we do holidays the best

The holidays are a magical time here in the Sullivan Catskills. Freshly fallen snow blankets the countryside with its splendor and our great tradition of hospitality continues today.

While the summer may be our busy season, there's no slowing down in the wintertime, with our members offering skiing, snow shoeing, snow tubing, and more winter fun!

Stay a while to really take it all in while you are cozy and warm in one of our properties. From world-class resorts to peaceful inns to home rentals, there is a lot to offer. Book your visit now and enjoy winter in the Sullivan Catskills.

Gather with friends and family and what better way to show your appreciation for loved ones than getting them a thoughtful gift. Shopping local provides many benefits to the community. Find fuzzy alpaca sweaters, locally sourced maple syrup, botanical gin made with local honey, and so much more.

This year we are excited to again present Peace, Love & Lights at Bethel Woods Center for the Arts. The drive-thru light show is truly an extravaganza with enchanting lights and dancing displays. Perfect for families, this event runs every night from November 19 through January 2. For more information visit www.bethelwoodscenter.org.

Stay tuned for annual events like Dickens on the Delaware in Callicoon and the light show at Canal Towne Emporium. Don't forget to visit our local tree farms and pick out the perfect Christmas tree.

Find delicious treats and culinary delights at the many restaurants, bakeries, cafés, and coffee shops here in the Sullivan Catskills. Pick up a pie for Thanksgiving or indulge in a Christmas dinner, our Catskill-icious cuisine is sure to please every appetite.

Make sure to follow us on Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter, and visit www.sullivancatskills.com to find all our guides and start planning your winter getaway. We wish you a wonderful holiday season.

Dickens on the Delaware in Callicoon on the Delaware

Turn back the clock and step into a Victorian Holiday Wonderland at the annual Dickens on the Delaware in Callicoon on Saturday December 11th.

This annual even showcases the retail community and businesses in the hamlet of Callicoon on the Delaware – the perfect place to do some holiday shopping. Business owners will be highlighting all their holiday wares, and are ready to dazzle visitors with some holiday spirit. The whole town will be decorated to recreate the golden days of yore, and shopkeepers will be dressed in Victorian attire.

The event lasting from 12 pm until 8 pm will include holiday markets of local artisans and seasonal treats; a holiday photo studio; caroling and live music; children's activities; free horse & buggy rides; free theater and dance performances; refreshments including hot chocolate, eggnog and spiced wine; and much more!

The honor of starting the holiday tradition of decorating Christmas trees has been claimed by Latvia, Estonia and Germany, as well as Catholic, Lutheran and pagan religions alike. And while there may be some confusion over who started the practice, we can say that there's nothing in the world quite like searching for that perfect tree

“It was built by volunteers 31 years ago,” WJFF Radio Catskill General Manager Tim Bruno said of the Jeffersonville location. The building sits back next to the Lake Jefferson dam that has powered the offices and studio with hydroelectric power since 2000.

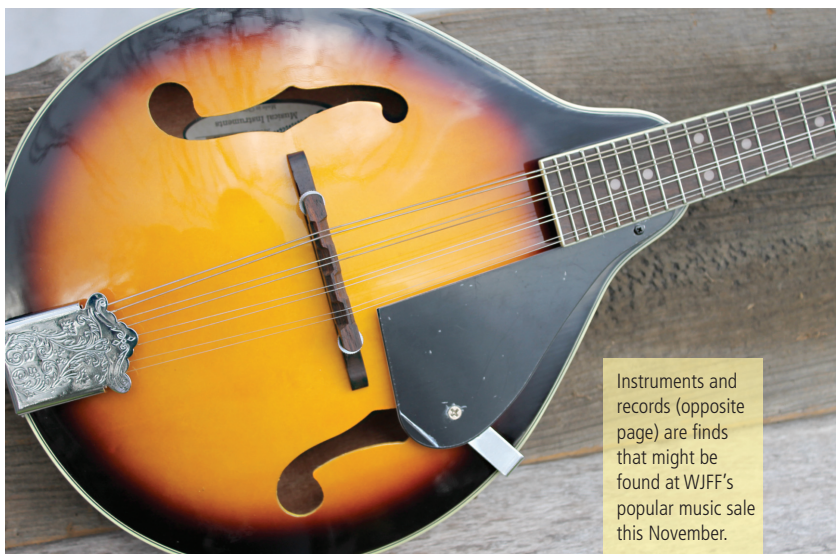

WJFF Radio Catskill provides a variety of radio content, from local programming and weekly programs, to national radio shows from NPR. Community is at the heart of WJFF and every holiday season they offer a wonderful outing for music lovers of all ages.

Looking for the perfect gift for the music lover in your life? WJFF Radio Catskills has the solution with the return of their annual Music Sale this November. The 2021 Music Sale will take place on Saturday November 27th at the White Sulphur Springs Fire Hall with admission set at $5 for a ticket, and masks will be required.

“We have 2 years’ worth of donations and we’ve got a team of guys dedicated to the music sale,” Bruno said. The annual music sale is one of three fundraisers, the other two fundraisers include the WJFF Radio Catskill Community Awards and the sales of t-shirts and tote bags. “They help us pay for the programming and the equipment.”

It’s the perfect opportunity for music lovers and collectors to find a vintage vinyl record, or shop some old music equipment including speakers, turntables and more. The annual sale includes LP's, 45's, CD's, cassettes, instruments, musical equipment and all the money helps WJFF Radio Catskill as they prepare for a big move.

While the community public radio station has called Jeffersonville home since 1990, they're looking forward to moving into their new building off Route 52 in Liberty in 2022. Their new location will offer them more space for offices, equipment, control rooms, studios, and a dedicated area for performances, events, lectures and meetings. The new location will also offer them a new digital system to work with, moving from older analog technology to a more customizable program. There's even an extra outbuilding and easier access to a radio tower on the property.

"We had planned to move the end of this year," Bruno explained. But the effects of the COVID pandemic has changed their timeline, and they're still in Phase 1 development of the new space. "We are expecting to move the end of March, beginning of April next year."

Sometimes it's hard to find the perfect gift for the holidays, but a stop at the Catskills Curated storefront will quickly ease all fears. Located at the Narrowsburg Union, the shop offers a wide variety of home goods, apparel, and personal care products all made by local makers and artisans.

"We focus on small local makers," Rebecca Crance, Business Operations Manager at the Narrowsburg Union, said. The team at Catskills Curated makes sure that the products come from the surrounding area. "We go out and do the research."

All in all Catskills Curated has over 60 makers they work with from 5 counties in the region: Sullivan, Orange & Delaware in NY, and Wayne & Pike in PA. While some of the products are from newer businesses and makers, others, like Shemanski Maple Syrup go back for generations.

"Every one of them has a story," said Kathy Weidman, co-founder and co-owner of the Narrowsburg Union with her husband Brendan. Visitors can see pictures of products on a revolving slide show in the shop, but Catskills Curated hopes to include pictures and video interviews of their makers soon.

Catskills Curated offers a wide variety of local goods in their shop from condiments & food (far left) to body care, clothing, and even local artwork (below).

Visitors and locals alike can stop by the shop to peruse their selection of snacks, coffee & teas, sauces, syrups, pasta, jams, mixes, artwork, clothing, soaps, mugs, home décor, utensils and more. If there's something you'd like to taste or try the Catskills Curated staff even offers a tasting tray of new and popular items.

products]...we'll go to shows and to farmers' markets," said Catskills Curated Store Manager Terry Breiman. "It's nice to bring back something that you can use rather than a T-shirt."

And if there's something you already love or want to discover something new, Catskills Curated offers both yearly subscription boxes that ship out 4 times a year, as well as curated gift boxes that come in varying sizes which can be sent for a variety of special occasions.

Send your childhood best friend a Catskill Summer gift box to bring back childhood memories, or your college student a self-care box from home.

"Basically, we don't tell them what they're going to get," Weiden said. Each quarterly box offers a surprise of local made items – or you can customize a box if you want.

"We do things that are seasonal and fun," Breiman added.

The Narrowsburg Union offers print, pack & ship services that allows Catskills Curated to mail out orders easily – it's also a plus for any local customers looking to ship holiday packages.

Each subscription is kind of full circle for the Weidens. Items are packed with care in a compostable box and nestled in excelsior, or wood wool, which is an eco-friendly packing material that originally brought Brendan Weiden's great-grandparents to the area. They owned a furniture business, and excelsior was used to stuff upholstered furniture. They eventually bought a mill outside of town that made the material, which the Weidens still own to this day.

"I think really what I am learning is how much talent and creativity there is in the area," Kathy Weiden said. "Hopefully we'll inspire others."

If you think those picture perfect general stores from your favorite holiday movie don't exist, then you haven't been to the Equinunk General Store yet.

Located just a short drive from the popular Jensen's Ledges hiking trail, the Equinunk General Store offers a wide variety of local products and home goods that will make your holiday meal preparation and shopping so much easier.

"I never thought food would be such a big seller," owner Jutta Bishop said. Bishop, a designer from Philadelphia and former antique dealer in Honesdale, PA, took over the General Store in 2018 from Joe Hunt. "He made me an offer I couldn't refuse. I started this and I just kept on growing."

In addition to offering breakfast sandwiches and coffee, Bishop has stocked the store with local products from the surrounding area. Bishop and Leonard “Len” Caputi make a great team working together to pick up fresh wares from 8 area farms every week. The countertop is covered with delectable pastries and baked goods available for purchase, and there’s always a stool available for those who want to stop and sip some local coffee from Black & Brass and Moka Origins.

“You’ve got everything right here so people don’t have to travel,” Bishop said. “We try to cater to everybody. I try to give a good snapshot of what everybody has locally.”

The Equinunk General Store’s shelves are packed with everything from maple syrup and honeys, to vintage cookbooks and locally made sweatshirts. Visitors can stop by to purchase sausages and meats from the Alpine Wurst

Leonard Caputi offers a wide variety of bait & tackle equipment for the experience fisherman and novice alike (left above). Looking for a little rustic charm? There's nothing like a hand woven placemat or coaster for your farmhouse table. Or pick up an accent sign or brand new cutting board perfect for home entertaining (left below). House and Catskill Cattle, frozen pies from Beach Lake Bakery, local cheeses, eggs, and ice cream. Bishop also has antiques, kitchen linens and furniture available for purchase, and there's even treats for man's best friend! The best part is most of the products carried are made within the region by local farms, companies and individuals.

"I do this for the community, I really do," Bishop said. And making sure that the products and money go back into the community is really important to her. "We shop local, you should too."

During the warmer months, the Equinunk General Store hosts a weekend BBQ from April to October, but don't worry, some of the delicious food is still frozen and available for purchase. And they post all their events, new products and other information on their Facebook page so you can always see what's new!

There is also a fantastic Bait & Tackle shop in the back of the store where Caputi offers a wide array of rods, reels and fishing gear to make Christmas a delight for any fisherman or fisherwoman! He's even got some antique pieces and is a fountain of knowledge for the novice and experienced fisherman alike.

The Equinunk General Store takes orders for holiday pies, cakes and cheese-cakes, and even curates customizable gift baskets featuring local products. Last year, Bishop put together 17 gift baskets and also offers gift cards. Or holiday shoppers can stop in and shop her vast inventory to create the perfect gift basket for their workers, loved ones, family and friends.
