SDSU student considers flowers, cattle

BROOKINGS — In South Dakota, half of the state's approximately 50 million acres are considered rangeland and provide the grazing area needed for more than 4 million beef cattle. South Dakota is also home to a diverse range of native plants and wildflowers, scattered throughout the state. What is the relationship, if any, between wildflowers and grazing cattle?

According to novel research from South Dakota State University student Kaitlyn Preszler, rangeland

Jason McEntee and Jennifer Widman show off copies of this year's Community Read — "Killers of the Flower Moon" by David Grann.

Groups team up to promote a 'Community Read'

By JOHN KUBAL
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS — Books can drive discussion and dialogue: in classes both formal and informal; in book clubs; and in some instances in a "Community Read." One such book that does all of these is "Killers of the Flower Moon," by David Grann, published in 2017 and followed by a film of the same name in 2023.

Promoting, facilitating, and hosting the book as a Community Read are professors Sharon Smith and Jason McEntee, also director of South Dakota State University School of English and Interdisciplinary Studies. Helping bring the project to fruition via two discussions, the movie and a lecture by the author is the South Dakota Humanities Council.

McEntee received an $8,500 grant from the SDHC; with that funding, he purchased 650 copies of the book, which are being distributed in Brookings, Sioux Falls, and at 17 tribal schools and colleges.

"I read the book over the course of a couple of days (in spring 2023)," McEntee said. "It's a great read. It's a very powerful read. It's a very frustrating read, to say the least. You would read it in one sitting except you to have to walk away from it from time to time, because it's just so unbelievable — like the awful things that happened."

He was moved enough by the book, which is also referenced as "The Osage Murders and the Birth of the FBI," that he decided to try to "bring David Grann to come and talk." The director reached out to the author, via his agent, and found out the cost of such a visit. It is not cheap.

A few days later, in May, while having a monthly meeting, over lunch, with Dean Lynn Sargent, College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences — and having

City discusses liquor license fee hike

By MONDELL KECK
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS — Fees for on-sale liquor licenses in Brookings were discussed during a Tuesday night City Council study session, but the city wants the public's insights before taking possible action, which has been set for April 16.

Currently, the one-time fee for an on-sale liquor license is $25,000. This is the type of license held by 18 businesses in Brookings. Another type, known as a full-service restaurant on-sale liquor license, is available for a one-time $100,000 fee and is currently used by two businesses in the city. The former is limited by population while the latter has no population limits, but must meet a threshold of 60% sales coming from food and nonalcoholic beverages.

Debate centered on the merits of leaving the fees — which haven't changed since being initiated in 2011 — as is versus raising or lowering them and how such moves might affect existing liquor license holders. "I would suggest not changing the current cost. To me, $100,000 for a restaurant liquor license is not that big of a barrier to entry," Kevin Raab, the owner of Pints & Quarts, told councilors. "I think there should be some because liquor is somewhat regulated, so we should do something to just make sure everyone can't just all of a sudden start opening up restaurants and selling Jack Daniels all over town."

He continued, "I'm not, I don't come from like some wealthy — I was a swim coach, my wife was a school teacher. If we could figure out how to make it work to get a restaurant with the current pricing and everything, I think the next person who wants to take the lead can, too."

Raab added that he believes the fee is an investment.

"... The reality is, you pay $100,000 for that restaurant liquor license ... whenever you sell, you're getting that $100,000 back. It's an asset on your books. If you guys were to lower the license today, all the restaurants, all the bars, the value of their business would drop immediately just because now the liquor licenses are cheaper, so one asset that we sort of have is now devalued. So that's something to think about."

Councilors also heard from Brookings Economic Development CEO Tim Reed, who pointed to a consumer survey report from 2019 where respondents indicated the importance of restaurants to them.

"Restaurants are important. They're an amenity that people look for when they consider moving to town or coming or staying in town," he said. "... We do feel that having a community with good amenities really can help us with attracting the workforce that we need

BROOKINGS — Nick Wendell has filed sufficient signatures to be placed on the April 9 ballot for the position of City Council member, according to a release from the city of Brookings.

To date, Wayne Avery and Wendell, the incumbents, have both filed to run again for City Council. Al Austreim has also filed for the position.

Ope Niemeyer has filed to run again for mayor, without opposition thus far.

Two incumbents — Keli Books and Debra DeBates — have also filed for the Brookings School Board.

The deadline for petitions is today — Friday, Feb. 23.

Camp site in Elkton hit by vandal

BROOKINGS — Someone destroyed two utilities hookups at the campground on Third Street in Elkton, according to a release from the Brookings County Sheriff's Office.

The Sheriff's Office was contacted Feb. 21 about the damage, Assistant Sheriff Scott Sebring wrote. According to the release, evidence showed that two full hookup utilities spots were damaged when an unknown Toyota Rav 4 hit the posts.

The damage could have been done any time between November of 2023 and when the report was taken, Sebring wrote. The cost to repair the damage was estimated at $3,000.

Anyone with information about the case can contact the Sheriff's Office at 606-696-8300 or contact Crimestoppers anonymously at www.brookingsareacrimestoppers.com or 605-692-7867.

READ: ‘Killers of the Flower Moon’

Grann’s book with him — he recapped his visit with Grann’s agent and the cost of bringing the author here. Her response: “Why not? Let’s see what we can do.” His response was to get cracking and raise the money.

“I began to put together ‘a coalition of the willing,’” McEntee said, laughing heartily. “We have all sorts of, I want to say no fewer than 13 or 14 campus and Humanities Council partners and the Fishback Foundation and things like that in Brookings. It was overwhelming how many people just immediately said, ‘I’ll give $1,000,’ ‘I’ll give $2,000.’ Next thing you know, after a couple of weeks, we had enough money to bring Grann in.”

The contract was completed and April 5 was set for Grann’s visit. To schedule his visit that far out was necessitated by the author’s popularity, which was further boosted by a major movie with the same name as the book.

“He’s one of the hot tickets on the lecture circuit right now,” McEntee noted. “He’s also promoting his new book: ‘The Wager.’ He’s kind of doing a double dip here.”

How about a ‘Community Read’?

With Grann’s visit locked in, which the director considered a “pretty significant victory (for the school he directs),” he got to thinking about “some sort of a community-read type event surrounding his visit. And how would we do it?”

“It’s a contemporary Western,” McEntee said of Grann’s book. “But it’s also a mob story; it’s also a political story; it’s also an oil story; cops and robbers; a love story: the birth of the FBI.

“It’s got so many angles for discussion. It’s really a fabulous read. There’s really no structure. We’re going to have some talking points, but it’s mostly to get people together to talk about the book, to talk about their experiences with reading it. If they’ve seen the movie, we can talk about that. That’s the story.”

The director is “still working out the logistics” for the movie tickets. He has arranged one theater with 300 seats reserved. “We are holding out some hope that we can get a second theater.” There will be some free tickets; patrons should be warned that it’s long — some critics say too long: 3 hours and 35 minutes.

McEntee lauded Grann for his generosity: “He has been absolutely fantastic. He has been so generous with his time. He is doing two different one-hour sessions in the afternoon on campus with two different student and faculty groups. He’s having a sit-down invite-only dinner with all of the tribal leaders from the state. There’s going to be a dialogue taking place at that.”

“He’s incredibly friendly,” said Jennifer Widman, SDHC interim executive director. She had met the author at the 2023 Festival of Books in Deadwood. She added, “He’s very flexible, generous and down to earth. He’s wonderful to work with. He is not a diva.”

“He’s fully aware of the Community Read and super-excited that we’re doing it,” McEntee added.

Hoover, birth of the FBI

“The narrative is a pretty straightforward crime narrative — and I’m not trying to belittle the events and the murders and all of that,” McEntee explained. “The Osage discover oil in the early 1920s and they immediately become not only one of the richest — not only tribes but richest areas population-wise in the nation.

“And, of course, what ends up happening is predominately white men see an opportunity here to get land and, in fact, oil-rich land. So the issue then becomes white men coming in and either outright murdering Osage for their titles; but also in one of the main narratives of the book and certainly the main narrative of the movie is the Ernest Burkhart character marrying an Osage, under false pretenses, and slowly murdering her and getting her title to the land.”

McEntee also noted additional elements of the book that included “the nefariousness of politicians ... corruption and greed.”

Also to be noted in the book is “how the FBI develops. ... It’s their very first case. In many ways, it’s the birth of modern forensics and modern investigation. ... (FBI Director) J. Edgar Hoover gets mentioned in the movie maybe once but he’s a factor in the book.

“He’s making all these decisions. The FBI ends up taking on not only the criminal element but they’re also taking on the local law enforcement, who are embedded with the criminals. So it’s like law against law.”

As to the book vs. the movie? McEntee recommends reading the book before seeing the movie. The movie — even though long at 3 hours, 35 minutes — “crams so much in there. The last part feels very rushed.”

“One of the biggest contrasts between the book and the movie is that there’s so much focus on the love story in the movie,” Widman noted. “So you get a lot less about the investigation and the sort of moral conundrum that some of the FBI (agents) are in in terms of how they navigate this and keep themselves safe. You get a lot more of that (in the book).”

Community effort gets it done

This Community Read truly comes about via a community effort by the people and agencies noted above — and others. As to the book, copies are available for check out at: Brookings Public Library, SDSU Hilton M. Briggs Library; Brookings High School Library and Brookings Mickelson Middle School Library.

The schedule of events includes: at 7 p.m., Feb. 27 (Tuesday) and March 19 (Tuesday), in Rotunda D on the SDSU campus, a discussion of “Killers of the Flower Moon” (The Osage Murders and the Birth of the FBI”), facilitated by professors Smith and McEntee.

The movie “Killers of the Flower Moon” will be screened at 5 p.m., March 27 (Wednesday) at Brookings Cinema 8. Additional details about getting tickets will be forthcoming. On April 5 (Friday) at 7 p.m., in Larson Memorial Concert Hall, SDSU Performing Arts Center, David Grann will present a lecture and book signing.

in Brookings.”

Reed pointed out additional findings from the survey, including:

- Restaurant variety was the No. 1 reason people went out of town for a meal.
- The No. 3 reason for going out of town for a meal was for other reasons to visit an area. For example, when area residents head to Sioux Falls to shop.

- The No. 1 type of establishment sought by Brookings-area residents are family restaurants, with 85% saying they were very or somewhat interested in this.

- The No. 4 item for establishment type was fine dining, where 71% saying were very or somewhat interested in this.

Reed further noted that, based on data from 2018 that was in the 2019 report, food service leakage from Brookings was very low, at only $5.5 million. Meanwhile, general merchandise leakage was much worse, clocking in at $54 million. He added that four of the top 10 restaurants that were requested back in 2019 normally have liquor.

“So, we’re really doing a pretty good job. We don’t have that much leakage in Brookings,” Reed said of the restaurant data.

After listening to the pros and cons of various arguments, Councilor Wayne Avery shared his thoughts on the topic.

“In all fairness to everyone, leaving it alone is the best policy,” he advised. “It’s one of those things: It sounds like it’s a really good thing for restaurants and small business to reduce that fee, but in the end I don’t think it is.”

Meanwhile, Councilor Holly Tilton Byrne thought the fees should be the same.

“You gain the same right to do the same thing, with the exception of not having to prove food sales with the liquor fee,” she said. “Regardless of whether we decrease the restaurant fee, increase the on-sale liquor fee, change them both — my opinion is at the end of the day they should cost an equal amount since ultimately, out there in the market, it’s gaining the establishment owner the same right to serve.”

Councilors voted 7-0 to add further discussion on the fees to the April 16 agenda. Between now and then, councilors hope to hear from the public on the issue.

RESEARCH: Wildflowers provide high nutritional value

with areas of high wildflower diversity is better for cattle than areas with only grass.

“Wildflowers are providing a high nutritional source for grazing cattle,” Preszler said. “These wildflowers provided more nutrition to cattle than other feed options, like pre-bud alfalfa, corn, silage and vegetative brome.”

Preszler, a wildlife and fisheries sciences and ecology and environment sciences major with a specialization in rangeland management, grew up on a cow-calf operation outside of Roscoe, South Dakota. There, she gained an appreciation for rangeland and livestock production, and after enrolling at SDSU, she decided she wanted to conduct research on the relationship between cattle and wildflowers in South Dakota.

While Preszler knew that wildflowers, also referred to as forbs, made up a significant portion of a grazing cow’s diet and could potentially be providing high nutritional value, there had been no prior studies backing up these claims. After winning the first ever Pasqueflower Award from SDSU’s Native Plant Initiative, she was afforded the opportunity to investigate herself.

Working with her research advisers in SDSU’s Department of Natural Resource Management —Krista Ehlert, assistant professor and an SDSU Extension range specialist; Lora Perkins, associate professor; and Joshua Leffler, associate professor —Preszler studied the nutritional value, neutral detergent fiber and dry matter digestibility of individual forb species native to South Dakota.

“We selected wildflower species that were widely distributed throughout South Dakota,” Preszler said. “Selections were made by looking at scientific literature that documented cattle selection preferences or species that were often questioned by producers.”

The various forb species were grown in greenhouses on campus. Once an adequate amount of dry matter was grown, digestibility tests were conducted.

“The tests were able to find the percentage of the plant that is indigestible to cattle,” Preszler said. “We then compared these results to other feed options used throughout South Dakota. We compared our results among the different species to see if some were statistically better than others.”

The results indicated that forbs are a high nutritional source for grazing cattle. All the species were highly digestible and had high nutritional values. The relative feed value range of 215 to 245 indicated a high-value forage for the native wildflowers.

“Although all species tested had high nutritional value, statistical differences indicated that certain species may be more valuable than others,” Preszler said.

For example, the prairie cinquefoil, a native South Dakota wildflower, was more digestible than purple coneflower, another native wildflower.

“The results from this study suggest that wildflowers provide producers with an important source of nutrition and thus have economic value,” Preszler said.

“The biggest takeaway was that wildflowers are providing a high nutritional source for grazing cattle, which means that areas with high wildflower diversity are more valuable than monocultures.”

With the study’s results in hand, Preszler’s future plans are to work with private landowners through federal or state agencies to implement conservation practices in their ranging operations.

“This is groundbreaking work that provides landowners and ranchers with important information,” Perkins said. “Kaitlyn (Preszler) has exceeded expectations with her work with the Native Plant Initiative.”

Preszler’s research will be featured at the 2024 South Dakota Student Research Poster Session on Feb. 29 at the State Capitol.

Her work was supported by SDSU alumna Rebecca Kurtz Schwanke and her husband, Steve, who endowed the Pasqueflower Award to support undergraduate research with the Native Plant Initiative.

Gear up for the garden season

By MELINDA MYERS
For the Register

It's never too early to prepare for the garden season ahead. Having the right tool for the job saves time, reduces the frustration of trying to make the wrong tool work, and allows you to garden longer with less muscle fatigue. Take an inventory of all your tools. Be sure to check the shed, garage, or tool caddy. Make a list of those that need to be replaced or need an update. This is also a good time to clean and sharpen those tools you plan to use in the coming growing season. As you update your tools, you may want to purchase a few hand tools with comfortable wooden handles and carbon steel heads. The wood adds a natural aesthetic that goes hand in hand with gardening.

Make sure you have the right shovels for those frequent digging tasks. Perhaps it is time to invest in a long-handled shovel with a narrow head that allows you to dig in small spaces. Corona's DigMaster Nursery Shovel has a hardened steel blade and a handle for durability and long life. The ComfortGel grip allows you to keep working longer. Like digging with the right-sized shovel, deadheading flowers with the right tool makes it easier and you're more likely to get the job done. For those with a lot of deadheading, select one with an ergonomic design, a finger loop for better control, and an easy-release lock like Corona's Ergo Dead Header Snips.

Late winter and early spring are also the time to do a bit of trimming and pruning on indoor plants. Pruners and snips with specially shaped blades, like the Corona BP14623 Houseplant Pruner, make trimming individual leaves and stems easier, ensuring you make the cut where planned.

A scoop comes in handy when placing potting mix or fertilizer in containers. The more you use it, the more uses you will discover for scoops like Corona's Multi-Scoop with a stainless-steel scoop and ComfortGel grip. If you struggle to haul soil, mulch, and plants to the garden bed, it may be time to invest in a garden cart. Wheelbarrows are a traditional favorite but how about a 4-wheeled cart with pneumatic tires to make moving the load over rough ground easier? Consider one with sides that fold down for easier loading and unloading. Or perhaps one with a dumping mechanism, like Corona's CR1000 Poly Dump Cart, that makes it easy to empty loads of mulch and soil where it is needed.

And don't forget about the young gardeners in your life. Having their own set of properly sized hand tools, long-handled tools, and of course, a wheelbarrow will make working with you in the garden even more special. Kids, like adults, benefit from spending time in the garden. Give them their own garden patch or row to dig, plant, and tend. You'll all have more fun.

When upgrading your garden tools, consider donating those that are still in good working order to a nearby community garden, school garden, or master gardener group. They can always use extra tools to help them grow gardeners of all ages. And those that have reached the end of life can be turned into garden art. It's a great way to save memories of gardens' past.

Applications open for master gardener, horticulture course

BROOKINGS — Applications are now being accepted for the South Dakota State University Extension Master Gardener and Home Horticulture training course.

SDSU Extension's Master Gardener program helps gardening enthusiasts become expert volunteers. Once certified, Master Gardeners can host community programs and workshops to provide research-based information to their communities. Applications for this year's training course are due March 10, 2024.

"Master Gardeners are out in their communities, helping us spread the word about tested, research-based gardening information," said Prairey Walkling, SDSU Extension master gardener field specialist. "They are our proverbial 'boots on the ground' to help people succeed in their gardening adventures."

A mix of online and in-person instruction, the training course is open from April 1 to July 31 for adults interested in learning more about flowers, plants, lawns and landscapes. Understanding of plants is helpful, but there are no course prerequisites.

The course focuses on plant care with training in various topics ranging from plant identification to soil health, in order to provide a comprehensive look at what helps lawns and gardens to thrive.

Trainees must attend two in-person trainings to pass.

There will be in-person training on April 8 and June 17 in Rapid City, April 10 and June 12 in Aberdeen, and April 11 and June 13 in Madison, with a full and half-day at each location. Training times and locations will be provided after registration.

A woman in a red shirt leads a tour group through a garden. There are tall grasses and pink flowers in the foreground Online courses are weekly live 90-minute webinar sessions starting at 6 p.m. MT/7 p.m. CST every Thursday from April 18 through June 27. Trainees must attend at least 80% of the online webinars to pass the course. Participants must also pass a final test, which will be available online in July.

New participants may register for $250 or $500, depending on the registration type. Current SDSU Extension Master Gardeners may take the course for free or purchase an updated manual for $80.

SDSU Extension Master Gardener is part of the national Cooperative Extension Master Gardener program network, one of the largest volunteer organizations in the country with more than 86,000 volunteers across 49 states.

Judge Engoron’s retribution against Trump

■ This judge is trying to fulfill his campaign promise to take down Trump.

Donald Trump has just a few weeks to find a way to pay, or guarantee that he will pay, the $355 million fine that a New York judge imposed on him in the lawsuit brought by the state’s Democratic Attorney General Letitia James. The suit was the culmination of James’ campaign to bring financial ruin on the former president, and it might succeed; unless it is reduced on appeal, the actual amount Trump will owe, including interest, could top $450 million.

That’s insane, of course. Even assuming that the case proved Trump overstated the values of some of his properties for the purpose of getting lower interest rates on real-estate loans, the other things that the case revealed — that this was an example of selective prosecution, that there were no victims, that the loans were paid back in a “timely and total” fashion, that the lending institutions made the loans based not on Trump’s representations but on their own research, and that some of those institutions were eager to do business with Trump again — all meant that a far smaller penalty, perhaps a tiny fraction of what Judge Arthur Engoron imposed, would be appropriate.

Engoron wrote a 92-page opinion explaining his actions. First, if you wondered why there was no jury and the decision was left to Engoron and Engoron alone, the judge noted that that is New York law in this case. James structured the lawsuit so that Trump could not appeal to the judgment of a jury. “There was no right to a jury,” Engoron wrote, “and the case was ‘tried to the Court,’ the Court being the sole factfinder and the sole ‘judge of credibility.’”

Engoron conceded that Trump repaid all his loans in full and on time. There was no one to play the role of victim, no one to testify that Trump cheated them out of anything. The banks didn’t lose money, they made money — the precise amounts specified in the loan contracts. But the judge still found misconduct. “It is undisputed that defendants have made all required payments on time,” he wrote. But “timely and total repayment of loans does not extinguish the harm that false statements inflict on the marketplace.”

A number of observers remarked that they knew of no other case like the Trump lawsuit. Indeed, addressing concerns that some businesses, fearing Trump-like harassment lawsuits themselves, might leave New York, Democratic Gov. Kathy Hochul said she understood that the case might make some businesspeople nervous, “but this is really an extraordinarily unusual circumstance that the law-abiding, rule-following New Yorkers who are businesspeople have nothing to worry about.” What she meant was: Look, Attorney General James went after Trump because he is Trump. It’s political. You don’t need to worry.

Judge Engoron suggested that one reason he threw the book at Trump was that Trump would not admit error in falsifying estimates of his properties’ value. Engoron said the Trump side only confessed to one error, a description of the Trump Tower Penthouse that tripled its actual square footage. Other than that, Trump defended his valuations. The striking thing was that Engoron suggested that the overvaluations — the heart of the case — weren’t really a serious offense; it was Trump’s refusal to confess error that led Engoron to impose such a draconian penalty.

“Their complete lack of contrition and remorse borders on pathological,” Engoron wrote of Trump and his co-defendants. “They are accused only of inflating asset values to make more money. The documents prove this over and over again. This is a venial sin, not a mortal sin. Defendants did not commit murder or arson. They did not rob a bank at gunpoint. Donald Trump is not Bernard Madoff. Yet, defendants are incapable of admitting the error of their ways. Instead, they adopt a ‘See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil’ posture that the evidence belies.”

That suggests Trump might have saved himself millions of dollars, maybe hundreds of millions of dollars, if he had simply told the judge: You’re right about everything, and I will go and sin no more. Instead, Engoron punished what he called a “venial” sin — that is, a minor infraction — with a crippling $450 million fine.

An elected Democrat, Attorney General James ran for office on a pledge to destroy Trump’s business empire. Now, making full use of an idiosyncratic New York state law and a compliant judge, she has made a giant step toward her goal. Just as a reminder, here are some of the things James promised in her campaign:

“This illegitimate president,” James said, “he’s not my president, he’s an illegitimate president. His days are numbered. His days are numbered...We’ve got to be ready to mobilize and we’ve got to get ready to agitate and irritate until victory is won, or more importantly, until Trump is defeated...We will all rise up and resist this man...and ultimately we’ll bring him down...I’m going to give [Trump] the same level of respect that [Trump] gave President Obama, and that is absolutely no respect at all...Donald Trump has got to go. Hey, hey! Ho, ho! Donald Trump has got to go!...The days of Trump are numbered.” On at least one occasion, a crowd yelled to James, “Lock him up!” Starting a call-and-response, James responded, “What?” “Lock him up!” the crowd yelled. “What?” “Lock him up!” And on it went.

So that is what Letitia James was trying to do. Last week, it was Judge Engoron’s turn to impose punishment. Yes, there will be appeals, and if there is any common sense at all in the New York system of justice, the $450 million penalty will be drastically reduced. But the bottom line remains, this was a highly politicized and grossly unfair lawsuit against former President Trump.

So after the shaking hands and the how-are-yous, we talked about kids and business, and the new crop of youngsters coming up this year. I couldn’t help thinking ol’ Herb might jump at the chance to dive back into the world of commerce again, but he disabused me of that right away.

“All through with that,” he said, shaking his head. “I was a successful businessman and now I’m successfully retired.”

Successfully retired? “That’s right,” he grinned. “I have a wife and a television set, and they both work.”

Regret signing that petition? Republicans are here to ‘help’

Ever since the South Dakota Legislature dismantled the voter-approved anti-corruption measure known as IM 22 in record time, lawmakers and the people who back initiated measures have been locked in a battle of the ballot box. Lawmakers try to throw up as many roadblocks to ballot access as they can while ballot measure backers are intent on getting multiple issues in front of voters.

Through the years, Republicans in the Legislature have tried many tactics to make success tougher for ballot measures. Lawmakers keep busy with little things like boosting the font size to make the petition more unwieldy or increasing a copying fee to make the process more expensive. Sometimes they take on larger challenges like pushing back the effective date of ballot measures or enhancing the penalty for petition perjury.

While lawmakers keep tinkering with the rules governing ballot measures, citizens keep trying to use the public vote to change the state constitution or enact new laws. The secretary of state’s website lists eight initiated measures and constitutional amendments that still have a chance to make it onto the 2024 ballot.

The latest attempt to mess with ballot measures comes in the form of a petition signature do-over. House Bill 1244 would create a process for withdrawing a signature from a petition for an initiated measure or constitutional amendment.

A Dakota Scout story quotes House Majority Leader Will Mortenson of Pierre as saying that the bill will add to voters’ rights. According to Mortenson, they’ll have the right to sign a petition and the right to withdraw that signature.

While the bill seems like just one more attempt to impede the ballot initiative process, the arguments from the bill’s opponents are a little melodramatic. Matthew Schweich, chairman of the Voter Defense Association of South Dakota, drew a comparison that gave signing a petition the same weight as actually casting a ballot.

“We don’t let people submit a form to retract their form when they vote by mail,” Schweich said, “and we shouldn’t, because it undermines the importance of casting a vote. If people sign petitions, they should stick with that decision, just like when you vote.”

With all due respect to Mr. Schweich, signing a petition and casting a ballot are two vastly different actions. Signing a petition doesn’t necessarily serve as an endorsement of the initiated measure. All it does is endorse getting that measure on the ballot. Signing the petition is an important part of the process, but it is not akin to voting.

For their part, the bill’s backers aren’t really concerned with voters’ rights. They’re more concerned with keeping measures they don’t agree with off the next ballot.

The process of getting signatures on the next batch of ballot measures has been particularly acrimonious. The bill’s sponsor, Rep. Jon Hansen, a Dell Rapids Republican, says that voters are being misled and misinformed about ballot measures in order to get their signatures on petitions.

Hansen and his Republican colleagues aren’t particularly fond of the current crop of initiated measures and constitutional amendments that could be on the 2024 ballot. These include attempts to establish abortion rights, cut the state sales tax on food, change the primary election system and legalize recreational marijuana.

The irony here is that lawmakers keep monkeying with the ballot measure rules while their own path to the ballot is remarkably easier. Lawmakers can put measures on the ballot just by convincing a majority of the 35-member Senate and a majority of the 70-member House that their idea is worthy of a vote of the people.

Citizens inspired to bring their ideas to a public vote face a far tougher task, collecting 17,508 signatures from registered voters for an initiated measure and 35,017 for a constitutional amendment.

Hiker suffers 11-hour ordeal after falling on mountain

MEREDITH, N.H. (AP) — As temperatures plunged on Mount Washington and ferocious winds made it near impossible to see, hiker Cole Matthes began to drift away from the trail. Then he hit a patch of snow-covered ice and slid hundreds of feet down a ravine.

His fall Saturday sparked a rescue mission that would last 11 hours, utilize the mountain's famed Cog Railway and prompt harsh criticism from rescuers, who said the hiker made "numerous poor decisions" in preparing for the hike and then deciding to push on.

Both Matthes and the rescuers agree that without help, he would have died within hours.

"I am extremely grateful to all 11 of the men who saved my life Saturday and am also extremely sorry that they had to risk their lives to save me," Matthes told The Associated Press. "I certainly made poor decisions and was underprepared for this hike."

Matthes, a 22-year-old engineer from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, said in an online interview that he has plenty of hiking experience but not during harsh winter conditions. He set off in spiked snowshoes planning to complete the challenging 9-mile Ammonoosuc Ravine Trail loop, which has an elevation gain of 4,200 feet.

New Hampshire Fish and Game said that as conditions worsened, Matthes ignored advice from other hikers to turn back.

"While I did see a group of hikers turn around at the Lake of the Clouds Hut, I decided to continue with other hikers," Matthes said. "I was not hiking alone at that point and the weather conditions had not reached their peak."

Once above the tree line, Matthes said, he swapped his snowshoes for boots with micro spikes because the snow wasn't deep and it was easier to navigate the rocks and ridges. But then he lost visibility. He slid down the ravine a little before noon, banging himself up and twisting his ankle. He called 911.

Ryan Presby, who manages the Mount Washington Cog Railway, said he took the train up three times with rescue crews. As winds hit 90 miles per hour and temperatures plunged, he worried the train's diesel fuel would gel and the engine seize. He told rescuers to jump out as quickly as possible when they reached their destination.

Levi Frye, a conservation officer with Fish and Game, was one of the first group of three rescuers to jump off the train. He said it was immediately clear they needed crampons for the ice and fierce wind.

"We were fighting it the whole time. It was certainly capable of knocking you off your feet, especially with a heavy pack on," Frye said. "The visibility was so bad on account of all the snow getting blown around."

The trail was marked with rock cairns, Frye said. Because the visibility was so poor, they used a system called leapfrogging. One person would stay at the first cairn while another would try to locate the next cairn. The third person stood in the middle to keep contact with both.

In this image provided by New Hampshire Fish and Game, New Hampshire Fish and Game conservation officer Levi Frye, left, and Jeremy Broughton, from Androscoggin Valley Search and Rescue, prepare to head out on a rescue mission at the Cog Railway base station, Saturday in Mount Washington, New Hampshire.

Staying safe meant finding a balance between not getting too cold and not sweating too much, because it was even more dangerous to have sweat freeze, Frye said.

After several hours in the ravine, Matthes said, there was a lull in the wind, and he spotted the Lake of the Clouds Hut in the distance. Although sore, his legs and ankle could take his weight. He was able to climb back up the ridge and make it to the closed hut, taking shelter underneath in an emergency spot rescuers call the cave. He called 911 again to update his location.

Huddling together to block the wind, Frye and his companions got the message. By the time they reached Matthes a little after 6 p.m., it was already dark.

"I was extremely relieved once the first team of rescuers arrived," Matthes said. "Even with my shelter, I wouldn't have lasted through the night in my condition."

Matthes's boots were frozen solid, Frye said. The top priority was to strip him of his wet gear and get him into dry clothes. They gave him warm water and electrolytes and strapped his ankle as more rescuers arrived. By about 9:30 p.m., they felt he was stable and ready to leave.

"He was very willing to try to hike out," Frye said.

"We ended up having him connected to another rescuer who had a harness on him."

The first few hundred yards were rough, Frye said. But once they got below the tree line, they got more protection from the wind. They got back to base a little before 11 p.m.

After being treated, Matthes said he declined the advice from rescuers to take an ambulance to the hospital because he thought it would be expensive. He drove himself there instead.

"I'm currently recovering from some frostbite on my toes," Matthes said.

New Hampshire Fish and Game said Matthes didn't have proper gear or equipment, didn't plan for the weather or make good decisions. In the past, the agency has sought to recover rescue costs from some hikers they consider negligent. The agency said it hasn't yet made a decision on the Matthes rescue.

Matthes said he was aware of the possible financial implications when he first called 911.

"But I knew that if I hadn't called for help, I wouldn't have made it down," Matthes said. "At the end of the day, I'm alive, and that's all that I could ask for."

Cyclist sustains injuries after a cougar 'latched onto' her

SEATTLE (AP) — A woman suffered injuries to her face and neck after a cougar leapt out and "latched onto" her while she was cycling with a group on a trail in Washington state, authorities said.

The incident happened Saturday on a trail northeast of Fall City, a community about 25 miles east of Seattle, KOMO-TV reported. Friends of the woman, 60, "were able to detach and fight this thing off" after it "latched onto" her, said Sgt. Carlo Pace with the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife Police.

"They were able to pin down a good size lion with its claws and teeth and everything else under a mountain bike until we arrived," he said.

The woman was released from the hospital. The agency described the cougar as a 75-pound young male. The animal was shot and killed by wildlife police.

Sea turtles returned to Atlantic after rehabilitation in Florida

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Workers from Clearwater Marine Aquarium in Florida have released 11 cold-stunned Kemp's ridley sea turtles back into the Atlantic Ocean.

The turtles were released recently near Cape Canaveral after two months of rehabilitation, the aquarium said in a news release. They were part of a group of 16 turtles that arrived at the Tampa Bay area facility from the New England Aquarium in Massachusetts in December. The other five turtles are still receiving care.

"We are excited to share that 11 of our Kemp's ridley patients are fully recovered and have been cleared for release by us, as well as Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission," Dr. Shelly Marquardt said.

Flandreau beats Sioux Valley to return to SoDak 16

By CHRIS SCHAD
The Register

FLANDREAU – The Flandreau Fliers are going back to the SoDak 16 as they used an aggressive defensive effort and a run midway through the third quarter to defeat the Sioux Valley Cossacks 46-30 in the Region 2A Tournament on Thursday night.

The win helped the Cossacks improve to 22-0 on the season and set up a date with Hill City with a trip to the Class A state tournament on the line on Feb. 29.

“We knew going into this game tonight that Sioux Valley has a really, really nice team,” Flandreau head coach Megan Severtson said of the win. “I was proud of how my girls handled some first half jitters and we’re really looking forward to the next one.”

The Fliers trademark defense made its presence felt early fueling a 7-2 run to open the game. While Sioux Valley battled back to cut the lead down to 10-7 at the end of the first quarter, Flandreau continued to remain aggressive, forcing the Cossacks into 18 turnovers and holding them to 29 percent shooting on the night.

“Our defense has been something that we’ve continued to pride ourself on all year long,” Severtson said. “They have so many scoring threats and it was just important for us to contest everything and do our best to get on their shooters.”

While the Cossacks climbed back to take a 12-11 lead on a bucket by Liberty Trygstad with 6:15 left in the second quarter, the Fliers quickly regained the lead and went into halftime with an 18-14 advantage. Flandreau came out with a renewed focus in the second half and it paid dividends with a run midway through third quarter that was capped by Lily Klein’s 3-pointer which gave Flandreau a 29-19 lead.

“We did a better job of not over-passing,” Severtson said of the run. “There were a few times it looked like hot potato in the first half, but I thought our girls settled into the game, found open players and then we just started knocking down shots. You’re able to relax when shots are going in.”

Klein hit another 3-pointer at the end of the third quarter to give Flandreau the lead and the Fliers out-scored the Cossacks 12-7 to seal another trip to the SoDak 16.

While Claire Sheppard had nine points, nine rebounds, five blocks and four assists and Klein finished with a game-high 19 points to go with five rebounds, a steal and an assist Severtson praised the work of her role players including Sadie Iott, who had six points, two rebounds, two steals, an assist and a block and Hannah Krull, who played a key part in stopping Sioux Valley guard Isabelle Bliker.

“I was really excited about the game our role players had tonight,” Severtson said. “Sadie did a great job defensively on Bliker all game and Hannah Krull came in and did the exact same thing. I’m really proud of those two as they’ve embraced their roles and they’ve excelled at them.”

Lizzie Pavlis also had six points, 10 rebounds, two steals and an assist for the Fliers. Flandreau shot 35 percent in the game including 3-of-10 (30%) from 3-point range and 7-of-17 (41.2%) from the free throw line.

While the Fliers were celebrating, the Cossacks had a bittersweet feeling when the final horn sounded. Sioux Valley had plenty of questions coming into the year but there were several players that stepped up including Kailey Craddock, who had 17 points, seven rebounds, an assist, a block and a steal and Keyra Kruse, who had 11 points, nine rebounds, two assists, two blocks and a steal.

With a final record of 16-6, Sioux Valley head coach and the rest of their team were emotional but also aware of what they had accomplished this season.

“We had three starters and six seniors walk out the door from last year and in most programs, there may be a step back,” Sioux Valley head coach Jamie Granum said. “I was just super proud of our team and the way they came together. We play really well together and that’s just a testament to the friends they are in the hallways, the class room and their other activities as well.”

The Fliers will now be the third seed in the SoDak 16 with Sisseton (20-1) and Sioux Falls Christian (19-2) the only other teams with a higher seed. With Mahpiá Lúta (21-0) the only other undefeated team left in the bracket, Severtson believes that her team has enough leadership to not only make a return trip to the state tournament but make a run in the final weeks of the season.

“I think that our senior leadership is going to be very important,” Severtson said. “We’ve played in these big games before. They just have to execute.”

SDSU men cruise to victory over Denver

By ANDREW HOLTAN
The Register

BROOKINGS – South Dakota State had it rolling at Frost Arena on Thursday night as the Jackrabbits beat Denver 97-70.

SDSU (16-12, 9-4) began the game with a 14-0 run and never looked back. It was the second-straight victory for the Jacks and the fourth in their past five games. SDSU head coach Eric Henderson has preached about having better energy, effort and enthusiasm this season, and fifth-year guard Matt Mims said he felt this was one of the best showings of those three things for the Jacks.

“We knew that we were really going to have to bring it tonight. Denver is a great team. We knew it was going to be a group effort and something that would definitely help us is playing with that energy and effort that we know that we’re capable of doing. That definitely helped us win the game,” Mims said.

SDSU pushed its early lead to 19-2 and then led 30-10 with 11:53 to play in the first half. Denver then went on a 13-3 run to close the gap to 33-23 with 8:21 left in the half. SDSU pushed the lead up to 42-28 but the Pioneers cut the lead to 50-41 heading into halftime.

The Jacks started the second half similarly to the way they started the game as they came out of the break with a 14-2 run to extend the lead to 64-43 with 15:43 left in the game. SDSU’s lead hung around 20 points for most of the second half and the Jacks’ largest lead of the game was the final score.

SDSU shot 57.1% from the field and was 12-of-28 from three. The Jacks had 19 assists and Henderson said they did a great job of sharing the ball on Thursday night.

“I thought we shared it really well. When we got that ball inside, and they were doubling in the post early and then our bigs were really unselfish. That allowed us to get some open shots on the perimeter and that’s important and our guys were able to knock them down,” Henderson said.

The Jacks were led by Mims, who had a career-high 21 points and knocked down four 3-pointers. He had been on a bit cold streak over the past three games and Henderson said it was nice to see the ball go in the basket when he shot it.

“[Mims] has been struggling a bit. I think the last three games he was 3-of-18 from the field. To his credit, he doesn’t complain. He just gets in and works, and then works a little harder. What’s really nice is to see him get rewarded for that work,” Henderson said.

Zeke Mayo had 20 points and five rebounds for SDSU. Charlie Easley had 15 points and William Kyle III had 12 points and six boards. Kalen Garry was the other Jackrabbit in double figures and he had 10 points.

Denver (15-14, 6-8) was led by the nation’s top scorer, Tommy Bruner. He averages 25.3 points per game and on Thursday night he scored 21 points. However, Bruner went 2-of-6 from the field in the second half and scored just four points in the second frame.

He let his frustrations out two times during the game. The first incident happened as the buzzer sounded for halftime and Bruner elbowed Mims in the face and received a technical foul. The second incident was with Mims again and this time Bruner threw him to the ground after the whistle late in the second half. He was charged with a flagrant one and was allowed to stay in the game.

Henderson said he liked the way his team guarded Bruner, even if it did get a little chippy on Thursday night.

“[Bruner] is so tough and he’s so versatile,” Henderson said. “[The game at Denver] they had 20 assists. I’m not sure how many [points] Tommy had, but I’m sure it was close to 30. He kind of did everything [in that game], so we made a conscious effort that we have to take away some things. You’re not going to be able to take away everything, so we tried to limit some of their assisted field goals. “... I liked the way our guys competed and their composure. Obviously, it got a little chippy in there. It’s unfortunate, but it gets frustrating. They’re competitors and they’re competing and there can be some frustrations on both sides. You just have to be real careful and stay competitive.”

South Dakota State guard Matt Mims drives to the top of the key during a game against Denver at Frost Arena in Brookings on Thursday night. SDSU won 97-70.

Denver shot 43.1% from the field and was 7-of-26 from three. The Pioneers had two other players score in double figures. Touko Tainamo had 22 points and Jaxon Brencley had 17 points and six rebounds.

SDSU had 36 rebounds and Denver had 31. The Jacks had 11 turnovers and the Pioneers had 11. SDSU was 21-of-28 at the free throw line and Denver was 13-of-21.

The Jacks are now tied with North Dakota for first place in the Summit League. SDSU had a come-from-behind overtime victory last weekend against Omaha. That followed by this 27-point win, SDSU has some momentum heading into its final three games, but Mayo said the Jacks can’t bank on momentum getting them wins down the stretch.

“I think [the win over Omaha] showed how connected we can be and when we’re connected on both ends of the floor, we’re a hard team to beat. It feels like momentum right now, but we have a tough one on Saturday with St. Thomas coming in here. They’re a great team as well. Every game we play is going to be a battle. As long as we stay within ourselves and stay as a connected group, I believe we can get the job done on any given night,” Mayo said.

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: I suffered an injury that caused internal bleeding, which then gave me iron deficiency anemia. I was battling its symptoms of depression and anxiety before I was diagnosed. Never having had any mental health struggles in my life, I had no idea what was happening to me. I was happy and calm my whole life until this medical condition changed my behavior considerably.

My wife of 20 years left me. I was diagnosed with the iron deficiency anemia after she had left. After the diagnosis, I was able to stop my blood loss and cure the anemia. Its symptoms went away, and I returned to my normal self.

I was sure my wife and I would reconcile after my diagnosis, but she says I was using the illness as an excuse for my behavior. She doesn't understand it was the cause. She mistakenly believes I am permanently mentally ill. She doesn't understand that these symptoms went away once the illness was cured. She says it brought out my true personality, which is not true.

My wife and family are my whole life. I didn't get this medical condition on purpose. We have a 4-year-old daughter I am a great father to. My wife is throwing away our family and trying to take my daughter away from me because I had a curable illness, which I no longer have. How can I get her to understand what happened and save our family? — Saddest Man In The World

Dear Saddest Man: You can't force your wife to reconcile, but it would be beneficial to both of you to consult your physician so he or she can explain the reason for your personality change and assure her the problem is not permanent. If that doesn't help, then you will have to accept that the marriage is over for the most tragic of reasons and go on with your life. I am so sorry for your predicament.

Dear Abby: My husband died two years ago. It has been a struggle, but we are making it. I have two sons. One is on his own; the other is in middle school. I want to move back to my hometown, but my son wants to stay here with his friends and go to the local high school like his brother did. I don't have anything holding me here besides my job.

I am so sad and depressed. Moving back home with friends and family closer would be better for me but maybe not better for him. Losing his dad has been really hard on him. It will be four years before he finishes school. I just want to be a good mom. Please advise me. — Not Sure In South Carolina

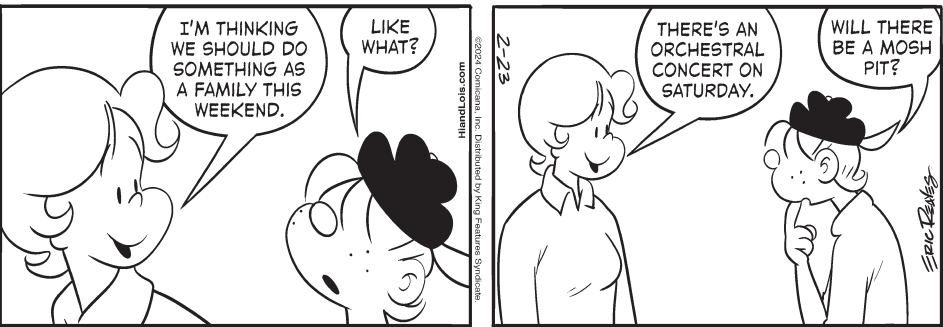

Dear Not Sure: Do not move your son while he is in his last year or two at the middle school. By then, cliques have formed, and he may find it difficult to fit in at the new school. The time to make that move would be the summer before your son's freshman year of high school, because at that time every student will be entering a new environment and be on more equal footing socially. It couldn't hurt to discuss this with a counselor at your son's school and ask for suggestions.

Sometimes I learn interesting things while hunting for material to use in this column. For example, what was Gandhi's first name?

This quotation from Gandhi is apposite for today's deal: "There is enough for the needy but not for the greedy."

West led the heart queen against three no-trump. How would you have planned the play?

After South had opened one club and West had overcalled one heart, North wanted to make a bid, but he didn't have anything suitable to say.

However, when South reopened with one no-trump, showing 18 or 19 points, North had an easy raise to game.

South won the first trick with the heart king and led the diamond jack from his hand. When West covered with the king, South happily called for dummy's ace. He continued with dummy's diamond queen and diamond 10, but West's spade discard on the last of these was a blow. Suddenly South noticed that he had only eight tricks: two spades, two hearts, three diamonds and one club.

"I'm sorry, partner," said South. "My greed for 10 tricks overcame my need for nine."

South had realized his error. He should have played low from the dummy at trick two, allowing West to win the trick with his diamond king. Then there would have been four diamond tricks in the dummy, ready to run. That was all South needed for his contract. I always thought Gandhi's first name

Breakthroughs in longevity show promise

By MIKE ROIZEN, M.D. AND MEHMET OZ, M.D.

Diagnosing Alzheimer's disease and breast cancer early and effectively treating pancreatic cancer are three major health challenges. Recently, there have been breakthroughs that may transform the future for anyone contending with those issues, either personally or with someone they know. Detecting Alzheimer's early: There's now a blood test called SOBA that detects clumps of neuron-damaging amyloid beta protein. That could alert people early on to their increased risk for Alzheimer's and allow them to take steps to reduce or reverse damage to their cognition.

There are 40 steps we've written about in these columns and in "The Great Age Reboot" that can slow or reverse brain aging. Now that's using your noodle.

Knocking out pancreatic cancer with an mRNA vaccine: In a study of 18 people with pancreatic cancer, researchers developed personalized vaccines against the cancer. The result: After their tumors were removed, half of the participants saw their vaccine help them remain cancer-free during a year of follow-up.

Breast cancer detection using artificial intelligence: Some good news about how AI can improve medical care comes from a British study of women being screened for breast cancer. Using a system dubbed Mia through two pilot studies and a full rollout of the device, the researchers found that the AI screening flagged 72 women for a second round of examination. Thirty of those women did, in fact, have breast cancer.

The bottom line: Mia caught 13% more early-stage and invasive breast cancers than doctors could using traditional ways of reading a mammogram. The intelligence might be artificial, but the results are very real.

CITY OF BROOKINGS
C462019-01, C462019-02
DATE: FEBRUARY 23, 2024
FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE FINDING OF NO
SIGNIFICANT IMPACT
FOR THE PROPOSED
PROJECT IN BROOKINGS COUNTY, SOUTH DAKOTA

As required by guidelines for the preparation of environmental impact statements, an environmental review has been performed on the proposed Drinking Water State Revolving Fund and Clean Water State Revolving Fund action below:

PROJECT:
Water Treatment Facility
LOCATION:
Brookings, South Dakota
PROJECT NUMBER:
C462019-01, C462019-02
TOTAL ESTIMATED COST:
$91,663,200

The city of Brookings intends to upgrade the water systems facilities in multiple phases. Phase one, includes the construction of a new lime softening water treatment facility along 34th Avenue that will be capable of treating six million gallons per day (MGD). The construction of a new water treatment facility will address major concerns within the water system including the current aging water facilities and obsolescence of the various parts and equipment.

Construction activities to complete the upgrade include the construction of a new 2- 3MGD lime softening water treatment train facility, the expansion of two wellfields with the addition of 6 new municipal wells, the installation of 28,500 feet of 16-inch diameter raw water line, the installation of lime sludge ponds, installation of 19,890 feet of 16-inch finished water line, and 17,400 feet of 20-inch transmission.

The city of Brookings received a $50,963,200 Drinking Water State Revolving Fund Loan with a rate of 1.875 and a term of 30 years and a $21,039,300 American Rescue Plan Act grant for the project on April 13, 2022. Brookings received an additional SRF loan for the project on January 5, 2023, in the amount of $40,700,000. The loan has a rate of 1.875 percent and a term of 30 years. A project surcharge has been pledged for repayment of the loan. A surcharge of $20.10 is required for sufficient coverage. The project will not affect any historical or archaeological resources as determined by a Cultural Resources Inventory Survey of the project area. In the event of an archaeological or historical resource being unearthed during construction, work will be stopped, and the State Historic Preservation Office will be notified. The project should have no direct or indirect adverse effects on plant life or wildlife. The improvements, if necessary, will be flood proofed to above the 100-year base flood elevation. The proposed project will take mitigative efforts to ensure wetlands are not adversely affected including obtaining a Section 404 permit. The United States Department of Agriculture determined that there will be no significant impact on farmland of statewide importance in Brookings County, and the Department of Agriculture determined that no further alternatives need be considered. The review process did not indicate that significant environmental impacts would result from the proposed action. Consequently, a preliminary decision not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement has been made. This action is taken on the basis of a careful review of the engineering report, environmental information documents, and other supporting data which are on file at the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources (DANR), Division of Financial and Technical Assistance, Pierre, South Dakota, and are available for public scrutiny at the Brookings Municipal Utilities office in Brookings, South Dakota.

Comments supporting or disagreeing with this decision may be submitted for consideration by DANR to DANRmail@state.sd.us. After evaluating the comments received, the Department will make a final decision; however, no final administrative action will be taken on the project for at least 30 calendar days after release of the Finding of No Significant Impact. /s/ Tina McFarling
