BHS principal leaving after 1 year

Departure approved but not mentioned at school board meeting.

By JOSH LINEHAN
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS — Brookings High School Principal Heather Miller-Cink will leave the position after just one year on the job.

Though her departure was not mentioned at Monday's meeting of the Brookings School Board, her leaving was later listed in the personnel report posted online and approved 5-0 during the consent agenda portion of the meeting.

It was coded as a resignation.

Miller-Cink was one of new Superintendent Summer Schultz's first two hires, announced to the board last June 11, before Schultz had officially even taken over the superintendent job.

Miller-Cink took over for Paul von Fischer, who left Brookings to take the superintendent job in Estelline.

At the time, Schultz said "She leads with excellence. She is going to be a great addition."

Miller-Cink came to Brookings from Park Center High School in Brooklyn Park, Minnesota.

In a September profile in The Register, Miller-Cink explained See BHS, page 2

People sign a petition to put a measure on the ballot in 2024 that would reinstate abortion rights in South Dakota.

Anti-abortion group calling petition signers

By MAKENZIE HUBER
South Dakota Searchlight

Hundreds of phone calls this week that the South Dakota secretary of state has labeled a "scam" are originating from an anti-abortion group seeking to disqualify an abortion-rights ballot measure.

A petition was submitted last week to the Secretary of State's Office with enough signatures to place the measure on the Nov. 5 ballot, but the signatures must undergo a validation process.

Earlier this year, the Legislature and Gov. Kristi Noem passed legislation allowing people to withdraw their signatures from petitions.

Rachel Soulek, elections director with the Secretary of State's Office, said the callers are capitalizing on the new law.

"This is the first time we are seeing this and it's a result of the law change to allow individuals to remove their name from a ballot measure up until the point it is validated in our office," Soulek told South Dakota Searchlight through email.

The office sent a news release Monday warning the public to be aware of scammers impersonating employees of the Secretary of State's Office, "pushing the voters to challenge the abortion rights ballot measure petitions."

No one hurt after large van catches fire

Brookings Fire Department puts out vehicle fire.

By MONDELL KECK
The Brookings Register

BROOKINGS — A blaze involving a 15-passenger van in Brookings on Tuesday night resulted in significant damage to the vehicle, but no injuries.

Brookings Fire Chief Pete Bolzer told the Brookings Register that the incident occurred in the 1700 block of Elmwood Drive and was reported at approximately 9:11 p.m. Three fire engines and 16 firefighters responded, he added, and were on the scene for 30 minutes. The blaze, which originated in the engine compartment, was contained to the van.

The cause wasn't known as of Wednesday morning, Bolzer said when asked about what people can do to avoid such fires. As such, "it is difficult to recommend anything other than proper seasonal maintenance of your vehicle."

Looking Back: The Catholic Church

Editor's note: As part of Historical Preservation Month, this is the 1906 report on the dedication of Catholic Church in Brookings from the Brookings County Press. The information was compiled by Tom Thaden.

NEW CHURCH IS DEDICATED
Catholics Consecrate Their New House of Worship
Brookings County Press — November 1, 1906

The new St. Thomas Catholic church in this city was formally dedicated Tuesday, appropriate services being held in the morning and evening. The dedicatory exercises proper were conducted by Rt. Rev.

Thomas O'Gorman, bishop of Sioux Falls, assisted by eighteen visiting priests. The weather during the day was fine, it being one of the nicest days we have had in several weeks, and a large crowd was in attendance at each service.

The property upon which the church now stands was purchased in 1904, and church has been held in the house since that time. In June of this year the house was moved to the west side of the property, and on July 7th ground was broken for the new church. The contract was let to Wold & Johnson of this city.

The new church stands at the northwest corner of Medary Avenue

CALLS: Attorney general says not illegal

“Citizens in South Dakota, by law, have the right to petition and people like these scammers are eroding public trust in the election process,” Secretary of State Monae Johnson said in the news release.

Johnson’s office asked state Attorney General Marty Jackley to look into the calls. Jackley said Tuesday that the Division of Criminal Investigation reviewed complaints about the calls, and also reviewed scripts used by callers, and found no indication of criminal wrongdoing.

Calls are for impending court challenge

The calls are associated with a new South Dakota Petition Integrity political action committee, registered Monday by Dell Rapids Republican state Rep. Jon Hansen. The group is affiliated with the Life Defense Fund ballot question committee, which Hansen co-chairs.

Callers are targeting over 700 South Dakotans who signed the petition and were randomly selected as a sample to validate the petition signatures by the Secretary of State’s Office.

The office uses samples to estimate whether enough of the signatures on a petition are from registered voters, rather than examining every signature. The abortion petition, a proposed state constitutional amendment, needed 35,017 signatures and was submitted with about 55,000.

Hansen said his volunteers are not impersonating state employees. He said they’re clearly stating that they are volunteers with the committee and disclosing how they received the person’s name.

The callers are independently verifying the signatures, Hansen said, and asking signers whether petition circulators followed applicable laws and whether signers were misled into signing the petition. Hansen has alleged some signers were duped into believing they were signing a petition to repeal the state sales tax on groceries when they were actually signing the abortion-rights petition.

The information collected through the phone calls will be used as evidence when opponents of the ballot measure challenge the validity of the signatures in court.

“We don’t intimidate a single person. Our mission is not to intimidate — our mission is to educate,” Hansen told South Dakota Searchlight.

Hansen obtained the sample list through a public records request. Rick Weiland, who is leading the abortion-rights ballot initiative, also obtained the sample list from the office. The sample list is prepared within five days of the signatures being submitted.

Information or harassment?

Hansen was a prime sponsor of the petition signature withdrawal bill that passed the Legislature earlier this year with an emergency clause, ensuring that the law went into effect immediately. He said callers are informing signers they can remove their signatures if they were misled or have changed their mind.

“I would encourage anybody who signed that abortion petition to take their name off of it,” Hansen said. “Ever since this law was passed and went into effect, I’ve been encouraging people to take their name off the petition, but it’s not coercive. It’s not intimidation.”

Hansen said the phone calls are not harassment under state law.

“If anybody’s harassing anybody, it’s wrong and they shouldn’t do it. That’s certainly not what we’re doing — we’re just giving people the facts,” Hansen said. “We have laws already on the books against harassment, so if anybody is getting harassed those laws should be enforced.”

Weiland, with Dakotans for Health, the ballot question committee backing the abortion-rights measure, said the calls are acts of “desperation” in an effort to “suppress direct democracy.”

“It smells of voter intimidation and harassment,” Weiland added.

Some people who received phone calls from the committee told South Dakota Searchlight that the volunteers did not clearly indicate they were not affiliated with the state government. Some called several times, and some did not state their name or organization when leaving voice-mails.

Adrienne Bosma signed the petition and volunteered with Dakotans for Health as a petition circulator. She said a caller from South Dakota Petition Integrity created the impression of being officially associated with the Secretary of State’s Office.

The volunteer asked questions, including whether Bosma knew the petition “allows for abortion up to birth.” Bosma said she challenged the volunteer’s language before the volunteer hung up the phone.

“I was so mad, I was physically shaking,” Bosma said. “If you’re calling people and harassing them when they’re exercising their First Amendment right, that’s over the line. That’s not OK.”

The ballot measure would legalize abortions in the first trimester of pregnancy but allow the state to impose limited regulations in the second trimester and a ban in the third trimester, with exceptions for the life and health of the mother.

Law creates double standard, official says

Pamela McClure received a voicemail that stated the caller’s name and organization. The voicemail also said the group “received” her name from the South Dakota secretary of state.

“She said she was a volunteer of the group registered with the secretary of state and got my name from the secretary of state,” McClure said. “To me, that means she’s working with the Secretary of State’s Office.”

Amy Scott-Stoltz, president of the South Dakota League of Women Voters, was also contacted. Scott-Stoltz asked the volunteer several questions about the committee, its intent and mission, which she said went unanswered.

Scott-Stoltz said she was worried about this after the Legislature passed its signature withdrawal bill. She said the law’s lack of guidelines for signature withdrawal solicitors feels like a “double standard.”

“This just made it legal for them to call and have no restrictions on what they can or cannot say to me, where there are restrictions for petition circulators,” Scott-Stoltz said. “I wasn’t told who this committee was and couldn’t find any information on them at the time. Basically, the transparency wasn’t there.”

Scott-Stoltz said the law should be reversed or amended to hold signature withdrawal solicitors to the same standards as petition circulators.

Sioux Falls Democratic state Rep. Erin Healy spoke against the signature withdrawal bill during the legislative session. She told South Dakota Searchlight via text message she believes the law “derails the democratic process.”

“I would like to know if volunteers were required to take a training course prior to contacting South Dakota citizens, because if the Legislature is going to put guardrails in place for gathering signatures or removing signatures, the same should be done for volunteers representing committees that are calling and harassing citizens,” Healy said.

Petition signers should expect to receive another unsolicited phone call soon, this time from Weiland’s organization.

“It’s important because we know what the arguments are, what they’ve been saying all along about our amendment,” Weiland said.

“We’ll be trying to address that in our communication to not believe what you’re being told and if you have any questions or concerns, give us a call. That’ll be the gist of what we’ll try to do.”

BHS: Trend of top jobs at district being open

that she and her husband, both South Dakota natives, wanted to return to the state.

“I moved here in July,” Miller-Cink told the Register in September.

She went on to say, “This is going to be a forever thing so we don’t have to hurry.”

Miller-Cink did not respond to a Register email to her district address on Wednesday asking for comment on her leaving.

The departure continues a trend of turnover in the top positions in the district, which is in the midst of building two new elementary schools.

Schultz took over the superintendent job from Klint Willert, who was forced to resign after he lost the confidence of the board.

In the midst of Willert’s departure, the district was placed on probation by the state and was temporarily at risk of losing its accreditation.

That probation was ultimately lifted quickly after the district filed the necessary paperwork.

In a profile of Schultz in The Register last May, she emphasized improving communication with parents and the larger community among her top priorities.

After mentioning the challenges Schultz would face taking over the district and her background as superintendent in Dell Rapids, the story read, in part:

“Superintendents need to communicate fully with their communities, Schultz said, keeping them aware of what’s going on in their schools.

“‘We need to be a little more intentional about that,’ Schultz said, ‘because we can use our community resources better if we’re better about communicating the needs we have and what we’re trying to do for our students.’”

Schultz did send parents an email this week regarding robocalls that district offices apparently received, but that email also raised follow-up questions.

Numerous parents in the district the Register spoke to raised concerns that they heard about Miller-Cink’s leaving from their students and not from the superintendent or the school board.

LOOKING BACK: Catholic Church described as ‘well lighted’

and Williams Street (now Fourth Street), six blocks from Main Street. The exterior presents a very handsome appearance, the foundation being of concrete blocks and the walls veneered with dark red pressed brick. The main entrance to the building is on the north, but there are also entrances on the east and west sides. The northeast corner is ornamented by a square tower, 12x12x41, in which a bell will be placed later. The dimensions of the church are 62x36, and it is expected that the cost will be something over $7,000 when it is completed. A broad flight of concrete steps leads to the main entrance on the north.

This entrance leads to a hall, 12x12, from which doors lead to the main auditorium of the church to the choir loft. The woodwork of the interior of the church is of white birch, finished in oil, and the floors are of white pine. The pews, which have not yet been placed in position, are of solid oak, and have a seating capacity of 350. At the rear of the church is the choir loft and gallery, which can accommodate 50 more. The interior walls are not as yet completed, and they will be kalsomined and tinted. The altar is located at the south end of the church, and on either side are the sacristies, 9x12.

The building is especially well lighted. In the main auditorium there are ten windows of stained glass, which were donated by members of the congregation, and which are inscribed with the names of the donors. The gallery is well lighted, with a large circular window, and three smaller ones. The electric lighting is also well arranged. In the center of the church is a seven globe cluster of lights and three light clusters are arranged along the sides. In the arch over the altar are twelve small lights, which throw their rays directly upon the altar, giving a beautiful effect at night. In the basement will be located the furnace for heating the building and part of the basement will be furnished for use as a lecture room.

There yet remains considerable work to do around the church. The furnace and pews have not yet arrived, but are expected in a few days. The interior walls will be finished off in colors, and when everything is completed the Catholic congregation will have a very neat, little church, and one that will meet all their needs for years to come.

Numerous donations have been made in the furnishings of the edifice among which are:

The large statue of Jesus, by Rev. Fr. Flynn of Estelline.

The altar by Rev. Fr. Nolan of Sioux Falls.

Statue of St. Thomas by Thomas Shean of Boston, father of the pastor.

The large sanctuary lamp by Rev. Fr. O’Mara of Watertown.

The memorial windows by different members of the congregation.

As stated in these columns last week the bell, which is a present from Rev. Fr. Sheehan of Elkton, is on the way.

FLOOD: Citizens invited to ask questions, share feedback

Citizens will then be invited to ask questions and share their feedback.

Six-Mile Creek meanders through the western part of the city of Brookings, flowing through 20-plus bridge and culvert crossings. During high-flows, Six-Mile Creek has the potential to impact more than 240 structures.

“We want to reduce future losses to structures and public infrastructure along the Six-Mile Creek corridor within the city,” Richter said. “That’s the ultimate goal of the study.”

The study will:

- Evaluate flooding and potential mitigation over a range of flood flows;
- Leverage new flood mapping to understand and mitigate flood risk;
- Recognize flood factors and high flood-risk areas;
- Develop flood mitigation alternatives to reduce risk;

- Identify flood mitigation projects that are eligible for federal funding.

The study is funded through FEMA’s Hazard Mitigation Grant Program, and the work is being carried out by the City’s contractor, RESPEC of Rapid City.

Flooding is the most costly and common natural disaster in the United States, according to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Lounsbery named Presidential Scholar

U.S. Secretary of Education Miguel Cardona recently announced the selection of Camryn Lounsbery of Brookings who attends Brookings High School as a 2024 U.S. Presidential Scholar.
Lounsbery is one of 161 outstanding American high school seniors who have demonstrated outstanding academic achievement, artistic excellence, technical expertise, leadership, citizenship, service, and contribution to school and community.
"The 161 high school seniors selected for the 60th anniversary of the U.S. Presidential Scholars program represent the best of our nation's schools and inspire hope in the bright future of this country," said Cardona.
The White House Commission on Presidential Scholars selects scholars annually based on academic success, excellence in the arts and in technical education through essays, school evaluations and transcripts, as well as a demonstrated commitment to community service and leadership.
Of the 3.7 million students expected to graduate from high school this year, more than 5,700 candidates qualified for the 2024 awards determined by outstanding performance on the College Board SAT or ACT exams or through nominations made by chief state school officers, other partner recognition organizations and YoungArts, the National Foundation for the Advancement of Artists.

As directed by Presidential Executive Order, the 2024 U.S. Presidential Scholars are comprised of two students from each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, and U.S. families living abroad, as well as 15 chosen at-large, 20 Scholars in the arts and 20 Scholars in career and technical education. Created in 1964, the U.S. Presidential Scholars Program has honored over 8,200 of the nation's top-performing students. The program was expanded in 1979 to recognize students who demonstrate exceptional talent in the visual, literary and performing arts. In 2015, the program was again extended to recognize students who demonstrate ability and accomplishment in career and technical education fields. 2024 is the program's 60th anniversary.
The teacher chosen for recognition by Lounsbery was Adam Molstad of Brookings High School.
The Presidential Scholars Class of 2024 will be recognized for their outstanding achievement this summer with an online recognition program.

God's guidance is great

The first Bible verse I memorized in childhood is Proverbs 3:5-6 RSV, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct your paths." The NIV ends verse 6 as, "He will make your paths straight."

What do these verses mean? As we acknowledge God's authority and welcome his direction over our life, He will lead us on safe and straight pathways. "In all your ways" means all times. Not only when we know we are on the right path. He wants us to turn to him when we know we are on the wrong track. When we have made poor decisions, even one after another. When we are feeling lost, we can find direction. In hard times, when we fall, he picks us up. As we wander crooked pathways, he will help straighten out our steps.

He not only guides us, he removes obstacles from our path. Obstacles such as too much noise from the world or too much busyness. We are bombarded from TV, computer and phone. We are over stimulated from constant busyness, events, celebrations, appointments. We are over committed with work, church, community, and family demands. Even good things, in too large amounts, can be detrimental to our peace and to us remaining firmly on the right path.

What did Jesus do when he found himself overrun with questions, commitments, demands, people?

Luke 5:16 NLT, "Jesus often withdrew to the wilderness for prayer." He placed himself in desolate surroundings, a quiet, serene space without distractions. He turned to the One that is trustworthy. Jesus understood needing to be filled up with God before he could pour out to others.

Much like a car needs to be refueled, so Jesus knew he needed to be refueled, refilled, and refreshed by God. We, too, need this refilling and will find it in time alone with God to pray, listen, and read his word.

Yet, we need balance in this. It is too easy to isolate oneself. When life is overwhelming or disappointing, when people have betrayed or demanded too much, we may be tempted to hide. Through on-line options for shopping, visits, business meetings, even medical visits and fitness classes, one could live completely removed from society.

Isolation becomes a habit, an easy solution, a seemingly safe way to avoid the heaviness of this world. Yet, in Hebrews 10:25 we are encouraged to not isolate:

▼ REFLECTIONS

THIS WEEK'S REFLECTIONS WAS WRITTEN BY THE
REV. DORTHY TUFT
OF THE BROOKINGS MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

"Not giving up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but encouraging one another." Why? To find encouragement and to give encouragement. To find refreshing, hope, advice, friendship, relief, strength. It takes a decision and determination to face life. Getting together with others, staying involved in real life, will feed one's soul.

Proverbs 3 reminds us to not rely on ourselves.

As we acknowledge we are lost, trust in God's leading, we will find the path that leads to life.

Woman who defied Methodists' ban on gays seeks reinstatement

By DAVID CRARY, HOLLY MEYER AND PETER SMITH
The Associated Press

Twenty years ago, Beth Stroud was defrocked from her beloved job as a United Methodist pastor in Philadelphia. In a church trial, she was found guilty of violating "Christian teaching" because she had acknowledged living in a committed relationship with another woman.

Earlier this month, delegates at a United Methodist Church conference struck down the UMC's long-standing anti-LGBTQ policies and created a path for clergy ousted because of them to seek reinstatement.

Stroud — even while recalling how her 2004 ouster disrupted her life — is taking that path, though some other past targets of UMC discipline are choosing otherwise. Stroud is optimistic that United Methodist clergy from eastern Pennsylvania will restore her pastoral credentials at a meeting next week.

Ahead of a church service last Sunday, Stroud pondered what reinstatement would mean, and shed a tear. "It's about how compelling that call is — that after 20 years, I still want to come back," she said.

At 54, she doesn't plan a return to full-time ministry — at least not immediately. Now completing a three-year stint teaching writing at Princeton University, she is excited to be starting a new job this summer as assistant professor of Christian history at the Methodist Theological School in Ohio — one of 13 seminaries run by the UMC.

Yet even with the new teaching job, Stroud wanted to regain the options available to an ordained minister as she looks for a congregation to join near the Delaware, Ohio, campus.

"I think a church will be able to use me in some way where my credentials are important — like being asked to celebrate Communion on a day when the regular pastor is out of town," she said. "Those would be really meaningful opportunities."

When Stroud finally made her decision, she knew it was the right one. "It felt really good to write that email, to request reinstatement," she said. "I want to continue to be a part of the church and its work in the world."

But the decision did not come easily as she followed the UMC's deliberations on the anti-LGBTQ policies.

"The first thing I felt was just anger — thinking about the life I could have had," she said. "I loved being a pastor. I was good at it. With 20 more years of experience, I could have been very good — helped a lot of people and been very fulfilled."

Instead of pastoring, she spent several years in graduate schools, while earning modest income in temporary, non-tenured academic jobs. There were challenges, including a bout with cancer and divorce from her wife, although they proceeded to co-parent their daughter, who was born in 2005.

Had she not been defrocked, Stroud said, "My whole life would have been different."

The process that led to Stroud's ouster began in April 2003, when she told her congregation, the First United Methodist Church of Germantown, about her same-sex relationship. The church — where Stroud had been a pastor for four years — set up a legal fund to assist with her defense and hired her as a lay minister after she was defrocked.

When she later moved to New Jersey, she sought a new church to join, and settled on Turning Point United Methodist Church, a predominantly Black congregation in Trenton.

On Sunday, as Stroud sat in the pews, she got a shout-out from Turning Point's pastor, Rupert Hall.

"You guys may not realize this, but for the last 15 or so years, we have been blessed to have — as a loving, supportive, active member of Turning Point — a rock star," Hall said.

"The United Methodist Church stripped Beth of her credentials to be a pastor, and her name is known throughout the world as a martyr for those of God's children who call themselves and who are identified in the LGBTQ community."

There were cheers when Hall said Stroud now had a chance for reinstatement.

The UMC says it has no overall figures of how many clergy were defrocked for defying anti-LGBTQ bans or how many reinstatements might occur.

It's an option that won't be exercised by Jimmy Creech, who like Stroud was ousted from the UMC decades ago. Jurors at a church court removed his clergy credentials in 1999 after he presided over a same-sex union ceremony in North Carolina.

Creech is grateful that the General Conference, near the close of its recent proceedings in Charlotte, North Carolina, passed legislation allowing reinstatement of pastors defrocked in cases like his.

"This is an act of reconciliation and restorative justice, a move to heal the broken community of the Church," said Creech, who earlier doubted such a move would ever happen.

However, Creech, 79, said he won't seek reinstatement.

"Simply knowing the Church now provides for it is satisfaction enough for me," he said via email.

"Because I am not nor cannot be in pastoral ministry at this time in my life, I do not think reinstating my ordination is appropriate."

Creech was ordained in 1970 and served various parishes in his native North Carolina.

Gordon Brown, former prime minister of Great Britain, said, "I'm a great supporter of the European Union. I didn't support entry to the euro, not because I'm against it in principle, but because I didn't think it was economically right for Britain."

At the bridge table, you might have no entry to one hand, no tricks from another, and, perhaps, no pounds, euros or dollars.

In this deal, South is in three no-trump. What should he do after West leads the spade seven?

With 24 high-card points all in aces and kings, and also having one 10, South made a slightly cautious two-no-trump rebid. However, it had the big advantage of leaving North room to use Stayman or a transfer bid to investigate a possible major-suit fit. If South had rebid three no-trump, North would have had to pass unless he had either a six-card or longer major, or sufficient points to be willing to reach four no-trump. Here, of course, it was a moot point, North not caring about the majors.

South seems to start with nine top tricks: three spades (given the lead), four diamonds and two clubs. However, to get four diamond tricks, declarer must first cash his ace and king, then cross to the dummy. And what is the dummy entry?

The only candidate is the spade jack. So South must resist the temptation to win the first trick with his 10; he must take the trick with his ace or king. Then, after unblocking his diamond

Lower vitamin D levels associated with diabetes

By MIKE ROIZEN, M.D. and MEHMET OZ, M.D.

Vitamin D is an interesting vitamin since it's actually a hormone.

It's mostly produced by exposure of your skin to sunlight — about 10% of your body's active vitamin D comes from foods you eat. When your body produces vitamin D from the sun and absorbs it from food, the liver and kidneys convert it into the hormone calcitriol. In your body, activated vitamin D helps increase the absorption of calcium, so it can enter your bloodstream, helps prevent calcium loss from the kidneys and promotes the formation of new bone cells. It also plays an important role in bolstering your immune system, pushing calories into muscle rather than fat, countering depression and heart disease and, yes, helping prevent the progression of pre-diabetes to full-blown Type 2 diabetes.

A 14-year Chinese study shows that folks with pre-diabetes (almost 100 million Americans) and lower blood levels of vitamin D were far more likely to progress to Type 2 diabetes than those with healthy levels of D — and if their triglyceride levels were also elevated, the risk was even greater.

Because of how much time most folks spend indoors, we recommend that you get a blood test to check your D levels and take a daily supplement of 1,000 IU of D3 (or more if the test indicates that). You can also boost your D with D-licious wild-caught salmon — and other foods discussed in the iHerb.com blog, "Which Foods are High in Vitamin D?" And you know where the best recipes are: Dr. Mike's "What to Eat When Cookbook!"

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: I recently married "John," the love of my life. I have a great relationship with my mother-in-law, "Sarah." She and my father-in-law are retired and well-off financially. For each special occasion, John and I thoughtfully select gifts for his parents, and we have spent extra to ensure that our gifts convey our love and appreciation for them.

The problem is, Sarah gifts us trash, literally. On several occasions, we have received broken items in random boxes, items with missing pieces and used items, including kitchen and cooking utensils. This happens every holiday. She has also gifted our child secondhand toys and clothes, most of which were already missing pieces or were several sizes too small.

After talking to other family members, I learned that Sarah has been gifting junk for years, but her family members have never addressed the issue with her for fear of upsetting her. My sister-in-law told me she has witnessed Sarah dig items out of her basement and wrap them as gifts.

Abby, this leaves a terrible taste in my mouth and has led me to feel a slight resentment toward Sarah. I believe her actions are disrespectful and in poor taste. I don't want to cause hurt feelings, but I need this behavior to stop. How can I convey to Sarah that I need her to quit gifting us junk? — Regifted In North Carolina

Dear Regifted: Do it in plain English, with your husband present, before the next gift-giving occasion arises. Convey that if she has secondhand items she wants to get rid of, she should donate them to her favorite charity thrift shop. Then tell her you don't need anything and, in the future, you would prefer she give you a nice card, preferably one that hasn't been recycled.

Dear Abby: Years ago, after high school, I spent a semester abroad, where I met and fell madly in love with another American student in the same program. We dated off and on for several years and remained close friends. Even after I'd married someone else, we would write often and occasionally travel together. He and my husband got along well. Then he met the woman who eventually became his wife, and she preferred we not maintain our friendship. He and I haven't spoken in at least 15 years.

Recently, one of the teachers of our semester abroad retired and gave away a pile of photos, including ones from the program I was in. I digitized the images and would love to share them with my old friend. I sent an email to the most recent address I have for him and received no reply. Now I'm not sure if it's because it's a bad email address or because he's not interested in starting a conversation with me. A quick, non-stalking web search did not immediately turn up a second address.

Is it worth another try? I'm pretty sure I could contact him through his family, but do you think it's better to let it go? In my heart, I know I'm using the pictures as an excuse to get in touch, but I don't have nefarious intentions. — Right Decision In The East

Dear Right Decision: I'm voting no. Whether or not you are trying to reach out to this man for nefarious reasons, the result would be that his wife would be upset about it. Let it go.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING DEPARTMENT OF GAME, FISH AND PARKS

A Public Hearing will be held at National Field Archery Association, 800 Archery Lane, Yankton, SD, June 6th, 2:00 pm (Central Time), to consider adoption, amendment and repeal of Rules pertaining to: 1. ARSD 41:06:01:07.03. Landowner own land license types. Effect: The proposed change would describe a new prairie elk season license type. Reason: Currently, there are landowners that are not successful in drawing an “any elk” license in the Prairie Elk hunting season units where GFP is seeking to mitigate depredation and landowner conflicts with elk.

2. ARSD 41:06:01:15. Elk application requirements. Effect: Describe a qualifying landowner or landowner-operator.

Reason: The proposed change offers units that are almost exclusively privately owned and have a high potential for elk-landowner conflicts from agricultural crop depredation. 3. ARSD 41:06:02:03. Hunting license fees. Effect: Establish the fee for the landowner on own land antlerless elk license.

Reason: Upon receipt of an application the department shall issue a landowner-on-own-land license. 4. ARSD 41:06:27:02:07. Eligibility of successful entrant for other elk licenses. Effect: Repeal § 41:06:27:02:07 in order to allow an individual to obtain more than one elk raffle license in a lifetime.

Reason: With only one elk license available for draw from a nonprofit organization the odds of drawing this license are very low, and it is difficult for the nonprofit organization to determine whether or not an individual has obtained one of these licenses in the past and bar them from purchasing raffle tickets. 5. ARSD 41:08:01:12. Nonresident restrictions. Effect: Modify the restrictions of nonresidents in the taking of a raccoon.

Reason: The proposed change may result in additional raccoon harvest which, in turn, may result in benefits to waterfowl and upland bird nesting success. Interested persons will be given reasonable opportunity to submit amendments, data, opinions, arguments, and their views, either orally or in writing (or both) at the hearing. Persons unable to attend the hearing may mail amendments, data, opinions, arguments, and their views to the office of the Secretary of the Department of Game, Fish, and Parks, Foss Building, 523 East Capitol, Pierre, South Dakota 57501, or by going to the GFP website at <http://gfp.sd.gov/forms/positions>. All persons who desire to submit written amendments, data, opinions, arguments, and their views by mail or email are encouraged to mail or transmit the same in sufficient time so that it is received by and in the office of the Secretary of the Department of Game, Fish, and Parks 72 hours prior to the date of the hearing. Interested persons will be given reasonable opportunity to submit amendments, data, opinions, arguments, and their views, either orally or in writing (or both) to the Commission for their consideration. All written and email comments must include the name, home town/city, and state of the person submitting the comments.

The above rule proposals are available for review on the internet by going to <https://rules.sd.gov/> and copies of the proposed rules may be requested from the office of the Secretary of the Department of Game, Fish, and Parks, Foss Building, 523 East Capitol, Pierre, South Dakota 57501. Notice is further given to individuals with disabilities that this hearing is being held in a physically accessible place. Any individuals with disabilities who will require a reasonable accommodation in order to participate in the hearing should submit a request to the undersigned at 605.773.3718 or 605.223.7684 (Telecommunication Device for the Deaf). ## Bobcat javelin throwers enjoy record-breaking season

By CHRIS SCHAD
The Register

BROOKINGS – If you walked into the Brookings Athletic Complex last Saturday, you saw plenty of fans watching the Eastern South Dakota Conference Track & Field Championship Meet. There were all sorts of events happening from shot put to long jump but if you walked across the street, you may have seen the Brookings Bobcats’ best-kept secret.

Led by Logan Smidt and Alex Wainman, the Bobcats have enjoyed a record-breaking year in the javelin toss and the Brookings duo has its eyes set on new heights in the final weeks of the season.

The javelin appears to be a simple competition. A thrower lines up behind the foul line arc and makes strides like a pilot on a runway. Once they arrive at the foul arc, they must throw the javelin as far as they can with one arm and have the javelin make a mark into the ground for measurement.

But while it seems like a simple movement, there are several aspects that go into a successful javelin toss.

“It’s not your typical event,” Brookings javelin coach and track & field assistant Lisa Bahe said. “You want some speed. You want someone with some height and some long levers. It’s kind of like the discus but you need that speed on the runway because you have more of an approach. You have kind of a running into crossover approach and so speed and power are two of the big things that you look for.”

Bahe competed in javelin at South Dakota State and became an assistant coach at the middle school level. While Bobcat alum Gracie Adamson threw for the Bobcats and several other athletes worked with Bahe to try the event, the javelin toss didn’t become a sanctioned event until three years ago.

Bahe began to work at the varsity level once the javelin toss was adopted and Smidt was one of the first athletes recruited to try the event.

“There was a lot of challenges my first year just because it was so new,” Smidt recalled. “I’d never really tried anything like it.”

The learning curve was steep for Smidt, who threw out her rib during her freshman year. When she recovered from her injury, she bounced back to finish 25th in the section and just below the cutoff line for a spot in the State Meet.

Smidt continued to improve and broke the school record previously held by Landree Wilson (115-02 in 2022) with a toss of 127-05 at a home meet in Brookings during her sophomore year. Smidt went on to finish sixth at the State Meet a few weeks later with a toss of 118-06 and built momentum for her this year where she had a season-high toss of 121-07 at the Brookings Quad on Apr. 15 and set a meet record on the way to winning the ESD Championship with a toss of 111-06 last weekend.

While Smidt also plays volleyball and basketball, she also felt like her success in the javelin toss was rewarding due to her lack of experience.

“It’s really cool just because I haven’t been doing it that long,” Smidt said. “With my other sports, I’ve been doing them for a while and when you get those rewards, it still feels good. But with javelin, I haven’t been doing it for a long time and it just makes it even better.”

While Smidt has three years under her belt, Wainman is finding success in his first season. A sophomore, Wainman was recruited for the javelin toss thanks to his long frame and speed developed during football season. While Wainman had the build to succeed, it was the technique that provided an initial obstacle.

“I was trying to get too high or too low,” Wainman explained. “My arm was all the way back but otherwise, Coach Bahe told me I was just naturally good at it.”

Wainman eventually refined his technique and started strongly to begin the season. After finishing 10th with a toss of 127-08 during the Huron Invitational on Apr. 5, Wainman finished fourth at the Brookings quad on Apr. 15 with a toss of 146-05 and set a school record with a toss of 153-08 at the Sioux Falls Jefferson quad on Apr. 23.

Wainman’s toss took down Robert Wilson’s record of 146-06 which was set back in 1927 but the result didn’t take Wainman by surprise after he came close a few weeks before.

“I was kind of expecting to break it going into that next meet...but it felt pretty good,” Wainman said. “I had a lot of my family members and teachers congratulating me which was pretty cool. It was definitely very rewarding.”

Wainman said one of the challenges he’s facing now is consistency but he still managed to finish with a throw of 126-07 at the Howard Wood Relays on May 4 and finished eighth in the ESD Meet with a toss of 141-02.

Just a sophomore, Wainman has high goals for the end of the season to get over 160 feet while setting his sights on the state record of 193 feet by the time his high school career is over. Meanwhile, Smidt hopes to qualify and place for this year’s State Meet.

Both throwers have their eyes set on big things in the final weeks of the season and are continuing to reach toward becoming two of the best javelin throwers in school history.

“I think they’re just very good athletes and they’re really aware of what their body is doing,” Bahe said. “They’ve picked up the technique very quickly.”

Bobcats look to stick to the plan in playoff series vs. Roosevelt

By CHRIS SCHAD
The Register

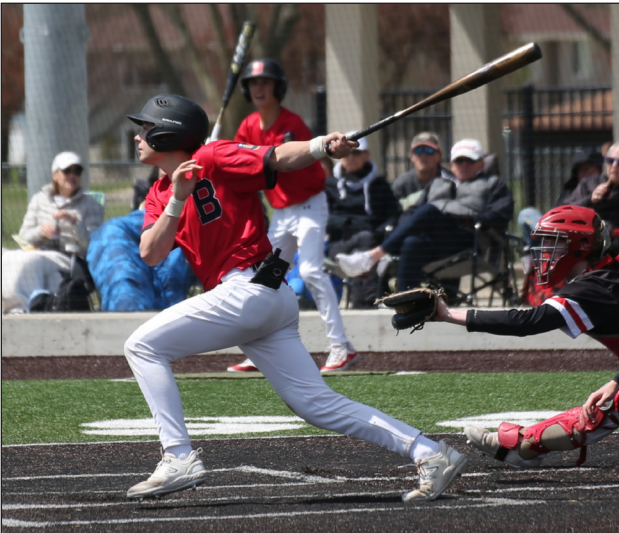

BROOKINGS – The Brookings Bobcats will set their aim at a spot in the State Tournament as they host Sioux Falls Roosevelt at Bob Shelden Field in an SDHSBA playoff series this weekend.

The best-of-three series is set to begin with a game at 6 p.m. on Friday night with the second game scheduled for 1 p.m. on Saturday. If a third game is necessary, the two teams will play 30 minutes after the conclusion of Game 2 with a spot in the State Tournament on the line.

The format is a change from the single-elimination format that has been used in previous years to determine the final four teams for the State Tournament, but Brookings head coach Carter Roach and his team are embracing the change and the challenge that comes with it.

“It’s going to be a tough matchup for us,” Roach said. “It’s going to be a couple of good baseball games. They have some great pitchers we have to be ready for and offensively, they’re going to be able to hit the ball, so we’re going to have to execute.”

The matchup between the Roughriders and Bobcats is an interesting one. The two teams were scheduled to play a doubleheader in Brookings on Apr. 16 before it was canceled due to weather and they’ve had an interesting path to the playoffs since the rainout.

The Bobcats have been a streaky team, coming into the series as the No. 7 seed with a record of 13-12. While they won their first four games of the season, they lost six of their next seven before winning six of the next nine games. Although they’ve been up and down, one of the constants has been their offense, which has picked up over the final weeks by averaging 7.1 runs and scoring in double digits in five of the past 10 games heading into this weekend’s series.

“I think our biggest thing has been finding out our identity offensively,” Roach said. “We’re going to cause havoc on the base paths and I would say our approach at the plate has come a long ways from where we started in April.”

The Bobcats have also received some stellar pitching from several arms including starters Nolan Miles and Owen Schneider.

“Nolan’s done a fantastic job for us on the mound and I can’t really think of a start where he didn’t put us in a position to win,” Roach said. “Owen has given us some big-time starts when we’ve needed it coming off a loss and those two guys together have been huge on the mound.”

But a high school baseball tournament is just as much about the depth on the mound as much as the players on it. While Miles and Schneider have sat at the top of the rotation, Roach believes he has several guys to turn to including Austin Clark and David Brink.

“What’s been fun about this team is that we have a lot of guys that can grow,” Roach said. “Being able to set up your bullpen and things like that...I’m proud of our guys for taking the ball and competing at a high level for us.”

With the offense clicking and the pitching staff finding its stride, the Bobcats put together one of its most complete doubleheaders of the year, defeating Mitchell by scores of 14-4 and 13-1 last Saturday.

“I thought Mitchell was a fantastic kind of jumping board for us into the playoffs,” Roach said. “I thought a lot of guys gained a lot of confidence at the plate and we looked really sound defensively.”

The Bobcats will need that momentum against Roosevelt, who has recovered from a shaky start. While the Rough Riders come into the tournament as the 10th seed with a record of 6-13, they’ve won three of their past four games including a sweep over the Kernels on May 7.

Led by former SDSU baseball player and 2011 graduate Erik DeJong, the Rough Riders carry plenty of talent including second baseman and pitcher Jacob Mongar, who had three hits in a 7-5 win over Mitchell and Noah Verdoorn, who allowed one earned run on two hits and three walks with seven strikeouts in the nightcap.

“We haven’t played them and they haven’t played us so it’s going to be two teams that don’t really know too much about each other,” Roach said. “But going in we know that they’re very well-coached. Coach DeJong does a really good job of getting his guys ready to go and they’re going to be talented.”

The winner of this weekend’s series will advance to face the winner of the series between No. 2 Sioux Falls Lincoln and No. 15 Huron at the State Tournament, which will take place on May 24 and 25 at Sioux Falls Stadium.

While the Bobcats would like to make a trip to the State Tournament, they also know they’ll have to beat a talented Rough Rider team to get there.

“This week’s practice has been good and we’re running over every situation you could possibly run into during the playoffs,” Roach said. “We have a big senior class and it means a lot to them to make it to the State Tournament and have success in the postseason, so I’m feeling good about this weekend.”

Cubs blow out Lakers in season opener

FROM REGISTER STAFF REPORTS

BROOKINGS - The Brookings Cubs opened the season with a dominant win on Wednesday night as they beat the Lake Norden Lakers 14-1 in eight innings at Bob Shelden Field.

The first run of the game came in the top of the first when the Lakers scored on a sacrifice fly. It was all Cubs after that as they scored 14 straight to improve to 1-0.

Henry Hammrich

walked to open the bottom of the first and then stole second and third. He would then make his way home on a single from Chase McDaniel to make it 1-1 heading into the second.

Neither team scored in the second but the Cubs then scored five runs in the third. Jakson Krogman and Justin Cofell led off the inning with back-to-back walks. Lukas Adelman then advanced Krogman to third with a fly out to left and Krogman scored on a sacrifice bunt from Hammrich.

McDaniel singled to score Cofell and Rhett Zelinsky then blasted the ball over the center field wall to make it 5-1. Parker Winghart and Noel Burgos followed that with back-to-back singles. Winghart scored on a Jake Brandner single and that made it 6-1 heading into the fourth.

Brookings added another run in the sixth. Burgos led off the inning with a single. He stole second and advanced to third on a wild pitch. A Tyler Kruetner ground out then sent Burgos home and made it 7-1 heading into the seventh.

The Cubs pushed the lead to 9-1 in the seventh. Joey McMacken walked with one out and Adelman was used as a courtesy runner for him. He scored on an error and Hammrich made his way to third after two errors on the play. McDaniel followed with a triple and that was his third RBI of the game.

However, he wasn't done sending runners home as he came to the plate with the bases loaded in eighth after McMacken had already been walked home. McDaniel hit a fly ball to right field and it flew over the fence for a grand slam and that ended the game due to the 10-run rule.

McDaniel was 4-for-5 with seven RBIs. Brookings had six other hits. Zelinsky was 1-for-2 with two RBIs and Brandner was 1-for-4 with an RBI. Burgos was 2-for-3 and Winghart and Cofell were each 1-for-3. Kruetner, Hamrlich and McMacken all had an RBI without a hit.

Jake Ammann got the start for the Cubs on opening night and he pitched five innings. He gave up one earned run on two hits with six strikeouts and four walks. Newcomer Zach Shastay pitched the final three innings and gave up no runs and no hits with six strikeouts.

The Cubs will host the Volga Cormorants at 5 p.m. on Sunday.
