Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

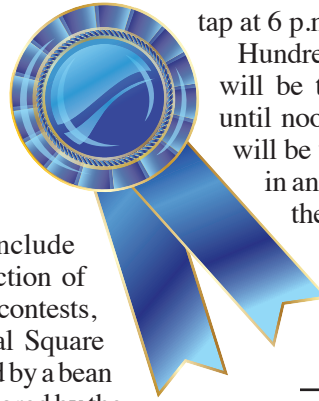

While McClain County Free Fair officials and judges have been hard at work since Tuesday, today (Thursday) will be the public's first opportunity to view this year's entries.

Highlights of today's fair include the horse show, judging and auction of the popular pie, cake and salsa contests, a performance by the Centennial Square Dance Club at 5:15 p.m., followed by a bean supper and ice cream social sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and McClain Bank at 5:30 p.m.

Kids' choice

Voting set for Kids' Favorite Critter

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

A hotly contested three-way race for Kids' Favorite Critter is shaping up and will be decided by young voters visiting the McClain County Free Fair on Friday.

Candidates for the yearlong term are Sophie Squirrel, Oliver Owl and Baxter Beaver.

Bowing out of politics this year is the entire edible slate from 2018 who ran for Kids' Favorite Snack.

"If they are going to forego good tastes in 2019, we are out," declared Frank Furter, Tony Taco and Poppa B. Corn.

Sophie Squirrel is riding on her looks, a plush coat, broad brimmed hat with flower and fluffy tail.

And wide support from the Acorn Party.

She is often seen stumping on the campaign trail, clutching an acorn in her petite paw.

Sophie Squirrel has pledged to represent all mammals, marsupials, birds, fish and serpents in McClain County if she is elected.

"That's the ladylike thing to do," she said.

So far she hadn't said if insects and arachnids are welcome in that constituency.

Those attributes are deemed frivolous by Oliver Owl.

"I am a wise bird," Oliver

New hospital ok'd

Letter of intent to purchase land

Jeanne Grimes
The Purcell Register

When a new hospital is built to replace the aging Purcell Municipal Hospital, it will be on a 13-acre tract in the north part of the city.

Months of searching and negotiating came down to a 25-minute executive session Tuesday evening between the Purcell City Council and Kem Scully, chief executive officer of the hospital.

When the council re-convened in open session, members voted unanimously to approve a letter of intent to purchase the land pending a final contract.

Officials declined to make the location public until a contract is signed with the landowner.

Faced with extensive and costly repairs to the existing hospital, the council and hospital board agreed in

Social Security scam targeting senior citizens

Kevin Austin, with the Purcell Police Department, was recently made aware of a social security number scam in our jurisdiction that's targeting our senior citizens in the area.

The scammer is calling our local area code & prefix of (527) land lines in the hopes of having a senior citizen answer. The scammer then uses forceful tactics to indicate a rental car was found on the Texas/Mexico border that had been rented in their name; that blood and drugs were found in the car.

Their social security information was also found and that the senior citizen needed to verify their social security number with them. Threats of federal LE entities and the immediate stoppage of their social security benefits if they don't verify their number is expressed.

Purcell Police Department has taken at least one report where the scammer was successful.

Here's some tips to deal with these imposters:

- Don't give the caller your information. Never give out or confirm sensitive information like your bank account, credit card, or Social Security number unless you personally know who you're dealing with. If someone has contacted you, you can't be sure who they are.

• Don't trust a name or number. Con artists use official-sounding names to make you trust them. To make their call seem legitimate, scammers use internet technology to spoof their area code so although it may seem they are calling from

Key facts to know about Medicaid expansion proposal

Trevor Brown Oklahoma Watch

The question of whether to expand Medicaid and extend health insurance to thousands of Oklahomans promises to be a major topic over the next year.

The Healthcare Working Group, a bipartisan legislative committee charged with deciding whether to endorse Medicaid expansion or other policy moves, kicked off its work last week and is expected to unveil recommendations before next year's session.

Meanwhile, a signature-collecting drive is underway to put a state question on a 2020 ballot to accept expansion.

The stakes are significant: Rural hospitals, the state budget and the health and lives of thousands could be affected. Whether the battle is fought in the Capitol or at the polling place, both supporters and opponents will be outspoken on why the expansion is needed or why it could harm the state for years to come.

Here are some key facts to know about Medicaid expansion as the debate heats up.

Who would be eligible for Medicaid under expansion?

Oklahoma's Medicaid program, known as SoonerCare, is open now to low-income residents who are children, parents with children under 19, pregnant women or blind, disabled or elderly.

The latest report from the Oklahoma Health Care Authority shows that about 20 percent of the state's population is enrolled, including 263,800 adults and 526,600 children.

The eligibility rules were generally standard across the nation until the Affordable Care Act was passed in 2010 and a U.S. Supreme Court decision two years later decided that states could decide whether to accept federal funds to expand Medicaid.

States that accept expansion can now cover adults under 65 who make up to 138 percent of the federal poverty level, or up to an annual salary of $17,236 for an individual or $35,534 for a family of four.

A 2013 Leavitt Partners study commissioned by the state projected that an additional 628,000 adults would be eligible for Medicaid if the state accepted expansion. But the number of newly eligible residents who would actually enroll range from 187,000 to almost 275,000 Oklahomans, according to the study.

A more recent analysis from the Oklahoma Hospital Association projected that 550,000 Oklahomans would be newly eligible for Medicaid and 275,000, including 215,000 uninsured residents, would gain coverage under expansion.

state, the number is higher, with uninsured rates at or over one-third of the population in several counties.

Which states have expanded Medicaid?

As of August 1, Oklahoma was one of 14 that had not accepted expansion, according to a count from the Kaiser Family Foundation.

Most of the non-expansion states are located in the southeast or Great Plains and are led by Republicans. Of the states bordering Oklahoma, only Arkansas, New Mexico and Colorado have accepted expansion.

But voters in non-expansion states have increasingly tried to pass the proposal by popular vote. Last year, Medicaid expansion made the ballot in Idaho, Montana, Nebraska and Utah. It failed only in Montana.

Who pays for the expansion?

States and the federal government split the cost to cover the traditional Medicaid population. Some states, including Oklahoma, receive more than others, based on a calculation using the Federal Medical Assistance Percentage (FMAP), a rate that compares a state's per capita income to the national per capita income.

Oklahoma's FMAP last year was about 58 percent, meaning the federal government contributed $1.43 for every $1 the state spent. The state spent about $1.3 billion and the federal government spent about $3 billion in Oklahoma Medicaid costs in 2018.

The funding split for a state's expansion population operates differently.

For two years after the health-care law took effect in 2014, the federal government covered all the costs for the newly eligible

Public health officials encourage personal health preparedness

September is National Preparedness Month and the Oklahoma State Department of Health (OSDH) joins state and national partners in encouraging year-round personal and community preparedness for disasters and disease outbreaks.

Oklahoma's recent storms are a reminder that severe weather can strike any time of year.

Personal health preparedness is about people having the ability to care for themselves and their family in the immediate hours and days following an emergency or disaster.

Oklahomans have seen numerous severe weather events where power outages affected thousands of residents across the state.

Scott Sproat, director of the OSDH Emergency Preparedness and Response Service, said personal preparedness is vital to being able to recover from a disaster or public health emergency.

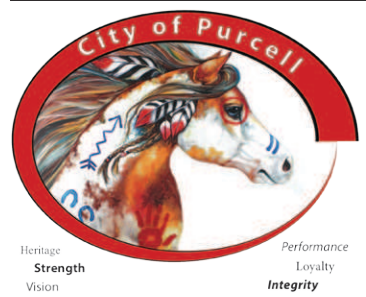

"It's important for a household to be able to sustain itself for at least 72 hours," said Sproat. "More resilient households make more resilient communities who are better able to recover after a disaster."

In addition to basic supplies such as non-perishable and ready-to-eat food, water, first aid supplies, flashlights and batteries; families should ensure they have enough personal items such as prescription medication for several days and a cooler or chemical ice packs to keep certain medications cold during a power outage.

OSDH Emergency Manager Darrell Eberly said those with disabilities or special medical needs should plan ahead for accessible transportation needed for evacuation or to seek medical care.

"Those who use medical

Things were cheaper in 1963

Byars resident Betty Johns was in the newspaper office last week to renew her subscription. She's had a subscription since 1956.

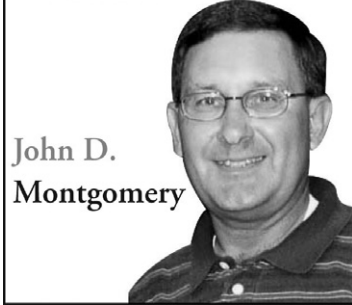

While she was cleaning out some of her mother's belongings she came across a receipt for a subscription renewal paid December 21, 1963.

The receipt, which was good for five years, was signed by then Advertising Manager Ray Buckley.

On the front page of The Register that week was A.B. Green announcing plans to build a nursing home in Lexington.

Also, on the front page was a report of numerous area citizens slipping and falling on ice and breaking bones, a young Lexington couple was asphyxiated in a vehicle south of Lexington and Smith Hester was announcing plans to run for State Democratic Chair.

In 1963 a yearly subscription to The Register was $2 and a washing machine cost $178.

A dozen eggs sold for 53¢ and an OU football ticket cost $5.

A gallon of milk sold for 95¢. A gallon of gasoline cost 31¢.

A loaf of bread cost 22¢ and a pack of cigarettes was 35¢.

The median home value was $11,900 and a first class postage stamp was a nickel.

Soon a postage stamp will be 70¢. A new house today costs between $170,000 and $466,493.

A dozen eggs cost about two bucks and a gallon of milk sells for $3.50.

Bread is about $2.50 a loaf and a pack of cigarettes is $8.32.

In today's world a new washing machine is valued at about $500.

The Purcell Register is now $30 a year and tickets to OU games range from $80 to $150.

Near-death experience

It's not the way to end a two-week vacation

Bill and I vacationed in New Mexico and Colorado for two weeks.

We traversed high mountain passes and climbed to new heights via narrow roads loaded with hairpin turns and scanty guardrails.

We put close to 2,000 miles on the car without even a hint of a close call.

Only to get home and nearly be killed by a speeding frac truck that ran a red light at warp speed.

We were on our way to pick up one dog which we'd boarded. My other dog was in the back seat.

We were east of Tuttle at the intersection of State Highways 4 and 37, waiting for the light to turn green so we could turn west onto 37.

We were only about three miles from the kennel.

The light turned green and Bill started into the intersection when the semi, which was eastbound, came barreling across our path.

He was close enough – and fast enough – that his passage rocked my Ford Escape.

He missed us by maybe a foot or two, never honked or used his brakes. Never paid one bit of attention to his light which had been red several seconds.

Certainly long enough for

MUCH ADO

him to stop his rig.

Had he hit us broadside at that speed (we both estimated he was traveling close to 70 mph), the impact would have flattened my Escape, killing Bill, me and the dog.

In that instant, my life flashed before my eyes – and it was way too short.

Bill turned around and we gave chase.

It took us four miles to get close enough to get his tag number and that was just because he did stop for the red light at 37 and SH 76.

We followed him another five or six miles, relaying each turn to a Newcastle police dispatcher.

He was in a residential area southwest of Newcastle when police stopped him.

We had to go to the police department to make written statements. And then because the incident occurred in Tuttle, Bill had to give that department a statement as well.

The Tuttle officer told Bill oilfield truck drivers ignoring the rules of the road has become so severe a problem that the department has mandated overtime for its entire force to concentrate solely on those violations.

We are waiting now for word on whether we will be called to testify in court about our near-death experience.

It seems this is also a case for the federal marshals.

The truck driver stands a good chance of losing his CDL license for life. Sounds OK to me.

We've all been guilty of running a red light that changed when we were right at the intersection. But it seems more and more, too many drivers have a complete disregard for any traffic signal.

They ignore yield signs, stop signs, flashing lights on school buses and red lights.

They drive with a sense of entitlement that the traffic laws may apply to others, but not to them.

And that needs to stop.

NEWS FROM CAPITOL HILL

Oklahoma researchers leading the way

Congressman Tom Cole

Last week brought some significant news for Oklahoma that affirmed the tremendous talent and potential that exists in our state's medical and research communities.

Specifically, I was honored to have a part in applauding Oklahoma based researchers who are leading the way at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation (OMRF), as recognized by two competitive federal grants that were recently awarded.

During a special event at OMRF's headquarters, I was pleased to announce that the organization will receive two grants totaling up to $48 million from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to fund research related to autoimmune diseases and human exposure to anthrax.

The grant funding awarded will not only open doors to new treatments for Oklahoma patients, but the projects will also deliver significant economic benefits by creating and supporting jobs in the research sector and helping identify future biotechnology opportunities in our state.

OMRF's Dr. Judith James will lead a team at the Oklahoma Autoimmunity Center of Excellence and will receive up to $36 million to research multiple sclerosis, lupus, psoriasis, Type I diabetes and rheumatoid arthritis.

In addition, $12 million has been granted to Dr. Mark Coggeshall to research and find ways to cope with and cure the deadly disease.

While it should come as no surprise, the fact that OMRF can receive such competitive grants over the likes of research institutions like Harvard and Johns Hopkins just goes to show the measure of excellence.

And I am proud that the federal medical research dollars will yield economic benefits for our state's economy and workforce. For instance, OMRF employs hundreds of people and has an estimated yearly economic impact of nearly $46 million in the state of Oklahoma.

As the top Republican leader on the House Appropriations

MOVIES WITH DAVE

By David Stull

Well, it looks like it's either feast or famine as far as movie releases go.

After an entire month of nonstop new films, with at least four to five new wide releases every weekend in the month of August, this past week didn't bring any.

Sure, there were a few smaller movies that made their way into a few theaters, but only one of those, "Don't Let Go," happened to show up at the theater I usually frequent, the Warren Theatre in Moore. And absolutely no new movies appeared at the new Midwest City Warren Theatre.

So this weekend I ventured out to find a couple smaller releases that kind of flew under the radar. Both of which were suggested by friends of mine.

We have an American remake of a 2006 Danish film starring Julianne Moore and Michelle Williams, a drama following a brilliant high school student dealing with the high expectations placed upon him, and a mystery featuring a detective who has the chance to prevent a murder after it already happened.

Let's get to the reviews.

First up is "After the Wedding." Isabel (Michelle Williams) has dedicated her life to working with the children in an orphanage in Calcutta. Theresa (Julianne Moore) is the multimillionaire head of a media company who lives with her artist husband (Billy Crudup) and their twin boys in New York.

When word comes to Isabel of a mysterious and generous grant for the financially struggling orphanage, she must travel to New York to meet the benefactor, Theresa, in person.

Based on a 2006 Danish film of the same name, this movie definitely flew under the radar for me when it was first released at the beginning of August.

In fact, I probably would have never even heard about the film if it weren't for a friend of mine asking about it, as they were a fan of the original and were curious if I had plans to see the American remake.

Well now that I've seen the movie, I have to admit, I am a little more curious about the original Danish film.

Because while the concept of the movie is compelling, and the main thrust of the narrative does show a lot of potential, the overly sentimental moments in film just didn't resonate with me at all.

Though for starters I do want to give credit where credit is due.

Both Michelle Williams and Julianne Moore are incredibly talented actresses, and both of them did quite well considering the material they were given. Never once did I believe their performances were a detriment to the film.

And in defense of the narrative, I was quite interested in where the story was headed during the first third or so of the film.

It was a bit of a mystery. The characters would give little hints here and there, but the movie never explicitly spelled anything out. That is until one particular moment where everything snapped into place, and all the bits of information brought up before suddenly made much more sense.

So in that respect, I found the first 30 minutes of the film pretty rewarding. Sadly, the aftermath of that satisfying reveal ended up being far less compelling.

The whole thing just ended up turning into a glorified soap opera.

Sure, the way it played out was probably a little smarter than your average daytime drama, and the performances were certainly better. But like a soap, it was still incredibly emotionally contrived and ridiculously melodramatic.

Despite all the many emotional happenings, I simply never felt a connection with these characters.

Overall, I definitely didn't hate the movie. Like I said, I enjoyed the first third of it quite well.

I just didn't find the film as a whole all that engaging, which unfortunately made it a decidedly drawn out movie going experience.

Perhaps if you have a higher tolerance of melodrama than I do, you might get a bit more out of this movie. But to me this seems like yet another remake that would have been better off never seeing the light of day.

"After the Wedding" is rated PG-13.

Next up is "Luce." It's been ten years since Amy and Peter Edgar (Naomi Watts and Tim Roth) adopted their son from a war-torn east African country, and they thought the worst was behind them. Luce Edgar (Kelvin Harrison Jr.) has become an all-star student beloved by his school and community.

Please see Dave, page 5A

But when Luce is assigned to write an essay in the voice of a historical twentieth-century figure, he turns in a paper that makes an alarming statement about political violence, worrying his history teacher Harriet Wilson (Octavia Spencer). Concerned by the language used in the paper, Harriet searches Luce's locker, finding something that confirms her worst fears.

The second of the two movies recommended to me by friends, I had absolutely no idea what I was getting into going into this film, beyond that it had good reviews and that it featured Octavia Spencer.

What I discovered though was a film filled with excellent performances and a narrative that kept me guessing all the way until the very end.

I absolutely love characters like Luce. Incredibly brilliant ones, constantly thinking and subtly manipulating everything, and everyone, around them.

But unlike most narratives revolving around clever schemers, this movie doesn't solely focus on Luce or the careful planning going on inside his head.

In fact, most of the film plays out from the perspective of Luce's mother and Luce's teacher.

So in that respect, Luce almost feels like the movie's antagonist. To them he's a bit of an unknown. No one knows how to deal with this well liked, highly intelligent, and potentially dangerous young man.

The whole thing was absolutely fascinating to watch. There's so much going on with these characters.

Of course you have Luce, with his troubled past, plus the incredibly high expectations placed on him by everyone around him due to his high intelligence, his traumatic childhood, and even his skin color.

Then there's Luce's teacher Harriet, who's not only is dealing with a seemingly antagonistic pupil, but also a sister with a severe personality disorder.

And then you have Luce's parents, both of whom are afraid to confront Luce's behavior and in the process potentially ruin years of built up trust.

All of this revolving around a narrative with a strong message about race, expectations, and the American dream.

The whole thing is definitely a lot heavier than your typical high school drama, but the excellent writing and fantastic performances really pull it all together to make one incredibly compelling package.

Every single actor here was spectacular.

Octavia Spencer's performance was so incredibly powerful, and Kelvin Harrison Jr. really showed his ability in the film as well.

Though I've definitely watched Harrison in other films, this is the first time I've seen him in a role with this kind of depth. He completely knocked it out of the park though. After this movie I can't wait to look for him in more films in the future.

"Luce" completely took me off guard. I had no idea what would happen from one moment to the next, and multiple moments left me utterly shocked with my mouth wide open.

It's a shame this film wasn't released in more theaters, because as far as I'm concerned, it's without a doubt one of the year's best.

Seek it out if you can. Believe me, this movie is worth it.

"Luce" is rated R.

Last week is "Don't Let Go."

After the brutal murder of his brother, sister-in-law, and beloved niece Ashley (Storm Reid), Detective Jack Radcliff (David Oyelowo) gets a shocking phone call from his recently-murdered niece. A call from the recent past.

Working together across time, they race to solve her murder before it can happen.

I love the concept of this movie.

It's a typical murder mystery flick, but with the added sci-fi spice of time travel, or well telephone time travel, letting our detective discover the killer, plus affect the past and changing the future.

Sounds like fun, right? Well, sadly the execution of this cool idea was horribly fumbled.

For starters, the characters aren't terribly charismatic, especially our detective friend.

Jack and his niece have absolutely no chemistry, and the movie completely fails to make the two of them seem even remotely close.

The first time we see them together felt so stiff and not the least bit natural. They barely act like they know each other, much less express any kind of feeling of familial love and trust.

Then there's the story itself, which almost seemed to be missing pieces and felt like it was told out of order.

And it's not like it's out of order in a time travel kind of way. It's like elements of the narrative would have worked much better story wise if they had happened in the first third of the film, instead of near the end.

Granted the movie does have it's moments, and it picks up a little during the movie's tense climax. But the journey to that conclusion just wasn't remotely engaging.

By the time the action filled conclusion came around, I had already stopped caring about the movie. I simply couldn't wait for it to end because I never started caring about the uninteresting characters residing in this poorly constructed story.

It's a shame. I really was looking forward to this movie, but the execution of this fun concept just wasn't up to snuff.

"Don't Let Go" is rated R.

In rural areas, a ceaseless struggle to get domestic abuse victims to testify

Whitney Bryan
Oklahoma Watch

On a March morning in 2017, Tamera Moore, a 38-year-old woman living in the southeast Oklahoma town of Valliant, began the day with a bitter argument.

She and her boyfriend, Geoffrey Briley, began quarreling and she told him she wanted to break up. He grabbed her neck, threw her onto a bed and began biting her face and lips, court records say. He left, and Moore went to the hospital.

For months, police, prosecutors and even a judge pleaded with her to testify in court. But Moore refused, and prosecutors dropped the charge in June.

Two months later, Moore was found dead — shot in her home. Police arrested Briley at the scene and he faces first-degree murder charges. He pleaded not guilty.

The Moore slaying points to a dilemma that district attorneys in Oklahoma wrestle with on a continuing basis: When a domestic violence victim refuses to cooperate in prosecuting an alleged abuser, should prosecutors pursue the case anyway? Or is it a waste of time or even harmful to the victim to press ahead when the chances of a conviction are diminished?

Moore's death riled up residents of McCurtain County, with some accusing prosecutors, law enforcement officials and victim advocates of not doing enough to prevent her death.

Officials say the case has become a cautionary tale, and they are more determined than ever to not let an uncooperative victim stop them from pursuing domestic-violence cases using other evidence.

But it's not easy, and district attorneys have differing views.

Reasons for Silence
Oklahoma has many small towns where everyone knows everyone else, which is often a point of pride. But that can also mean domestic-violence victims feel isolated.

They may not report abuse to police or seek help out of fear their story will become public or no one will believe them, prosecutors and advocates say. It's not uncommon for a family member to work in law enforcement or at the local hospital where a victim would seek treatment for injuries.

District Attorney Chris Boring, who represents Alfalfa, Dewey, Major, Woods and Woodward counties near the panhandle, says there remains a deep stigma around domestic abuse, especially in rural areas.

But many small-town jurors still don't understand why a victim wouldn't speak up. That makes it difficult to win a trial without the victim's testimony, even when there are photographs, medical records and witnesses, he said.

The reasons for the silence are multifaceted and complex, says Liz Vaughn, executive director of McCurtain County's domestic violence shelter.

Victims of intimate-partner violence are isolated from friends and family, she said. Many don't have jobs and can't afford to move. They don't have a way to support themselves or their children if they leave.

They worry no one will believe them and speaking out will only make things worse. They're afraid for their own life and the lives of their children. What if their kids are taken away? They feel powerless and don't know where to turn.

Some victims still care for their abuser and don't want them punished, advocates say.

But police and prosecutors want to hold domestic abusers accountable. Otherwise, the violence can escalate and lead to homicide. And in Oklahoma, the problem is severe.

Newly released data shows that in 2018, Oklahoma's rate of domestic-abuse incidents reached the highest level since 2012; there were 25,864 reported abuses.

Victimless Prosecution
In 2007, the state Domestic Violence Fatality Review Board issued a report recommending that district attorneys and police increase "evidence-based" prosecution of abusers when victims won't cooperate. The District Attorneys Council began training its members on the approach.

Allie Spears Buckholts, a domestic-violence prosecutor who advises Oklahoma's district attorneys, said the practice has become accepted.

But what is considered sufficient evidence to move forward, and how hard prosecutors are willing to push, varies greatly from one district attorney to another.

Some prosecutors lean heavily on victims, seeking cooperation and evidence. Others tend to dismiss charges or settle for plea deals when victims refuse to testify.

Police training, the attitudes of local residents, access to victim services and judges' and prosecutors' caseloads are among the factors that determine whether or not charges are filed.

Pushing the Case
District Attorney Mark Matloff and Assistant District Attorney Emily Maxwell Herron take a relatively tough approach to domestic violence cases in McCurtain, Choctaw and Pushmataha counties. Moore's death reinforced that practice, they said.

"The red light went on with both the judge and myself and we discussed it," Matloff said, referring to the March 2017 incident. "When somebody bites, physically bites the face of a woman, that's a pretty good indication that there is no stopping them."

Briley has a record of violent crimes, with convictions and protective orders, including on domestic assaults, going back to 2000, court filings show. One incident in 2005 involved Moore, who was pushed to the ground and injured.

Matloff and Maxwell Herron said they did everything they could to convince Moore to help them prosecute Briley, but she refused and even began recanting her story. Maxwell Herron, who prosecutes the district's domestic-violence cases, said there was not enough evidence to win the case without Moore's testimony.

Matloff said his job is to protect women like Moore, which is why his office presses victims to cooperate and vehemently pursues cases with sufficient evidence even when victims resist.

In initial interviews with victims, Matloff's office presses them to sign an affidavit to pursue charges. That way if they change their mind later, prosecutors have the right to move forward even if the victim objects. Victims can refuse to testify by ignoring a notice to show up in court, he said.

But there are limits to victimless prosecution. State law prohibits police, advocates or other parties from presenting the victim's side in court to protect the defendant's constitutional right to face the accuser. There are exceptions for hearsay testimony, but they require proof that the victim is unable to testify because of threats from the defendant.

Pursuing such cases also takes more time and resources, which can be lacking in rural communities.

Michael Walden, a detective with the Idabel Police Department, said investigators also can get jaded by being called to the same home many times and may take the case less seriously, resulting in less evidence collected, Walden said.

Some prosecutors and advocates say pushing ahead without the victim can leave victims feeling powerless and frustrated and discourage them from reporting future abuse.

But Matloff stands by his approach.

"I am sensitive to them (victims), but at the same time I know what the end result is and I'm not going to have blood on my hands," Matloff said.

Deferring to Victims
In a neighboring district that includes LeFlore and Latimer counties, District Attorney Jeff Smith tries to accommodate victims.

Smith said he prefers to take direction from domestic violence victims because they know what's best for them.

"I want to give the victim some type of power, some type of say-so in what happens to them," Smith said. "And I've told them ... 'Listen, I'll go to the wall with you on this if you want to. I'll go as far as you want to go or I won't, so you get to say.'"

But Smith said he doesn't drop charges for every uncooperative victim. He typically avoids putting them on the stand, but often proceeds if the abuser is a repeat offender and there is enough evidence for a likely conviction. Smith said his office pursues about one-third of cases involving uncooperative victims.

Many of Smith's domestic cases end in plea deals that include a deferred sentence with required addiction treatment or counseling.

Some district attorneys say it's important to listen to victims' concerns, but giving Subcommittee that funds NIH, I recognize the importance of biomedical and disease research. During my time as chairman of the subcommittee, I prioritized research funding and oversaw historic increases across the country.

In my current role, I continue to advocate for incremental increases year after year. In a lot of ways, biomedical research is similar to the strategy behind defense spending.

You cannot simply build a military all at once. Instead, you must make sustained investments, and that's what has occurred in recent years with research funding.

Everyone has family members and loved ones who are affected by some form of disease.

Regardless of your politics, funding for biomedical and disease research is always a worthy cause. As I serve in Congress, I will continue fighting to sustain and increase the gains that we have made, so centers of research excellence — like OMRF — can continue to pursue groundbreaking research to benefit all of society.

How to have a great tomato crop and get the most out of your harvest.

A great tomato harvest

Tips on how to get the most out of your tomato crop

Melinda Myers
For The Purcell Register

Nothing beats the flavor of fresh-from-the-garden tomatoes and when they're left on the plant five to eight days after the fruit are fully colored, the flavor only gets better.

Check plants regularly and keep harvesting, so the plants continue to produce throughout the fall. This also reduces problems with insects and disease attacking overripe or rotting fruit. Store the mature red tomatoes in cool, 45- to 50-degree, conditions with high humidity and they'll last about 7 to 14 days.

Consider pinching off the growing tip of indeterminate tomatoes now. These plants will keep growing and producing new flowers and fruit until the frost kills the plant. By pruning off the tip in September the plant will direct its energy into ripening the existing fruit instead of producing more tomatoes that won't have time to mature.

When frost is in the forecast be prepared to protect your plants and harvest. Cover plants with sheets, lightweight blankets or floating row covers in the afternoon. All but the row covers must be removed each day when the temperatures are above freezing. Since row covers allow air, light and water through to the plants while trapping the heat, they can remain in place until the end of the harvest season.

Once you grow tired of fighting the frost, consider picking any tomatoes that are starting to show some color and allow them to finish ripening indoors. The blossom end of the tomato should be greenish white or starting to show the color of the tomato variety you're growing. Store green tomatoes in a cool 60- to 65- degree location to extend their storage life.

Spread out the tomatoes on heavy paper or wrap them individually in newspaper so the fruit do not touch. This prevents one rotten tomato from spoiling nearby fruit.

The green tomatoes will ripen over the next few weeks. Speed up the process by moving a few tomatoes to a bright, warm location a few days before they're needed.

Next season consider growing some short season tomatoes like Fourth of July that start producing fruit earlier in the season. Extend your enjoyment by growing a few tomato varieties such as Garden Peach, Golden Treasure, Long Keeper and Reverend Morrow's Long Keeper that last longer in storage.

And don't let the rest of the green tomatoes go to waste. You can use them for frying, chow chow, green salsa and other tasty treats.

Victims:

them too much control can put them in a stressful dilemma and can mean fewer consequences for abusers.

Spears Buckholts said prosecutors are trained in these cases and should ultimately decide how to proceed, considering the legal options, victims' safety, the circumstances and the evidence.

It was after 10 p.m. on Labor Day 2017 when Briley began knocking on doors and windows at Moore's home and yelling to let him in.

Then Briley kicked in the front door, according to court records. Moore hid in her bedroom with her 10-year-old son and 17-year-old daughter with the lights off.

Briley, using his phone for light, allegedly shoved Moore onto the bed and strangled her, then threw her on the floor and strangled her again. Moore's daughter tried to pull him off.

According to police, Briley pulled out a .45-caliber pistol and fired five shots into the dark room where Moore huddled with her children. Moore died of two gunshot wounds to the torso, according to the medical examiner's report.

Days later, Matloff charged Briley with first-degree murder and is seeking the death penalty for the first time in more than a decade. A jury trial is set for January.

Matloff said during his 16 years as a prosecutor, the challenge of convincing domestic-abuse victims to testify remains the same.

"Every once in a while, we'll have a case like this where it gets brought back to the forefront," Matloff said, adding, "It's just more polarizing now because people are paying attention."

Despite criticism from the community, local officials and advocates said it is residents who need to help solve the issue.

Matloff said after months of pleading with Moore to cooperate, there was nothing more he could do. After she didn't show up to court, the case was dismissed. Vaughn, of the domestic violence shelter, said she didn't know about the abuse until after Moore's death.

Prosecutors and advocates say relatives and friends need to offer support instead of ignoring victims. Emotional or financial support can be the tipping point that allows victims to escape an abusive relationship or tell their story in court, Vaughn said.

Matloff calls the problem of uncooperative victims "an epidemic" and said there is no perfect solution. But he plans to forge ahead, even if it means going against victims' wishes.

"It's exhausting to fight these fights. You're not only fighting against the defendant, most times you're fighting against the victim," Matloff said. "The families, they don't understand what it's like to fight for someone who doesn't want you to fight for them."

Hospital:

June 2018 the best option was to construct a new, leaner, state-of-the-art health care facility.

"This falls in line with the budget costs planned for the project," Purcell City Manager Dale Bunn told The Purcell Register.

Architectural and engineering estimates to bring the ailing hospital up to code were estimated at $11 to $12 million.

City voters signed on to the plan on Aug. 28, 2018, when they overwhelmingly approved a 20-year extension to a penny sales tax earmarked for the hospital. The vote was 905 in favor to 237 against.

Officials noted at the time the average daily census at the hospital was four patients, leaving more than 87 percent of the hospital's 32 beds unused.

Estimates are an eight-bed hospital can be built for around $15 million.

In other business at the Tuesday meeting the lone bid to up fit two Tahoe 4x4 vehicles for the police department gave council members pause when police chief Kevin Williams affirmed there wasn't enough money in the department's budget to cover the $52,820 cost.

Williams told council members $100,000 was budgeted to purchase and equip the two vehicles. But once the Tahoes were paid for, only about $13,000 was left to up fit them.

The lone bid from Metro Emergency Upfitters LLC far exceeded the available funds.

Bunn told the council that he and finance director Victor Lohn "will have to find the money."

Bunn continued, saying it might be possible to delay refurbishing the storage tank on Red Hill and the council approved the bid with the provision that the funds to pay for it be taken from that project.

The city manager also praised police and animal control staff for handling the seizure of 32 malnourished dogs from a Purcell residence. He singled out shelter manager Louise Zastrow, animal control officer David Claunch, Mitchell Taggart and Lt. James Bolling.

Area residents donated $2,700 for the care of the dogs. That money was given to the Purcell Animal Welfare Society.

Claunch said the city has purchased medication and food for the dogs and is using a $500 donation to pay to spay and neuter the dogs at Walnut Creek Animal Hospital.

The dogs' owner was hospitalized and has relinquished ownership of the dogs to the city.

When they are healthy, they will be available for adoption. Any not adopted will be taken in by rescues in Wisconsin.

Zastrow said the shelter is above capacity presently with 63 dogs.

In other business, the council heard updates on dilapidated houses at 120 N. 6th Ave., and 304 W. Delaware St., and approved budget amendments totaling $56,057.32 to assist low-income city workers with insurance premiums, $6,249.93 for inspections at the Holiday Inn Express and $31,800 for the new apron at the airport.

"My opponents can't see their way out of a dark room, whereas I have superior owl vision and big eyes."

Baxter Beaver is the election's dark horse, generally preferring to work on numerous dam constructions across the county.

He has also been the target of a rumor mill and stories are circulating that he is using campaign donations to pay an orthodontist to correct his pronounced overbite.

"Absolutely falth," he lisped. "It'h fake newth."

McClain County Election Board Secretary Karen Haley said the polling place will be open on election day from 8 a.m. to noon.

Her staff has confirmed that all three candidates live and thrive in McClain County.

Expecting a tight race, Haley said a run-off election will be necessary if no candidate receives more than 50 percent of the vote on election day.

"More information on the runoff will follow after the election," Haley said.

Medicaid:

population in state that accepted expansion. That rate has been phased down so the federal government will cover 90 percent of the expenses in 2020 and all subsequent years.

The 2013 Leavitt report estimated that the state's share of the costs would range from $137 million to $158 million if Oklahoma Medicaid expansion took effect in 2021.

But the report anticipates a net cost of $49 million to $81 million when anticipated savings in existing programs across state government are also considered.

How would Oklahoma pay for the plan?

The ballot language on State Question 802 is silent on where the funding would come from. It would be up to the Legislature to use savings, find new revenues or make cuts to pay for the state's share of the costs.

The Commonwealth Fund, a nonprofit that tracks health care issues, reports that nine states that have accepted the expansion have earmarked a tax increase to pay for the expansion while others cut other Medicaid costs, asked hospitals to help pay for it or have used general funds.

The bones, together with clothing, jewelry and bedding, were discovered Feb. 1, 2018, by the worker who was taking a bathroom break.

Authorities estimated at the time the victim was killed 1 to 2 years earlier.

The bones, which had been scattered by animals, were found in trees about 100 yards west of a work over rig and approximately 100 yards east of the interstate.

The location was approximately 1/4-mile east of the exit to State Highway 54 and then south on a lease road.

Dragons club Tecumseh

Pound out 17 hits in 10-2 victory

Purcell pounded out 17 hits in a 10-2 victory over Tecumseh last week on the road to hoist their season mark to 8-1 and 3-0 in district play.

The Dragons led 2-0 after their half of the first inning only to have the Lady Savages knot the score in the bottom half of the frame.

Purcell came back to push across a trio of runs in the top of the second and never looked back.

Brook Fleming led the hit parade going 4-5 with three RBIs.

Lauren Holmes, Katelynn Carwile and Addie Stanton were all 2-4 at the plate. Stanton and Holmes both had RBIs while Hannah Buchanan was 2-5 with an RBI.

Chelsea Spain had a hit and an RBI. Missy Nimsey and Khia Tyler both had a hit for coach Sarah Jones.

Fleming struck out six in 5 innings of work in the circle. Carwile fanned four in relief.

"That was our only game for the week," Jones said. "It was really nice to finally play. We came out swinging and didn't stop. Fleming and Carwile are a dynamic duo in the circle and our defense and bats are backing them up."

The Dragons did not play in the scheduled Piedmont Tournament last weekend because it was cancelled.

The Dragons were scheduled to play at Harrah Tuesday and host Washington at 5:30 p.m. today (Thursday). Pauls Valley is scheduled to play here next Tuesday at 5 p.m.

The Purcell-Washington junior high softball game starts Thursday at 4:15 p.m.

There is also a junior varsity festival here on Friday, Jones reported.

'Dawgs hosting Anadarko

Open season Friday night at home

Todd Newville
The Purcell Register

Lexington opens their 2019 season at home at 7 p.m. Friday against Anadarko.

After a solid scrimmage at Bridge Creek last Thursday, the 'Dawgs should be ready, willing and able to take on the Warriors, a Class 4A team who no doubt will present a huge challenge for the Class 2A 'Dawgs.

Coached by Kent Jackson, Anadarko beat Lexington last year 44-8. The Warriors went 6-5 last year and made the Class 4A playoffs.

"Anadarko could be a catalyst for our entire season," Lexington head coach Dale Berglan said before the season.

"If we could go out and knock off Anadarko, we would have the chance to gain some early momentum."

Anadarko likes to spread the ball offensively and they play good, sound defense, according to Berglan.

"They also like to run power football," Berglan said.

"They are well-coached," Berglan said.

"They will play sound, fast, physical defense. And, I've yet to see a team run counter offense as well as Anadarko."

The Warriors are coming off a fairly successful scrimmage at Ardmore against Madill's Wildcats last Thursday evening. The scrimmage venue was changed since Madill's new artificial turf was not fully installed and ready for use.

As of presstime, kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at the newly and completely revamped Conger Field Friday night with Lindsay's Leopards the opponent.

However, the time and venue could change depending on progress of the construction project.

The Dragons are coming off last Thursday's scrimmage at Blanchard and have been shoring up areas of concern to the coaching staff this week.

Lady 'Dawgs get 13-3 win

Victory over CCS while looking to rematch with Sulphur

Todd Newville
The Purcell Register

The Lexington fast-pitch team finally brought out the firepower in its offense with a 13-3 victory over CCS last Thursday at home.

The Lady 'Dawgs are now 4-3 on the season under head coach Kayla Stewart. They scored once in the first and second innings against the Lady Royals.

A monstrous inning in the bottom half of the third netted the 'Dawgs five big runs. Lexington also scored three runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth inning.

CCS finally scored twice in the top of the fourth inning and once more in the sixth. They knotted five hits on the day.

Much to Lex's advantage, the Lady Royals also committed five costly errors in the game.

Lexington was led at the plate by senior Emilee Jenks. She had a solid 4-for-5 day with three runs scored and two runs batted in. Hannah Robbins, also a senior, went 2-for-4 with two ribbies.

Lindsay Barber, Kaylee Fink,

Cora Vazquez, Ryli Harmon, and Izzy Pack also contributed big hits toward the 'Dawgs' 11-hit attack against CCS.

Lexington made only two errors in the field and Fink was the winning pitcher for the 'Dawgs. Fink went the whole six innings and came on strong against CCS. She allowed five hits and two walks while striking out 10 Royals.

Lexington hosted Sulphur (13-3) on Tuesday evening Sulphur, coached by Heath Gilbert, previously beat Lexington 11-1 on Aug. 20.

Dragons:

"They are improved over last year.

"Their quarterback throws the ball well and they have receivers that can go get it," Scott continued.

The Leopards are mainly a one back spread offensive unit but do show some two back sets.

"They are in doubles the majority of the time," Scott said.

The Leopards operate out of a 3-4 defense same as the Dragons.

Scott said the keys for a Dragon victory are fairly simple.

"It's the same old thing," he said. "Don't turn the ball over. Capitalize on their mistakes and win the kicking game."

Wayne stumbles in opener

Wayne will name stadium after former supt. Zack Powell

Wayne dropped a 27-0 season opener to Elmore City-Pernell Friday night.

The Bulldogs' evening was plagued with mistakes and the more-physical ECP Badgers made them pay.

Wayne had four trips inside the red zone and came away with no points.

"We'd either have a penalty or a misread or something," Sharp said referring to the scoreless trips to the red zone. "It was a weird night and we were behind the chains all night."

Wayne was indeed able to move the ball on the Badgers but self-inflicted mistakes plagued several drives.

"We didn't play a clean game," Sharp said. "We'll get better and most everything is correctable."

The coach said ECP gets all credit for the win.

"The main thing is they were more physical than we were. They hit us in the mouth and we didn't respond," he said. "Hopefully our kids will come out Friday and give better effort. We thought all we had to do is show up but if we don't perform bad things are going to happen."

Apache
Wayne will have an opportunity to right the ship Friday when Apache pays a visit to the newly name D.S. "Zack" Powell Stadium.

Veteran coach Larry McDaniel enters his 23rd season at the helm for the Warriors.

Apache finished second in their District last year, behind Ringling, with a 7-3 record.

Wayne will have a special ceremony to name their football stadium in honor of longtime Wayne Schools Superintendent Zack Powell.

The stadium will officially be named the D.S. "Zack" Powell Stadium.

Kickoff will follow the ceremony.

Hobart is coming off a 10 win season last year and will operate out of the I-formation on offense and run a 5-2 Okie Defense.

"We're got to overcome the

Our next Food Give-Away will be on Saturday, September 21, between 12 and 4 p.m. Don't be embarrassed if you and your family need help with having enough to eat. If you know of someone else who needs food, please bring them with you. It is first-come, first-served, and there is plenty for all!

Pastor David based his sermon on Ephesians 2: 8: "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith—and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God..."

The key words from this are grace and faith. As one of the main principles of the Christian faith, grace is the sacredness and mercy given by God, a blessing, the love of God. Grace is related to forgiveness. Another tenet is faith: the belief, trust, assurance, and confidence in God; reliance on God; fidelity and devotion to God. In addition, we see a gift as a present or a benevolence given freely without requiring anything in return, especially not requiring us to be worthy.

Grace can also be defined as the love and mercy given to us by God because God wants us to have it, not because of anything we have done to earn it. Why is grace needed? To learn the answer, we must speak of sin. We can't understand why grace is amazing if we think we don't need it.

To really speak about grace, we must speak of sin. Too often sin is used as a synonym for being immoral. But even if we live a completely moral life, never cheating on our spouse, or on our taxes, we could never break a law and be a "good person" we would still be a total sinner.

We all need grace since we all sin. Sin is sometimes defined as "missing the target." We often have good intentions but sometime our actions don't always follow. We all have the human propensity to mess things up. Many times, sin can be as simple as being unkind or leaving something undone that we should have done.

While it might be good to have regret about how we mess things up and even make amends, we don't need to have shame about it because without messing up, we wouldn't need God or God's grace. We don't have to be ashamed, but only to admit that we've done wrong.

Grace isn't about us, our efforts, our intentions, or our goodness. Without it, there's pride and temporarily getting things right, followed by the despair of inevitably getting things wrong again. But God isn't interested in making us a better person—God wants to make us a new person. If being better were the objective, trying harder would do the trick, but then we wouldn't need Jesus any more.

Being better is something we could do on our own, but to become a new person, we need God. We need a God who drowns our old selves in baptism and raises us to a new life where death was overcome by death. Becoming a new person is what following Jesus is all about and can't happen by trying harder to be good.

God knows what we are like and sent salvation to us, welcoming everything our propensity to mess things up can do and responds to us with only forgiveness. It is grace that God again and again makes room in our hearts, healing our hurts, and tells us, "You are mine, and you are enough." There is only grace: everything else is a measure of worthiness, and we already know we are unworthy of that gift.

Come as you are to enjoy fellowship with us. We begin worship at 9:30 a.m., with Sunday school following at 10:45 a.m. Our address is 631 East Ash, near Lexington High School. For more information, please call the church at 527-3506 to leave a message or contact Pastor David Cook directly at (405) 406-6174.

The two virtues of humility and freedom

Although he doesn't mention them by name, Jesus seems to speak of two virtues in the 14th chapter of Luke's Gospel. His teaching reveals the two virtues of humility and detachment, or freedom to follow him.

During a dinner with friends, he says "Take the lowest place at the table... for all those who humble themselves will be exalted." (Luke 14:11) Who will do the "exalting"? The host, who will invite you forward to a better place.

Humility is not self-deprecation, or a feeling of being victimized. These things are rightly named "false humility." True humility is recognizing who I am in the great web of life, a creature who was created as a reflection of God but who is not God. Humility leads to silence before the Great Mystery, and silence becomes prayer.

After dinner, a great crowd followed him. He turned to them with another teaching – "If you want to follow me you must forsake your family and even your own life." (Luke 14:25-26) He is speaking here of Christian freedom that comes with detachment from other goods.

Love of family is a good thing, as is love of life. But discipleship of Christ sometimes includes making decisions that push me away from my own preferences.

Blessed Stanley Rother chose to return to his ministry in Guatemala, even at the potential cost of his own life. For him, this decision was a decision of discipleship.

St. Catherine disappointed her parents when she chose to live a life of religious celibacy rather than to get married and have children.

Problems in our extended family can become burdensome and obstacles on our faith journey with God. Detachment requires us to "let go and let God" when we are faced with circumstances beyond our ability to control.

Fr. Dean Brackley, S.J.

writes that detachment means "being so passionately committed, so completely in love... it means magnanimous generosity, abandonment into God's hands, and availability." These two virtues give our lives an order and a direction. I do not demand of myself a sense of control beyond my own creatureliness. And I make myself available to follow God's desires.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society has started a fundraiser to aid the poor and the needy. Lovely "soup in a jar" gifts can be purchased and given to loved ones or used at home.

We welcome all visitors to our Sunday services! Our weekly Mass schedule is Saturday at 5 p.m. (English), Sunday at 11 a.m. (English) and 1 p.m. (Spanish). All are welcome to join our parish family!

Josh Solomon, Julie Hiser, Stetson McGehee, and Megan Solomon sang "Do Lord" for our morning special. Brother Dennis used 1 Thessalonians 1:1-5 for his sermon. Paul's letter was an encouragement to the believers at the church in Thessalonica. He said they were not only hearers of the Word, but also speakers and teachers. Effective preaching of God's Word cannot be replaced by anything else. It enlightens the listener's heart and mind and the spirit draws one to decisions they may need to make.

At our evening service, II Timothy 4:13-22 was the text. These were the last recorded words of the apostle Paul. He mentioned those that were an asset to his ministry, ones not having a part, and those that were a detriment. Paul was abandoned by several that he knew, but was conscious that the Lord was with him, strengthened him, and enabled him to present the Gospel to the Gentiles. He was unafraid of physical death and revealed he was at peace. He wanted to say goodbye to everyone and acknowledge those that had worked with him.

Join us this Sunday for our annual Grandparents Day service. Our children will be doing a special presentation during morning worship. Lunch will be served following worship. There will be no evening service.

On Friday at 10 a.m. we will be singing at Sunset Estates nursing home. At 5 p.m. we will be feeding the PHS band before their home football game with Lindsay. Next Tuesday, September 10, Sunray will be hosting the BMA of Central Oklahoma meeting.

Come to Sunray! There is a place for you. We are a small, traditional church with a lot of friendly people. We are located at 2223 North 9th Street, Purcell. For information call 527-6808.

I'll Stick with Solomon

Good week to all. Welcome to the "front porch."

During the recent sickness and passing of my father-in-law Bill Dickinson, his preacher-son Billy sent out a text to several of the family members expressing that, through it all, the Lord has been good to us. Then he said, "You know, I still believe in Romans 8:28."

Romans 8:28 still is a powerful verse for every believer: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord..." writes the apostle Paul. Even as we deal with the most difficult times, we remember that great promise. While I've heard many very smart men water-down that scripture through the years, Billy and I - and you, too, I'm sure - still hold to the simple truth the verse declares: All things work together for good. We are all very glad of it, too.

Billy and I do not get our black-and-white approach to the Bible dishonestly. Preacher Miller from down South taught me that principle just about every day I walked on that old red Georgia clay. And Billy's dad Bill taught him and his family the same approach. Bible interpretation is not as difficult as many make it. It just means what it says.

Whenever I'd say that to my father-in-law as we'd talk Bible through the years, he'd quip, "And says what it means." Very true.

One of the famous stories from the gentleman we call Paw Paw took place when he worked for Armco Steel in Houston, a steel mill at which he was a foreman for 37 years. The company once sent him and a number of other men from management to a psychology class to brush up on their leadership skills.

Sending Paw Paw to a modern-day psychology class would be a little like sending a dog to a cat-grooming class. During the lecture, the teacher got onto the topic of child rearing, and many of those in the class offered comments during the question/answer session. Paw Paw had noticed from the beginning that most of that class consisted of highly educated men, even some lawyers and such. And all of them concurred with the teacher that corporal punishment isn't the way to discipline children nowadays.

He listened patiently during both the lecture and question/answer session, letting the others do the talking. But the professor knew Bill, and - after a while - he turned to him and said, "Mr. Dickinson, what do you think about all of this?"

You'd have to know my father-in-law, probably, but you can imagine this next scene, nonetheless. He stood up slowly, looked around the room at that educated crowd, and said, "Well, I may be the dumbest man in here, with all of you lawyers and educated men. But Solomon said that if you spare the rod you will ruin your child."

He paused, thought for a second, then concluded, "I think I'll just stick with Solomon."

With that, he sat down. Case closed.

You know, thinking of that story, I think we'll follow the lead of my father-in-law. We'll just stick with Romans 8:28, too. Especially in times like these.

Face-off over gaming compacts amps up, as tribes launch marketing campaign

Paul Monies Oklahoma Watch

The back-and-forth between the Oklahoma governor and Native American tribes over gaming compacts appears to be amping up: Some tribes have launched a multi-faceted media campaign promoting the benefits they bring to the state.

The United for Oklahoma campaign is staying away from policy discussions and instead focuses on jobs and economic impact.

But the messages reflect what tribal leaders have already said about Gov. Kevin Stitt's efforts to reopen discussions about compacts that fix the percentage cut of gaming revenue the state receives.

A website, unitedforoklahoma.com, and related Facebook page are live, the latter with more than 1,000 likes. At least one television promotion aired recently on OETA-TV, and an audio version aired on a public radio station.

A video on the website shows rural and urban scenes and mentions the tribes' efforts to benefit schools, health care and roads.

"We are united for Oklahoma. Committed to mutual respect, shared strength and productive partnerships," the video says.

On the site, former Gov. Brad Henry, and former Treasurer Scott Meacham, who negotiated the compacts during the Henry administration, offer short written testimonials without specifically mentioning gaming.

The website says, "Native American tribes are an integral part of every square inch of Oklahoma ... They are an economic engine providing more than $13 billion in state revenue and overall economic impact ... This is why Oklahoma leaders have long understood that when the tribes are strong, Oklahoma is strong."

Internet domain registration records show the United for Oklahoma website was registered July 12. The Facebook page was created July 15.

After an initial back-and-forth over the compacts by Stitt's office and several tribes, Stitt asked Attorney General Mike Hunter to get involved. Stitt wants discussions to start by early September and suggested a mediator be brought in, according to a letter he sent to Chickasaw Nation Gov. Bill Anoatubby on August 13.

Thirty-four of the state's 38 federally recognized tribes have gaming compacts.

Stitt's office has said its legal interpretation of the compacts mean they expire January 1. The tribes said the agreements automatically renew.

The state collected almost $139 million in gaming exclusivity fees in fiscal year 2018, according to the Office of Management and Enterprise Services.

Both sides have expressed a willingness to talk, but neither has backed down from its initial position on the compacts. The new promotional campaign suggests the face-off is partly a battle to win over public opinion.

Oklahoma Watch is a non-profit, nonpartisan media organization that produces in-depth and investigative content on a range of public-policy issues facing the state. For more Oklahoma Watch content, go to www.oklahomawatch.org.

Where Should We Put Our Confidence?

Trust is a word that's not very long but holds a lot of weight. It has a lot of power. We can gain someone's trust, but we can lose it with just a word or an action, whether deliberate or unintentional. With our trust in something or someone naturally comes confidence.

Relationships are built on this trust or confidence. We trust our parents to care and provide for our wellbeing. We trust our friends to be there for us when we need them in difficult times. I hear people all the time telling me about the great trust they have for other people. "I was told by my mama that I'm saved, and I know she wouldn't tell me a lie. She loves me so and she's a Godly woman."

"I was told by my granddaddy that I was saved, and I really love and respect him. He's taught me so much about tractors, putting things together, working on cars, farming. He's a good man."

"I was told by my pastor or priest that I was saved, and he's supposed to be a man of God. He's supposed to be in direct contact with God daily."

We love the people who fill our lives and hearts, but can we trust them 100 percent blindly with our salvation? Should we trust them with our eternal salvation and eternal destination? No. They may love us. They may be well meaning, but they could be wrong no matter how well meaning they might be (Matthew 7:21-23).

So, what do we do? Where do I put my confidence if I can't put it in those I know best and love? Who do I believe? John wrote: "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God" (1 John 5:13 KJV).

We can put our confidence in God and His precious Book, The Bible. How do I know where my eternal destination is? How do I go to Heaven? Answer these questions:

Do I believe in Jesus as God's son? "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:16 KJV). Have I repented, turned away from my sins? "I tell you, Nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13:3 KJV).

Have I confessed the Christ is God's son? "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation" (Romans 10:10 KJV).

Have I been baptized in water for the forgiveness of my sins? "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us, not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 3:21 KJV).

Biblical baptism isn't sprinkling or pouring a little water on somebody's head; it requires "much water" (John 3:23) and involves going down into the water (Acts 8:38).

If you haven't done these things or you've done some of these things but the way you did them was different, then friend, you haven't done them according to the Bible.

But, don't take my word for it. Confidence in me won't save you. Only confidence and obedience to God will. Come study and worship with us this week and check it out for yourself.

Johnson Road Baptist Church

We are always glad when the weather cooperates with the last weekend outing before the end of summer. Many times campers have been disappointed with stormy weather when they gathered together with family on the lake to celebrate Labor Day.

Hours were spent parking the camper, assembling the tent and eagerly awaiting a full three days of swimming, fishing, relaxing and campfires.

During the night the rain came, the wind blew and the campsite was destroyed. Before the week-end of fun began many of the campers loaded their belongings and headed home.

Such was the not the case this past weekend. Thank God for all the good sunshine and family fun.

If you haven't seen the new look at Conger Field, you might want to take a trip to Red Hill and catch a glimpse at the beautifully lined football field and the revamped stadium.

We are always blessed on Sunday and Wednesday at Johnson Road for the opportunity to share our weekly blessings and study of God's Word. The residents at Westbrook are always blessed by the local churches that make their monthly Sunday afternoon visits. Some of God's finest Christians make their home at the Westbrook Gardens Assisted Living Center.

Special music for worship was provided by Mark Brown and Gynean Gentry.

The scripture for the morning sermon was taken from two passages from the Gospel of Matthew.

In the Red Letter edition of the New Testament Matthew's account of the Gospel records the first words of Jesus in chapter 3 and the last words of Jesus in chapter 28.

From the first to the last recorded words of Jesus in Matthew's account, the Master Teacher began His teachings with two words that served as an introduction or punch line for His vital messages to His faithful followers or His detractors. The Red Letter words of Jesus come alive for the Christian.

Some of the Master's sermons began with two words of identity: "Ye Are, Ye Have, Ye Hypocrites, Ye Fools, Ye Serpents, Ye Blind and Ye Know."

Some of the sermons began with two words of comfort: "Blessed Are, Come Unto, Follow Me and All Power."

Some of the Master's sermons identify humanity, some provoke action and some provide comfort. The first two words of Jesus should always call us to attention.

The rich and poor are always welcome to attend Sunday morning services at Johnson Road Baptist Church. We need some more families to fill our empty pews.

Sermon title for this Sunday is "Our Pledge to Work."

The weekly prayer meeting is a one hour session of prayer and Bible study that begins at 6 p.m.

Mark Brown will conclude our study of the Book of Revelation this Wednesday.

Sunday morning worship begins at 11 a.m.

Dale K. Graham Veteran's Foundation

Our Veteran of the Week Alesha Bumgarner served in the United States Marines. She got to ring the bell last week to commemorate her 100 percent rating decision after navigating the VA forms and processes with us throughout the past year. Bumgarner makes her home in Moore.

There is something to be said about what we do for our veterans and their families when they start lining up at six a.m. the day before we open. Over the next few weeks, we will have visitors from other organizations to see how we use the VA Disability Benefits Questionnaires (DBQ) to supply the evidence needed to support a veteran's claim for benefits. These can be used to diagnose and evaluate the severity of most if not all the disabilities that may be service-connected by the Veterans Administration.

Veterans may not be approved for service-connection of disability the first time they file even using the VADBQ, but we have found it is a great way to start a claim for benefits. The VA DBQ is used to diagnose disability.

Many times, when a veteran receives a denial of benefits for claims filed by themselves or others, the VA will send a denial stating there is no diagnosis of a disability. Some veterans will want to use their military service records that may have shown in injury in service. That works great if the veteran was discharged within one year of the date they are filing, not so good if it was 40 years ago.

When a veteran visits us the first time one of the things we do is to order military records either from VA if the veteran has already filed a claim, or if they have not filed a claim before we use a Form 180 and order their military service records from the National Personnel Records Center in Saint Louis, Mo.

We are going to do everything possible for each veteran and surviving spouse who visits us. Please remember that we are a 501(C)(3) non-profit and everyone who helps you with your application for VA benefits is a volunteer who knows that if we don't help each other it is likely as not that no one will step up in our time of need.

Our auto donation program is helping us pay for veteran transportation to medical appointments along with the cost of medical testing that is needed to support their claims for service-connection of a disability. During the last several weeks, there have been several cars and trucks donated that we used for that purpose.

One of them we have is still looking for a new home. It is a 2000 Ford that was first used as an airport shuttle and then by a church. It has a 7.3 Power Stroke engine that runs well. I think those engines were used from the late eighties up through 2003. We are ready to make a deal on that one; we need the parking at our Foundation.

As we draw closer to the end of 2019, it looks like the number of veterans who receive a 100 percent rating for their service-connected disabilities will set another all-time record. Last year there were over 1,000 disabled veterans who were awarded that rating after our volunteers helped them with their claims. We are on track to increase that number to eleven hundred or more this year. This is going to be another great year for the veterans both men and women who visited our Veterans Foundation for help with their VA Claims and questions.

Last week we had 34 veterans rated at 100 percent and as a combined group they will receive $1,315,531 annually. Sixty-four veterans received ratings 10-90 percent and will get a combined annual $930,947. Three surviving spouses were approved for benefits and will receive a combined $47,485. One spouse was granted Aid & Attendance and will receive $8,963 annually and another was granted Pension and will receive $9,072 a year.

Counselors from the Vet Centers are here each session and a Legal Aid representative is here on Thursdays. We have food baskets available for those who qualify. We look forward to your visit and thank you for trusting us to help you with your VA matters.

We are available every Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 1268 North Interstate Drive, Norman, OK 73072. We open the doors by 5:30 a.m., and we begin working as soon as volunteers have their computers ready.

Purcell Senior Citizens

By Fredda Perry

The rain was wonderful. The flowers and lawns look great. Now we will have to mow again. I want to remind the seniors to stay hydrated when the temperatures reach the high 90s.

If you don't have any place cool to go, the senior center is open until 3 p.m. every day except Friday. We've had seniors playing cards, dominoes and pool.

The dance is every Friday night from 6:30-9:30 p.m. The ticket charge is $6 per person.

The senior citizens appreciate the extra donations they receive from the organizations in town. Several new members have joined us this week. We are always glad to have new members join us.

We love having guests for lunch. If you plan to eat with the seniors, it is imperative to call and make a reservation by 8 a.m. that day or the afternoon before.

If you do not have a reservation you will have to wait until all the people who have a reservation are fed. Call Evelyn or John at 527-9462 to make a reservation. If there is no answer call 527-5070. This is an alternate number so please use the 527-9462 number first.

The senior garage sale will be Thursday, September 5, and Friday, September 6 at 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. Check out the garage sale items. We have some good items to be given away.

There have been some items left on the carport at the senior building. If you need to leave something over the weekend, please call 990-1840 so someone can meet you before you just dump it.

If you need a place for a special celebration, birthday party, family reunion or any type of class, check out the senior center. Call the center at 527-5070 and ask for Fredda or Hester.

Menu for the week of September 9-13:

Monday—Steak fingers with gravy, mashed potatoes with gravy, green beans, hot roll, margarine, available fruit.

Tuesday—Nachos with meat, cheese and lettuce, Mexican corn, taco chips, sugar cookies.

Wednesday—Chicken, rice and broccoli casserole, strawberry cake with icing.

Thursday—Ham and brown beans with onions, fried okra, tomato spoon relish, cornbread, margarine, lemon pan pie.

Friday—Swiss steak, baked potato, green peas, hot roll, margarine, gelatin with fruit.

Wayne Senior Citizens

By John Webb

If you are a senior at least 60 years of age, I would like to suggest opportunities for sharing lunch with some of our friends and neighbors at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center. We serve lunch at 11:30 a.m. every Monday through Friday, excluding holidays.

Our attendance has dropped a little in the last couple of months, and we would love to see some new faces joining our current group of personalities for lunch. We need to increase participation in order to continue providing meals for our seniors as well as our recipients of home delivered meals.

If you would like to reserve a meal, please call the kitchen in Purcell at 527-9462 and ask for Evelyn or John. It is best to call before 8:30 a.m. to ensure a meal will be available for you.

Also if you know a person at least 60 years old who would like a meal delivered to them, please call either the Wayne or Purcell center.

Our weekly menus are listed in the Purcell Senior Citizens Center article in this week's paper.

So come and enjoy lunch with your fellow seniors and make some new friends at your senior citizens center. We look forward to seeing you at your Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

Wild horse adoption

An open house event at the Pauls Valley Wild Horse and burro Adoption Facility will be held September 13-14.

Wild horse event in Pauls Valley September 13-14

The Bureau of Land Management will hold an open house event at the Pauls Valley Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Facility in Pauls Valley September 13-14.

The two-day event, featuring 50 wild horses, will begin at 10 a.m. Friday, September 13. Adoptions will be held from noon-6 p.m. Friday, September 13, and from 8 a.m.-noon on Saturday, September 14.

As part of the event, Bill Lopez will be giving gentling demonstrations. Animals are eligible for adoption to a good home.

As part of our efforts to find every horse and burro a good home, the BLM now offers up to $1,000 to adopt an untrained animal. This adoption incentive will be offered for every animal in Pauls Valley. Inquire with BLM staff onsite for more information.

The horses offered for adoption are adult and yearling horses that once roamed free on public lands in the West. The BLM periodically removes excess animals from the range in order to maintain healthy herds, and to protect other rangeland resources.

The adoption program is essential for achieving these important management goals. Since 1973, the BLM has placed more than 235,000 animals into private care.

BLM staff will approve qualifying applications onsite. To qualify to adopt an applicant must be at least 18 with no record of animal abuse. Adopters must have a minimum of 400 square feet of corral space per animal with free access to food, water and shelter.

A six-foot corral fence is

Safety tips offered for those affected by power outages

The Oklahoma State Department of Health (OSDH) is offering safety tips to prevent illness and injury for those affected by power outages.

Scott Sproat, director of the OSDH Emergency Preparedness and Response Service, said it's important to be mindful of food safety when there has been a loss

the Online Voter Tool.

Sample ballots are also available at the County Election Board office.

Oklahoma law requires every voter who votes in person at the precinct polling place or during early voting at the County Election Board to show proof of identity before receiving a ballot.

There are three ways for voters to prove their identity under the law (only one proof of identity is required): Show a valid photo ID issued by federal, state, or tribal government; or show the free voter identification card issued to every voter by the County Election Board; or sign an affidavit and vote a provisional ballot.

If the information on the affidavit matches official voter registration records, the ballot will be counted after Election Day.

Physically disabled voters who cannot enter the polling place, need help marking their ballots, blind or visually disabled voters and illiterate voters may be assisted by a person the voter chooses.

In all cases, a person providing such assistance may not be the voter's employer or an agent of the employer or an officer or agent of the voter's union. A person providing assistance also must swear or affirm that the voter's ballots will be marked in accordance with the voter's wishes.

Alternatively, all blind, visually impaired, and physically disabled voters in McClain County may use the audiotactile interface (ATI), a feature offered on all Oklahoma voting devices, to vote privately and independently, either at McClain County Election Board during early voting or at their assigned polling place on election day.

Voters who have moved since the last election, but who have not transferred their voter registration to their new address, may do so on Election Day by going to vote at the polling place where their registration has been in the past.

While voting, they may fill out a form instructing the County Election Board to transfer their registration to the new address before the next election.

Those who became physically incapacitated after 5 p.m. Tuesday September 3, can still can request an emergency absentee ballot.

Those who might qualify for an emergency absentee ballot should contact the County Election Board office at 527-3121 as soon as possible for more information.

Any violation of election law will be reported to the proper law enforcement authorities. Electioneering is not allowed within 300 feet of a ballot box.

It is also unlawful to remove a ballot from the polling location, possess intoxicating liquors within half a mile of a polling place or to disclose how you voted while within the election enclosure.

Safety:

in contact with storm or flood water. When in doubt, throw it out."

Frozen foods in a freezer can usually be kept up to 48 hours without power. A frozen product that has thawed should not be refrozen—it should be used immediately or thrown away.

Anyone who has questions about medication being spoiled from water or lack of refrigeration should contact their health care provider.

Another primary concern during a power outage is carbon monoxide poisoning from alternate sources of power such as generators, grills and camp stoves. OSDH Emergency Manager Darrell Eberly said these devices should be used outdoors and never inside a home, garage or basement.

"Carbon monoxide is an odorless gas found in combustion fumes produced by small engines, stoves and gas ranges," said Eberly. "Improper use of generators can cause accidental carbon monoxide poisoning, which can lead to loss of consciousness and even death."

Health officials also encourage a tetanus booster for those involved with cleanup of debris, tree limbs or other objects which may cause a puncture wound.

For more information, contact a local county health department or visit www.ready.gov or www.cdc.gov/disasters. Preparedness information also is available in English, Spanish and American Sign Language by visiting the OSDH YouTube channel and selecting the Preparedness playlist.
