Northcutts OPEN home
Two displaced Ukrainian citizens staying in Lexington

John D. Montgomery
The Purcell Register

The past few weeks for the Lexington family of Callie and Jordan Northcutt have been like a Rotary Exchange Student on steroids. That's because the Northcutts and their three children have opened up their home to house displaced Ukrainian citizens Tetyana Slobodyanyuk and her 10-year-old son, Yaroslav. Tetyana and Yaroslav ended up at the Northcutt front door via family connections. Jordan told The Purcell Register that Callie's brother has been to the Ukraine several times and Tetyana is one of the people there he made friends with. When the first bomb hit Kiev, she fled and was invited to come to the U.S. until things settled down. She spent a month with Callie's brother in Dallas and then here for about a month. "I was advised to come and stay with this nice family to spend time here and learn more about the United States," she said. She spoke impeccable

English saying she started studying the language in kindergarten, tracked it all through school, at college and then at work.

The pair are working on acquiring immigration documents and plan to go to California with a friend after a side trip to Dallas. She submitted her papers in Dallas so she has to go there to meet in person with immigration officials. Tetyana said Oklahoma and Texas are not as immigration friendly as some other states. "It's difficult to find work here," she said. "In Ukraine I was independent so I want to go to California and work. "Besides the Northcutts have their own lives and family. It was nice of them to stop and share with us," she said. "Ukraine has their polite people, too. "But I need to stand on my feet," she continued. Oklahoma experiences first West Nile Virus case, death, of the year

The Oklahoma State Department of Health (OSDH) is reporting the first human case, and death in 2022, caused by West Nile Virus (WNV) in a Central Oklahoma resident. The patient was hospitalized before passing away. WNV spreads through the bite of an infected mosquito. In Oklahoma, WNV is primarily spread by the Culex mosquito, which feeds on infected birds and then spreads the virus when biting humans, horses, and some other mammals. This type of mosquito increases in abundance during mid to late summer when temperatures are high, and the weather pattern is dry. “We expect the number of human cases to increase as the temperatures rise throughout the summer,” said Jolianne Stone, the State Epidemiologist. “Typically, summertime is the beginning of the WNV season in Oklahoma, so with more people participating in outdoor activities there are increased opportunities for encountering infected mosquitoes.” OSDH officials are reminding the public to take precautions to prevent mosquito bites. Tips to avoid mosquito bites and prevent WNV: • Use an insect repellent containing DEET, picaridin, or IR3535 on exposed skin and clothing when going outdoors, particularly between dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are more likely to bite. Insect repellent with permethrin should be used on clothing only. • Repair or install window and door screens to keep mosquitoes out of the home. • Prevent items such as buckets, cans, pool covers, flowerpots, children’s toys and tires from holding water to prevent providing mosquitoes a place to breed. • Empty pet’s outdoor water bowl and refill daily. • Scrub and refill bird baths every three days. • Clean leaves and debris from rain gutters regularly to ensure they are not clogged.

Triple digits name of game

As July continues to heat up to levels we haven’t seen in almost two years, triple digits are returning and becoming more regular day after day. Thursday and Friday will see lots of sunshine, with both days expected to reach the low 100s, before yet another hot weekend with upper 90s and lower 100s, with some cloud cover building in. The start of the work week is much of the same, with temperatures nearing triple digits again with some cloud cover hanging around, before sunshine returns by mid-week. – Colton Williams

Shackleford’s “Twin Turkeys” named Best of Show at the Artesian Arts Festival

Thousands of art lovers descended upon downtown Sulphur June 25 to experience the colorful art, scrumptious food and intriguing entertainment of the ninth annual Artesian Arts Festival. More than 50 Chickasaw artists participated in the festival, offering a colorful array of paintings, jewelry, stained glass, textiles, photography, beadwork and more. An estimated 5,000 patrons attended the festival.

Earlier this year, Tanni’ Tyra Shackleford, a 2004 graduate of Purcell High School, who earned “Best of Show” honors, quickly changed her plans to go out of state for the late June weekend when she learned the Artesian Arts Festival was resuming its in-person format after a two-year hiatus. “It is wonderful to be back in person. It’s kind of like a family reunion,” the master weaver said early Saturday morning. Shackleford’s 2D entry “Twin Turkeys,” which won “Best of Show,” features a design inspired by ancient Mississippian shell carvings, the Ada artist said. “The design speaks to our place in the world,” she said. “Mississippian had this belief of three worlds. The world we live in, the underworld and the upper world.” The massive piece created with soy-silk yarn was woven by hand and took about 30 hours to complete. Shackleford used Excel to design the pattern and plot each placement of the 300-string work of art, a massive task which took about 100 hours to complete. Participating in all but one Artesian Arts Festival, this is the first time the Chickasaw artist has won the top honor at the event. “I am speechless. It is such a huge honor, especially when you look at all the great artwork (in the show). To be selected for Best of Show, I can’t believe it. I am still kind of in shock,” Shackleford said. The large, framed woven piece is the result of the acclaimed artist wanting to step out of her comfort zone with the “sprang” technique, which is an ancient lace making art form first introduced to her by Chickasaw weaver Margaret Roach Wheeler. Shackleford further researched this technique and taught herself. “You don’t see anyone using this technique and creating 2D art with it, so I wanted to do something different and use the weaving technique to create 2D art and reach a broader audience,” she said. Shackleford is a master fabric weaver whose work is in museums, premier First American arts festivals and in numerous private collections. Typically, she creates wearable items, such as beaded stomp dance sashes, regalia, dresses and other fine, hand-made garments.

OSDH WIC program seeks public input from Oklahomans

The Oklahoma State Department of Health’s Woman, Infants and Children (WIC) program is asking for input from individuals about the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program Operations.
Information shared with WIC will be considered for the State Plan of Program Operation for 2023. In order for comments to be considered, they must be received before July 29, 2022.
Every month, there are over 63,000 Oklahomans who participate in the WIC program.
WIC is a federally funded nutrition education and supplemental food program for low income, pregnant, breastfeeding and postpartum women, infants, and children up to five-years-old.

Eligibility is determined by nutritional risk and incomes that fall below 185 percent of the poverty level.
“A priority of our program is to make sure those who are pregnant understand the importance of adequate nutrition throughout their pregnancy,” said Christina Windrix, the OSDH WIC Service Director.
“Studies have shown that pregnant women who participate in WIC have longer pregnancies which leads to fewer premature births, low-birth weight babies, and even fewer fetal and infant deaths,” she concluded.
The program also offers breastfeeding services and support to expectant and new mothers.
WIC’s goal is to make certain that mothers and eligible families with young children have the basic nutritional knowledge necessary to assure their children’s proper nutrition intake.

“Our program provides a monthly prescription of nutritious foods tailored to supplement the dietary needs of participants to ensure good health, growth and development,” said Windrix. “The foods are specifically chosen to provide consistency with the Dietary Guidelines for Americans and establish dietary recommendations for infants and children under five-years-old.”
The selected foods also reinforce WIC nutrition education messages, address emerging public health nutrition related issues, and provide wide appeal to the diverse WIC population.
WIC is housed within county health departments throughout the state and operates hand in hand with other public health programs to provide referral services to health care and social services.
Comments can be submitted by phone at 1-888-655-2942 or 405-426-8537 or via email at christinaw@health.ok.gov.

Nile:

While the vast majority of individuals with WNV will likely never experience symptoms following an infection, those with symptoms, are often mild and may include sudden fever, headache, dizziness or muscle weakness.
Recovery typically occurs within one to three weeks.
People older than 50 years, diabetics, or those experiencing uncontrolled hypertension are at a greater risk of developing severe neurologic disease from WNV infection.

When the disease affects the nervous system, it can cause confusion or disorientation, loss of consciousness, paralysis, neck stiffness or coma.
Long lasting complications of WNV disease can include difficulty concentrating, migraines, headaches, extreme muscle weakness and tremors, and paralysis of a limb.

There is no vaccine or treatment drug for this illness. The best defense is taking steps to avoid mosquito bites.

It's in the Constitution

We've got to stop the hate in this country.

If a President or the Congress or the Supreme Court doesn't vote the way you want it's protest city and a cry for justice.

When the left doesn't get its way they want to pack the Supreme Court.

It's decided by Congress how many Supreme Court Justices there are.

When the SCOTUS votes out Roe v. Wade the left cries foul and looks for ways to overturn the vote.

It's a government of checks and balances.

Seems like some folks don't want to follow the Constitution anymore.

Somehow some folks have forgotten it's a three prong form of government.

Not one. Not two. But three. And they all have the same amount of power.

Editor's Notebook

Definition of checks and balances: a system that allows each branch of a government to amend or veto acts of another branch so as to prevent any one branch from exerting too much power.

For those of you needing a civics lesson, here are three examples of the checks and balances system.

The House of Representatives votes to impeach the President, but the Senate votes that the President has lawfully upheld office. ...

The legislative branch votes to pass a new bill. ...

The judicial branch finds the new law to be unconstitutional through a Supreme Court ruling.

It's in the Constitution.

By definition: a body of fundamental principles or established precedents according to which a state or other organization is acknowledged to be governed.

Stop the hate.

I personally don't like everything that is done in Washington D.C. but when it goes south of my way of thinking I don't protest, riot, burn businesses or throw things through windows.

Many do, however, and it is a miserably shameful situation. Stop the hate.

The signs of a scam

By Dusty Ricks,
Manager/CEO
Rural Electric Cooperative

It is no secret consumers with a water, gas or electricity connection have long been targets for utility scam. However, fraudsters have changed their tactics since the Covid-19 pandemic.

As consumers became more reliant on technology for work, school and commerce, scammers noted these shifts and adapted their tactics to this changed environment.

Imposter scams are the number one type of fraud reported to the Federal Trade Commission. While scam artists may come to your door posing as a utility worker who works for the "power company," in today's more connected world, attempts are more likely to come through an electronic device, via email, phone or text.

A scammer may claim you are overdue on your electric bill and threaten to disconnect your service if you do not pay immediately.

Whether this is done in person, by phone, text or email, the scammers want to scare you into immediate payment so you do not have time to think clearly.

If this happens over the phone, simply hang up. If you are concerned about your bill, call us at 405-756-3104. Our phone number can also be found on your monthly bill and on our website, www.recok.coop.

If the scam is by email or text, delete it before taking any action. If you are unsure, you can always contact us at 405-756-3104, or use Smart Hub to check the status of your account.

Some scammers may falsely claim you have been overcharged on your bill and say they want to give you a refund. It sounds easy. All you have to do is click or press a button to initiate the process.

If you proceed, you will be prompted to provide banking or other personal information.

Instead of money going into your bank account, the scammers can drain your account and use personal information such as a social security number for identity theft.

If this "refund" scam happens over the phone, just hang up and block the phone number to prevent future robocalls. If this scam attempt occurs via email (known as "phishing" attempt) or by text ("smishing"), do not click any links.

Instead, delete it and if possible, block the sender. If you do overpay on your electric bill, REC will automatically apply the credit to your next billing cycle. When in doubt, contact us.

Be wary of calls or texts from unknown numbers. Be suspicious of an unknown person claiming to be a utility worker who requests banking or other personal information.

Never let anyone into your home you do not know unless

Decision overturned

Dear Editor:
The SCOTUS has struck down Roe v. Wade and I cannot think of a better way to end "pride month."

Without a doubt the decision of January 22, 1973 was the most immoral atrocity handed down by that court. In almost 50 years we have killed more than 62,000,000 innocent babies. May God forgive us of our stupidity as a nation. Let us commend the decision of June 24, 2022.

Let your mind go back to the 1973 decision. Norma McCorvey was the "Jane Roe" whose lawsuit led to the 1973 ruling.

"Norma McCorvey admitted to columnist Carl Rowan that her gang-rape story was a fabrication to bolster her legal claim... McCorvey said she became pregnant 'though what I thought was love'..." (U. S. News and World Report, September 21, 1987, page 13).

The word "fabrication" is a fancy word for "lie." That means that our nation, for 35 years, knew the 1973 decision was based on a lie!

Infanticide was a common practice in heathen nations. They sacrificed newborn babies to their idols. America, for almost 50 years has killed infants while in the mother's womb. One of the saddest sights I have even seen is hundreds of women, parading to demand their "right" to kill their children.

President Ronald Reagan rightfully proclaimed, "Our nation's wide policy of abortion on demand was neither voted on by our people nor enacted by our legislators...It was an act of raw judicial power."

More important, God declared, "I have set before you life and death, the blessing and the curse. Choose life, then, that you and your descendants may live." (Deuteronomy 30:19).

Those who uphold and participate in abortions will answer to a higher power than SCOTUS ever imagined!

Growing Oklahoma captive industry

By Oklahoma Insurance Commissioner Glen Mulready

Oklahoma is a great place to do business. As one of the fastest-growing domiciles for captives in the country, the Oklahoma Insurance Department (OID) is attracting more and more companies to do business here.

A captive insurance company provides great flexibility to business owners who want to take control of their insurance programs. Captives exist to underwrite the risk of their owner(s) and affiliates.

Between 2017 and 2021, Oklahoma's captive premium volume increased significantly, rising to $214.4 million in 2021, up from $147.3 million in 2017.

Oklahoma now has 40 licensed captives—more than one-third of these were issued during my first two years in office.

In 2019 and 2020, captives domiciled in Oklahoma generated over $1 million in premium taxes to help fund public safety pensions and the state's general revenue fund.

With OID's supportive, efficient regulatory platform, companies of various industries around the country recognize Oklahoma as a highly competitive jurisdiction.

To help Oklahoma continue to be the hub of innovation and technology, OID is hosting its first Oklahoma Captive & Insurance Business Transfer (IBT) Conference on August 24-25 at the Omni Oklahoma City Hotel.

This two-day conference will address new and emerging risks facing companies and organizations worldwide.

We'll bring together subject matter experts to share insights on captive insurance and IBTs and educate stakeholders on the benefits of these cutting-edge mechanisms. This conference will demonstrate how captives can offer solutions that may not be available in the traditional insurance marketplace.

It's the first in-person conference we are hosting since the COVID-19 pandemic.

I'm excited to showcase Oklahoma's endless possibilities to risk managers, business owners, regulators, financial executives and insurance professionals.

Budget break down

By Sen. Roger Thompson

While education makes up the lion’s share of Oklahoma’s budget, health and human services represents the second largest category.

This week, I want to break down some of the important appropriations we’ve made in the Fiscal Year 2023 budget, along with funds we’ve utilized through the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) to improve health in Oklahoma.

One of the most impactful budget decisions made in the 2022 legislative session was our vote to completely eliminate the state’s 13-year waiting list for developmental disability services. For years we’d given modest increases as we were able, of $2 million or so, but frankly it simply was not enough.

Last year, for the first time ever, Oklahoma began conducting a complete assessment of how many people were still waiting for services and what it would take to completely eliminate the waitlist. As a result, we appropriated $32.5 million, which will enable us to serve all 5,000 on the waiting list within the next 18 to 24 months.

We’ve also increased provider rates to ensure we’ll have the services necessary to meet this critical need. This is going to be life changing for thousands of Oklahomans and their families for years to come.

The need to improve access to mental health services was something that became even more pronounced throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. We’ve included $700,000 for operations costs for the Cohen Military Family Clinic in Lawton. This funding will in turn enable the Cohen Veterans Network to expand their services in Oklahoma and serve even more veterans.

We’ve also increased funding for children’s mental health services, something that’s been so difficult to find that some families have been forced to go out of state for help. We took an important step last year with a $9.9 million appropriation.

We added an additional $9.9 million this year and included $7.5 million in ARPA funds toward building additional space for children’s behavioral medicine at Oklahoma Children’s Hospital and we will continue to put money into that.

We added $2 million for children in custody of the Department of Human Services to help ensure availability of services for some of the state’s most acutely ill youths.

The budget also includes $3.5 million for the first year’s cost of a three-year plan to add 80 beds at the Vinita Forensic Center, another crucial step toward improving availability of mental health care.

Of course, our nurses have been on the front lines of Oklahoma’s health care for years. We were already facing shortages in this profession before the pandemic. Many have since left nursing altogether.

The budget includes $3.5 million for retention and pay raises for nurses at state agencies, including those at the State Department of Health and our veterans centers.

We also invested $1.8 million at the University of Oklahoma to admit more students to their nursing program. We’ve added over $60 million in ARPA funds in higher education and CareerTech to further increase the number of nurses in the pipeline.

Last year, following a vote of the people to expand Medicaid in Oklahoma, we began funding that expansion, with a price tag of about $164.8 million. Knowing available federal monies can fluctuate, we also created a Federal Medical Assistance Percentage (FMAP) savings account.

That decision really paid off this year after we saw a $30 million reduction in federal funds, which are based on each individual state’s economy. When a state’s economy expands, the federal funds are reduced.

That’s what happened to Oklahoma this year, but because we’d begun this special savings account a couple of years ago, we were able to fill in that gap without diverting money from other programs or reducing payments to providers.

These efforts and other reforms enacted this session are all aimed at improving health outcomes for Oklahomans.

This year, we partnered with the Cherokee Nation and private entities to expand the optometry program at Northeastern State University in Tahlequah. This school trains most of the optometrists we have in Oklahoma, as well as those now practicing in surrounding states.

Our state was able to utilize $15 million in ARPA funding as part of this important cooperative effort to improve eye care.

Another area of concern dealing with health care in Oklahoma was pointed out to me by a citizen from Durant who contacted our office, and that’s our emergency medical services (EMS).

Rural ambulances are so important. I realize in our metropolitan areas, they may have agreements with cities or counties, but for rural Oklahoma, finding a way to fund EMS can be a struggle. While EMS services are not a part of our state budget, I believe they need to be a part of our conversation.

I’ve visited with people in my own district about this issue and I’ve talked to our federal delegation about possible resources for EMS—it’s something I’m going to look at during the health care.

When you look at health care, it’s important to remember that the better the health of our citizens, the better their lives are, and that impacts all of us. Better health outcomes result in a better quality of life and greater productivity. It absolutely impacts our state’s economy and revenues.

I’m proud of the work we’ve done this year to better address a spectrum of health care needs in Oklahoma. It may not be all that we need to do, but I can tell you it’s a great start.

News from District 42

• Rep. Cindy Roe •

SCOTUS overturns Roe v. Wade

On Friday, June 24, the news that millions of Americans have anxiously been awaiting was finally handed down: the U.S. Supreme Court has overturned Roe v. Wade and states now have full authority on abortion laws.

I am thrilled at this news and am overjoyed at the right to life. Many legislators and Oklahomans, including myself, across the state have been working toward and praying for this day.

In 2021, I authored House Bill 1904, which required all abortions performed within the state to be performed by an OBGYN. I carried this bill to limit the number of abortions that could be performed within our state until Roe was overturned.

The Oklahoma Legislature had previously passed a “trigger law” to outlaw abortion within the state if Roe v. Wade was overturned. The law went into effect last Friday once the Attorney General certified the decision, making abortion illegal in the state except to save the life of the mother.

I am very proud to live in a state that values life at all stages, and I hope each Oklahoman steps up to support these women.
Helping our neighbors is one of the many things that sets apart Americans, and our willingness to help those in need is something I deeply love about our country.

As we celebrate Independence Day, I’ve been reflecting on what I believe makes our country the greatest in the world.

246 years ago, the seeds were planted for a democratic government that, until July 4, 1776, was just a theory. Since then, each generation has fought to protect our freedoms and pass them onto their children and grandchildren. Let’s remember that these freedoms were gained through immense sacrifice.

I hope you celebrate safely and take the opportunity to thank a service member for their sacrifice to protect the incredible freedoms we can enjoy in the United States!

As always, please reach out with any questions or thoughts you would like to share. You may reach me at (405) 557-7365 or cynthia.roe@okhouse.gov. Thank you for the honor of serving House District 42!
Rep. Cynthia Roe, a Republican, serves District 42 in the Oklahoma House of Representatives, which covers Garvin and McClain Counties.

Composting directly in the garden

Melinda Myers
The Purcell Register

Don't toss those imperfect lettuce leaves, onion tops and strawberry tops into the trash. Instead, convert them into compost right in the garden.

Worm and pile composting are great ways to manage these scraps. But if these methods aren't for you, try trench composting.

This centuries old technique is low effort and effective. The process is basically invisible, eliminates the need to turn a pile of plant debris, requires minimal space and doesn't smell.

Simply dig a 12-inch-deep trench between the rows of vegetables, in the pathway, or in any vacant spot in the garden. Be careful not to damage the plant roots.

Add about four to six inches of kitchen scraps, mix with soil and cover with at least eight inches of soil that you removed from the hole. Covering with this much soil helps prevent animals from digging. Repeat until the trench is filled with plant debris and covered in soil.

Just like other composting methods, use plant-based materials only. Do not add meat, dairy and fat that can attract animals and rodents.

And this is no place for perennial weeds like quackgrass, annual weeds gone to seed, or invasive plants that can survive the composting and take over the garden.

You can also trench compost one hole at a time. Just dig a hole in a vacant space in the garden, toss in the materials, mix, and cover with soil. I grew up with this method.

After dinner or once we had a bowl full of kitchen scraps, we were sent to the garden to dig a hole, dump, and cover.

For those that want to rotate plantings as well as compost, you may want to try one of these two methods. Plant in wide rows and trench compost in the pathway.

Next year, move the garden to the path location and make last year's garden the path. You will be rotating your plantings while improving the soil.

Or designate separate adjacent areas for planting, paths, and composting. Next year, rotate so last year's composting area becomes garden, the garden becomes the path, and the path is the new section for trench composting. In three years, you will have rotated crops and improved the soil in all three areas.

Start by contacting your local municipality to make sure there are no restrictions on any type of composting.

Then get out the shovel and dig your way to healthier soil and a more productive garden.

Lifetime Volunteer of the Year

Carpenter named State 4-H Lifetime Volunteer of the Year

Trisha Gedon
Extension Educator

It wasn't until her children showed an interest in 4-H that Rayanne Carpenter began to learn more about the youth development organization – and she's been learning ever since.

After her middle child was active in the organization for about three years, Carpenter decided she needed to fully invest herself and became a volunteer leader. Now, nearly a dozen years later, Carpenter continues to volunteer with the Blanchard 4-H Club in McClain County where she leads the Cloverbuds.

Her dedication to the organization was recognized recently when she was named the 2022 State 4-H Lifetime Volunteer of the Year at the 4-H Parent/Volunteer Conference at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater. This award is presented to volunteer leaders with 10 or more years of service. She was also recognized as the Southeast District Lifetime Volunteer of the Year and the McClain County Lifetime Volunteer of the Year.

"When my daughter joined 4-H, I didn't really know much about Extension or the organization, but after seeing how she was learning and growing, I decided I needed to be involved," Carpenter said. "I became a certified volunteer, then later became a volunteer leader."

Even though her own children have aged out of the program, Carpenter said she continues to volunteer her time and talents because she knows the values 4-H teaches its members.

"4-H'ers learn so much more beyond their specific projects.

They build on those skills they're going to use throughout their lives, such as getting up, setting goals, dressing appropriately for the occasion or sewing on a button," she said. "It's just fun to see them grow up, go to college and become successful, solid citizens."

Emily Taylor, 4-H educator in the McClain County OSU Extension office, said Carpenter is always open to new ideas and willing to help wherever needed to ensure the success of the program.

"Rayanne is someone members and other volunteers look up to as a 4-H volunteer. She is a person others go to for ideas and feedback for their own clubs," Taylor said. "She brings such a positive attitude to everything she does."

Carpenter is the president of the volunteer council in McClain County. She also oversees the concession stand at the McClain County Spring Livestock Show.

Carpenter, a teacher and school librarian for Blanchard Public Schools, said she uses 4-H curriculum not only in her 4-H club but also with her students. She said the research-based information comes from universities and all the lessons are enthusiastic and well done.

"No matter what, using 4-H curriculum to teach children is a good thing," she said.

Hunter Haxton, former McClain County 4-H'er, said Carpenter is an outstanding professional, mentor and teacher.

"For several years, she has been among the most visible proponents of education and fundraising for McClain County 4-H. She's been out in front teaching members and volunteers alike," Haxton said. "Because of her love for teaching, she brings so much to the 4-H program and makes learning fun for all, whether we're learning a new STEM project or preparing for an upcoming competition."

Carpenter said she would encourage other parents with children new to 4-H to consider becoming a volunteer leader.

"It's amazing to watch your club members grow up and go do great things in life, and that can be attributed to 4-H," she said. "I'm glad I get to be a part of that."

Dale K. Graham Veterans Foundation

I hope all of you were able to enjoy the Independence Day holiday with friends or family.

On Saturday July 2, I celebrated my 75th birthday. It didn't seem like such a big deal until one of our veterans called me to say Happy Birthday and welcome to the 4th quarter of life. I had never thought about life being broken down into quarters until he called. After thinking about that, he is right in many ways. Guess I will just continue keeping busy helping veterans and their families, keeping busy is probably one of the reasons I made it to this fourth quarter of life.

Maybe it's time for you to join our team of men and women who are making a difference in the lives of veterans. The reason so many veterans come from all 50 states and 14 foreign countries for assistance with their VA claims is our volunteers who understand what evidence VA requires to service connect a new disability or to increase a current disability rating.

We will be accepting clients at our intake event July 11 both in person and digital who have questions or would like to start a claim for VA benefits. In person start time will be at 8 a.m. at our location at 1233 West Lindsay in Norman with digital start time at 8 a.m. also. We plan to accept everyone who signs up at that day.

Veterans and Surviving spouses can stop by Monday thru Friday to upload their records and evidence to our intake system. Our staff will be available to assist with this process.

We are a 501c-3 non-profit organization and there is never a charge for the services we provide to veterans and their families. We do accept financial contributions to be used to support veterans and this organization.

We also accept donations of wheelchairs and other types of handicap equipment that can be given to other veterans or their families. Other items that we accept are cars, trucks, motorcycles, or items that can be given to veterans or sold to raise funds.

We are open to active clients Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon each day.

To donate to our Foundation, you can do so online at dalekgrahamveteransfoundation.org or mail a check to Dale K. Graham Veterans Foundation, 1233 West Lindsay, Norman, OK, 73069. You can contact us on our website or by calling 405-550-8806.

Pauls Valley Opry

Michael Webb will be one of the featured performers at the next Pauls Valley Opry Saturday, August 6. The show begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Pauls Valley Junior High School auditorium.

Pauls Valley Opry has fantastic evening

What a night at the July edition of the Pauls Valley Opry! It may have been hot outside but it was smokin' on stage!

Chandler Elliott is one of the nicest young men who we know and does an excellent job with the videos, but you found out last night (if you didn't already know), he is a spectacular musician and entertainer.

Chandler took us back to the roots of rock & roll with the Chuck Berry tunes of "Johnny B Goode" & "No Particular Place to Go."

Cathy Lake is an awesome vocalist, excellent musician and songwriter, too. Saturday night was no exception. Cathy rocked the house with the Terri Clark version of "Poor Pitiful Me" and her Texas roots came out with the Patty Loveless hit, "Tear-Stained Letter," making us want to two-step across the auditorium.

Gunner Shi Donham is truly an exceptional artist, melting the ladies' hearts with the Garth Brooks hit, "That Summer." He knocked it out of the park with his version of the Reba McEntire hit, "Why Not Tonight?"

Hall of Fame Member, Missy Rude swept us away with the Shania Twain megahit, "Whose Bed Have Your Boots Been Under?" Then she showed us how the "blues" are to be sung with the Annie Lennox tune, "I Put a Spell on You."

Anne Young is the most awarded performer in the history of the Pauls Valley Opry, being chosen as Female Vocalist of the Year, five out of the last six years and inducted into the Hall of Fame in 2021. Whenever she ventures back towards home from the Lone Star State, we know that we are all in for a treat.

Anne knocked it through the uprights with "Blue Side of Town" and she absolutely blew us away with Little Big Town's hit of "Girl Crush."

The "Gentle Giant of the Pauls Valley Opry," Wiley Winters is soft-spoken, but when he steps up to a mic to sing, the heart of a lion comes out! Wiley cut loose on the Garth Brooks hit, "Two of a Kind" and we couldn't stay still. Backstage, even the guests were dancing up a storm!

Wiley brought the house down with "An American Trilogy" backed up by the entire cast. Everyone was out of their seats and it was truly a moment that we will always remember.

Emcee, John Williams and the Memory Makers Band added to the night's enjoyment with a few numbers made famous by George Strait, Doobie Brothers, Patsy Cline, Mo Pitney, and Linda Ronstadt.

Please join us for the next edition which will be on Saturday, August 6, when we welcome Jae L. Stilwell, Mike Deviney, Annie Reed, John Williams, Cara Belt and Michael Webb. We'll see you at the Opry!

Zonelle Rainbolt elected as new OPA President

Zonelle Rainbolt, executive editor of Wesner Publications, took office as president of the Oklahoma Press Association July 1.

OPA members elected Rainbolt during the annual business meeting at the June 10-11 OPA Convention in Oklahoma City.

Rainbolt, who succeeds John Denny Montgomery as president, will serve a one-year term.

Rainbolt was first named to the OPA board of directors in 2017.

“I am a strong believer in a free, independent and accountable press,” Rainbolt said. “We have a responsibility to inform and must do that with accuracy and integrity.”

“Our association is an integral partner in providing vital information to Oklahoma residents by supporting our member papers and providing them with some of the tools necessary to accomplish those tasks,” she said.

Don Mecoy, managing editor of The Oklahoman, was elected vice president, and David Stringer, publisher of The Lawton Constitution, was elected treasurer.

All officers will serve a one-year term.

John Denny Montgomery, co-publisher of The Purcell Register, will serve as immediate past president. Erin Dyer Thompson, advertising director of the El Reno Tribune, was elected as a new director for a three-year term and a three-year director term for Sheila Gay, publisher of the Woodward News, was renewed.

The appointment of Mark Codner, publisher of The New-castle Pacer, to fulfill the final year of a three-year director term also was approved.

Other directors are Shauna Belyeu, general manager of The Eufaula Indian Journal; Suzie Campbell, publisher of the Countywide & Sun; and Misti Rinehart, advertising director for the Tulsa World.

With passage of revisions to OPA’s membership categories, Rainbolt said she “hopes to work this year to encourage our current members and provide information to publications, businesses and individuals who now qualify for OPA membership.”

Rainbolt, a longtime resident of Cordell, received a bachelor’s degree from Oklahoma Christian University and a Master’s of Education in Social Studies from The University of Oklahoma.

After working as a teacher, in the banking industry and as a small business owner, she joined the staff of The Cordell Beacon where she served as editor for more than 20 years.

When she left that position, she was named executive editor for Wesner Publications, which owns The Beacon and several other newspapers.

Rainbolt, who is a mother and grandmother, is married to Charles, an attorney. They reside in Cordell.

Aaron and Brandee Criswell had the family out to the Fourth of July celebration at Purcell Lake Friday. Large crowds took advantage of the entertainment to start the holiday weekend.

Machete attack

A Purcell man is charged with two felonies after allegedly attacking his son with a machete.

Bond for Clemente Garcia, 50, was set at $100,000 on the charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and maiming.

His preliminary hearing conference will be at 9 a.m. July 20,

According to an affidavit, police were called to 214 W. Comanche on June 11 to investigate a possible stabbing.

There police found Mario Garcia bleeding from a sizeable wound to his hand.

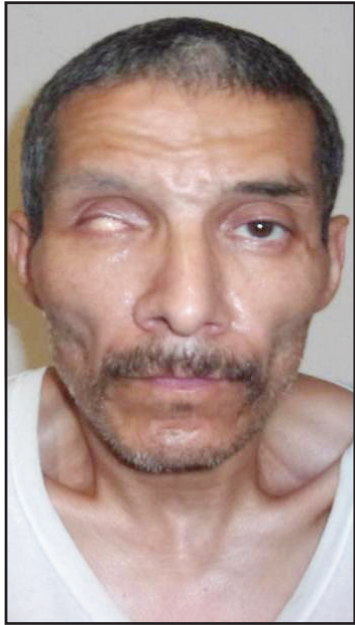

The victim and onlookers told police he was struck by his father in the house at 319 W. Comanche.

The elder Garcia was inside that house, police were told.

Police called for assistance from the McClain County Sheriff’s Department and Lighthorse Police.

As an officer entered the unlocked door, he asked Clemente Garcia to come out with his hands up.

When Garcia complied, he was arrested, according to the affidavit.

Cybersecurity and online safety

Updating friends and family on life’s milestones and sharing photos through social media platforms is fun for many people of all ages.

However, thieves and online scammers can gain access to a plethora of user information that is free for the taking.

As privacy concerns about technology arise, users of social media platforms need to make it as difficult as possible to obtain personal information from on-line media sources, according to one cybersecurity expert.

“Sharing too much information can make you an easier target for identity theft, data theft or even stalking,” Tony Barattini, Chickasaw Nation information technology security senior manager, said.

Individuals tend to act differently when meeting face-to-face with strangers or acquaintances than when engaging online. Social media users can be more forthcoming with personal details, making them vulnerable to predators.

A person should never post their date of birth, address, place of work, phone number or full name on social media sites. While this may be fun information to share with friends and family, this sensitive data can also be used in identity theft.

“While you may already know that sharing Social Security numbers, bank accounts and passwords are a bad idea, other information such as addresses, full legal names, birthdays, and even vacation plans should be limited to those you know and trust and are best done not over social media where others may be able to see them,” Barattini said.

Cybersecurity professionals endorse a few key ways for keeping a person’s privacy and their personal well-being safe. Users with multiple social media accounts should have unique usernames for each. This makes it more difficult for people to track the user and glean information from several online sources.

People should avoid using any part of their name or address in an online username. Usernames should be simple to remember, but too hard to guess.

When setting up online accounts or sharing information publicly, be aware that everyone has access to presented materials. Text conversations, photos and profile account information are viewable by others.

“Depending on governing laws, social media can be reviewed for employment or other personal applications,” Barattini said. “Social media spans the globe and shares information at a moment’s notice.

“Even if deleted, once posted, the information is never truly gone and can be retrieved by others. Additionally, social media services make significant revenue by selling data about their users. The information posted online about yourself and others is not just for the benefit of your followers, it is also the social media company’s product,” Barattini said.

Sharing physical locations on social media may also be dangerous. Criminals may be able to locate someone by merely glancing at their social media account.

Social media can share where a person is and also where they are not. Social media posts and pictures allow potential burglars the ability to know when a person or family is on an extended holiday or business trip, allowing plenty of time to steal from a home.

“It’s a good idea to turn off GPS locations for any application that you don’t explicitly want locations on for,” Barattini said “Geotagging can indicate location data on where photos were taken. This might give away information about where you might keep prized possessions that you’ve taken pictures of and shared for others to see.”

Most people allow the camera located on their smart devices the ability to store GPS locations of where the photos were taken.

Even if a person does not share the location in a social media post, the data saved within the photo can be extracted with the right software.

Cybersecurity professionals recommend people protect their privacy by disabling this feature on smart devices.

“While some social media sites strip geotagging from the version of the photos viewed from their site, others retain geotagging information for other purposes such as selling data,” Barattini said.

Green Avenue Church of Christ

We enjoyed our 5th Wednesday singing last week and we are looking forward to beginning our studies in 2 Thessalonians this coming week. Why don't you put it on your calendar to begin this study with us?

Our Sunday morning Bible study began a new section of our Modern Issues series entitled "Life and Death." This series begins with a comprehensive Bible examination of the principles of life and death and later it will be addressing the subjects of euthanasia, abortion, suicide, capital punishment and much more.

Keith Shackelford brought a sermon Sunday morning based on Romans 4:3 and the statement that Abraham "believed God." He highlighted that there is a difference in believing in God versus believing God. It is vital that we believe in God, and so Hebrews 11:6 and John 14:1 were discussed.

This faith, he said, should develop into believing God when He speaks. Keith asked, for example, if we really believe God when He tells us how things were created or do we think evolution is the truth; and do we really believe God when He says how He will bring the world to its sudden end or if we think men will destroy it slowly; and, do we really believe God when He tells us how to be saved or do we think there are several ways to obtain it?

The sermon ended by showing what belief in and believing God can actually accomplish from Romans 4, 5, 6.

Sunday evening our sermon came from 2 Chronicles 12:7 and the statement "I will grant them some deliverance." This was the story of Rehoboam, son of Solomon, and his power-hungry failures in his first few years of being king (2 Chr. 10 - 12).

Because he forsook God's law, the law of his civil and religious society, God brought the king of Egypt against him who captured many cities and took away many prized possessions. God intended to allow Egypt to completely overthrow him but Rehoboam and his leaders humbled themselves before God. For this the Lord gave him a little break ("some deliverance") and the punishment was modified but not removed.

Application of this story was made to any civic leadership which makes it hard on their own people. It was also pointed out that when people do turn away from the law their only recourse is to repent or they will perish too.

We invite you to meet with us for Bible study at 7 p.m. Wednesday night and 9:45 a.m. Sunday and our worship services on Sundays are 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Bible correspondence courses are available, call 527-4052.

Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church

By Stella Bledsoe

July 10, 2022 is the fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time. During Ordinary Time, the Gospel focuses on the teachings and miracles of Christ during his time on earth.

Nearly two years ago, I volunteered to write this column. Not wanting to write "the end" at the end of the articles, I sought a short but appropriate closing. I chose "peace be with you."

The Oxford dictionary defines peace as "a situation or a period of time in which there is no war or violence in a country or area."

Merriam-Webster is a bit more wordy: 1) a state of tranquility from civil disturbance such as freedom from civil disturbance or a state of security within a community provided for by law or custom; 2) freedom from disquieting or oppressive thoughts or emotions; 3) harmony in personal relations; or 4) a state or period of mutual concord between governments or a pact or agreement to end hostilities between those who have been at war or in a state of enmity.

In John 14:27, Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you. My peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your heart be troubled or fearful."

The peace of God, "which transcends all understanding," is the harmony and calmness of body, mind, and spirit that supersedes earthly circumstances. Throughout scripture, we find that peace is defined as a blessing from God and harmonious with His character.

So, if we are tempted to say, "there will never be peace," we must remember that there is external peace and internal peace. External, or worldly, peace is temporary. Even Jesus said there will always be wars and rumors of wars. The peace Jesus gives us is eternal and transcends our circumstances.

During Mass, "peace be with

James and Pam Kyzer sang "I'm Living in Canaan Now" for the morning special. Brother John Boyd brought the message which focused on "The Peace from God."

We need to do what we can to manifest Christ in our lives. To find peace we should go to church and read the Word, asking God to give encouragement when we read. We should meditate and become conversational in the Word.

Satan constantly attacks and brings up our past. He wants to destroy the church. Only Jesus through the Holy Spirit can defeat Satan and bring peace to our life.

Brother Dennis Clark will be filling our pulpit this coming Sunday. We will have our quarterly business meeting, followed by snacks at our evening service beginning at 5 p.m.

You are always welcome at Sunray Baptist Church.

Good week to all: Welcome to the "front porch"!

Years ago, one of my good English-teaching friends introduced me to an idea she called "Good stuff." 'Ms. Burnette' would have students bring items in a paper sack that the kids considered things of value. That idea grew into just always looking for 'good stuff,' good ideas, inspirational moments, wherever you go.

One story we ran across about this time, oh, there are a hundred more, I know, was about a young man who wanted knowledge. The eager boy's story quickly went into our "good stuff" file.

The young man goes to his teacher one day and asks if he would give him knowledge. The teacher said he would see what he could do, but that he would need the young man to meet him down at the nearby river that evening.

The request perplexes the boy, but he obeys, nonetheless, and meets his teacher down at the river a little while before the sun goes down. The teacher takes the puzzled boy by the arm as soon as he comes to him and leads him out into the river chest deep.

He stops there, takes the boy by the back of the neck, and dunks him in the water for a good 10, 15 seconds. He finally pulls the boy up, just for a moment so he can get a little bit of a breath, then dunks him again the second time, then the third. When the boy comes up out of that water after that third dunking, he is sputtering and gasping for air, and he cries out, "Sir, I need air! I need air!"

The teacher waits until the boy catches his breath, at least somewhat, and says to him calmly, "Son, when you want knowledge the way you just now wanted air, then come back and see me."

Then the teacher walked out of the water and went on his way, leaving the young man in the middle of the river to ponder the lesson on his own.

I'm sure the student learned his lesson, even if he had to learn it the hard way. It is one thing to want knowledge, and it is another thing altogether to thrive, yearn, and long for it. It is not until we become desperate for truth, and knowledge, and righteousness that we will take the steps necessary to achieve them. We have to want it the way we want air!

Many years ago, Jesus, much like the teacher of that story, stood in front of one of the first crowds He would face, and He teaches that very same lesson,

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness," He says, "for they shall be filled." In other words, you have to want to be righteous more than you want popularity, wealth, or, say, a brand-new car. You understand.

I've had similar talks to my basketball players from years

You see, if you want to be good at something, I mean, really good, you’ve got to hunger and thirst for it. The same goes for desiring to be ‘good’ with the Lord.

The Lord could have told the crowd that day, “When you want to be right with the Lord the way you’d want air when you can’t breathe – well, then come back and see Me.”

I still think that old story is ‘good stuff.’ Now I just need to walk out of the water and live it. coachbowen1984@gmail.com

Torch fuel poisoning danger

Using torches for your yard and patio is decorative and may help keep the mosquitoes away, but even a few drops of torch fuel introduced into the airway can produce severe chemical pneumonia.

Safe handling and storage can prevent serious injuries from happening. Torch fuel, sometimes called torch oil, comes in variety of containers and sizes.

Once poured, the fuel looks similar to apple and other fruit juices. Store these products away from drinks, coolers, and snacks that children can access at campsite or picnic area.

According to Scott Schaeffer, managing director of the Oklahoma Center for Poison and Drug Information, “Hydrocarbons, including torch fuel and charcoal lighter fluid, can coat the lungs and create serious respiratory problems. These exposures are most common among young children who can easily mistake these products for drinks.

“Injury including chemical pneumonitis, respiratory distress and death is possible following aspiration,” he said.

Petroleum-based products including gasoline and other hydrocarbons can produce similar health effects.

The symptoms of hydrocarbon poisoning may include difficulty breathing, persistent cough, low grade fever, chest pain and lethargy. If an exposure occurs act quickly.

Don’t make a fatal mistake:

- Do not put poisons into food containers.

- Put the child-resistant cap firmly back in place after using torch fuel or similar products.

- Always keep these products in their original container up and away from children.
- Store these products away from food and drinks.

- Don’t leave children unattended with torch fuel or similar products.

Shots fired

Two bullets hit fleeing truck

JeanneGrimes
The Purcell Register

A verbal altercation escalated into gunfire and now an Elmore City man stands charged with two counts of assault and battery with a deadly weapon.

The charges against Hunter Cornelius, 23, were filed in McClain County District Court.

Cornelius was freed after posting $50,000 bond. His preliminary hearing conference will be at 9 a.m. August 31.

According to an affidavit, the incident occurred at 17278 State Highway 24.

Two co-workers told a deputy sheriff they were visiting Cornelius when he became angry.

When the co-workers intervened, Cornelius redirected his anger at them and ordered them to leave the property.

According to the affidavit, Cornelius went into the house and came out with a handgun.

As the men ran to a truck, Cornelius reportedly began firing into the air.

It wasn’t until later that the men noticed two bullet holes in the truck. One was above the rear window on the passenger side and the other was in the passenger side rear door.

Lessons from France

As I am sitting on my balcony of a boat traveling down the Mosel River in Germany, passing picturesque villages founded before Christopher Columbus was even born, I am in awe of this place with its castles and massive churches.

While I am having a dream vacation, I am also thinking upon what the history of this region can teach. As you know, I believe history is here for us to learn from, and while I was spending a few days in Paris, eating some amazing food, I have realized how part of France’s history may be mirroring our own right now.

When we were making plans for Paris, I was excited to spend some time looking around the city and visiting the historic sites. As I made a list of the things I wanted to see, there were the normal attractions, the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, and the Grand Entrance. As an American historian, I was interested in the history of the two World Wars, but I am also interested in the French Revolution.

When you teach early American history, you end up teaching a great deal of European history, and the French Revolution played a part in shaping that history. Knowing this, there were a few sites I wanted to see like the Palace at Versailles and the Bastille.

Yet to my surprise, the Bastille no longer stands. It turns out it was destroyed by the new revolutionary government because of what it stood for, and it was not the only structure to suffer damage from a new regime.

If I ranked world revolutions in terms of radicalness, the French Revolution makes the top of the list. The American Revolution, which is on the other end of the spectrum, was a top-down revolution that replaced British nobility with an elected American nobility. The French Revolution was a bottom-up revolution that turned every aspect of French society, culture, and politics on its ear.

The revolution began from an economic downturn after financing the American Revolution. In 1789 the people, who were struggling to feed their families as well as lacking basic human rights, rose in protest as the Estes General became the National Assembly and the people stormed the Bastille, releasing the political prisoners within.

Later the King and Queen were put on trial and their heads were removed from their bodies as were the vast majority of the noble class of France. Eventually the Bastille suffered the same fate as the noble class as it was destroyed because of its symbolism of the monarchy.

Unfortunately, the Bastille was not the end of the destruction. In 1793, the same year Queen Maria Antoinette lost her head, the people got caught up in a frenzy and moved on the most sacred site in Paris, the Cathedral of Notre Dame. On the front of the Cathedral were 28 statues of Jewish kings from the Bible and beyond. Yet the masses in their righteous indignation and ignorance assumed the Kings were French kings and tore them down and cut off their heads as they had done with the real royalty.

I am not arguing that the people did not have the right to be upset. The French people had been under absolute control for too long and had the right to hate everything associated with the monarchy, yet what did this act accomplish? The monarchy was just as dead with or without the destruction.

Even though the monuments were gone, it did not stop the French people from falling into chaos with the “Reign of Terror.” What happened instead was the destruction of a sacred structure and the elimination of an important piece of history which is celebrated today in France with Bastille Day. The actual object is not around to experience and learn from.

Now consider the experience at the next stop on my trip. When we left Paris and boarded ships, the first town we visited was Trier, an ancient Roman city and oldest city in what is today Germany. In 1818 Karl Marx was born in Trier. With his publication of the Communists Manifesto, he changed economic and political theory forever, especially after the Russian Communists Revolution. Understand that Germany has no love lost for communism.

The German Fascists and the Communist Russians killed each other by the hundreds of thousands in WWII. After the War, the Communists kept East Germany under their authoritarian control for decades. Yet it is impossible to deny Marx’s importance to history, for good or bad. On the 200th anniversary of his birth, Trier decided to hold a celebration.

When the Chinese government heard about the celebration,

OMRF experts offer tips to make a hot summer a healthy one

July always brings Oklahoma’s hottest days, and the National Weather Service predicts temperatures this year will be well above average.

Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation experts recommend preparing for the sizzling month and making the most of those long summer days.

Drink up!

“Dehydration is more than getting thirsty,” said OMRF immunologist Linda Thompson, Ph.D. “It can make many of the body’s processes, like the immune system, run inefficiently. Drink plenty of water, especially when spending time in the heat or drinking sugary or alcoholic beverages.”

Spacing out other drinks with a full glass of water is a good start to avoid the dizziness, exhaustion and dryness that comes with too little hydration.

“If you wait until you’re thirsty to drink water, you’ve waited too long,” Thompson said.

Get tested

Keep Covid-19 precautions in mind when choosing summer activities.

“Surges have happened in the last two summers, and it looks like the same is happening again this year,” said OMRF physician-scientist Hal Scofield, M.D.

Transmission risk is lower outside, so take advantage of the sunny season by gathering outdoors when possible. If you notice any cold-like symptoms, take a test.

“Thankfully, illnesses have been getting less severe, but the virus is still highly infectious,” Scofield said. “We need to continue protecting ourselves with the tools we have.”

Lather, rinse, reapply

Sunscreen is not optional when spending time outdoors to avoid short-term burns and long-term damage.

“Average UV levels peak in July and remain high all summer,” said Thompson, who holds OMRF’s Putnam City Schools Distinguished Chair in Cancer Research.

“Exposure to UV radiation leads to many forms of skin cancer, so taking steps to lower that risk is necessary. Choose a sunscreen with a suitable SPF and reapply when it wears off from time, water and sweat,” Thompson said.

Stay aware

Outbreaks of harmful bacteria and algae are more common in the warm summer months.

“The most dangerous water is warm, shallow, stagnant water, in ponds or on the edges of bigger bodies,” Scofield said. “Especially as it gets hot – making ponds warm and shallow – be careful around still water and never let it get in your nose or mouth.”

Joseph Harp employee rescues children from burning wreckage

What began as a peaceful morning of fishing turned out to be anything but that for Ronnie Rollings.

Across his farm pond, on the road in front of his Lexington farm house, was a fiery, single-car collision.

“It snapped that telephone pole completely off,” Rollings said.

It’s fortunate the Department of Corrections Construction and Maintenance Advisor was home. There was no one else around for miles.

“We immediately jumped into the golf cart and drove down there,” Rollings said. “That’s when the mother was climbing out of the vehicle. My wife asked if anyone else was inside and she said, ‘My babies’. It wasn’t going to be long before that car was engulfed in flames.”

As live power lines sparked nearby, Rollings ignored his own safety and climbed into the smoldering vehicle to rescue the babies. It wasn’t easy.

“The youngest one was upside down in a car seat,” the retired firefighter said. “By the time I got that child out and across the street the car was pretty much engulfed in flames.”

The mother and her children escaped with only minor scrapes and bruises.

“When I heard the story it really warmed my heart because heroes are everywhere,” Cleveland County Sheriff Chris Amason said. “This good citizen in Cleveland County just minding his own business one day became a hero.”

But this DOC employee says he’s no hero, just a good Samaritan doing what he’s been taught.

“We live by the Good Book. Love thy neighbor as thyself,” Rollings said. “You help out whoever you can. We are here to take care of each other. We just thank God that we were home that day.”
