Beadle adds 39 new positive cases over weekend

October now state's deadliest month due to COVID-19

BY BENJAMIN CHASE OF THE PLAINSMAN

HURON — The state added 617 new cases and reached a new single-day record in active cases on Sunday. After the South Dakota Department of Health's (DOH) Sunday numbers, the state reports 5,865 active cases.

The state's death toll over the weekend rose to 286 total. That brings the month total to 63, which makes October already the deadliest month of the pandemic, as the previous high was 56 in September.

Beadle County's numbers over the weekend went up by 39 new positives, reaching 958 total new positives. The county's split is currently 932 "confirmed" positive cases and 26 antigen

WOLSEY — Living in a small community may have many positives, for the Kahre's it also brought many neighbors and helping hands to harvest their soybeans.

After farmer Chad Kahre passed away suddenly at the beginning of the year, wife Kristie Kahre and sons Jayden, Jacob and Ethan have been taking on the farming responsibilities.

"This is my son Jayden's first year farming on his own," explained Kristie Kahre. On October 1, members of the local community in Wolsey gathered on the Kahre farm to help finish with a harvest of approximately 330 acres of soy beans. This day also happen to be Jayden's 22nd birthday.

"It was a huge surprise. They showed up to the field we were working in and said they were here to help, it was great to see everybody."

Those who came to help were Waylon Walters, George Walters, Joel Sprecher, David Struck and his crew, plus Zane and Andy Wuestewald.

GOP governors in spiking states strain to find silver linings

BY ANDREW DEMILLO ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hospitalizations from COVID-19 have hit their highest points recently throughout the Midwest, where the growth in new cases has been the worst in the nation.

But that's not the message coming from a number of Republican governors in the region, who are working to find silver linings in the ominous health data as outbreaks surge in their states.

"In South Dakota, we didn't take a one-size-fits-all approach and the results have been incredible," Gov. Kristi Noem told lawmakers in her state, which Johns Hopkins University says ranks second in the country for new cases per capita.

Oklahoma's governor has been effusively upbeat about progress against the virus, despite what figures compiled

“They’ve grown up farming, they know the ropes of the farm, Jayden is 22, Jacob is 19 and my youngest Ethan is only 12,” explained Kristie. “For them to take on the responsibility of the farm at this age is a big deal, they are doing a great job and I’m very proud of them.”

The eldest, Jayden plans to continue farming with the help of his grandfather Dan Kahre and his uncle Bret Kahre.

“The Kahre’s have been in the Wolsey community for a very long time, Chad was very well known — he was a great farmer, he knew exactly what he was doing and was very good at fixing equipment, he passed a lot of that down to his kids. I hope they can make their future in farming,” she explained. “It’s so great to see a small community come together and help us in a time of need, especially with how the economy is right now for them to go out of their way and help us.

“Words can’t describe how grateful the family is for the friends and family that helped us finish with the soybean harvest,” Kristie smiled. “I’m also very thankful for the community we live in and the support we have received this past year.”

positive cases.

The active cases in the county are up to 140. That is the highest active caseload the county has seen since June 14.

The past week in Beadle has added 683 total new cases, the most ever added in one week during the pandemic. Of those 683 new cases, 111, or 16.25%, have been positive cases of the virus. That is the second-most new positive cases in one week for the county.

The Heartland region saw notable increases over the weekend as well. The seven-county region is now up to 1,577 total positive cases, 17 deaths, 86 persons ever hospitalized, and 282 active virus cases. Residents of the region have been tested at a 22.99% rate.

search grant, and the company won the South Dakota Governor’s Giant Vision Awards. In 2017, Nanopareil was named the Buzz of BIO at the BIO International Convention and took first place in the Technologies of Tomorrow competition.

“As we continued to learn more about it and develop it, we got a lot of interest from pharmaceutical companies and other end-users of this technology, so we commercialized it,” Menkhaus said.

Nanopareil opened a lab in Rapid City and another facility in Sioux Falls. In 2019, the Rapid City location was moved to the Ascent Innovation building. Menkhaus stayed on as a founder and D. Craig Arnold was named president/CEO. The Rapid City location has seven full-time employees, all graduates and current students at South Dakota Mines.

Menkhaus said the partnership formed with South Dakota Mines is the reason for the company’s success.

“I’m really looking forward to expanding that now with the acquisition (by Gamma Biosciences) and growing that team in South Dakota,” he said. “All of the continued development and research going into these materials for commercialization will stay in South Dakota.”

Gamma Biosciences is a life sciences tools platform created by KKR, with headquarters in Menlo Park, California, and Cambridge, United Kingdom. Nanopareil will be a part of Gamma Biosciences’ subsidiary Astrea Bioseparations.

Joseph Wright, South Dakota Mines associate president for research and economic development, said Nanopareil’s success is a historic moment for the state.

Trump signs law addressing missing Native Americans

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — President Donald Trump on Saturday signed a bill named for a Fargo murder victim to address cases of missing and murdered Native Americans.

Savanna’s Act, which is named for Savanna Greywind, passed the House last month after passing the Senate earlier this year. The bill was introduced by former Sen. Heidi Heitkamp, of North Dakota, last Congress and was reintroduced by Sen. Lisa Murkowski, of Alaska, in the current Congress.

“This legislation addresses a tragic issue in Indian Country and will help to establish better law enforcement practices,” said North Dakota Sen. John Hoeven, chairman of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs.

The law is meant to help police track, solve and prevent crimes against Native Americans. It directs the Departments of Justice and Interior to consult with American Indian tribes while developing national law enforcement guidelines.

The 22-year-old pregnant Greywind was murdered in 2017 and her unborn baby was cut from her body. Her remains were found in the Red River north of Fargo. Two people are in prison for her death. Her infant survived.

“Savanna’s life was lost far too early,” North Dakota Sen. Kevin Cramer said. “I hope this legislation serves as a remembrance of her story and prevents other tragedies from occurring.”

by public health experts and a White House task force show. North Dakota’s governor has called his state’s test positivity rate an achievement, even though its rate of new cases tops the nation.

The rhetoric in some cases is mirroring that of President Donald Trump, who continues to downplay the virus’ risk even after being hospitalized with COVID-19. And it’s worrying public health experts concerned about a flu season that may exacerbate the outbreak’s effects.

“Public health is built on the backs of thousands of individual actions. ... In order for there to be behavior change, there has to be trust on the data and the guidelines,” said Dr. Thomas Tsai, a surgeon at Brigham and Women’s Hospital and assistant professor at the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health.

Most of the Midwest Republican governors where the virus is worsening have either refused to enact statewide mask restrictions or have been rolling back restrictions imposed because of the pandemic.

Trump, who tweeted “don’t be afraid of Covid” as he was being released from the hospital, cheered Noem for her speech to the Legislature last week, where she championed her refusal to issue a stay-at-home order or other restrictions.

But South Dakota’s new cases and positive test rates rank at or near the highest in the country. The number of people hospitalized in the state because of COVID-19 reached a new high last week, but Noem prefers to emphasize that only about 10% of the state’s hospitalizations are because of the virus.

Doug Burgum, North Dakota’s Republican governor, acknowledges his state’s numbers are moving in the wrong direction as it hit new highs for active and newly confirmed cases, as well as hospitalizations. But he’s also touting the state’s test positivity staying in the 7% range.

“That’s an achievement compared to many, many other states that have never been in the spot to have this low of a positivity rate and have their economy open,” Burgum said. “If you’re saying that among the states, who’s doing a great job, those would have to be some of the criteria you would have to look at.”

In Iowa, which has eased most of its earlier coronavirus restrictions, COVID-19 hospitalizations also hit a record high last week. Gov. Kim Reynolds, however, has defended the state’s decision to reopen bars and send students back into classrooms without masks required.

“The president is also right. We can’t let COVID-19 dominate our lives,” Reynolds said.

Missouri Gov. Mike Parson has cited where he sees his state making progress, even as a White House task force recently listed it in the “red zone” for its high rate of new cases and positive tests. The state also recently hit a new high for hospitalizations. Parson and his wife were both diagnosed on Sept. 23, though they’ve both recovered.

“The fight is not over, but we are on the right track, and we will get through this,” Parson said in a video posted Sept. 30.

Some governors are even pushing back against Trump’s own advisers for giving blunter assessments of their states’ situations. Oklahoma Gov. Kevin Stitt, who in July became the first governor to announce he had tested positive for COVID-19, lashed out at the White House Coronavirus Task Force after it said high community transmission led to “many preventable deaths” in Oklahoma.

“The governor maintains that Oklahoma has performed much better than the nation as a whole in terms of protecting our most vulnerable, and the White House agrees with that assertion,” Stitt’s office said.

The governors putting a positive spin on their states’ worsening situations face little political fallout for doing so, and are even facing pressure from the right to lift any remaining restrictions. That’s the case in Arkansas, where a group of Republican lawmakers are suing to invalidate a mask mandate and other directives imposed by GOP Gov. Asa Hutchinson.

Hutchinson has been criticized by Democrats, teachers’ groups and others who say the governor has sent mixed messages about the seriousness of the state’s outbreak.

“I understand the drive and need to put a positive spin on things, but I would like to see a greater sense of urgency,” Democratic Sen. Greg Leding said.

Hutchinson has cited progress with the state’s testing positivity, but has acknowledged it needs to improve in other areas such as hospitalizations and rate of new cases. Hutchinson has continued resisting calls to roll back some of the state’s reopening, saying he’s relying more on personal responsibility.

This is National 4H Week and the start of the new year in 4H. If you are at least 8-years old you should sign up. This is my second year in 4H and I love it. I loved it a lot more my first year, because a lot of 4H events got canceled this year for stupid COVID. We did try to do somethings on-line but is just wasn't the same. But I still love 4H.

My favorite part is the meetings once a month. I have made new friends, some I go to school with some I rodeo with, but some I had never meet before. Most of the time at the meetings we do a project, like at Thanksgiving we painted hand turkeys for meals on wheels, or at Christmas we went shopping for the angel tree.

I enjoy doing things for others. It is fun and makes me feel good. Also, at the meetings we always have a snack, one time, even a pizza party.

Since I am a cowgirl, I love the horse and rodeo part of 4-H. I promise, whatever you are into, 4-H will have a project area for you: art, shooting sports, showing animals, photography, cooking... you name it.

I hope you decide to join 4-H, because you will love it as much as I do.

To the Editor:

Anyone can find the cause and the answer to the problems we face today by reading a very old book — the Holy Bible. Romans chapter one, verse 25 aptly describes what is happening in our country today.

Since the beginning of the world, mankind has been invited to believe there is something better than God's plan. This invitation comes from the first being to refuse to believe God knows best — Satan. Exchanging the truth of God for a lie is often disguised as enlightened, progressive, or a better way.

Do not be deceived, history proves what happens when people turn away from God's truth. No matter how you spin it, the outcome will always be the same.

The choice is yours because God gives each of us the responsibility of choosing for ourselves. Will you believe God?

Are you voting accordingly?

To the Editor:

I believe that truth is something that has been real, is real today and always will be. Truth is like gravity, it exists whether you accept its force or not. Scientists have discovered that life begins at conception.

I believe that:

...at conception (week one) we are smaller than a grain of sugar and we became an unrepeatable human being with our own DNA.

...during the first month of life we grew 10,000 times the size of our original cell and our heart starts beating.

...at 2 months we are about the size of a thumb and every organ is developing — we just need time to mature.

...at 3 months our length is about three inches and we weigh two ounces. We can squint, swallow, and move our tongue and yes, suck our thumb.

...at 4 months our brain is maturing and we absorb nutrients from our mother's blood.

...at 5 months our mother felt us kick.

...at 6 months we would have a good survival rate if born.

...at 7 months we can use four of our senses — seeing, tasting, touching and hearing. We can also cough, yawn, and have the hiccups.

...at 8 months our lungs are fully developed and we like to listen to our Mommy's voice.

...at 9 months we are ready for the world — able to breathe air on our own.

Respect human life and the beautiful potential of all people. These lives are worth protecting. Vote for Life!

Republicans: Are you tired of winning yet?

WASHINGTON — A presidential election is like a barometer, which has been defined as an ingenious device that reveals the kind of weather we are experiencing. In case your dismay about the dilapidation of the nation is not yet commensurate with the valid reasons for dismay, consider four things about the 2020 election:

The world's oldest constitutional democracy, the United States, is floundering at the elementary task of managing the mechanics of voting — printing, distributing and counting ballots — in a presidential election the date of which has been known, or at least knowable, for 175 years, since Congress in 1845 first designated Election Day as the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The world's oldest political party, the Democratic Party, is having difficulty sounding sincere and non-conflicted in affirming the world's oldest political desire, which is for security from violence, particularly that of mobs. The other party that has framed the nation's two-party competition since 1856 has been reduced to hoping that this presidential election will be the third in six elections that the Republican nominee wins while losing, as President Donald Trump certainly will, the popular vote. (In the last seven presidential elections, 1992-2016, the Republican candidates' largest share of the popular vote was 50.7% in 2004.) And the best election outcome that can reasonably be expected will show that about 4 in 10 voters have watched almost 46 months of this president's allotted 48, and want 48 more.

If they get their wish, the nation will get, for the first time, a fourth consecutive two-term presidency. Only twice before have there been three consecutive two-term presidencies, the third, fourth and fifth (Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, and James Monroe), and the 42nd, 43rd and 44th (Bill Clinton, George W. Bush and Barack Obama). The reasons that a second Trump term is unlikely — the reasons he probably will be the fourth elected incumbent (not including Gerald Ford) in the past 100 years to be denied reelection (Herbert Hoover, George H.W. Bush, Jimmy Carter) — include:

Democrats want the election to be a referendum on Trump, and the Republican convention cooperated. In 1983, the British Labour Party's 39-page manifesto (platform), chock-full of socialism, was called the longest suicide note in history. This year, in history's shortest — 14 words — suicide note ("RESOLVED, That the 2020 Republican National Convention will adjourn without adopting a new platform . . .") Republicans said: Trump is all that we are.

Trump has made himself toxic in what he calls our "beautiful suburbs." Forty-nine percent of the votes cast in 2016 came from suburbia.

Any campaign's two principal assets are money and the candidate's time. Trump's campaign will have to allocate a lot of both to five states, with 89 electoral votes, that he carried relatively comfortably in 2016: Iowa (by 9.4 points), Ohio (8.1 points), Arizona (3.6 points), Texas (9.0 points), Georgia (5.1 points).

By mid-October, some endangered Republican Senate candidates will begin a delicate pirouette: They will try to devise an anodyne vocabulary with which to urge voters to elect them so that the Senate will remain in Republican control and can temper the Democratic Party's leftward lurch. The candidates' challenge will be to urge this without making Trump enthusiasts, whose support these candidates need, even more enraged than such enthusiasts are when they get up on the wrong side of the bed, which they do daily. Republican candidates made a comparable argument in 1996, when it became clear that President Clinton was going to defeat Sen. Bob Dole. Republicans gained two Senate seats while Dole lost by 8.5 points.

Michael Bloomberg has found $100 million in his sofa cushions and will spend it on Biden's behalf in Florida. Progressives, who think American politics is polluted by "billionaires" and "big money," are silent about Bloomberg's naughtiness, perhaps because their grief about it has rendered them speechless.

Embracing freedom over fear

Fear is an enemy that torments the soul and seeks to steal our life. Conquering it is not something that we do in one day; it's something we conquer one day at a time with God's help.

Fear can show up unexpectedly. One of our goals should be to recognize it so we can deal with it right away.

I remember a time when I was waking up at about 2 or 3 in the morning and then having difficulty going back to sleep. After two nights of that, I found myself going to bed with a vague sort of fear that it would happen again, and it did until God reminded me that I could pray and resist Satan, the source of all fear. According to God's Word, the sleep of the righteous should be sweet (Proverbs 3:24). So I prayed immediately and went back to sleep and have not had any problems since then.

Being free from fear doesn't mean that we will never experience fear or be confronted by it. It means that we are committed to not allowing it to rule our lives, and when necessary we will do what we need to do, even if we have to "do it afraid."

Each time you feel fear and decide to do it afraid, you will experience a new freedom and become more determined to end your days of slavery to fear. That doesn't mean you won't still need to confront your fears, but it does mean that you will be more and more resolved to keep confronting them.

Galatians 5:1 (NIV) says, "It is for freedom that Christ has set us free. Stand firm, then, and do not let yourselves be burdened again by a yoke of slavery." This scripture is very clear that even though we have been completely liberated from a yoke of bondage, we will need at times to "stand firm," and not allow ourselves to be entrapped by it again.

Satan is very shrewd and he doesn't give up easily. I guess we can say that he never completely gives up the hope of drawing us back into bondage. We must live watchfully, ready to recognize and immediately confront the things that steal our liberty in Christ.

The Bible says that the righteous man falls seven times and gets up again (Proverbs 24:16). I love that scripture and I'm greatly encouraged by it. Even the most righteous person fails to do everything he knows to do all the time, but he is committed to not giving up. So when you have a weak moment, that doesn't mean you have lost your victory.

But if we give up, even God can't help us because we receive His help through faith, not through hopelessness. We need to stay positive, hopeful and filled with faith, and when we do, we can overcome anything with God's help. I often say that anyone can succeed if they refuse to give up!

Some fears are more deeply rooted in us than other ones are, and we need to be more aggressive against them. Mine is the fear of making people angry. My father was always angry, and I never really knew if I had done something to make him that way or not. I would like to be able to say that after all of these years of teaching others, I no longer have to deal with this fear, but that's not the case. However, the good news is, now I recognize it and deal with it, so I still have the victory.

Being able to recognize the lies, deceits and strategies of the devil is so important. We should always be ready to resist him at the onset of his attacks. Because the longer we let a fear remain, the more difficult it is to get rid of it. So make a decision to be a person of action, and remember that in Christ, you have what it takes to win!

The Word of God says

Enjoying Every Day Life

that we are more than conquerors through Christ who loves us (Romans 8:37). God has given us everything we will ever need to overcome our fears through Christ ... every spiritual blessing (Ephesians 1:3) ... and His power and authority to overcome the power of the enemy (Luke 10:19). We have what it takes, but we must be active and never give up.

I want to encourage you to be patient with yourself. Possessing the full freedom that is yours in Christ is a journey. And it's important to enjoy your progress instead of merely looking at how far you have to go. Today is a new day, and every day you can be one step closer to conquering your fears!

Paris Hilton protest calls for closure of Utah school

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Paris Hilton has been speaking out about abuse she said she suffered at a boarding school in Utah, and on Friday she took her push nearly to the school's front doors.

Hilton organized a protest in a park near Provo Canyon School, along with several hundreds of others who share stories of abuse they say they suffered there or at similar schools for troubled youth. She is calling for the closure of the school.

Hilton, a socialite who became a reality TV star, and many others wore black T-shirts with red letters on the back that said, "survivor" and on the front read, "breaking code silence," a reference to Hilton's new campaign to compel others to shed light on what she believes is a corrupt industry that manipulates parents and traumatizes youth. It was Hilton's first time back to the area since she was there as a teen, when she says she was verbally, emotionally and physically abused in what she described as "torture."

Since a documentary titled "This is Paris" was released on YouTube last month, other celebrities have also spoken out about their experiences at that school or others like it, including Michael Jackson's daughter Paris Jackson and tattoo artist Kat Von D. "It's something so traumatic that you don't even want to think it's real," Hilton said in a speech to the crowd. "It's something I blocked from my memory for forever."

The institution is now under new ownership and the administration has said it can't comment on anything that came before, including Hilton's time there. Owners of the school declined comment Friday, pointing to a statement on the school website that said the previous owners sold the school in 2000. The school aims to help youth who have struggled in typical home and school environments, some of whom are dealing with drug addiction or acting out violently, according to the website. "We are committed to providing high-quality care to youth with special, and often complex, emotional, behavioral and psychiatric needs," the statement read.

In the documentary, Hilton says she got into the nightlife scene in New York as a teenager and would sneak out and go to clubs while her family lived at the Waldorf Astoria hotel.

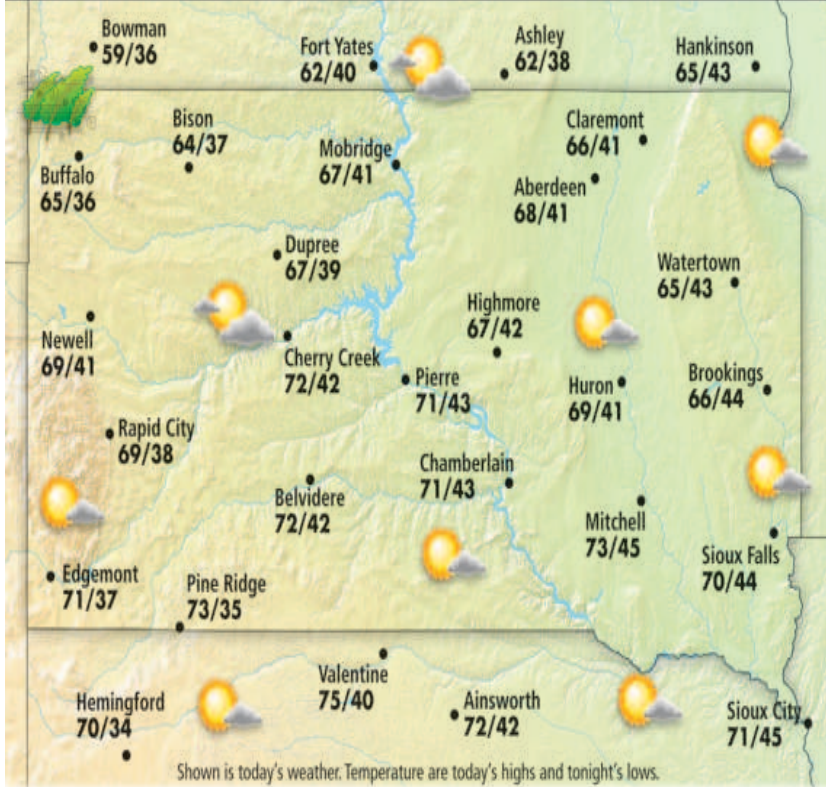

Her exasperated parents sent her away to various programs to straighten out.

Nightly dinner with sister is too much togetherness

DEAR ABBY: I am 25 and live with my parents. My 28-year-old sister lives in a condo about 10 minutes away. She just graduated from school and moved back here, which means she doesn't have many friends in the city.

For the last five months, she has been coming over for dinner like clockwork every day and every weekend. I'm still finding ways to be social during quarantine, but my sister doesn't seem able to find other means to meet people. Seeing this much of her is, well, too much.

She demands attention, practically forces us to entertain her and gets upset when the dinner my parents are cooking doesn't meet her specifications. At her age, spending this much time with your parents seems, quite frankly, unhealthy. I'm scared to bring it up because she's hypersensitive. How do I avoid another several months of lockdown with a person who doesn't even live with me? -- OVERWHELMED IN OREGON

DEAR OVERWHELMED: This isn't a subject you should address with your sister, but is something to discuss privately with your parents. Whether to draw the line and encourage your sister to become less dependent is something they might want to consider.

When her company becomes more than you can handle, excuse yourself, go to your room and avail yourself of your other ways to be social by firing up your computer and visiting with friends. It would also be a kindness for you to suggest ways she, too, can network with people in her field or who have some common interests.

DEAR ABBY: Every day when my husband comes home, he takes off his shoes to relax. He works hard outdoors more than 10 hours daily.

Dear Abby

ABIGAIL VANBUREN

His feet smell horrible -- unbearable to be around. We have tried insoles, baking soda, foot sprays and even health checks, which helped but didn't get rid of the problem.

He gets offended when I ask him to change his socks and wash his feet. To him I'm out of line to continually point it out. But I can't even sit in the same room with him. Help! -- STINKING TIRED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR STINKING TIRED: There is a name for your husband's very common medical condition: It's bromodosis, and it is fixable. It's the result of sweat and the growth of bacteria and possibly fungus.

Your husband should discuss this again with his doctor. Directions for treating his condition are also available online, but they are longer than my column can accommodate. Doing a search on healthline.com would be a good place to start. He should also carry an extra pair of shoes and socks and change them in the course of the workday. Let's hope that from now on your husband will put his best foot forward.

JOHN DAVIS/AMERICAN NEWS

Cheech Harman, right, leads the Huron boys' team during the start of the varsity race in the Eastern South Dakota Conference Meet on Saturday at Lee Park Golf Course in Aberdeen.

ESD:

Schoenfelder and Tatum Peterson, who also moved up for the ESD Meet, were No. 44 and 45, respectively, with times of 23:06.04 and 23:26.92.

"Brooklyn Boetel was just off of her PR pace from last week to be the third Huron Tiger across the line," Thomas said. "I would like to see Hannah and Tatum cut another two minutes from their time at state."

The Huron boys' team finished eighth in the varsity standing led by Cheech Harman, who turned in an effort to net All-ESD honors.

Brandon Valley finished with 57 points to edge Harrisburg by three points for the ESD title. Aberdeen Central was third at 63, followed by Pierre at 101 and Yankton at 102 to round out the top five. Completing the field of teams were Brookings at 146, Watertown at 184, Huron at 186 and Mitchell at 257.

"I knew it was going to be tough for our boys as a team to beat anyone, but I told them it was definitely possible if everyone had the mentality of beating just one more runner," Thomas said. "When I told the boys we beat Mitchell, but that Watertown beat us by two points, they were disappointed. Each of them made some sort of comment like, 'I should've had that guy in front of me.' Now they just need to get the 'shoulda's' out of their heads and replace it with 'I got that guy in front of me.'"

Britton Elkin of Brandon Valley won the boys' varsity race in 15:54.79, while Josh Martin of Aberdeen Central was second at 16:09.27.

Harman finished 13th for the Tigers at 17:30.68, while TJ Lien was 29th at 18:07.11. Both were PRs.

"His goal for the season was to run a 17:30, so now it's time for him to make a new goal," Thomas said of Harman's effort.

"Both those boys ran a great race today. I'm really proud of them," she said. "They went out today and didn't just run hard, they competed."

Will Radke ran an 18:32.34 to finish 37th for Huron, while Cameron Cutshaw and Angel Olivo Porcayo were No. 53 and 54, respectively, with times of 19:43.07 and 19:45.63.57.

"Will Radke didn't run as good as he did in Sioux Falls, but he still had a solid race," Thomas said. "Cameron Cutshaw ran a PR today. He's building more confidence with each race."

Rounding out the lineup for Huron were Will Knippling, who was 57th at 20:30.56; and Gonzalo Quispe-Laura, who was 58th at 20:23.46.

The Tigers host the Roger Loecker Invitational on Thursday at Broadland Creek Golf Course before closing the season at the Class AA State Meet on Oct. 24 in Rapid City.

Busch bounced from playoffs

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — NASCAR will crown a new champion this year following Kyle Busch's elimination in the second round of the playoffs.

Chase Elliott won Sunday on the hybrid road course-oval at Charlotte Motor Speedway, where four drivers, including Busch, were trimmed from title contention. Busch likely needed to win the race to advance into the round of eight, but instead became the first reigning champion knocked out of contention after two rounds since the format began in 2014.

A victory was a tall ask in this winless season for Busch but he went down swinging. A flat tire at the end of the second stage should have ended his chances and he thought he was done, keying his mic for a resigned "Good job this year, guys," to his No. 18 Joe Gibbs Racing crew.

He hung in and worked his way into the top three and was able to take the lead when Busch opted not to pit under caution.
