Dealing with ID theft

I'm pretty sure I'm just like the majority of the estimated 140 million Americans when it comes to being frustrated over the Equifax security breach.

As scary as it is that identity theft is a very real possibility the more frustrating part for me, anyway, is the amount of time I've spent on the telephone and using my computer to try to get things straightened out.

With the high volume of calls all three credit watchdogs TransUnion, Equifax and Experian have been a booger to get in touch with.

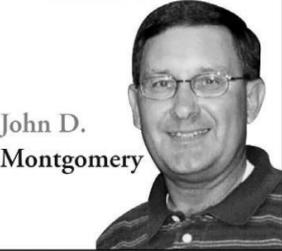

It took nearly three hours to contact my three credit card companies last Friday.

And it took literally days to get through to Equifax, obtain information and set up new passwords.

And with all that said and done, there is no guarantee my information is safe.

Bad deal all the way around. According to Javelin Strategy and Research, 15.4 million consumers were victims of identity fraud last year up from 13.1 million the previous year.

Editor's Notebook

Six steps to protecting and dealing with ID theft

1. Understand the dangers. It doesn't have to be high tech. Low tech methods include rummaging through your garbage to find bank or investment accounts.

2. Phishing: don't take the bait.

It's not anything brand new but just don't click on a link unless you are absolutely sure who it came from.

3. Keep up with your credit scores.

If you discover accounts

you've never heard of, you may be able to prevent some of the consequences of identity theft, including to the damage to your credit rating.

4. Don't share too much on social media.

Nuf sed.

5. Act quickly. If your information has been compromised, consider getting new credit cards, freezing your credit, which restricts access without expressed consent and signing up for credit monitoring service.

Report the problem to credit rating agencies and ask your credit reports be corrected and a fraud alert be placed on your records.

6. File early. The FTC advises consumers to file taxes as soon as you have the tax information you need.

File early so a scammer can't use your social security number to steal your income tax refund.

Your CPA can help. If you don't have one, you can get a free referral and free 30-minute consultation at www.FindYourCPA.com.

NEWS FROM CAPITOL HILL

A return to regular order

Congressman Tom Cole

Each year, millions of Americans rely on numerous federal agencies and the government for assistance on a wide range of priorities. Farmers need support for food safety programs. Veterans rely on VA hospitals for medical attention. Researchers need funds to continue programs that range from finding cures for cancer to preventing the next disease epidemic.

Through the Constitution, Congress has held the role to authorize and appropriate funds for the variety of programs that the government runs. Although the power of the purse is in the hands of Congress, it has been a battle to pass spending bills through regular order for the past few years.

Our government has been functioning on continuing resolutions for the past few years, meaning that we are appropriating funds each fiscal year on the levels from the previous fiscal year to avoid a government shutdown.

That is detrimental to our government programs, our military and to the American taxpayer. By passing each fiscal year's appropriations bills, we are up to speed on broad demands that our citizens need. After years of kicking the can down the road, it is time that we get back to regular order.

This past week, the House accomplished something that hasn't been done since 2006. All 12 appropriations bills were passed through both their respective subcommittees, full committee and on the House Floor before the Fiscal Year 2018 deadline of September 30.

These 12 bills encompass a range of federal agencies: Agriculture and Rural Development; Commerce, Justice and Science; Defense; Energy and Water Development; Financial Services; Homeland Security; Interior; Labor, Health and Human Services and Education; Legislative Branch; Military Construction and Veterans Affairs; State and Foreign Operations; and Transportation, Housing and Urban Development. Overall, these funding measures help keep our nation safe and prosperous, and responsibly distribute taxpayer dollars.

Earlier this year, the House passed the first four appropriations bills to support our military construction projects, veterans, energy and water sectors and our active duty service members.

Included in this package of bills was full funding at the President's request for veterans at $73.8 billion, the prohibited closure of Guantanamo Bay, a 2.4 percent pay increase for military service members and the withdrawal of the Waters of the United States Rule.

This first round of consolidated spending measures under the Trump Administration made it clear that our national security was a commonplace priority for Congress, the President and the American people.

In the recent funding package passed in the House, I was proud to bring forth the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education portion as the Chairman of the subcommittee. In this area are funding measures that Americans value — funding for cancer research, special education, job training programs, among other priorities. And for the third consecutive fiscal year, we were able to increase funding at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) by $1.1 billion.

This money will be allocated to support cancer research, Alzheimer's disease research, public health preparedness and pandemic disease prevention. Each time that we have the opportunity to increase funding at the NIH and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), we are that much closer to finding cures and preventing the spread of diseases. Even though NIH funding was increased, the House actually cut total spending in the bill by over $5 billion.

The House would not have been able to achieve the passage of all 12 appropriations bills without the leadership of Speaker Ryan and Appropriations Committee Chairman Frelinghuysen.

Their understanding of the need for regular order helped propel the passage of this legislation. We should echo that standard of getting appropriations done before deadline in the fiscal years to come. That is a fundamental step in the return to regular order.

Construction frustration

Dear Editor:

I cannot understand why the City of Purcell has not put up signs regarding the blocking of intersections in the construction area or why the police are not writing tickets when they are being intentionally blocked.

You see a lot of cars knowing they can't get through, but will block anyway.

The construction work has been haphazard at best.

Separation of church and state

Dear Editor:

Your letter writer concerning church and state clearly does not know the meaning of the Constitution. It guarantees the state shall not try to impose its religion on its peoples.

A cross on public property is an attempt to convince one to believe in Christianity. As an atheist I have the right to not have a religion imposed on me.

Construction on Green

Dear Editor:

I have the great pleasure of driving up and back on north Green Avenue in our great city daily.

Occasionally, I will end up going 20 mph while some of our fine citizens see if they need their help on the construction process.

Can you please tell the construction crew to post a sign to tell these concerned citizens that they don't need their help. Some of them sure seem to be worried.

Hopefully this construction will come to eventual completion without injury to person or property. From what I can tell it will be very much of an improvement to our city.

Isn't it nice to be able to get on to Interstate 35 at State Highway 74 and avoid all the construction on north Green Avenue in Purcell? Oh, wait, there aren't any ramps onto I-35 from Highway 74.

To partially quote an old 60s song until "it gets better everybody kindly disregard this letter!"

Trump Care

Dear Editor:

Trump care is back for a vote, and it is just as awful. Senators Lindsey Graham and Bill Cassidy authored the bill that would take away health care for tens of millions, destabilize individual markets, no pre-existing coverage, and puts caps on coverage of long term illness, like cancer.

They claim it is different, but when you read it, it's obviously the same. The ACA bases its premiums on income and Trump care is based on age, that is why the AARP is against it.

Jacob Rosecrants became the third special election Democrat to flip a seat (46) formerly held by a Republican. Voters are tired of elected officials not listening. Remind Oklahoma senators, an "R" by your name is not the guarantee like it used to be. People are beginning to notice the "short fall" Mary Fallin caused when she reduced the tax on a barrel of oil from seven percent to one percent. Even at seven percent we were the lowest in the 50 states. She brought it up to two percent recently to help Republicans in elections.

When Congressman Tom Cole was on Flashpoint a few weeks ago, he had the gall to say the Republican's had doubled the tax on a barrel of oil. We will see more Democrats taking red seats.

This Sunday on Flashpoint the moderator asked Mickey Dollens, Democrat, what he would tell Gov. Fallin to do in this special session. He said return the tax on a barrel of oil back to seven percent. Republican Kori Humphreys, agreed, it was too low, and "going to make several of my Republican

Unhappy eater

Dear Editor:

I am very disheartened with the closing of Del Rancho. It was the best restaurant ever and I for one would like them to re-open.

I am 90-years-old and have had some health problems. Fortunately, I have friends that come down and help me get my mail and other chores.

It has crushed me that they were not able to stay open. Maybe someday we could get lucky enough to get them back.

MOVIES WITH DAVE

By David Stull

Another week, another pair of new movies.

Let's get straight to the reviews.

***

First up is "mother!" In this latest film from director Darren Aronofsky, known best for "Requiem for a Dream," "Black Swan," and "Pi", a couple (Jennifer Lawrence and Javier Bardem) living in a secluded home soon find themselves the host to an unexpected guest (Ed Harris), and against his wife's wishes, invites the man to stay.

The couple's relationship gets tested further when more and more uninvited guests start showing up, disturbing their tranquil way of life.

This is one of the most frustrating movies I've ever had the displeasure of watching.

Don't buy the nonsense about this film being some kind of horror movie or disturbing thriller.

This is an art house film, which in my experience means a movie that prides itself on not making a lick of sense.

There's no real characters or any working story you can take at surface value here. It's all blasted metaphors.

I foolishly spent the first half of this movie trying to understand the characters and their actions. Attempting to figure out what would motivate people to behave like this.

None of the characters are likeable, all of them behave oddly or irrationally, and none of them act like actual human beings.

Then in the second half it becomes painfully clear why all the people here are completely insane.

This isn't your typical film with a sensible narrative or proper story arcs. The whole thing's a confounded religious allegory.

I welcome movies with characters that have deeper meaning or stories which become more rewarding if you look beyond the surface. That can be one of the most gratifying aspects of discussing and rewatching films.

Here though, there's no surface in the first place. This movie just throws you in the deep end, drowning you with symbolism and other mumbo jumbo.

Sure, now that I've seen the whole film and read a little discussion online, I understand what Aronofsky was going for. In fact it's painfully obvious looking back on it.

I wanted to pull my hair out while actually watching it though.

I hate movies like this. Call me a plebeian or philistine, but films that purposefully go out of their way to be confusing and incomprehensible drive me mad.

I feel especially sorry for anyone tricked into seeing this by the movie's marketing.

Advertising your film as some kind of blasted physiological horror flick when it's really a symbolism laden art house film is not only misleading, it's downright stupid. There's no quicker way to upset a customer then selling them one thing and giving them another.

I don't know. I imagine if you like other art house films, you'll like this one okay too.

For me though, I couldn't have been more annoyed.

"mother!" is rated R.

***

The other movie I saw this week was "American Assassin." After losing his girlfriend in a horrific terrorist attack, Mitch Rapp (Dylan O'Brien) seeks vengeance on the people responsible for her death.

Along the way Mitch is recruited by the CIA, and under the instruction of Former U.S.

Navy SEAL Stan Hurley (Michael Keaton), investigates a series of violent attacks and attempts to discover the pattern behind them.

This film is about as generic as spy movies get.

It plays out like a third rate Bond movie without any of the charm.

The leading man is generic, forgettable, and has the personality of a block of wood.

He's not awful, but for someone in a starring role you really need a guy with a bit more charisma.

Keaton is a bit better, but he's not given much to work with here and sadly plays second fiddle to the movie's more bland cast members.

The other characters are barely worth mentioning for how stale and one-note they are.

You have your hard nosed boss who doesn't take any crap (Sanaa Lathan), the mysterious female spy you don't know if you can trust (Shiva Negar), and the tortured villain with father issues (Taylor Kitsch).

None of them are particularly bad, but they don't do anything to elevate their roles either. They barely leave any impression at all, good or bad.

The action is okay. Nothing to write home about, but it does the job well enough. At least it isn't annoyingly edited like some recent action films.

The story plays out like an extended and higher budgeted episode of NCIS, again lacking the charm, and it took all my effort to just stay awake while watching this.

Again, like everything else, it's not terrible, but it's a story you've seen played out dozens of times. Without any interesting characters to latch onto, or creative action, the whole movie had me struggling to keep my eyes open.

All in all I think this is a perfectly decent flick to catch on cable or maybe a cheap rental to throw on as background noise.

Definitely not worth a trip to the theater though.

"American Assassin" is rated R.

Welcome to Lennox Valley, my hometown!

Kevin Slimp's

The Good Folks of Lennox Valley

There were a couple of businesses Valley residents frequented when they wanted to hear the latest gossip. One, of course, was the Hoffbrau. Breakfast was the busiest part of the day, and the breakfast rush was especially brisk on that Tuesday in late October.

The talk centered around two Sunday morning events. The first was Marvin Walsh's encounter with the Devil just outside Lennox Valley Lutheran Church. The second was the dramatic moment at First Baptist Church when Juliet Stoughton made a public confession: she wanted to attend the annual Men's Breakfast and Turkey Shoot.

"You know," Earl Goodman shouted, loud enough to be heard throughout the diner, "I don't think it's a coincidence that those two things happened on the same morning!"

The buzz throughout the room quieted as everyone anticipated what was to come next.

"What do you mean?" asked Kelly Schmidt, seated halfway across the room. "What does the Devil at the Lutheran church have to do with Juliet wanting to attend the turkey shoot?"

"I'm just saying," Goodman responded, "both acts were clearly the work of the Devil."

Elbert Lee Jones's voice could be heard two booths away.

"That's right," Elbert Lee muttered. "That's the gospel truth."

Just as the discussion was nearing fever pitch, Farley Puckett walked into the diner with a stack of Raymond Cooper's free rag, The Valley Patriot.

There was a rush to the counter to grab copies of the free "newspaper." This was before the popularity of the Internet, and The Valley Patriot was The Valley's sole source of alternative news.

Iris Long didn't miss many breakfast rushes at the 'Brau. She was seated at her usual table as she watched the events of the morning unfold before her.

As she had guessed, the Patriot's lead story was about Marvin's encounter with the Devil, disguised as Perry Como. The "facts" surrounding the confrontation seemed to have come to light with increasing regularity over the previous 48 hours. Every detail was discussed and debated among the 'Brau customers.

While there was almost unanimous agreement among the 'Brau crowd that Marvin did, indeed, have an encounter with Devil, not everyone in

Hair-Raising

Recent events are all the talk at local businesses

The Valley was so quick to accept the event as fact. It just so happened that Raymond Cooper loyalists tended to find their way to the Hoffbrau early most mornings.

Just down the street at Caroline's Beauty Salon, a larger than usual group had congregated for a Tuesday morning. Most women in The Valley had their hair done on Friday afternoon or Saturday morning. At times like these, however, folks tend to go where they can find friends.

The discussion among the hair dryers was quite different from the display of emotion just down the street. Looking over The Valley Patriot, just after Farley Puckett dropped off 20 copies, salon patrons seemed to have a different opinion concerning the events of Sunday.

"That Raymond Cooper must think we're all idiots," offered Rhonda Goodman. "Seriously? The Devil trailing Marvin Walsh?"

"The way Marvin acts," Helen Walker jumped into the conversation, "I would think he and the Devil were already on a first-name basis."

Laughter could be heard throughout the salon. Apparently, Walsh didn't have a strong following among the hair-drying crowd.

Just two doors down, at Frank Bell's barber-shop, Frank and Sarah Hyden-Smith glanced over the just-delivered newspaper.

While they both laughed at the Marvin Walsh story, what interested them the most was the weekly "A.J. Sightings" section on the bottom-right corner of the page. Apparently, in some places Elvis and Bigfoot sightings were quite normal. According to The Valley Patriot, A.J. sightings were beginning to become almost commonplace in The Valley.

Frank read aloud, "On Thursday, Thelma Biggers reported seeing A.J. Fryerson slipping into the office of Mayor Bland, just after sundown. She said she is sure it was Fryerson because he always wears a John Deere T-shirt and, even though it was dark, she could clearly make out the "J" on the shirt."

"Maybe it was Jesus," Frank said as he giggled at the thought of Jesus visiting the mayor's office.

"Now, Frank," rebuked Sarah. "Let's not go there."

It was then Frank turned the page to "Rumor Has It," by Maxine Miller.

"Rumor has it," Maxine began, "our Methodist pastor might be performing her own wedding before too long."

"How could she write that?" Frank muttered.

"Obviously, the Devil is working overtime in Lennox Valley this week," answered Sarah, with an audible sigh.

friends mad."

Mr. Humphreys also said the Republican party is known for conservative values, fiscal responsibilities and ethical behavior. To have four special elections because of sexual harassment and stealing money is just plain wrong.

Gross Production tax, is just a fancy way of saying the tax paid on a barrel of oil. Oklahomans paid seven percent, until Fallin and Republicans at the capital reduced it to one percent, and then raised it to two percent, so Cole could brag about "doubling" the tax on a barrel of oil. Gross Production tax, never saying it was seven percent!

Pool of special education teachers dwindles in state

Jennifer Palmer
Oklahoma Watch

Special education teachers have become so scarce that districts face fierce competition to find and keep good candidates and sometimes leave open positions unfilled.

That's why late one night last month, Ponca City Public Schools Superintendent Shelley Arrott sprang into action when she heard the distinctive ding of her cell phone. The alert meant a job application had been submitted online to the district. She scrambled to arrange an interview the next morning for the applicant.

The district hired Melissa Parks, who is certified in special education, on the spot. And she has since received at least seven other job offers. Now, Arrott said, the focus is on keeping Parks and others like her.

"I can't reduce their class size. I can't pay them more," Arrott said. "But I can appreciate them and make them feel valued, so that's our big push."

Oklahoma schools started the school year with more than 500 teaching vacancies, but special education is the most difficult to fill, according to a recent survey of 300 districts by the Oklahoma State School Boards Association. Some districts report special education teacher vacancies year after year.

The shortage of special education teachers is a nationwide problem. It is likely compounded in Oklahoma by the state's comparatively low teacher salaries, although state law requires that special education teachers receive a salary of 5 percent more than general education teachers. Forty-six states, including Oklahoma, reported shortages in special education for the 2017-2018 school year; math and science are also hard-to-staff areas.

To fill teaching vacancies, Oklahoma schools are increasingly relying on emergency certified teachers, and as of August a record 1,400 had been approved. But by law, special education slots aren't eligible. For some school districts, a solution is larger class sizes. That means more students in regular classrooms, where special education students learn alongside other students, and larger self-contained classrooms, where students with disabilities receive specialized interventions and support.

Districts say hiring paraprofessionals helps special education teachers manage more students. Paraprofessionals provide instructional support, such as tutoring and classroom management; paraprofessional jobs don't require a degree and pay around $8 an hour.

High turnover is driving the special-education teacher shortage. Special education teachers tend to leave the classroom at higher rates than general education teachers, and they burn out quicker, research has shown. Coupled with the normal teaching demands is a grueling amount of paperwork and meetings required by federal law.

But the shortage is a pipeline issue, too. Federal data show students graduating with teaching credentials in areas like early childhood and elementary education far outnumber those credentialed to teach students with disabilities. The University of Oklahoma, for instance, graduated six special education teachers in 2015-2016, compared to 69 in elementary education. Keeping those graduates in Oklahoma is an even bigger issue: More than half of OU's spring teaching graduates accepted jobs out of state this year.

Why It Matters
Special education teachers work with students with disabilities, which include autism, emotional disturbances, traumatic brain injuries, learning disabilities, and hearing and visual impairments.

Sixteen percent of Oklahoma students, or more than 109,000, needed special education services in 2016-2017, an increase of 10,000 students over 2011-

New enrollment forms for 2018 were given to members and are due to Peggy Howard by October 15. Dues are $14.50.

Recycle forms for the month were turned in to Norma Howard. Stealey HCE is still collecting used postage stamps for our wounded veterans. Please bring stamps to the OSU Extension Office of HCE members to be sent to veterans hospitals.

Gather for a photo

Mothers Entwined Club

Mothers Entwined kicked off its first meeting of the season in the home of Lori Cudd on September 13. Karla Chapman read a prayer before having a fabulous potluck dinner. President Brandi Kroth called the meeting to order and Carol DiRienzo gave the treasurer's report.

Secretary Penny Berrey called the roll. Sixteen club members were present including Penny Berrey, Kim Croslin, Brandi Kroth, Carol DiRienzo, Lori Cudd, Brandi Steiner, Karla Chapman, Kim Fox, Becky Galyean, Lori Hendrix, Amy David, Kristi Kilcrease, Kim McGregor, Angie Goldsby, Julie Wofford and Kristi Davey. The club discussed possible fundraisers for the year and set a tentative date for the Country Christmas Home Tour in December. The clubs immediate focus is on stocking the food pantries for Purcell and Washington schools, and donating items to local senior citizen groups. Members will begin bringing perishable items along with personal hygiene items, game prizes and clothing to each meeting. The donations will be alternated between each school and senior citizen groups.

Door prizes were won by Brandi Steiner, Karla Chapman and Angie Goldsby.

The next meeting will be hosted by Lori Hendrix on September 27 at 7 p.m.

Washington OHCE

Washington OHCE met Sept. 13, 2017.

The meeting called to order by president Delores Givens at the Washington Senior Center. After the flag salute, Deanna Carter read the Creed. The treasurer's report and minutes of the last meeting were given and approved as read.

The County Fair results were discussed. The club received 2nd for the Quilt Block Challenge and lots of blue ribbons were won as well. Each year there are different judges and they have their likes and dislikes so it is always a challenge to do our very best on the projects we select to make and enter. We were encouraged to start early and if possible make backup items in case some member has an illness or emergency. The extra items can always be entered in open class as well.

Lots of things were discussed to make our booth better including two white easels for displaying the lovely cross-stitched items, art work, etc.

Upcoming events include: October 16—Third quarter volunteer hour sheets are due. October 19—Fall Council at Pioneer Telephone Co., Blanchard. 5:30 p.m.

October 21—Make and Take, 9 a.m.-2 p.m., Cleveland County Fairgrounds.

The combined fair, rodeo and carnival were a lot all at once and the extension made less money on concessions than in the past.

Judy Stidham provided pink lemonade for refreshment and the meeting was adjourned.

Also, some sort of rack needs to be designed and made to display our clothing items. State Fair clothing exhibits will be looked at for possible ideas.

Next lessons were discussed as well as community, cultural projects for 2018 such as genealogy research, history of quilts (certain ones were hung up for signaling when it was safe to come in), health issues (teach CPR and self defense), finance and investing and retirement issues. First United Bank in Purcell offers financial seminars.

Lois Stephens gave the lesson on Social Media. The average user logs in 1.7 hours a day/12 hours a week. A committee will research possible Facebook sites for the club where we can provide information on current projects, where to locate or how to make breast care items like hats and underarm pillows for after surgery and maybe create a photo album for the club.

Pink Out

For the fight against cancer

For the eighth year in a row, students from Purcell and Lexington High Schools are joining other students from across the state in the fight against cancer.

They are participating in Win-Win Week, a statewide initiative aimed at preventing cancer and raising funds to support Oklahoma cancer patients.

Win-Win Week is a program coordinated by the Oklahoma Cancer Center and the Oklahoma Secondary School Activities Association.

Over the past six years, Purcell and Lexington schools have raised over $30,000 for the cause.

Students of both schools are making their way through the communities, knocking on doors for donations. Sponsoring businesses will be featured on a banner to be displayed during the ballgame.

Funds raised by students during Win-Win Week will stay in Oklahoma to provide important support programs for patients treated at the Oklahoma Cancer Center.

This year's "Pink Out" football game will be held in Purcell on Friday, October 6. A t-shirt has been designed for fans of both teams to wear to the ballgame.

Students are selling the t-shirts to students of all ages and fans from both communities. T-shirt sales are currently underway and will continue through Tuesday, September 26. The shirts will be delivered to area schools and will be available to be picked up on October 5.

In addition to the t-shirts, students will be raising money throughout Win-Win Week by participating in various fundraisers at the individual high schools. The goal is to raise money for the Oklahoma Cancer Center and fill the stands with matching shirts during the ballgame to show a united front and a determination to find a cure for this dreaded disease.

Order forms may be picked up at Purcell High School or Lexington High School.

For more information, please contact Candice McCurdy at Purcell High School at 527-4400 or email mcurdyc@purcellps.org.

National theatrical release of "TE ATA"

The true story of a Chickasaw storyteller is coming to select theatres across the nation this fall and everyone is invited to a red carpet event at the McSwain Theatre, 130 W. Main, Wednesday, September 27, to kick off its nationwide theatrical release.

Chickasaw Nation Production's "TE ATA," which is inspired by the life of Mary Thompson Fisher, will be presented by Paladin.

Screenings will be conducted at the historic McSwain at 4 and 7 p.m. A Hollywood-style red carpet event, which includes cast appearances, food and family-friendly activities, begins at 5 p.m.

The event is open to the public at no charge.

Advance tickets for the movie are on sale now and all ticket sales will benefit hurricane relief efforts.

Following the Ada kickoff event, the feature film will be screened in Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Tishomingo, Oklahoma; Texas, Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, Arizona, New Mexico, Tennessee, New York and California theatres this fall.

Known by her Chickasaw stage name "Te Ata," the film offers a glimpse into the remarkable life of Chickasaw storyteller Mary Thompson Fisher as she traversed cultural barriers and helped change public perceptions of Native Americans during a storied career.

"Te Ata defied stereotypes on various levels as a Native American, as well as a woman, at a time when either presented difficulties and challenges. Yet she celebrated both and did so in a way that brought honor to those she represented," Chickasaw Nation Governor Bill Anoatubby said.

"We are delighted to bring this story to audiences because Te Ata was a great ambassador for Chickasaw people and for all Native Americans. Te Ata once wrote that art binds all people together. Her career bears testimony to the truth of that noble idea. Through this film, she continues to serve as a shining example of the power of artistic expression to change hearts and minds."

Filmed entirely in Oklahoma, "TEATA," focuses on the early career of famed Chickasaw storyteller and actress Te Ata, who is brought to life on the silver screen by Q'orianka Kilcher.

Born in Emet, Indian Territory, in 1895, Te Ata's ambition was to perform on Broadway.

The film shares her uncharted journey to find her true calling and her discovery of the importance of family ties and traditions.

Given the name "Te Ata" by a Chickasaw aunt, which means bearer of the morning, she grew up in a family steeped in tribal customs and heritage.

During her 60-plus year career, Te Ata shared stories and tales she learned from her Chickasaw father, T.B. Thompson, who is played in the movie by Gil Birmingham. As her fame grew, she embraced the stories of other Native American tribes and shared those stories with the world.

Directed by Nathan Frankowski and produced by Paul Sirmons, the movie is set primarily in the early twentieth century. At a time when certain expressions of Native American culture were banned under federal policy, Te Ata placed the beauty and value of Native American culture in the spotlight, helping members of the public view Native American culture as a vital part of American society.

The role of one pivotal figure during this time in history, Chickasaw Nation Governor Douglas H. Johnston, is played by Oscar-nominee Graham Greene. Scenes in the movie depicted some of Johnston's efforts to maintain the existence of Chickasaw people.

Te Ata married Dr. Clyde Fisher, a renowned scientist and educator at the American Museum of Natural History who founded the Hayden Planetarium. Dr. Fisher is played by MacKenzie Astin.

"TE ATA" was named "Best Picture" at the 11th annual Orlando Film Festival, November 2016. The film has also earned numerous honors at film festivals throughout the United States, including: Audience Choice Award Winner, Narrative Feature, at the Heartland Film Festival, October 2016, in Indianapolis; Audience Choice Award-Best Drama Feature, Best Cinematography, Best Screenplay, Best Male Performance, Gil Birmingham; and Best Original Music at the Gallup (New Mexico) Film Festival September 2016.

"TE ATA" was honored with "Best Native American Film" at the San Diego Film Festival by a jury selection, October 2016. The movie was one of the 100 films selected to be screened at the festival, from more than 2,000 submissions.

Q'orianka Kilcher was honored as "Best Feature Film Actress" during Tulsa American Film Festival, October 2016.

The Dove Foundation awarded four "Doves," to "TE ATA," giving the film, its 'Family-Approved' Seal for all ages.

CCC:

families and includes pollinator games, make and take giveaways, tours, movies and free milkweed plants," said Thalia Miller, CCC horticulture director.

"We will give a brief presentation of what the Chickasaw Nation and six Oklahoma tribes are doing to increase monarch habitat by planting thousands of milkweed (plants) on tribal properties."

The Chickasaw Nation is dedicated to increasing the monarch butterfly population in America.

Activities include:

10 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Milkweed giveaway in an outside area east of Aaitafama' on the CCC campus. The plants make it possible for visitors to help monarchs thrive in home flowerbeds.

10 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Make and takes in CCC Chikasha Poya Exhibit Hall Plaza.

10:30 a.m.—Butterfly Garden tour — meet at square flowerbed in Plaza.

11:45 a.m.—Anoli Theater— a brief overview of the Monarch Habitat Project.

Noon—Anoli Theater— film "Flight of the Butterflies."

12:45 p.m.—Anoli Theater, question and answer session.

1:30 p.m.—Butterfly Garden Tour— meet at square flowerbed in Plaza.

2:30 p.m.—Anoli Theater will host a brief overview of the Monarch Habitat Project.

2:45 p.m.—Anoli Theater, film "The Incredible Journey of the Butterflies."

3:45 p.m.—Anoli Theater, question and answer session concerning the film and day's activities.

In 2014, Monarch Watch, org, a University of Kansas educational outreach program, estimated the average area of monarch colony sites in Mexico covered only 1.65 acres, a 20-year low.

The Chickasaw Nation and six other Oklahoma tribes have partnered with Monarch Watch to give the insects a fighting chance of surviving and thriving.

Monarch caterpillars feed only on milkweed plants. Monarchs must lay eggs on milkweed so their offspring will feed.

Caterpillars then spin themselves into cocoons and come out a few weeks later as brilliantly-colored insects.

The Chickasaw Nation is responding by planting milkweed and nectar plants throughout the tribe's 13-county territory in Oklahoma.

Ms. Miller oversaw the planting of milkweed, fruit trees and nectar-producing plants at the cultural center.

"While the milkweed plant is very important, the nectar plants are also," she said. "For that reason, we have filled our gardens with plants that produce large amounts of nectar, such as Coreopsis, Solidago, Monardo and Echinacea."

Explanation of use tax:

(This is in addition to the sales tax reported monthly.) Every state with a sales tax has a companion tax for outside the state. In Oklahoma, that tax is called "use tax."

Those having purchased items for use in Oklahoma from retailers who do not collect Oklahoma sales tax, the buyer owes the state use tax on those items.

The use tax in the state was first enacted in 1937.

Wayne kids partner with OU pupils

An estimated 12,000 Houston students saw their schools devastated by Hurricane Harvey. Two groups of Oklahoma students joined forces to help lessen the loss experienced by the Houston students.

Students of Wayne Public Schools and two OU music service organizations, Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma, collected school supplies and backpacks to send to the Houston school students.

Students spanning ages four to 22 donated whatever items they could.

On the last day of the drive, a Pre-Kindergarten student proudly brought in her new pack of crayons that she wanted to give to one of the Houston students.

The "Pack the Backpack" effort supplied 60 backpacks that were fully stocked with all supplies students need to be successful in their new school setting.

In addition to school supplies, each backpack has letters of encouragement written by Wayne high school students. The Wayne Art Club also painted words of encouragement on small rocks and included a rock in each.

OU's feature twirler, Emily Perkins, hails from the Houston

Sam Noble Museum receives International Award

The Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History is the recipient of the prestigious 2017 University Museums and Collections Award from the International Council of Museums, which was recently presented in Helsinki, Finland.

The museum program that has been recognized for the international award is the Oklahoma Native American Youth Language Fair, a program that for 15 years has reached thousands of young Native Americans across Oklahoma and the Southwest.

"The university is proud of the well-earned international recognition received by our natural history museum," said OU President David L. Boren.

Each spring, hundreds of students, parents, teachers, elders and community members attend the fair at the Sam Noble Museum on the University of Oklahoma campus. Now approaching its 16th year, the event celebrates language diversity and recognizes the efforts of students and teachers to revitalize Native American language and heritage.

The fair provides a unique opportunity for teachers and students to share their experiences in live presentations of song, speech and story.

Students also compete in material submission categories that include poster art, films, books, cartoons and advocacy essays.

Native language speakers, teachers and elders serve as judges for the competitions.

Among the many nominations, the fair stood out to the award committee because of its "innovation, creativity, excellence, transferability and significant impact on the university, the community and society at large."

"This award, coming as it does after winning the national conservation award, the U.S. National Medal and the European Heritage Award, underscores the quality and diversity of the museum's programs and the quality of the staff," said Michael Mares, Ph.D.

"I think the museum is among the best and most visible departments of the University of Oklahoma. The repercussions of the IMLS 2014 National Medal for Museum and Library Services and the 2015 Best in Heritage award of the European Heritage Association, continues to impress museum professionals throughout the world with our remarkable story."

ONAYLF began in April 2003 at the Sam Noble Museum when elder and teacher Geneva Navarro (Comanche), Native American educator Quinton Roman Nose (Cheyenne) and the museum's first Native American Languages curator, Mary Linn, sought to recognize Join Master Gardener Cathy Bowden on Saturday, October 21, for the how's, when's and where's of wintering outdoor plants indoors, whether they are outdoor plants you'd like to save for spring, or houseplants that have lived on the patio for the summer.

Specifics on timing, ridding plants of outdoor pests, adjusting water and fertilizer, temperature and humidity, and compensating for light will be discussed.

Also, Cathy will explore the advantages of turning part of the garage into a "garage greenhouse."

This event is free and open to the public.

The Cleveland County Extension Center is located at the Cleveland County Fair Grounds, 601 E. Robinson, in Norman.

District Champs

Lexington's Lady Bulldogs traveled to Dickson Tuesday for their District Tournament and promptly defeated the Lady Comets by a combined 28-5.

Lexington knocked off the Lady Comets 11-3 in the first game and polished them off 17-2 in the night cap.

Maddy Pack and Emilee Jenks both went yard, one each game.

Jenks was 5-10 in the two games while Konnor McDonald was 5-9. Lauren Beason was 5-8.

To say the Lexington bats were on fire would be an understatement.

The Lady Bulldogs out-hit Dickson 37-16.

"I'm so proud of all our girls," head coach Kayla Stewart said.

Lexington now advances to the Regional Tournament at a site yet to be determined.

Lexington is now 16-10.

Rollover fatality

Massive injuries, fire cited in report

A fiery single vehicle rollover wreck on the H.E. Bailey Spur killed a 27-year-old Norman trucker on September 14.

Freedom Kinnaman suffered massive injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene.

Oklahoma Highway Patrol Trooper Randall Rickey reported Kinnaman was driving a 2016 Freightliner and was westbound on the spur near mile marker 100.

The semi ran off the road to the right and Kinnaman overcorrected, causing the truck to leave the road on the left, strike a guardrail and roll down an embankment before catching fire.

Kinnaman was pinned in the burning truck for 3 to 5 minutes. Rickey reported it is unknown how he was freed or who freed him.

The wreck occurred about 7:54 a.m.

Assisting Rickey at the scene were OHP Capts. John Paul and Kurt McKean, Lts. Daniel Moreno and Rodrick Clark and Troopers Terry Chestnut, John Hoover, Randall Milam, Glenn Zink, Michael Brady, Thomas Setters, Steven Mitchell, Patrick Surber, David Miner and Jason Riddle.

Also on the scene were fire departments from Bridge Creek, Blanchard and Tuttle.

Evolution of Life spotlighted in Sam Noble Museum's newest exhibit, "Explore Evolution"

Explore the evolution of life and learn all about Earth's organisms, from rapidly evolving viruses to whales that walked, in "Explore Evolution," a new exhibit on display at the Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History September 23 through December 31.

"Explore Evolution" focuses on seven types of organisms on our planet today, the researchers studying them and making leading discoveries about the evolution of life, and why these organisms have had such a profound impact on our understanding of evolution," said Cameron Siler, Ph.D., curator of herpetology at the Sam Noble Museum.

The seven interpretive areas listed below spotlight cutting-edge scientific research and illustrate how the evolutionary principles of variation, inheritance, selection and time are at work in different organisms.

- "HIV: Tracking an Evolving Target" explores how scientists study the mutation and evolution of the HIV virus in order to develop treatments that can block it.

- "Diatoms: A Species Is Born" looks at the most rapid evolution of any species in the fossil record: a one-celled diatom from Yellowstone Lake that evolved over a relatively brief 4,000-year period.

- "Ants and Fungus, Co-evolving Partners" follows research into the coevolution of leaf-cutter ants and the fungus they farm.

- "Fly, Evolution of Mating Songs and Dances" shows how a researcher in Hawaii has found more than 800 species of fruit fly that evolved from a single species over millions of years.

- "Finch, Evolution in Action" takes a look at modern research into Charles Darwin's Galapagos finches to examine how changes in the size and shape of their bills can occur quickly in response to dramatic changes in the environment.

- "Human Family Ties" illustrates recent genetic research that shows how the DNA of chimpanzees and humans differs by only 2 percent of their genetic makeup.

in Oklahoma, the fair contributes to the public's understanding of the value of maintaining ancestral languages. Steady growth in attendance over 15 years has established it as a major celebration of indigenous languages.

The Sam Noble Museum was one of three finalists an-

• "Whales, Walking Into the Past" shows fossil discoveries in Pakistan that illustrate the evolution of modern whales from ancient four-footed land mammals.

The exhibit was developed by a consortium of six partner museums: the University of Nebraska State Museum at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (lead institution), the Exhibit Museum of Natural History at the University of Michigan; the Kansas Biodiversity Institute at the University of Kansas; the Sam Noble Museum at the University of Oklahoma; the Texas Memorial Museum at the University of Texas at Austin; and the Science Museum of Minnesota.

"Explore Evolution" was made possible by a $2.8 million, three-year grant from the National Science Foundation's Informal Science Education program. The project was begun partly in response to recent studies that show widespread misconceptions about evolution among Americans.

"We know that many people think of evolutionary theory as a series of static ideas," said Judy Diamond, professor and curator at the University of Nebraska State Museum and principal investigator of the NSF grant.

"The concept of the project is to show the public that research on evolution, like research in all areas of science, continuously changes our ideas of how we think about the natural world," she concluded.

The exhibit presents basic evolutionary principles from a scientific point of view, using current ongoing research, intended to provide the public with information and clarification on a subject that is complex and often incompletely understood.

In search of new ways to tame the opioid crisis

Jeff Raymond
Mollie Bryant
Oklahoma Watch

Oklahoma is among the nation's leaders in combating the opioid epidemic in some ways, but lags in others.

The question of what more Oklahoma can do to reduce the hundreds of fatal overdoses from prescription painkillers each year will hover over the 2018 legislative session. A commission chaired by Attorney General Mike Hunter plans to recommend by Dec. 1 new strategies for attacking the problem. Some or all of its proposals will be folded into legislation.

The latest overdose statistics show that Oklahoma has made progress in recent years in reversing opioid deaths. But health and law enforcement experts say the crisis is far from over. And even as opioid fatalities have declined, overdoses from methamphetamine and heroin are increasing.

What ideas do you have for addressing the opioid epidemic? Post them in comments below and/or email editor@oklahomawatch.org.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Control reports that in 2016, a record 899 Oklahomans died from drug overdoses – a 68 percent increase since 2007.

Yet the state has seen successes as well. The number of deaths in which opioids were involved fell by eight percent from 2012 to 2016, to 585, the bureau's data shows. Oklahoma's prescriptions for controlled, dangerous drugs dropped to 9.3 million in 2016 after peaking at 10 million three years prior.

Because the opioid epidemic permeates so many aspects of public and private life, it's unclear who bears the brunt of responsibility, even if the entire state feels its impact.

"The great plagues of our society have one thing in common, ... that no one owns them," Sen. AJ Griffin, R-Guthrie, told the state opioid commission in an August 29 hearing, the first of five hearings planned.

But what other changes would make a difference? And are they politically and financially achievable?

Alex Gerszewski, a spokesman for Hunter, said commission members don't know yet what their final recommendations will be but they are "looking at what we could do better, where we're lacking."

Oklahoma Watch examined specific ideas that arose out of the August hearing as well as what some other states are doing to confront the issue. Mental health officials emphasize that while new approaches are important, the underlying issue remains a lack of prevention and treatment programs.

Prescription Monitoring

The state was first to establish a prescription monitoring database (although access was limited to law enforcement for decades) and was the first to have real-time reporting of prescriptions as they are filled.

Oklahoma has tightened opioid prescribing by requiring prescriptions for those drugs and other controlled dangerous substances to be written or filed electronically – rather than called in to pharmacies – and eliminating refills.

But unlike some other states, it has no limits on initial opioid prescriptions, only a recommendation that the amount be as little as necessary.

Whether the Legislature would toughen requirements is unclear. Doctors fought off proposals for years to require them to check the online Prescription Monitoring Program for every opioid prescription.

Then, in 2015, they agreed to a compromise: Physicians must check the database for all new patients who are seeking prescriptions for certain highly addictive drugs and at least once every 180 days after that. Doctor shopping has dropped by about a third, state research shows.

Not all states require providers to check the databases when writing narcotic prescriptions. Timetables for re-checking patients differ as well. California requires providers to check every four months.

Don Vogt, who manages Oklahoma's PMP, said prescription monitoring has had unintended consequences. Fifteen percent of the state's physicians have stopped prescribing controlled dangerous drugs, particularly opiates, which he suggested causes patients in rural Oklahoma to seek pain management treatment elsewhere, including neighboring states. With decreased access to the prescriptions, addicts quit cold turkey, leading to withdrawal, or they transition from opioids to heroin.

One continuing gap in the system is the ability to communicate with other states. All states but Missouri have prescription monitoring systems, but Mark Woodward, spokesman for the Bureau of Narcotics, said Oklahoma's can only communicate with those in 11 other states.

Electronic Prescribing

Some states have made strides in the opioid epidemic by requiring electronic prescribing. New York, for instance, has required electronic prescriptions for all drugs since last year.

Although doctors may prescribe opioids electronically, most Oklahoma physicians tend to prescribe them on paper, said Terri White, mental health commissioner.

That allows patients or medical staff to alter prescriptions or write fraudulent ones using a prescription pad.

"Many physicians don't know they can electronically prescribe opioids, but even if they did, many don't have an electronic prescribing system with that section in it," White said.

Cindy Fain, chief compliance officer for the Oklahoma State Board of Pharmacy, said the public can buy the type of paper used for prescription pads, and high-quality printing technology makes for very convincing fakes.

"They are so good that it's nearly impossible to tell whether it's a forgery or not without calling the doctor," she said.

Prescription Limits

In March 2016, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention issued more restrictive opioid-prescribing guidelines for primary-care providers.

In line with those, Oklahoma limits prescriptions to no more than the amount patients need for short-term relief of acute pain, although that amount isn't specified. Many other states have three- to 30-day limits.

At least 15 states have opioid prescription limits, although some apply only to Medicaid recipients, state insurance plan participants or minors, or deal only with initial prescriptions, according to a July report from the National Governors Association.

Dr. Kevin Taubman, president of the Oklahoma State Medical Association and a Tulsa surgeon who prescribes opioids, emphasized that they are a necessary part of some patients' care.

"You don't want people to come in and put onerous limitations on your practice. ... It's the routine use we need to think about," he said.

Overdose Reverser

In recent years, state agencies and pharmacies have expanded the availability of naloxone, a drug that can prevent opioid overdoses. Pharmacies provide naloxone without a prescription. However, Oklahoma lacks a "Good Samaritan" law that shields individuals from prosecution or civil litigation for administering the drug.

Good Samaritan bills have been introduced four times in the Legislature but failed to make it out of committee. Forty states and Washington, D.C., have a version of this legislation.

Medicaid covers naloxone in Oklahoma, and a state program provides the drug for free to those 19 or younger or those who know a youth at risk of overdose.

A state Department of Health project trains first responders to use naloxone, and, using federal money, the Oklahoma Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services provides the opioid reverser to every law enforcement officer in the Tulsa area and in Oklahoma City. The mental health department has trained 70 law enforcement agencies across the state, mostly in rural areas, according to department data.

"This is a place where we have excelled and one of the biggest factors in driving down overdose deaths," said Terri White, mental health commissioner.

Jeff Locke, director of homeland security and public safety for the National Governors Association, said law enforcement officials are enthusiastic about naloxone but worry about having enough of the drug.

Anti-Addiction Strips

Limits also exist for a drug used to reduce dependence on opioids: Suboxone, the brand name for a medication, applied via film, or strips, that combines buprenorphine and naloxone.

Physicians need a waiver from the Drug Enforcement Administration to prescribe buprenorphine – the primary active ingredient – and in the first year they can treat no more than 30 patients. The DEA recently raised that limit, to 250 patients in the second year, but availability remains limited.

"It's particularly difficult in Oklahoma, where we have so few providers," especially in rural areas, White said.

Oklahoma ranks near the bottom of states in the percentage of people with an opioid addiction for whom buprenorphine is available, according to a 2016 review by The Pew Charitable Trusts. In 28 states, the drug is available to fewer than half the people who might benefit from it.

Educating Doctors

The state Medical Association and Oklahoma Medical Board have discussed adding continuing education courses on addiction medicine and pain treatment, said Lyle Kersey, executive director of the board.

Although addiction medicine is not part of M.D.s' required 60 hours of continuing medical education every three years, seminars in these areas have been regularly available, he said.

Osteopathic doctors must take 16 hours of continuing medical education a year, of which one hour every other year must be devoted to opioids and other controlled dangerous substances.

Alabama requires two hours of controlled substance prescribing education every two years. Iowa requires continuing education in opioid prescribing for pain-management doctors and those who specialize in end-of-life care.

New York requires prescribers of controlled substances to complete three hours of course work every three years in pain management, palliative care and addiction.

Physicians spend "innumerable hours" learning how opioids and other medications work and how to prescribe them appropriately, said Taubman, of the medical association. Yet "even with all those years of education ... we still have a lot of learning to do."

In general, Taubman said, physicians are open to ways to reduce opioid prescribing, provided they don't interfere with the doctor-patient relationship. "At the end of the day, I'm not sure where those borders are until we see the suggestions come forward," he said.

Purcell Senior Citizens

By Fredda Perry

We have had some beautiful mornings and evenings. Cool enough to sit out on the patio and drink coffee. We even got a nice rain early Monday morning. Fall is definitely on the way. According to the calendar, it will begin this Friday and the hot days will start going away.

The seniors numbers have been back up in the 40s. We are glad for this. Many of our regulars have finished with their summer activities and are back at the center. This is what we need in order to keep the center open. The center is so valuable to our town and the seniors who live in and around Purcell.

Anyone who is 60 or older is invited to come visit the center where there is always something cooking and plenty of activities. Be aware if you plan to eat lunch at the center, you will need to call the kitchen at 527-9462 the day before or by 8 a.m. the day you want to join the seniors for lunch.

Alert! The senior's garage sales will be on Thursday for the next few weeks. The next sale will be Thursday, September 21, starting at 8 a.m. and lasting until 3 p.m. There have been lots of donations in the last couple of weeks. Come by and check it all out. Remember it is much easier on the ladies who work the garage sale if you will call and make arrangements to drop your donations off. Please do not leave donations on the patio over the weekend without calling 990-1840.

Several of the seniors are still walking on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays inside so come on down and join us. We are planning a new exercise class. The plan is to begin a "Sit and Be Fit" exercise class on Wednesdays and Fridays. The plan is to start the class on October 4 at 10 a.m.

Thursday is bingo day every week. Bingo starts promptly at 10 a.m. Everyone needs to be in their chair at 10 a.m. so the games can begin on time. Everyone is a winner before we are finished. We have been having a full house each week. Thursday morning is an exciting time at the center as we usually have new people.

It is important to make reservations if you are planning to come eat at the center for lunch. If you are calling to make a reservation to eat lunch, use the kitchen number of 527-9462. Otherwise, if you have questions about any activity at the center, use 527-5070.

If you know someone who needs help with their noon meal at their home, call the Delta Nutrition Center at 527-9462 and ask for Rebecca.

Need a place to have a special event? The center is available for $70 a day. If you're interested call 527-5070. Call early so you can get the date you want. Check us out if you need a large room for a party or reunion.

The center will be closed Friday, September 29. The cooks have an in-service meeting in Duncan.

Menu for the week of September 25-28:

Monday — Hamburger steak, potato of choice, spinach, rolls, gravy, applesauce.

Special:

2012, according to the state Education Department.

Federal law requires each student with disabilities to be on an individualized education program, which has improved services for students but is contributing to teacher burnout, says Eleanor Goetzinger, a behavior specialist and special education teacher at Oklahoma City Public Schools.

Parents are an integral part of the program and meet with teachers regularly for updates on their child’s progress.

Goetzinger said she always feels like a juggler with three balls in the air: teaching, a vast amount of paperwork, and a lot of meetings. “You’re trying to figure out whether to do the paperwork or teach the kids,” she said.

She has also seen an increase in the number of students with mental illness who are at times dangerous to themselves or others – an issue she wrote about in 2016. Goetzinger herself was assaulted by a third-grader in 2013.

And while taking the boy to the principal’s office, she was pushed into a wall by the boy’s father. She suffered a concussion, but returned to the classroom. Even traditionally trained, special education teachers are often unprepared for these students.

Most of the time, special education students are educated within a regular classroom, with the special education teacher providing support.

Having a well-trained special education teacher on staff is an invaluable asset to the school, said Roxie Terry, superintendent of Waurika Public Schools. The district of 400 students has struggled to fill teaching vacancies, in part because the community is just a few miles north of Texas, whose teacher salaries are significantly higher.

“A special ed teacher is a fantastic tool for the teachers. It’s not just the students that improve. Your entire faculty and student body gets better,” Terry said. A special education teacher can recommend specific teaching methods to colleagues that help certain students and improve overall teaching.

Waurika’s high school was without a special education teacher for several years until the current teacher was hired in 2014. Terry said students now receive more supplemental instruction and individualized attention.

Some small, rural districts don’t employ a special education teacher, data show. If they have students with disabilities, those districts can either share services with another district or provide them through a special education co-op.

Fewer people and resources raise the risk that students won’t receive the best quality education, said Katherine Bishop, vice president of the Oklahoma Education Association, who taught special education for 22 years.

“Anytime you cut back ... that’s less support you’re able to give,” she said.

What’s Being Done

Jenks Public Schools, just south of Tulsa, typically maintains a strong applicant pool but has for years struggled with vacancies in special education. This year, all positions were filled due to the district’s beefed-up recruitment efforts and encouragement of other teachers to pursue certification in special education, said district spokesman Rob Loeber.

The state Department of Education offers a “boot camp” to fast-track educators willing to pursue a master’s degree or certification in special education. This alternative route was approved by the state Legislature in 2013.

Participants receive 120

hours of training in special education online over six Saturdays and perform 30 hours of field experience, after which they can apply for a provisional certificate. They can start working with a provisional certificate, and it can be renewed twice as long as they complete six hours of college coursework per year. By the end of the third year, the candidate must meet the criteria for a standard certificate.

In 2016-2017, the Education Department began providing grant money to reimburse districts the cost of special education training and certification, one of several initiatives recommended by a teacher shortage task force.

At the University of Oklahoma, initiatives include a debt-free teachers program, which forgives student loans for teachers who go into high-need areas.

Arrott, the Ponca City superintendent, said the lack of external applicants spurred her to recruit from within – by approaching classroom teachers and encouraging them to obtain certification in special education. So far, three have been certified.

The district also hired a retired teacher with special education certification to return to the classroom part-time.

More traditional recruiting efforts, such as attending out-of-state job fairs, have proven to be a waste of time, she said.

“Out-of-state candidates aren’t interested because of the pay,” she said.

Moore Public Schools started this school year with at least eight unfilled special education positions.

“Certified special education teacher who has been trained to work with these children, that’s key. That’s what we want,” he said. “But if they’re not out there, we have to look at different ways to staff those classrooms.”

That will give northbound motorists headed to the intermediate and elementary schools, as well as track, ball fields and Purcell Public Library a designated left turn lane.

Bunn said the GreenScape project is on track.

"They're doing really well," he said of the contractor. "They've got until at least December."

The city manager added the new sidewalk on the west side of Green Avenue is generating a lot of compliments.

"It's different," he said of the design that includes sections stamped and stained to look like brick.

Lexington ended the regular season on the uptick knocking off Little Axe September 12, 8-2.

It was the final regular season game for the Lady Bulldogs, who were 14-10 heading into Tuesday night's District Tournament at Dickson.

Bri Webster and Hannah Robbins led the offensive explosion both going 2-3 at the plate and both scored a run.

Both of Robbins hits were RBI doubles. She finished the night with three RBIs. Lacey Barber had two RBIs while Lindsay Barber, Maddy Pack (with a triple) and Konnor McDonald had RBIs in the victory.

The old adage is you don't want to corner a wild animal or suffer the consequences.

Even though Marlow is not a wild animal, the prospects for the Outlaws were bleak at best last Friday night at home against Washington.

Down 14 points to the Warriors with six minutes to go, already 0-3 on the year and facing John Marshall next Friday night, there was some desperation.

The Outlaws were facing a sentence of 0-5 square in the face and the proud program decided to rear its head.

Purcell rushed for a season high 437 yards and had six different players score a touchdown in a 46-6 shellacking of CCS last Friday night in Norman.

Senior Isaiah Couch rushed the rock 14 times for 221 yards and two touchdowns.

Couch loped in on a 36 yard burst and scored from a yard out.

Sophomore Addison Love had a coming out party, rushing for 119 yards on just three carries.

Love's knockout punch was a brilliant 67 yard cross-country jaunt for his first touchdown as a Dragon.

Also scoring touchdowns were Garrett Galyean from 12 yards out, Gunner Fink from five yards out, Caylin Nimmo from four yards out and freshman Josh Scrivner from two Coach Sarah Jones and her Purcell Dragon softballers are excited about hosting the District Tournament here on Thursday.

Little Axe will be here for a 4 p.m. start with the second game immediately following. The if necessary game will be played Saturday due to homecoming festivities here Friday. Purcell will take a 15-10 record into the tournament with the winner moving on while the loser starts basketball.

After their 3-1 victory over Stonewall in the Hall of Fame Frenzy last weekend, Purcell had fashioned a 15-10 record heading into Tuesday night's senior night contest.

Monday at Sulphur the Dragons knocked off the Lady Bulldogs 10-7 after jumping on Sulphur for five first inning runs.

Sulphur came back with four in the bottom of the first but the Dragons added two in the second, two in the third and one in the top of the seventh.

Katelynn Carwile led the offense with a 3-5 performance. Camryn Dickerson and Khia Tyler were 2-4 with Haylee Swayze, Chelsea Spain, Karson Jennings and Cady Wol-

Bulldogs 4-0 as they host Comanche to start District play

Todd Newville
The Purcell Register

The Lexington Bulldogs beat the Dickson Comets, 35-20, last Friday on the road to bring their record to a sparkling and perfect 4-0.

The 'Dawgs have a chance to equal their best start in eight years when they host Comanche at 7 p.m. on Friday in the first district game of the year.

"A 4-0 start is a great way to start the season," said Lexington head coach Dale Berglan.

"Now, it is for real with the start of District play. Everything counts now. Our district is extremely tough and there is not much room for error. We must continue to improve in all facets of the game ...."

Dale Berglan
Head Coach

Lexington quarterback sensation Toby Prevost got things started on the scoreboard for the Bulldogs last Friday with a 70-yard touchdown run. Lexington was ahead after one quarter against Dickson, 7-0.

The Comets, though, answered with two second-quarter touchdowns to go ahead, 13-7. The ever-steady Lexington running back Zach Smith answered with a 9-yard touchdown run to put the Bulldogs ahead, 14-13, at halftime.

"We started off slow and found ourselves behind 13-7 with 2:46 left in the second quarter," Berglan said.

"After the kickoff we went into our two-minute offense and we were able to drive down the field and take the lead 14-13 at the half."

After halftime festivities, Lexington went to work quickly. Hunter Findley (who snared five passes for 54 yards against Dickson) caught a 43-yard pass from Prevost for a touchdown.

Wideout Andre Ibarra (who had five receptions in the game for 47 yards)

Warriors aiming for ASA

Playoffs kicked off Wednesday

JohnDennyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

The Washington Warriors defeated Latta Monday night with a 4-2 final.

“We really didn’t play very well,” said Washington head coach Jace Brewer.

“We were kind of just going through the motions.”

Last Friday Washington

defeated Jones and Hobart in the OK Shootout at ASA Hall of Fame Stadium in Oklahoma City.

Both wins were of the 13-1 variety.

“We swung it really well up there,” Brewer said.

“Most of the lineup is hitting well and we’re hitting about .350 as a team.”

The coach said his one and two hitters are doing a good job of getting on base and his three through seven hitters are driving in runs.

“Where we struggled last year with meaningful at bats, we’re way better this year.”

Wayne finds win column

Defeats Stratford 20-19

JohnDennyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

Wayne notched their first W of the year with a 20-19 victory over Stratford Friday night.

Despite being able to move the ball offensively, they mostly struggled to put points on the board in the first half.

“We shot ourselves in the foot early with drive stoppers,” head coach Brandon Sharp said while describing first half holding penalties.

But the coach was happy with the way his team was able to move the ball on Stratford.

Wayne finally found paydirt in the second quarter when junior quarterback Dalton Mullins connected with fellow junior Rodney Gray on a 16 yard pitch and catch.

The two connected again for the two point conversion.

Wayne went into the halftime locker room trailing 19-8.

“To the kids’ credit they came back in the second half and battled,” Sharp said.

The Wayne offense struck again in the third quarter when Dawson Mantooth broke off a 50-yard run.

After the ensuing two-point conversion try Wayne only trailed 19-14.

Mantooth wasn’t finished for the night yet and he reeled in a 77-yard Mullins pass to score Wayne’s final points of the night.

Mantooth finished the night with 44 yards rushing on six carries and three receptions for 104 yards. He scored two touchdowns.

“He came up big,” Sharp said.

Mullins had 210 yards passing for two touchdowns and added another 46 yards of offense using his legs.

“Dalton has stepped in at quarterback and done a really, really good job,” Sharp said. “He’s getting more comfortable.”

Gray ended the night with 82 yards receiving on six receptions to go with his touchdown.

Bend but don’t break
The Bulldog defense had trouble stopping Stratford in the first half.

“We were giving up yards in chunks in the first half,” Sharp said.

“They were in the power-I formation and guys were out of position and out of our gaps.” Sharp said Mantooth had one of the key plays of the game.

Late in the contest the Stratford quarterback was scrambling and got a quick pass out to the running back, who broke to the sidelines and was headed for the end zone.

Mantooth ran down the running back and brought him down at the seven yard line.

The Wayne defense held and Stratford was denied.

“We did a good job of holding them out when they got in the Red Zone,” Sharp said.

“We came out in the second half and were in a ‘bend but don’t break’ mentality. The kids got a lot stinger in the second half.”

Mantooth finished the night with seven tackles.

Junior Mason Smith registered eight tackles and Cole Mills had six tackles from his defensive end spot.

Wayne freshman Dustin Scoggins picked off a Stratford pass and Payton Payne recovered two fumbles.

Rowdy Newton collected seven tackles from his outside linebacker position.

“The kids are playing hard and starting to get experience,”

Sharp said. “The game is starting to slow down for them.”

Wellston
Wayne travels to Wellston Friday night.

The Tigers are 0-3 on the season but Sharp said Wellston will be fired up and feeling like they have an opportunity for a win this week.

“We’ll have to play well and not make mistakes,” he said.

Wellston plays out of a 3-3 stack on defense.

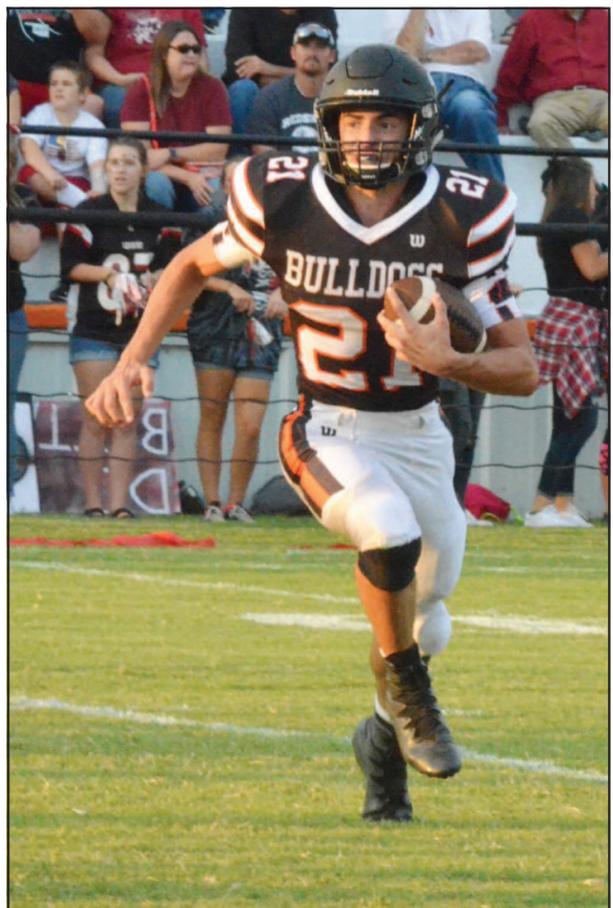

Sharp said they have good size on the line and the back end of the defense can get to the ball.

Offensively they run a variation of the flexbone with wing-T and run the ball right at you, Sharp said.

“We have to play great defense to slow them down,” he said.

Our kids have a taste of what it is to win and hopefully we’ll come out excited and ready to play.”

Bulldog notes:
Head coach Brandon Sharp’s nominees for Heart of Oklahoma Offensive Player of the Week were Dalton Mullins and Dawson Mantooth. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. Friday.

Lady Bulldogs in Districts

Travel to AmPo today (Thursday)

EmilyMontgomery
The Purcell Register

The Wayne Lady Bulldogs open up District play today (Thursday) at AmPo with games at 12 p.m., 2 p.m. and an if-necessary game at 4 p.m.

Last week wasn’t so rosy for Wayne as they fell to Bray-Doyle, 11-1, on Tuesday and Fletcher Thursday for Senior night.

“All five seniors, Gracie Sweetman, Madysen Jenks, Hannah Wissinger, Shelby Miller and Jaidah Wilson, got the start on Thursday.

I’m very proud of those girls,” said head coach Scott Brewer.

With Kynzee Johnson still out with a sore shoulder, Wissinger is manning the circle for the Lady Bulldogs.

Bailey Kennedy led the team at the plate with a pair of hits. Stormy Miller and Mackenzie Posey had a hit a piece.

“We need more production from our offense,” Brewer said.

On the road at Bray-Doyle, Wayne’s offense continued to sputter as they notched an 11-3 loss to the Lady Donkeys.

“We just couldn’t get our offense going. We made some errors, giving them some runs.

“Hannah pitched well. When you have a back-up pitcher in, you have to score and play defense and we haven’t been doing that.” Brewer said.

Wayne is 10-13 on the season. They were scheduled to host a festival with Dibble and Bridge Creek at home Monday.

second half." Higbee also praised the play of sophomore Jeremy Cudd and junior Jalyn Shea at tight end. "They are starting to make strides," the coach said. "Garrett is making good check downs at quarterback and it was nice to have an experienced senior tailback behind him. "Couch has a grasp of what we are trying to accomplish and it's helpful," Higbee confirmed.

"Steiner has been getting a few yards and is starting to turn those into a whole lot more because of his ability. He's a presence," the coach said. Plus, Steiner had eight tackles from his defensive safety position.

Not getting away

The Washington defense, led by Logan Lile (61), Trestin Miller (40) and Andrew Landers (64) bottle up a Marlow ball carrier Friday night. Washington was defeated by the Outlaws 36-35 in double overtime.

Warriors:

Marlow scored 14 points in the final six minutes to knot the score and eventually won 36-35 in double overtime with a gusty two point conversion call after they scored in the second overtime period.

Oh yeah, there was an onside recovering in the mix.

All was not lost for the now 3-1 Warriors in the heart-breaking loss, however.

"For 3 1/2 quarters I would say there were a lot of positives," head coach Brad Beller said.

"We held their big receiver to one reception the first 42 minutes of the game.

"The problem was he had four in the last six minutes but those four went for about 120 yards.

"So there was a lot of good," he said. "We held them to 76 yards rushing and they only had three plays rushing for over 10 yards."

Those totaled 11, 19 and 16. "Other than that they really had no carries at all," Beller said.

"And that's a team that runs a double tight formation and we held down their top receiver. You would think we won going away."

But the Outlaws threw the rock around for 201 yards in a 7-11 performance.

"They had pass plays of 50, 44, 31, 46 and 20," Beller said.

"We did a great job on their receiver but he just came up and made great plays at big moments," Beller said.

Washington coughed up a pair of big turnovers that contributed to the loss in the final minutes.

"In a game like, as a coach, you have to hold that lead. I will take the blame," Beller said.

"You can't have a 14 point lead with six and lose. It's on me. I have to be able to generate one first down and don't.

"As a team we know we should have made some plays that we didn't but you have to look at the coach. I've got to manage the game better."

On the bright side, junior quarterback Trevor Stuever played very well throwing for a touchdown and rushing for three more.

Stuever found Logan Clemence in the second frame on a 50-yard pass and catch. The nifty quarterback also scored on runs of one, 10 and one, leading the Warrior offense.

Senior brother Tyler also got in the scoring column with a 56 yard burst in the second period.

But Marlow brought the house to stop Tyler loading the box with anywhere from seven to nine defenders.

The Outlaws forced Washington to throw the pigskin, but Beller said he should have found a way to get Tyler the ball more in the closing minutes.

Beller said he was very proud of his defensive line that finished with five sacks.

He was speaking of Trestin Miller, Tanner Thompson, Andrew Landers, Cale Winton, Zach Tague and Conner Bruce who rotated in.

"We had four starters out but we're not making excuses," Beller said. "Those guys stepped up and played a lot of snaps the other night."

Beller said even with the loss his Warriors still have a chance to be really good this season.

"Marlow played with desperation to not go to 0-4. It's a credit to Marlow and their coaching staff," Beller said.

Next up is homecoming with the 2-2 Frederick Bombers.

Frederick, who has defeated Comanche and Electra, Texas, operates out of a multiple I formation on offense.

"They'll go anywhere from a Wing I to a Wing T with the same personnel," Beller said. "They will also run a lot of diamond formation. They are the most improved team in the district.

"You can tell they are understanding what they're doing. They were really young the last couple of years. Now they have the maturity and experience they didn't have the last couple of years and are playing good football right now."

Beller reports Frederick is very quick on defense although not all that big.

"The key for us is third down," he said. "They try to keep the ball away from you and we have to get off the field on third down.

"And, on offense, we have to have no turnovers," he confirmed.

Warrior notes:

Head coach Brad Beller nominated Trevor Stuever as the Offensive Player of the Week.

Stuever rushed 13 times for 71 yards and three touchdowns and was 10-18 throwing for another 117 yards and a touchdown.

Nominated as the Offensive Lineman of the Week was Justin McKay, who graded out at 78 percent against the Marlow Outlaws.

Beller nominated Trestin Miller as the Defensive Lineman of the Week.

He had nine tackles against Marlow and recorded three sacks.

Shane Spaulding was nominated as the Defensive Player of the Week for his nine tackle performance against Marlow.

he said.

Brewer is also pleased with his team's defense at this point in the year.

"We've cleaned up a lot of our defense," he said.

"Our fielding percentage is .960 or above. We need to get that up a little as we get into the playoffs."

The lone blemish on Washington's schedule last week was a 7-2 loss to Silo at home.

"They're really good," Brewer said of the No. 2 team in Class 2A.

"They have a freshman pitcher and they small balled us at the plate. I like playing them because they force the issue and you have to think on your feet."

Brewer said his team put themselves in some tough situations in the game.

Brewer said his team was first to strike in the game and took a one run lead.

They then gave up three runs to the Rebels.

lenberg all getting hits.

"It was a good hitting game," Jones said. "Our hitting is making up for the mental mistakes we have been making."

Purcell rallied from a one-run deficit to score three times in the bottom of the sixth in their big win over Stonewall in Oklahoma City.

Stonewall, No. 3 in Class A, pushed across their only run in the top of the first and held that lead until Purcell's fireworks in the bottom of the sixth.

"It was a great defensive game besides a few hiccups," Jones said. "Luckily, those errors didn't cost us any runs."

Brooke Fleming held her ground in the circle and in the fifth Carwile came in to close out the victory.

The Dragons had two outs when Wollenberg was hit by a pitch followed by a Spain single up the middle.

Jennings' sharp hit up the middle plated Wollenberg and Spain. The throw to the plate allowed Jennings to move to third where Kinley Croslin came in as a courtesy runner.

Croslin scored on a passed ball staking the Dragons to a 3-1 lead, which they held.

Spain was 2-3 while Hannah Buchanan and Jennings were both 1-2, including Jennings two RBIs.

"Overall, it was a great game," Jones said. "I am very proud of the girls for the way they showed up after the Tecumseh loss."

That was a 13-5 setback September 18 when the Lady Savages out-hit Purcell 13-5. Couple that with nine Dragon errors and it didn't add up well for Purcell.

"We just need to put that one behind us, learn from it and move on," Jones said.

In the second game of the festival at ASA, Purcell was nipped by Elgin, 3-2.

"Elgin is 20-5 in 4A and is a good squad," Jones said. "They came out in the first and were swinging the bat well."

The Lady Owls pushed across a single run in the first, third and seventh.

Purcell's two runs came in the bottom of the fourth when Wollenberg got the ball rolling with an infield hit.

After a walk to Jennings, Buchanan hits a rope to right center to tie the game two-all.

Time ran out and the International Tie Breaker came into effect with a runner starting the inning off on second.

Elgin scored their run on a Purcell error.

"We couldn't string bunts or hits together to score our run," Jones said. "Games like that it comes down to who will step up and have the clutch at bat."

"Overall, it was a good game and it is a good experience for the girls to play at Hall of Fame," the coach concluded.

Wollenberg led the offense going 2-4 while the Dragons got hits from Carwile, Spain, Buchanan and Tyler.

well," he said.

"We've deepened our circle" he said when talking about the talents of senior Lyndie Ervin, junior Baylee Morris and freshman Katelyn Hicks.

"We need to start playing better ball at this point because this is where you want to do it," he said.

"We're getting into the stretch run and we need to not take it for granted."

Washington is 21-8 on the year and ranked No. 3 in Class 3A.

three runs in the seventh inning.

As Washington readies for the State playoffs he said he likes the way his team is playing defense.

"We've done a really good job of making the plays we can make and not letting innings escalate," he said.

"We've done a good job this year of giving ourselves opportunities."

He said his pitching staff is in a good spot as they enter the home stretch of the season.

Touch a Truck at annual family event

It's a morning of smiles, family time and of course, the sights and sounds of big trucks, as the Pioneer Library System Foundation and numerous community partners present the 13th edition of Touch A Truck, from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, September 30, at the Cleveland County Fairgrounds, 615 E. Robinson St., in Norman.

The annual event features dozens of trucks, including public service vehicles, big rigs, construction machines and much more. Attendees will have a chance to get an up-close look at the vehicles and learn a little more about them and how they serve the community.

The morning will begin on a quieter note for families with children who may have sensory sensitivity or just not like all the noise. During "Quiet Hour" from 9 to 10 a.m. participants may tour all the rigs, trucks and vehicles but are asked not to honk any of the horns.

At 10, the noise level will go up as kids can try out the horns as they sit in the driver's seat of some of their favorite trucks.

There is no official entry fee for the event, although donations will be taken at the entrances. Proceeds go to benefit the Children's Services departments of the Pioneer Library System's Cleveland County libraries in Moore, Noble, Southwest Oklahoma City and Norman's West and Central libraries.

Past editions of Touch A Truck have drawn more than 3,000 visitors, with library and vehicle enthusiasts of all ages getting a chance to get an up-close look at a variety of mobile mechanical marvels.

These will include the Pioneer Library System's Maker Mobile, which will give a look at its features, including a three-dimensional printer, laser cutter and some of the STEAM Kits available for use through the library system to promote science, technology, engineering, the arts and mathematics.

The library system serves residents in Cleveland, McClain and Pottawatomie counties. A PLS card is free for anyone who lives, works, attends school or owns property in any of the three counties, where Pioneer operates 11 libraries in 10 communities.

Follow the activities leading up to the event on social media at #plstouchatruck or online at the Touch A Truck website at www.pioneerlibrarysystem.org/tat.

And keep up with any of the library's programs and services through the Pioneer Library System Connect App, available for free download from the App Store for iPhone or Google Play for Android.

Dragons:

to have their own homecoming court. Head coach for the 0-3 Bobcats is former Purcell Head Coach Scott O'Hara.

Assistant coaches for Bridge Creek are former Purcell assistant football and head baseball coach Robbie Carriger and former Purcell Dragon and 2011 graduate Andrew Gray and 2016 graduate and former player Dillon Cook, who serves as a graduate assistant.

Gray is the fourth generation of that family to play football for the Dragons following in his great, great grandfather's footsteps, Anthony Foster, grandfather, Richard Gray, his uncle Dick Gray and his father and current Dragon assistant coach Kurt Gray.

Andrew's great, great grandfather played on the very first Purcell Dragon squad in 1898.

The Bobcat coaching staff really didn't need any directions to Conger Field but will bring a bevy of offensive formations and defensive schemes to their old stomping grounds.

The Bobcats will operate out of the spread offense when they have the pigskin and have utilized the 4-3 defense, the 50 defense and could throw the kitchen sink at the Dragons.

"They are liable to line up in anything," Purcell Head Coach John Higbee said. "And don't let their record fool you. They are not nearly as bad as their record shows."

In fact, Higbee called the Bobcats scary as the Purcell staff has broken down film.

"This is our first district game so it is a monster of a game," Higbee continued. "It's a must-win for us."

"Their offense is predominately a spread but has a myriad of formations," Higbee continued. "The CCS game (last Friday night) was a good game for us when they spread out into quads. It gave us some experience there that we needed."

The Bobcats are a senior laden squad that only starts one sophomore.

The key to a Dragon victory?

"Considering the multitude of formations they have, getting lined up in the correct spots and executing," Higbee said. "We need to know what we are doing and hold onto the football. We put the ball on the ground a couple of times last week and that is just like nails on a chalk board to me. We have to have ball security."

"We will need to get lined up correctly and when they run unbalanced lines know what to do then," the coach said. "Our experience should help there."

The 2017 homecoming coronation begins at 7 p.m. with kickoff for the game set for 7:30 p.m.

snagged a pass from Prevost and got into the end zone for another Lex touchdown.

Smith (who finished with 134 yards rushing on 19 carries) finalized the Lexington scoring with a 10-yard touchdown run which gave the Bulldogs a 35-13 lead after three quarters of play.

Dickson had a fourth-quarter touchdown but it wasn't enough to gain a victory over Lexington on the Comets' homecoming night.

"We came out in the no-huddle for the third quarter and we were able to take over the game with three touchdowns," Berglan said.

"The offense is coming into shape. Going from the flex bone to the spread is a tall order. As the season has evolved, so has our offense."

"Last Friday night was another testament to how dedicated these football players at Lexington are," Berglan said. "It was Dickson's homecoming and they came out guns a blazing!"

The Comets were able to post the most points this year so far on the Bulldogs. Still, after the Dickson game, Lexington has only allowed 53 points all season long.

"Defensively we didn't do a very good job of breaking down and making tackles in the first half," Berglan said. "In the second half, we began to play at a faster and more physical pace."

Notes

Lexington head coach Dale Berglan has nominated quarterback Toby Prevost this week as his offensive Player of the Week nominee. Prevost, a junior, had 15 carries for 127 yards rushing and one touchdown. He also was 13-of-22 passing for 144 yards and two touchdowns.

Berglan's choice for defensive Player of the Week was Fischer Bowling. The senior lineman had seven tackles - one for a big loss. Jordan McWaters, a senior, was nominated by Berglan as both Lexington's offensive and defensive lineman of the week. McWaters graded out at 90-percent on the O-Line and he had eight tackles on defense.

Dale K. Graham Veteran's Foundation

Our Veteran of the Week this week is Tony Analla from Moore. He is a Korea War Veteran who served during the 1950s.

Last Saturday, we were part of the OKC 50 + Living Expo at the Cox Convention where businesses showcased their products and programs for seniors in our area. We were there to promote what we do for our veterans and their surviving spouses. One of the highlights of the day was when we spoke to Mick Cornett, who was elected in 2004 as Oklahoma City's 35th mayor and is reported to be the first Oklahoma City Mayor ever to be elected to a fourth term. Cornett stopped by our booth to talk about veterans and how the benefits we help them receive impacts all the cities in Oklahoma. When our community leaders talk about veterans and their families, I'm more than ready to hear what they have to say.

Last Tuesday morning we opened the doors to our new location at 1268 North Interstate Drive in Norman. I can't describe the excitement that all of us had when that first veteran arrived, and we started processing his application for VA benefits. We have been working tirelessly for many years to have a place dedicated to making a difference in the lives of all veterans and their families.

Having a facility of our own is going to enable us to serve an increased number of the men and women who have served in the military of our great nation. It used to take us a couple of hours each day to set up and to tear down all our equipment. We will continue to open up at 5:30 a.m. each Tuesday and Thursday morning to serve veterans and their families.

As we add more trained volunteers to our organization, we are considering making appointments on other days to assist those who are not able to visit us on Tuesday or Thursday mornings. For anyone who would like to be a part of what we do, please stop by to fill out a volunteer application. Volunteer applications are also available on our website.

Only one veteran out of the 221 assisted called to say he had gotten lost and could not find our new location. We are in the Robinson Crossing Shopping Center west of the Braums or three doors North of Domino's Pizza.

Of the 221 veterans and surviving spouses who made their first trip to our new location for assistance, there were 21 who were surviving spouses of veterans who may qualify for the VA Pension benefit based on their income and when their spouse served in the military. DIC may be payable to a surviving spouse and dependents when the veteran dies from a service-connected disability or one that is presumptive.

The service-connected disability must be on the veteran's death certificate as the primary or contributing factor to their death. Many times, the attending physician will not have access to the veteran's medical records or know what service-connected conditions they have.

One of the ways to help a surviving spouse is to amend the death certificate so that it lists a presumptive disease or a service-connected disability that may have contributed to their death. This may be done by asking the attending physician or the state medical examiner to request an amended death certificate listing the diagnosed conditions that may have contributed to their death. A letter like this can be taken to the Oklahoma Health Department vital statistics department in OKC.

We have veterans and their families coming from almost every state for help with their VA claims for benefits. The reason some of them are traveling more than a thousand miles is our volunteers that are making it happen. As we continue to serve more veterans and their families, I would like to see our organization in more states.

As a VA Accredited Claims Agent, many of you know that I receive a copy of all communications the VA sends to the veterans and surviving spouses who are represented. Last week seven veterans received a disability rating of 100 percent for their service-connected disabilities. These men and women will receive a combined annual amount of $256,481 per year. Twenty-nine veterans were awarded disability ratings from 10-90 percent and they will receive a combined annual amount of $334,118. Three surviving spouses were approved for DIC, Pension or Aid and Attendance. These surviving spouses will receive an annual combined amount of $56,296.

Dale K. Graham Veterans Foundation has food boxes available to those in need. An application for this type of assistance will be available on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. A DD-214 or military discharge will be necessary to apply. Please contact Rhonda (405) 550-8806 Extension 103 to request a food box.

If you need a ride to and from a VA Medical Appointment, please contact (405) 550-8806 to reach Clayton at Extension 105 or Louie at Ext. 106.

We are at 1268 North Interstate Drive in Norman, Exit 110 off of I-35 each Tuesday and Thursday morning at 5:30 a.m. Please arrive by 8 a.m. Contact Dale with any questions at (405) 550-8806 Extension 101 or dale@dalekgrahamveterans-foundation.org or Shirley Clark-Cowdin for spouse benefits at Extension 104. Good week to all! Welcome to the "front porch."

Or – today – perhaps we should say, Welcome to the "courtroom." Read on and you'll see what I mean.

"What is your case, sir," asks the judge to the rugged-looking lawyer standing before His court, looking down with a slight smile at the tattered, worn papers scattered on the prosecutor's table.

"Your honor," says the old preacher, picking up one of the tattered papers and glancing at it, "we are here to prove that a man is saved by grace, through faith, and not saved by the law or his own works of goodness."

"Very good," says the judge, matter-of-factly, "call your first witness."

The great lawyer shakes his head respectfully to the judge, looks out over the vast audience crowded into the courtroom, and makes his call: "We call to the stand the great patriarch Abraham!"

You can hear the gasp in the audience, for no one had expected the lawyer Paul to bring this great patriarch to prove his case. But all watch intently, a buzz still stirring through the crowd, as the venerable old soldier makes his way to the stand, sits down, and looks toward the lawyer, a rare gentleness in his eyes.

"Abraham, sir, I want to get right to the reason I brought you here. I need you to tell us what you have found regarding God's salvation in your day?" (Romans 4:1)

"Well," Abraham says, "when the Lord called me to leave home and go to a place that He would show me, I packed my bags and headed out. Later, the Lord would tell me that it was as a result of that faith that he imputed righteousness to me" (Romans 4:3).

"So," says Paul, "the Lord did not acquit you from your sins based on your own inherent goodness? In other words, Abraham, you do not feel that God OWED to you the righteousness, the 'acquittal', that He gave."

"Oh, no," the venerable Abraham says without hesitation, "God is not a debtor to me or to any other man. I certainly cannot boast at all as if I deserved God's grace and mercy. God called me, remember, from down in Babylon, where all of my family was involved ignorantly with the idols of that place. God reached down, almost out of nowhere, it seemed, and snatched me and my family from that fire – because that is exactly where we were headed.

"Mercifully, He took us away from that wretched land. We believed in God and acted immediately. So the Lord counted me righteous, I am glad to say, because of my faith."

"Your faith, then," says Paul, delving deeper into the mind of the great patriarch like a surgeon, "was not an idle faith. It was an active faith. It had to act upon God's command and trust in His promises!"

"Absolutely," says Abraham, "if we had told the Lord we believed in his promises, then sat right there in Babylon, we would have not have separated ourselves from the others who were lost in unrighteousness. We had to get up, pack our bags, load the wagons, and leave many friends and loved ones behind. We did that because we believed in God with every bit of our being; and, by God's grace, He counted us righteous!" (Hebrews 11:8-10).

"That's of that great interest to me," replies the great lawyer, looking away from his witness for the first time to the crowded audience glued to this classic exchange, "because even though you had to act and move – that is, you had to obey the Lord (Hebrews 11:8) – you still were saved by grace through faith, not of works of merit." (Ephesians 2:8-9).

"That's right," says Abraham, "God, obviously, demands obedience to His commands; and when we obey those commands by faith, He acquits us of the sins we had. As I said, He is not indebted to us. He does not 'owe' us anything. We are saved by His grace when we act upon his commands by faith. Let me tell you this, too, Paul, I didn't live to see what you saw. I didn't live to see the promises of God fulfilled ultimately through the Messiah where our sins are forever removed by the blood of the Lamb – oh, but I embraced those truths and longed to see them, even way back then" (Hebrews 11:13).

"Thank you," the apostle says, with a respectful smile, "thank you, Abraham, for clarifying what it means to be saved by faith, not of works." With that, he excuses the great patriarch, and Abraham nods, then ambles back to his seat, every eye on one of God's greatest warriors.

The great lawyer, a great man in his own right, then walks back to the table with those tattered pages still scattered from one end to the other, lays down that one piece in his hand, looks at the judge, and says with confidence, "Your honor, I rest my case."

By Fr. Jim Chamberlain

As a young man, Ignatius of Loyola loved the ladies and was proud of his good looks. Born in the Basque region of Spain (Barcelona), this hot-headed Spaniard received a serious leg injury in a battle against the-French. The wound was going to leave an ugly lump in his leg, and so he demanded a second surgery because "he could not tolerate such ugliness."

This pride and vanity meant that he spent many months recoverin, just lying in bed and reading the only two books that were available to him - a book on following Christ and a book on the lives of the saints.

Ignatius' conversion began as he realized how much more consolation he found when he fantasized about being a saint, pursuing the love of God rather than the love of a woman. He began to live a life modeled on Jesus and the saints, and began writing a series of meditations, called the Spiritual Exercises, that lead a person into an intimate friendship with Jesus.

When he went away to study at the University of Paris, he and some college buddies formed the Society of Jesus, the Jesuits, who sought only to find God's will for them while acting in the world. They chose not to seek God only in church or in the monastery, but in the everyday things of everyday life.

At the beginning of the Exercises, Ignatius writes, "Everything has the potential of calling forth in us a more loving response to our life forever with God. Our only desire...should be this: I want and I choose what better leads to the deepening of God's life within me."

Ignatian spirituality is, thus, a growing awareness of finding God in all things - in our work, our hobbies, our family, our friends, our moods and emotions, and our memories.

As we grow more deeply in this awareness, we grow more deeply into a relationship with this God who created us out of love, and who desires always to shower us with that love.

Our Mass schedule is Saturday at 5 p.m. (English), Sunday at 11 a.m. (English) and 1 p.m. (Spanish).

AG Hunter issues warning

Oklahoma bracing for flood of flooded vehicles

Oklahoma Attorney General Mike Hunter is urging Oklahomans to use extreme caution when purchasing a used vehicle that may have been damaged by Hurricanes Harvey or Irma.

Hunter sent a letter to the Oklahoma Tax Commission for distribution to tag agencies statewide, urging administrators to be suspicious and vigilant in the transfer of vehicle titles from Texas and surrounding states and to carefully examine all out of state titles.

According to news reports, up to 1 million vehicles are estimated to have been damaged by flood waters in the wake of the storms.

Hunter said the state has experienced this type of fraud before after past natural disasters, adding the letter and recommendations are designed to help Oklahomans looking to buy and to put criminals on notice.

"Flooded cars are a ticking time bomb," the attorney general said. "A car that has been cleaned up may run fine and even look fine, but in reality it is a matter of time before something goes wrong."

"When the electrical, mechanical and safety systems are exposed to water, it compromises the essential functions of the vehicle, putting families and those who share the road at risk."

Hunter went on to encourage Oklahomans looking for used vehicles to use extreme caution.

"It's unfortunate, but our artists view tragedies like we have seen recently as an opportunity to take advantage of others. We will pursue charges if they do this in our state," he said.

Hunter said scammers will fix a water damaged car with aesthetic upgrades, masking them as an ordinary used car. Individuals will then obtain an out of state title, without divulging what has happened and transport the car far beyond the flooded region, where consumers may be less aware of what to look for.

Oklahoma law requires owners of a used vehicle entering the state from another state to complete a flood damage disclosure as part of the title process. However, if the seller's out of state title shows no damage, the Oklahoma title won't either, leaving the purchaser on their own.

The following are the AG office's recommendations when purchasing a used car:

- Always have a certified, independent mechanic inspect the car prior to purchase;

- Get a report on the car;
- Check the VIN with the National Insurance Crime Bureau at https://www.nicb.org/theft\_and\_fraud\_awareness/vincheck; and
- Purchase from a reputable seller.

Signs of a flood damaged car include:

- Rust or corrosion under the hood on engine components and wiring;
- Water in oil or transmission, check this by pulling the measuring sticks;
- Water lines in the trunk;
- Mud buildup in unusual places, like under the dashboard;
- Mismatched upholstery and carpet combinations;
- Rust on unpainted parts like bolts or door hinges; and
- Musty odors.

Be suspicious of any car being sold with a lost title.

For more consumer information when purchasing a used vehicle, visit the National Motor Vehicle Title Information System at <https://www.vehiclehistory.gov/>.

To report flooded cars being sold in Oklahoma, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Unit at (405) 521-2029, or via email at consumerprotection@oag.ok.gov.

Johnson Road Baptist Church

It was a good weekend for those with well invested stocks on Wall Street. Don't know how long the market will advance but it does delay my dreams to buy gold and silver.

Some of we poor folks will only pray that we can pay our bills and keep our creditors happy.

Our hearts were saddened recently by the death of our faithful veterinarian Michael Hurt who was a minister to the animal world.

Special music Sunday morning was provided by the children, Gynean Gentry and Wilma Turner.

Scripture text for the sermon was taken from the 31st chapter of I Samuel that records the horrible death and desecration of King Saul and his three sons by the Philistines.

Not only did the King and his sons die, their heads were severed and the King's body nailed to the wall.

King Saul had his sins, but we must remember he was anointed by God to serve his people in time of peace and war.

Recently I sat in a doctor's office and watched a portion of a morning talk show.

The guest on the show was a young man who identified himself as a distant relative of General Robert E. Lee. The man praised the removal and dismantling of General Lee's statues.

To add salt to my pain, the young man was a minister wearing a black suit and a white collar.

The minister was praised by the host of the show and the panel for his stance in condemning his distant relative.

When asked how his congregation felt about his hatred for General Lee, the minister said his church dismissed him. Thank God, the church members were smarter than their pastor. Neither ministers nor lay leaders have a right to judge past history with disgraceful acts of desecration.

The recent shameful behavior in our nation can be remedied by recognizing our own sinful nature, our troubled history as a nation and our commitment to the following the Golden Rule set forth by our Master, Jesus.

Hopefully no one will ever focus on our sins of the past and choose to desecrate our grave-stone at the local cemetery.

Sermon title for this Sunday is "The Mind Game."

The Wednesday evening Bible study for this week will be the 15th chapter of the Gospel according to John.

Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. Morning worship begins at 11 a.m.

Should I aerate bermuda grass pastures?

Wes Lee
Extension Ag Educator

Every year I receive questions about using soil aerators on pastures to improve forage yields. And every year, I give out the same answer; based on the research tests comparing aeration to other inputs, aeration does not pay for the cost of running the equipment over the field in increased forage yield.

Aeration equipment is supposed to help compacted fields. Compaction is the process where, due to high traffic from heavy machinery or animal traffic, the soil becomes pressed together so tightly that water and air has difficulty penetrating the soil surface.

Roots may also have a hard time penetrating the soil to great depths and air movement is restricted by the tight soil. Compaction is normally only a problem on soils that have large components of clay or loam in the soil.

An aeration study conducted on a silt soil and a fine sandy loam soil in Mississippi from 1991 to 1995 showed no improvement of soil penetration tests or moisture contents in the upper 24 inches of the soil when comparing aerated plots versus non aerated plots at either site.

McClain County has many diverse soil types. Some river bottom soils have a large component of sand in their make up. These sandier soils by their nature do not compact easily due to the large irregular shape of their soil particles.

Clay soils, however, have the ability to compact when heavy equipment or heavy animals constantly move over the same piece of soil on a regular basis, although environmental and biological factors will loosen this soil over time.

An example of this is when a clay or loam soil dries out. When this happens it tends to crack to great depths, and in essence, is aerating it's self due to the shrinking and swelling. Likewise, when wet soil freezes in the winter it will fracture due to the freezing and thawing, which also aerates the soil in the upper six to 12 inches of the surface.

Plants, due to root growth, also aerate the soil in their own way. A healthy, well fertilized bermuda grass plant will send roots as deep as 36 inches. As the plant matures, over time, older roots will die and be replaced by new growth. As these dead roots decompose, they leave channels in the soil allowing air and water infiltration. This, in effect, contributes to aeration of the soil.

Another argument for pasture aeration is that bermuda grass becomes root bound in the compacted soil and, if the soil is disturbed, the plants will begin to grow more rapidly. In fact, any time you disturb the crown of a grass plant you will cause it some injury.

Those plants that are not injured will use the nutrients and water that the injured plant would have used to make its growth. This may appear as a rejuvenation of the bermuda grass stand but does it increase the yield?

A research study was conducted in 2001 on a verdigris silt loam soil in Craig County comparing doing nothing versus disking versus running an aerator. Also included was the same set of three treatments with the addition of proper fertilization. There was no statistical difference in yield between the disking and aerating but doing nothing increased yields by 735 pounds per acre.

When proper fertility was added to the equation, it made no difference whether you aerated or not. The addition of the fertilizer increased grass yields for the year more than 5,000 pounds per acre on the do nothing plots. Aeration plus fertilizer did not improve yields over just fertilizer alone.

Similar findings were reported in 1998 from a three year study on fertility and aeration done in Pontotoc County. At this location the highest yielding treatment was with 200lbs/ac of nitrogen and adequate phosphorus with no aeration. The three year average yield for this treatment was 5,400 lb/acre. This compares to the exact same fertility treatment that had spring aeration applied and only yielded 5,100 lbs/acre.

Both of these studies show that proper soil fertility goes a lot farther in renovating poor bermudagrass stands than aeration.

In fact, both point to the possibility of aeration reducing grass yields in the first year after treatment when compared to doing nothing.

My advice to you is to leave aeration to the golf courses and playgrounds where there are some proven benefits. On bermuda grass pastures, spend the money needed on fertility inputs.

Delta Senior Companion Program

Delta Community Action is looking for volunteers to participate in the Delta Senior Companion Program.

The Senior Companion Program (SCP), which began in 1974, helps frail seniors and other adults maintain independence primarily in the clients' own homes.

Delta has sponsored the program since 2015, and currently serves clients in four Oklahoma counties: Garvin, McClain, Stephens and Comanche.

Senior Companions serve between 15 and 40 hours a week and typically serve between two and four clients.

Among other activities, they assist with daily living tasks, such as grocery shopping and helping clients get to and from appointments; provide friendship and companionship; alert doctors and family members to potential problems, and provide respite to family caregivers.

Volunteers do not provide healthcare, simply companionship.

Volunteers must be 55 years of age or over. Those who meet certain income guidelines receive a small stipend.

All SCP volunteers receive accident and liability insurance, reimbursement for transportation, and monthly training.

Anyone interested in serving as a volunteer, or anyone interested in receiving services provided by Delta Senior Companions should call Delta Community Action at (580)255-3222 or (405) 756-1100.

Delta SCP is federally funded by the Corporation for National Community Service and is free to those who qualify.

Horse owners should vaccinate

Animal Industry Services of the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture, Food, and Forestry is encouraging horse owners to take precautions and vaccinate their animals to protect against the West Nile Virus (WNV) and Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE).

In years past, Oklahoma averaged approximately 40 cases per year of positive diagnoses of mosquito-carried diseases in horses. There were no reported human deaths in 2016; however, the state health department recently reported the first human West Nile death in 2017.

The bird population serves as the reservoir for the viruses and mosquitos then transmit the virus to horses and humans. Mosquitos most likely to transmit WNV and EEE lay their eggs in small pools of standing water.

Once the adult mosquito hatches, they can become infected with both WNV and EEE after feeding on an infected host, such as a bird carrying the virus. Within 10 to 14 days, the mosquito can transmit the virus to both humans and horses.

"Signs of West Nile Virus include weakness, fever, incoordination, seizures, blindness and difficulty getting up," said Assistant State Veterinarian Michael Herrin, D.V.M. "There are several vaccines available, and we are encouraging horse owners to visit their veterinarians and determine the vaccination protocol that will best fit their operations."

Oklahomans can reduce the risk of both EEE and WNV by eliminating standing water which serves as a breeding area for mosquitos.

Horse owners are encouraged to not let water stagnate in birdbaths or water tanks, and keep unused equipment that can collect water, such as a wheelbarrow, turned over when not in use.

Water troughs should be emptied and flushed twice a week to remove potential mosquito eggs. When possible, owners should reduce horses' outdoor exposure at dawn and dusk, the times of day when mosquitos carrying the viruses are most active.
