FRESH fruits and vegetables don't have to be expensive if you buy them in season and many are in season year round. To learn more, visit www.sdharvestofthemonth.com

FROZEN fruits and vegetables are packed and frozen within hours of harvest, so they don't lose their flavor or nutritional value. Try steaming vegetables in the microwave or stovetop rather than boiling to keep in more nutrients.

CANNED fruits and vegetables often get a bad rap but they are still nutritious. Choose 100% fruit juice with no added sugar and vegetables with no sale added. Remember to drain the water, juice, or syrup and rinse with water to help remove some of the extra sugar and salt.

Jill Wagner, Thad Luckinbill and Zoe Saldana in "Special Ops: Lioness"

Seeing action: 'Special Ops: Lioness' debuts on Paramount+

One of the most popular actresses in cable movies is also the co-creator of one of streaming's newest series.

A veteran of Hallmark Channel who now does work for Great American Family, Jill Wagner ("Mystery 101") teamed with writer-producer Taylor Sheridan ("Yellowstone," "Tulsa King") to create the international espionage thriller "Special Ops: Lioness," which Paramount+ debuts Sunday, July 23. Zoe Saldana ("Avatar: The Way of Water," 2022) has the central role of a military operative who has a special assignment at the front of the ongoing war against global terrorism. Nicole Kidman ("Big Little Lies") and Michael Kelly ("House of Cards") portray the supervisors of the largely female-driven Lioness program, which actually exists, and which Saldana's character works within alongside a Marine Raider (Laysia De Oliveira).

Wagner effectively created a part for herself since she also has a co-starring role in "Lioness," whose cast includes Morgan Freeman ("A Good Person," 2023), LaMonica Garrett ("Designated Survivor"), James Jordan ("Wind River," 2017) and Dave Annable ("Brothers & Sisters") as well. Wagner knew Sheridan from before his current run as a powerhouse producer, also supplying the Paramount+ series "Mayor of Kingston" and "Tulsa King" as well as the "Yellowstone" prequels "1883" and "1923," and they reunited to develop "Lioness" together. (Garrett, Jordan and Annable have worked for Sheridan before in some of his other shows.)

The new series features Wagner in a role that might not surprise those who know the former "Wipeout" co-host's work from the shows "Blade" and "Teen Wolf," though fans of her genteel work in virtually all of her cable movies might not expect the toughness of her "Lioness" character Bobby from her. That's in keeping with the theme of the show, of course, but it's an area Wagner hasn't delved into much lately.

Similarly, Kidman has played it tough on occasion, though that's also a relatively rare situation. The 2018 movie "Destroyer" is an excellent example, effective to the extent that at the time of the undercover-detective drama's release, the Oscar-winning actress' husband — country-music superstar Keith Urban — admitted (albeit jokingly) to being a little afraid of her, given the rugged nature of her portrayal in that film.

Kidman has been no stranger to home-screen work in recent years, and before her movie stardom, she began her career by doing television in Australia (where she grew up, though she was born in Honolulu). "Five Mile Creek," "Vietnam" and "Bangkok Hilton" were among her 1980s credits before her main focus shifted to feature films, and it would be almost 30 years until TV became a part of her resume again.

When she was cast opposite Elisabeth Moss in the second season of the limited series "Top of the Lake," which was set in Australia and debuted in 2017, Kidman was considered a major "get." The same year, she also starred (along with Reese Witherspoon) in the first season of the drama "Big Little Lies," for which she earned a Primetime Emmy Award among other honors.

"The Undoing," "Nine Perfect Strangers" and the anthology "Roar" followed for Kidman, and she presently has more series coming... including "Expats" and a show based on novelist Patricia Cornwell's forensic-pathologist character Kay Scarpetta, plus the miniseries "The Perfect Couple" and "Far-away Downs."

Military-investigation series such as "Special Ops: Lioness" have had their places on television for quite some time. Certainly, the "NCIS" shows have sustained the genre over the past 20 years, while such other programs as "Homeland," "Strike Back" and "The Unit" have come (and gone) to dramatize the category. Paramount+ also has benefited from the continuation of "SEAL Team" since the move of its original episodes from CBS to the streaming service, where it has been renewed for a seventh season.

Such shows typically have an international scope by necessity, and "Special Ops: Lioness" has followed suit not only in plotting, but in production. While filming was staged toward the end of last year principally in Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, some sequences were filmed in Paris and Mallorca, Spain.

The actual Lioness program has existed for approximately 20 years, and it was developed to conduct what the Marine Corps terms "culturally sensitive searches" of Iraqi women and children by female officers, who seek contraband before it can be smuggled through security checkpoints. The aim is to maintain good relations between countries while also letting the Marines do their jobs safely — something that could be problematic for male officers, who are not allowed to touch a woman not related to them under Muslim governance.

Such is the mission of Saldana's "Special Ops: Lioness" character Joe, and the show emphasizes action-oriented elements of the job, though there clearly are emotional ones as well. Saldana and Kidman also are executive producers of the series along with Sheridan and Wagner, so they had a say in how the project strikes that balance — and they undoubtedly will have viewers among real-life Marines as well, giving them a wide audience range to satisfy overall.

Checking in with
MALCOLM MCDOWELL

Note: This interview took place before the SAG-AFTRA actors' strike. Spending much of the summer in Canada filming a television series suits Malcolm McDowell well.

The veteran of such movies as "A Clockwork Orange," "O Lucky Man!" and "Time After Time" currently is in Newfoundland making the third season of "Son of a Critch" ... which starts a U.S. run of its initial episodes Monday, July 24, on The CW. The autobiographical sitcom casts McDowell as the very candid grandfather of central character Mark Critch, a comedian whose experiences as a youth inspired the show. Interestingly, Critch plays his own father Mike in the show, while Mark is portrayed by young Benjamin Evan Ainsworth.

"I think it's beautifully written," the young McDowell says, "and it's a fantastic cast, people I hadn't really known before. This young man they found (Ainsworth) is such a good actor, and we're so lucky to have him. We all rise or fall on his performance, and I think he's wonderful. It's been really nice to see his progression as an actor and his young adult, and he's just lovely, which you can tell by his work."

McDowell earned a Canadian Screen Awards nomination for his Season 1 work as Patrick Critch, or "Pop," in "Son of a Critch." He maintains he's quite comfortable in his surroundings while doing the role: "I hadn't been to Newfoundland before, though I had been to Nova Scotia, and what a wonderful place it's turned out to be. Of course, we're only there in the summer, so I don't know how it is in the winter. I think those can be pretty brutal."

"Son of a Critch" is one of a number of Canadian series that have been picked up by The CW, particularly with the network's newly revised economic model, and McDowell is glad for the show's U.S. exhibition. "It's always nice to be seen," he reasons. "When I've talked about it, some people have looked at me with a blank stare, because they haven't heard of it ... so it's nice to have it out there."

Birthdate: June 13, 1943

Favorite movie: "It depends on how I wake up on the given day, but all things being equal, one of my favorites would have to be 'Fargo.' And then, if we're really going back, I'd have to say 'The Maltese Falcon.' There's also a wonderful movie that Abraham Polonsky directed, called 'Force of Evil.'"

Favorite TV show you're not on: "It would have to be 'The Sopranos.' It changed television, for sure, and I loved it."

tonight's picks

Ancient Aliens: Declassified

(48) 7 p.m.

Throughout the world, ancient objects have been found that leave archaeologists at a loss; these impossible artifacts could suggest that advanced civilizations existed on Earth thousands of years before our own. A new explores what could have been.

Ridiculousness

(67) 7 p.m.

Rob, Steelo, and supermodel Nina Agdal attempt to fight their momentum, raise a broken glass, and sit down for lunch as part of their need to critique amateur internet videos. Two more new episodes with this brazen crew immediately follow.

Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives

(31) 8 p.m.

A new episode airs as part of a "DD&D" marathon, seeing Fieri head to Cincinnati, Ohio, where a spot is piling up on chili. In Bend, Ore., a vegan joint is getting creative with tostadas; in Venice, Calif., a pizza stop is frying up their pie.

100 Day Dream Home

(33) 8 p.m.

Time is of the essence as husband-and-wife team Brian and Mika Kleinschmidt help new clients design and build their perfect home in just three months. In this new episode, a man and his family look to move out of his childhood home and plant new roots.

Fire Country

(3) 8 p.m.

In this red-hot episode, the crew faces challenges as a vegetation fire becomes more complicated due to a distressed horse's reluctance to leave a blazing barn. Meanwhile, Vince's (Billy Burke) brother Luke (Michael Trucco) unexpectedly pays a visit.

How to With John Wilson

(401) 10 p.m.

Filmmaker John Wilson continues his mission of self-discovery, exploration, and observation as he films the lives of fellow New Yorkers while attempting to give everyday advice on deceptively simple and wildly random topics in this season premiere.

Billy Burke and Max Thieriot in "Fire Country"
