coverstory

BY JAY BOBBIN

Amy Poehler makes her voice heard in Fox's 'Duncanville'

Amy Poehler doesn't mind getting cartoonish in her latest television role ... actually, roles.

The "Parks and Recreation" and "Saturday Night Live" veteran supplies the voices of both the young central character and his mother in "Duncanville," joining Fox's Sunday "Animation Domination" lineup on Feb. 16. The life of Duncan might not seem special on the surface, but his adventures in adolescence and family life are enough to fuel a series also featuring Ty Burrell ("Modern Family") in the regular voice cast, with Rashida Jones and Wiz Khalifa among guest stars. Poehler is a creator and executive producer of the series as well, along with "The Simpsons" alums Mike and Julie Scully (Mike also worked with Poehler earlier on "Parks and Recreation").

"The mom is, frankly, just based on my own mom," Poehler explains, "a Boston mom who is very worried all the time and high-strung and likes to yell - although my mom doesn't like to yell. And Duncan, just take anything you are doing and then cut the enthusiasm and effort in half, and you've got kind of a 15-year-old boy. I so admire incredible female voice actors, like Nancy Cartwright and Pamela Adlon, who have played young boys. I just love that sound, so I'll just stay up at night and try to copy

Mike Scully notes that Poehler's real-life role as a mother of two sons came in handy as "Duncanville" was being developed. "The teenage boys are basically all like Larry David," he reasons. "They are very put-upon. Everything is a huge effort and exhausting."

"Duncanville" is far from the only project on Poehler's docket: Her NBC do-it-yourself series with Nick Offerman, "Making It," has been renewed for a third season – and she and Tina Fey are booked to return as hosts of next year's Golden Globe Awards, plus she's producing the women's-soccer sitcom "Division One" for the forthcoming Peacock streaming service (which also will have "Parks and Recreation" in its entirety).

Still, "Duncanville" has a major place on Poehler's agenda. She reflects that in watching television with her sons (whose father is her ex-husband, Will Arnett), "it's hard to find stuff we can watch together that they are interested in and that I'm interested in. 'The Simpsons' was one of the first shows we really watched together and laughed at the same things for the same reasons, so that's what's really exciting about working on this. It feels like this is the kind of stuff that we all get to watch with our kids, as well as our friends, and all be laughing at the same joke ... because they like a lot of things that I think are not funny."

In his latest television role, Peter Gallagher is singing a different tune – literally – most weeks.

Seen in recent seasons on such shows as "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" and "Grace and Frankie," the Broadway veteran's musical experience helps the NBC series "Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist," which follows its January preview airing by starting its regular weekly run Sunday, Feb. 16. Gallagher plays Zoey's (Jane Levy) father, rendered speechless and immobile by a neurological disease … but as with everyone else surrounding Zoey, in her visions, he's a singing-and-dancing wonder.

"I could not possibly hope for more," says Gallagher, who rendered Cyndi Lauper's "True Colors" in the opening episode. "They are songs that I didn't know until now that I've always wanted to sing." As for not speaking in the show, though, Gallagher muses, "I just thought how fortunate the rest of the cast was. It's really the hardest thing in the world for me to do (to stay quiet)."

The medical condition of Gallagher's "Zoey's" character mirrors the illness that series creator and executive producer Austin Winsberg's late father had, Progressive Supranuclear Palsy (or PSP).

"It was a chance to be part of a story that I just thought I wanted to be a part of telling," Gallagher reflects, "because it's about what connects us as people and not what divides us. It's about the fact that everybody has a story, and there's no way you can know it by looking at them, as others might lead us to believe; you have to listen, so that was powerful. My mom had Alzheimer's for many years, which was a similar kind of thing."

Birthdate: Aug. 19, 1955 Birthplace: New York

Current residences: Los Angeles and Connecticut

Marital status: Married; his two children are actress Kathryn Gallagher ("You") and writer-director James Gallagher

Other television credits include: "Grace and Frankie,"
"Law & Order: Special Victims Unit," "The Gifted," "The Conners," "Murphy Brown," "Man Seeking Woman," "New Girl,"

"Togetherness," "The Good Wife," "Covert Affairs," "Whitney," "Rescue Me," "Californication," "The Gathering," "The O.C.," "The Secret Lives of Men," "Fallen Angels," "An Inconvenient Woman,"

In this new supernatural themed series, documentary filmmaker and paranormal investigator Steve Shippy travels America in search of communities, particularly in the Midwest, that have been plagued by a haunting and reached out to him for help. The series premiere, "The Watchman," finds him in Merrill, Mich., an old farming village that effectively has been held hostage by a malign entity since the 1800s. The hauntings seemed to spread to a family farm in the mid-1970s, but now another household near that property is under siege. FEBRUARY 21, 2020

Whitmer Thomas: The Golden One

Appearing before a sold-out crowd last September in the fabled Flori-Bama Lounge on the Florida-Alabama state line, actor and comic Whitmer Thomas delivers a deeply personal and unconventional program of stand-up and original songs in this, his first one-hour special. It's a Gulf Coast homecoming for the performer, whose late mother and her twin sister used to perform in the same venue with their band.
