong decisions and helped me realize why I was acting out. Pam gave me advise on how to change and what I needed to do to move forward progressively and change the perception, stigma I had created as a bad kid.

When I enrolled in the National Guard, when I grade

When I enrolled in the National Guard, when I graduated high school, and when I was accepted to college, she told me congratulations. If I remembered right, I think she gave me a hug.

I graduated high school in 2004 and I can't recall if I saw or spoke to Pam since, but I don't think so.
If you can word-for-word write a quote from conversations more than 25 years ago, or state how they helped you, or why they were different than others around you, it means they were a special person, a good one.

When I went to her services on Friday March 14 at

When I went to her services on Friday, March 14 at Community United Methodist Church in LaMoille, there were others replaying similar stories of similar memories. I can't speak for everyone, but I think there was a consensus of deep appreciation for the way Herrera treated people, how she interacted, and how much she cared about the youth.

I'm hoping I said this to her when I was younger,

I'm hoping I said this to her when I was younger, but if I didn't, she deserves a huge, the most sincere as possible, thank you.

Brody Willstead graduates from University of Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. -Just over 2,000 students received degrees during the University of Wisconsin-Madison Winter 2024 Commencement at the Kohl Center on December 15, 2024.

Brody Willstead, of Franklin Grove, graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics. Nearly 1,400 of the graduates took part in the ceremony at the Kohl Center, where commencement speaker and "Top Chef: Wisconsin" finalist Dan Jacobs donned a Badgers apron and demonstrated on stage how to spatchcock and roast a chicken during the ceremony.

"[This] might be one of the most important lessons you ever learn," Jacobs told a chuckling audience. "Everyone should be able to make a good roast chicken."

While the tutorial offered a light-hearted nugget of useful advice, Jacobs made sure to also pepper the graduates with guidance they could apply to their careers and relationships following graduation: remain curious and open to new experiences.

"The thing I love most about cooking is that the learning never stops; as chefs, we're constantly evolving, experimenting, and refining our style," said Jacobs. "That endless curiosity is what keeps us inspired. Take that same thirst for knowledge and apply it to whatever you're passionate about."

Student speaker Sawyer Getschman was one of 1,545 bachelor's degree recipients following the fall 2024 semester. An additional 373 students earned master's degrees and 116 students were awarded doctoral degrees, for a total of 2,034 graduates. Getschman, who earned her bachelor's in East Asian languages and cultures, said she nearly left UW-Madison after a freshman year marred by the pandemic.

"A hundred little reasons made me stay, but the main one was the people," said Getschman. "We have encountered so much uncertainty and oddity in our college careers, but we have come out on the other side, stronger and with better stories to tell because of it." One powerful source of strength that Chancellor Jennifer L. Mnookin highlighted in her remarks before the audience of more than 7,500 graduates, friends and relatives centered on "the incredible variety of people" that the graduates met, lived with and worked alongside every day during their time in Madison.

Mnookin implored the graduates to hold onto that cooperative spirit as they entered their next chapter, whether it be a new career, continuing education or something

"You are ready," said Mnookin. "You have had experiences here that you will be able to draw upon in whatever comes next for you. You are prepared, not only by your academic experiences here but also by your many engagements with our community and one another."

Illinois spring trout season opens April 5 at 58 locations statewide

SPRINGFIELD – The 2025 Illinois spring trout fishing season will open Saturday, April 5 at 58 ponds, lakes, and streams throughout the state.

An early opportunity at select trout sites – the spring catch-and-release fishing season – will open Saturday, March 22. No trout may be kept during the catch-and-release period, but anglers can keep trout after the opening of the regular season beginning April 5. The daily harvest limit for each angler is five trout.

The Illinois Catchable Trout Program receives funding support by those who use the program through the sale of inland trout stamps. The Illinois Department of Natural Resources stocks more than 80,000 rainbow trout each year in bodies of water where trout fishing is permitted during the spring season. An additional 80,000 trout will be stocked for the fall trout season, which begins in October.

New for 2025

New for 2025:

In McHenry County, spring trout will be stocked into Rush Creek Pond in Harvard due to ongoing construction that will prohibit stocking at Lake Atwood in McHenry County.

In Macon County, spring and fall trout will continue to be stocked in Cattail Pond at Rock Springs Nature Center for the foreseeable future and not at Sportsmans Club Pond. In Wayne County, spring trout will be stocked at Turkey Run Shelter Pond at Sam Dale Lake State Fish and Wildlife Area because the trout pond continues to undergo rehabilitation. Signs directing anglers to the temporary site will be posted.

For the 2025 spring trout season, no trout may be taken from any stocked sites between March 15 and the season opening at 5 a.m. April 5. Anyone attempting to harvest trout before the legal harvest season opening will be issued citations.

For information about all site regulations, anglers should contact individual sites that will be stocked with catchable-size trout. Not all sites are open for trout catch-and-release season and not all sites open at 5 a.m. opening day.

The spring trout season offers opportunities for families to get outdoors and enjoy fishing. Resources are available online for taking youth fishing. All anglers, including those who intend to release fish caught before April 5, must have a fishing license and an inland trout stamp unless they are younger than 16, blind or disabled, or are an Illinois resident on leave from active duty in the Armed Forces.

Fishing licenses and trout stamps can be purchased by using a credit card online. Visit ifishillinois. org for more information on trout seasons and other Illinois fishing opportunities.
