Photo courtesy of Trey Spaulding A Colorado DFPC crew is shrouded in Monte Vista firefighters battled a brush fire that moved smoke as they work the fire northeast into a haystack Thursday afternoon near the Colorado State Veterans Home just east of town.

Sanford volunteer firefighters spent a couple of hours on both Thursday and Friday battling ditch fires that got away. Thursday's blaze ran across a field and into a stack of hay bales as shown. Assistance was provided by the LaJara Volunteer Fire Department and Colorado Division of Fire Prevention and Control. Monte Vista Fire also responded to a grass/hay fire just east of town on Thursday near the Colorado State Veterans Center and Alamosa Fire responded to another in East Alamosa on Wednesday evening. The San Luis Valley has been under a Red Flag Warning nearly every day recently which includes Stage 1 Fire Restrictions. Farmers and others should be extremely cautious with any outdoor burning.

Five Veterans Monument Project

MONTE VISTA—The Monte Vista Community Fund, Inc. continues its efforts to place five solid black granite military monuments in the Faith Hinkley Veteran's Memorial Park to honor veterans. Valley Monument, Inc. received the shipment of the five black granite monuments, and are in the process of compiling a list of the Killed in Action/ Prisoners of War Veterans so John Glass, owner, can inscribe the names on the stones.

The Monte Vista Community Fund, Inc. was awarded a grant

by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) in the amount of $10,000 on April 14, 2019. Funding for this project was made possible through the DAR Buckeye Valley Chapter#8039, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, located in Buckeye, Arizona and by the efforts of member, Colette Skeff, to apply for this DAR Special Projects Grant.

The support of the DA is appreciated in helping to fund this project as it is important to the success to complete the park.

Emergency daily update

Friday brought no change to the valley's COVID-19 numbers, a slight reprieve in the news. SLV Emergency, along with many of you, hope to take a bit of respite over this holiday weekend. Please continue to do your part to stop the spread of COVID-19 in order to protect those among us who are vulnerable, protect our families, and honor the health care workers who are on the front lines ready to care for our friends and neighbors. If you do spend time outdoors this weekend, wearing a mask is important. Exercise generates a heavy respiratory trail and wearing a mask reduces transmission to those who may come along behind you. Right now, staying home is the best contribution most of us can make toward our community's well-being.

Those of you who keep close tabs on the numbers being posted by the

SAN LUIS VALLEY State of Colorado may notice a slight jump in cases that reflects a catching up of some lagging statewide test reports. This is National Public Health Week. Public health as a profession is one of those fields that is easily overlooked. Like utilities or sanitation, the services provided by public health are invisible to most of us when everything is working as it should. This pandemic has thrust our public health professionals into a very public role and forced them to make some difficult and sometimes unpopular decisions in order to carry out their duty to protect the public as well as they are able. They work closely with other medical professionals. We won't be able to count how many lives they have saved by their actions. If you know someone who works in public health, take a moment to send them a note of thanks. In an ideal scenario, Colorado will get to the end of this crisis and some people will think elected officials have overreacted. In reality, they will have saved many lives. That would be the ultimate sign of success.

Trail Etiquette

ALAMOSA— The City of Alamosa Trail Network has seen a noticeable increase in usage this past month as weather warms, trails dry, and COVID-19 limits other forms of recreation. City trails can remain open to the public as long as users follow appropriate social distancing

With the increase in trail usage, we remind residents to take the following actions to promote trail stewardship.

1) Pack it in, pack it out — do not litter and pick up dog waste.

- 2) Keep your dog on a leash. Aside from designated dog parks, your dog must be on a leash at all times.
- 3) Stay on the trail. Wandering off trail impacts vegetation and wildlife habitat. 4) If you see illegal activity, report it to Alamosa Dispatch at (719) 589-5807.

5) If you encounter a trail maintenance issue, you can fill out an online form at alamosarec.org > outdoor recreation > trails.

Please do your part to keep trails open and safe for everyone. Mind the 6' social distancing rule, and bring a mask to cover up with when passing others on trails. Thank you.

OBITUARIES

Marion Ann Youngman, age 93

ALAMOSA — Marion Ann Youngman, age 93, Alamosa, passed away April 9th, 2020 after suffering a stroke.

Marion was the youngest of six children born to Otto and Mary Durheim of Ellendale, North Dakota on October 19th, 1926.

She attended high school and college in Ellendale. After teaching school for a year, she married Ralph Youngman. The family moved to Alexandria, South Dakota where she was the business manager for the Hanson County School District for 28

Marion and Ralph retired and moved to Canon City, CO. They lived in Canon City for 19 years. In 2006 Marion moved to Alamosa.

Marion loved music, especially the old hymns and organ music. She spent many hours gardening. Marion could bake the most awesome rhubarb pie and her family will miss the feisty, determined woman she

She is survived by her daughter Rita (Mario) Curto, Alamosa, son Gregory (Judith) of Pawley's Island, SC; grandchildren Jennifer (Michael) Maestas of Tualatin, OR, John (Robbie) Curto, Alamosa, Amy Zahn, Sioux Falls, SD, Judd (Dara) Youngman, Ashton, Virginia, Josh Youngman of Phoenix, AZ and Nicholas, (Mary) Youngman of New York City; eight great-grandchildren; as well as numerous nieces and nephews.

Marion was preceded in death by her parents, husband Ralph, all of her brothers and sisters, one grandson, Adam Youngman and good friend, Ron Wilson.

Cremation has been chosen and any donations can be made to the local Valley Humane League. Rogers Family Mortuary of Alamosa is in care of the arrangements. To leave online condolences or words of strength for the family, please visit www.rogersfunerals.com.

VALLEY COURIER POLICY ON OBITUARIES

The Valley Courier charges a flat fee of $30 for each obituary published. Pending arrangements or death notices are run at no charge.

This charge affects funeral homes, as well as family or other representatives, that directly place obituaries. All paid obituaries are published on our web site, www.alamosanews.com, for no additional fee.

In the event the newspaper errors in publishing an obit, corrections will be made and the obit will be rerun. If the errors are on the part of the submitting party, an additional fee will be assessed.

As the effects of the Covid-19 Pandemic continue to hit not only the United States, but the entire world, I know that it is affecting everyone's mental health. It's hard not to focus on anything but what is plaguing us. But there are still things going on that have nothing to do with Covid-19 that we still have to deal

My articles are about being safe on the roadways, and they still need to be. What we need to remember now during all of this is keeping our minds focused when driving, and believe me there is a lot on everyone's mind. So even though you may not be on the roads as much, there is still some traffic out there.

In the recent weeks, the State Patrol has seen an increase in speed, as well as cars going through stop signs without stopping to name just a couple of driving issues. Even though this may not seem as important to some since there isn't much traffic, some of the worst injury and fatal crashes I've had to investigate in my career have been where there have been only two cars on the roadway. You never want a crash, but it is especially true now. Any trip to the hospital

We do continue to pull over traffic violators. We have marked patrol cars as well as unmarked. We will most times be in uniform, but there are occasions when we will not be. Those times we're not in a uniform, we will still have a badge and ID. We will always tell you why you were stopped and are not upset if you ask to see our ID. If you ever have a doubt you have been pulled over by someone other than a true police officer take the following steps: If you have already stopped and the person is not answering basic questions to why they stopped you, what agency they work for, not offering ID, and a badge that doesn't have their agency on it, then roll your window up and call 911. Prior to stopping if you have a car with flashing lights behind you, but doesn't look quite right, slow your speed, activate your hazard lights, and call 911 to verify it is an actual police officer. Even if it is not our agency, we have the ability to check if another agency is trying to make a stop in that area. The dispatcher will direct you what to do in the situation. We can then send a law enforce-

Great Sand Dunes delays opening of Piñon Flats campground until further notice

MOSCA - Great Sand Dunes National Park and Preserve is announcing additional modifications to operations to continue to implement the latest guidance from the White House. Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC), and local and state authorities to promote social distancing. On March 24, the park announced a delay in the opening of the Piñon Flats Campground from April 1 to May 1. As of April 10, the park will delay the opening of the Pinon Flats Campground until further notice.

to delay the opening of the campground is to promote

The basis of the decision social distancing and to prevent groups of 10 or more people from forming. The current infrastructure in the campground does not allow the park to meet this guidance and would consequently place visitors and staff at greater risk. Reservations for campsites scheduled during May will be canceled, and campers will receive a full refund. Great Sand Dunes will continue to offer limited services outside those that support visitor or resource protection. Currently, the Visitor Center and Western National Parks Association (WNPA) store remain closed. Backcountry campers can obtain backcountry permits the day of their trip by calling 719-378-6395

The health and safety of our visitors, employees, volunteers, and partners is our number one priority. The National Park Service (NPS) is working with federal, state, and local authorities to closely monitor COVID-19. We will notify the public when we resume full operations and will provide updates on our website, www.nps.gov/grsa, and social media channels.

Outdoor spaces at Great Sand Dunes remain accessible to the public, 24 hours, 7 days a week and in accordance with the latest federal, state, and local health guidance, in addition to entry fees being waived for visitors.

Working on a Healthy Community

By MEG COLWELL Courier Reporter

ALAMOSA — During this pandemic, the best recommendation for the community is to shelter in place. However, when living unsheltered or lacking access to resources -- like running water -- one faces unique obstacles.

The pandemic has forced even La Puente's hygiene services to close, along with the city's. This includes the Alamosa Recreation Center showers, public park and facility restrooms, La Puente Shelter's showers and most business restrooms.

The result is an entire population of the valley who lack the resources necessary to maintain basic hygiene; much less defend themselves -- and, subsequently, the rest of the community -against COVID-19.

It is easy to set these issues aside, especially in a crisis-out of sight, out of mind. Yet, these are still members of the community and the problems they regularly face are only exacerbated by this pandemic. These folks are just as worried about COVID-19 as everyone else. The difference is, these people have had no way to defend themselves – much less isolate themselves.

Many in the community have been working hard to remedy this problem. The city, county, La Puente and others have been working together to find solutions. The City of Alamosa has been able to provide porta-potty stations at several parks and handwashing stations at select locations. Soon, they will also be opening up the seasonal restrooms behind Cole Park. Alamosa Public Health also donated hand sanitizer. Along with many others, these efforts have been made to protect the community against COVID-19.

Thanks to the faith community, one other major hygiene solution has recently unfolded. La Puente's Director of Community Education, Israel Garcia-Humes,

"La Puente is so proud of the many ways our community is coming together to support one another during this pandemic. Due to the kind and generous Alamosa Presbyterian Church members and staff, the church shower and restroom facilities will be open for public use.'

While ecstatic about this solution, Garcia-Humes reminds the community: "This effort is being bolstered by the staff of our PALS Children's Program. As we continue to move forward, it will take the continued collaboration of local nonprofit, city, county, faith, business, and other local heroes to get us through these trying times.

Mon.-Fri., from 9 am-4 pm, community members can signup -for one-hour shower slots. Towels, soap and shampoo will be provided. Those interested can call (719) 480-8755 to reserve

Sign up is also available at La Puente's two-sack meal distribution; also served from the Alamosa Presbyterian Church. Meals are served daily, at noon and 6 p.m. For more information on other community COVID-19 services or how you can help, please visit www.lapuentehome. org/strongertogether

It is a welcome and a memorial park to commemorate the lives of Faith Hinkley and Glenn Martinez and of those Monte Vista and San Luis Valley residents who served our country. The park is a beautiful addition to the City of Monte Vista and will serve as a remembrance of valor and sacrifices willingly made by veterans in time of war.

It serves as a reminder of our heritage and our history. Visitors to this park are brought together by a strong sense of reflection on the sacrifices that have made to keep us free.

The DAR grants program was started in 2010. Funding is awarded to support projects in local communities that promote the organization's mission areas of historic preservation, education and patriotism.

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was founded in 1890 to promote patriotism, preserve American history, and support better education for our nation's children. Its members are descended from the patriots who won American Inde pendence during the Revolutionary War. With over 185,000 members in approximately 3,000 chapters worldwide, DAR is one of the world's largest and most active service organizations.

Adams State amends spring 2020 grading policy to reflect COVID-19 challenges

ALAMOSA — Adams by the change to remote State University has amended its grading policy to allow undergraduate students to convert any of their spring semester 2020 grades to Pass/Fail after final grades have been submitted by faculty members. Passing grades will be awarded college credit, designated as a "P" on student transcripts; a failing grade will not be awarded college credit and will be designated as an "NC" or "No Credit" on transcripts.

"The purpose of this policy is to provide a non-punitive grading option for students whose performance in a course or courses may have been detrimentally impacted instruction, or other situations resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic,' said Adams State Vice President for Academic Affairs Kent Buchanan.

Once grades are posted by May 12, students will have 3 days, until May 15, to request a change to a grade. Students must contact the Adams State registrar's office to process the change. Students should feel free to reach out to their academic advisor or the Adams State financial aid staff in advance to discuss any implications of changing a course grade to Pass/ Fail.

"This option is really good to have available for our students and we believe it reflects our commitment to support our students," said Adams State President Cheryl D. Lovell. "The shift to Blackboard-only instruction was not planned at the beginning of this spring semester. With these adjustments, we know it is important to display as much care and compassion to all for this very quick change in course delivery. Our speed in adapting to the COVID-19 pandemic is a true testament to our great and caring faculty and staff. Adams State students are finishing the spring semester on the University's Blackboard online course management system. The spring semester ends with finals week May 4 through May 8.

Happy Easter weekend to you all! Yesterday, I decided to don the bunny costume and spread a little joy; opening doors at Blessed Brews and letting folks make fun of me.

What else is new? My feeling is ... if we keep laughing, this nightmare we are in right now will be more bearable. If people laugh at me, that's even better!

Here's a funny -- maybe sad -- thought. I dropped my truck off at Caton's Superlube to have an oil leak fixed. They are down in business by 50%. As I walked back to the Green Spot, I went by the Vacumn shop which has closed their doors for good.

Next was a Beauty Parlor -- closed due to this damn virus. St. Ives was next ... closed. Early Childhood has moved their location to east of town. Treasure Alley has closed. Hobby Town has closed. Woody Q's is open for curbside/takeout. When I got to the Green Spot, I looked to the corner and saw that the gas station was open.

I looked across the street and saw that Atencio's Market was open. Folks were doing their laundry at the laundromat. We are all essential — isn't that amazing? Lower Downtown Alamosa (LODA) is essential!

We continue to pay our taxes. We continue to serve our customers. Only time will tell whether it is a blessing or a curse to be open. We all are using our best skills to be careful, clean and disinfect. What amazes me, is that we are all open, yet -- in my humble opinion -- we get no respect from City officials, both elected and hired. Any economic development planned for Alamosa has only focused on the downtown corridor—nothing for $\operatorname{LODA!}$ I have to wonder where the taxes generated in our neighborhood are going?

Please, please, please get back to shopping locally when this is all over! I'm thinking you can call Treasure Alley and Hobby Town to make appointments for getting that special

Don't be lulled by the convenience of online shopping and expect our little towns in the Valley to prosper unless you shop locally. Amazon and Walmart will not support $4\mathrm{H},$ the science fair, history fair, Society Hall, Senior Citizens or the Museum. Amazon will never donate to our little communities.

Most of you all know that Ruth Heide passed away on March 30. My last email to her read like this: Hey you, By the power vested in me (in my own mind) I am commanding that you give me a quick call. Your royal heinous, the majesty of the kingdom, is hoping you are doing okay ... and the pain is not too horrible.

"Did I miss my window to see you again? What can I do to help you? Anything ... dear loyal subject!! Love you, Ruthie. When Keith Cerny called me on April 5th to let me know Ruth had passed, I thought: that's why she didn't respond.

Little did I know that she had never received my email, as it was written on April 2nd. Rest in Peace, my dear friend.

Ruth was one of those folks that you never remember how you met them. You just always knew them, like forever. I know that I sent over 275 columns to her. And many times I would call her, after I had sent the column, and say -- in a nice voice -- "Hi, I didn't get my paper today". She answered so nicely ... asking for my address and things, until she realized who it was. Then she would say: "You need to go to Atencio's and buy your paper, if you haven't done so already". And then, I would knock on the locked Valley Courier door to get my supply of chocolate — Ruth always had chocolate,

It does amaze me that Ruth lived so long after being diagnosed with pancreatic cancer, stage 4. Do you all remember the wonderful open house we had at the Senior Citizen Center last year? It was held on March 31st. What a sendoff that was, for such a wonderful person.

Aperson who is now at peace, and with her beloved Mom. In hindsight, I do wish I had asked Ruth more about what she wanted to do as a County Commissioner. I wish I had paid attention and asked questions. As quiet as she was, I believe she would have been an excellent public servant! Hey you all ... onions are in, if you want to get your hands in the dirt this weekend. Seed potatoes, too! And just maybe a few bedding plants towards the middle of the week. Don't dillydally when it comes to getting your seeds. I have been notified that I can't even place an order for more seeds until the end of this week, and then it will be 2 weeks before they are shipped. Hoarding will not be allowed!

I am hoping you all have a great Easter. Carry the hope forward. Be safe, be patient

SLV Arts and History

By MEG COWLELL, Courier reporter

This week's feature, John Patterson, is a fourth-generation farmer of the San Luis Valley; who has been 'spreading the joy of what [he] calls 'farm art' for over 40 years." His work -- self-described as: "creating smiles out of junk" - largely consists of colorful, welded, whimsical sculptures.

Patterson considers himself a festival artist, comparing the scene to a sort-of circus. "The artists travel from town to town [for the festivals], pitching tents and performing for the masses. I've done shows all over the state."

Festivals require artists to be constantly engaged with their communities, as that's how connections professional or otherwise - are made. So, it comes as no surprise Patterson describes himself as: "A people-person! I've made many friends at these circuses, statewide and locally.'

Growing up on a farm, where one's entertainment relies on their creativity, Patterson was introduced to art at a young age. "Mom was always giving us "projects" and – being equidistant between Taos, Sante Fe and Aspen we frequently visited galleries. I

His love for art stuck. Luckily, Patterson's high school - though small and rural - had a great art program. He was introduced to a surprising variety of mediums, including but not limited to: ceramics, painting and block printing.

On the farm, Patterson eventually learned how to weld. It was here he discovered he could pair this newfound skill with his love of crafting. Utilizing mostly scrap metals he found on the farm, Patterson began to create the playful sculptures we

He landed his first public commission at 21 years old. One of his largest pieces to date, Patterson's "Cooper the Whooper" can still be seen today in front of Monte Vista's Safeway.

"The City traded me two years of membership for that piece and the Monte school kids named him, so it was kind of a public project." He was awarded a 2-year membership at the local golf course.

Though his golf game never improved, Patterson notes being commissioned by the city – so early in his career - really energized him.

During this career, Patterson has: participated in countless shows and festivals, created many public installations; and had galleries, from every SLV town, show his work. Alamosa's Firedworks gallery currently shows a few of Patterson's piece.

Now 62, Patterson continues to sculpt and participate in local shows and festivals. "I'll do anything to spread the smiles Farm Art always brings my patrons. Since I'm kind of getting up there in age, I hope to make sculpting part of my retirement plan.

Patterson shouldn't have a problem maintaining those patrons, as his investment in them and his larger community is evident. He has not only participated in many local art events, but has even helped organize a few.

"Grandpa's Toy"

This includes Monte Vista's "Swoop of the Cranes" project. Patterson helped organize this, employing 40 local artists to create the 50 cranes that now reside on the town's light

"It has been a wonderful experience, although - since it was a 'community' thing - the artists mostly donated their work. Please go, in person, or visit online and vote!

Though Patterson says it is too hard for him to choose, he encourages all to "Vote for your favorite on bit.ly/ BestCranes." In September, the city of Monte Vista will award cash prizes for a People's Choice, a Chamber choice and an Art Panel choice.

Currently, with a few of his neighbors, Patterson is working to get the city's approval for a large, interactive, outdoor installation. It would be a metal sculpture on the road divider near Alamosa's golf course.

"I'm really excited about this project because we want to invite everyone in their street community to donate a piece of memorabilia, which I'll add to the piece." While the details are still in the works, Patterson says: 'We could maybe host a block party or even invite the whole town.

To finish up, I asked Patterson whether or not he would consider himself an artist and to explain his

"Personally, I don't care whether someone says I'm just a crafter or says, 'You're a great artist'; after all, I'm really just an Old Farmer who likes to create smiles out of junk -- so leave

Congressman salutes SLV farmers,

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was sent to Jim Ehrlich, executive director of the Colorado Potato Administrative Committee, from Congressman Ken Buck, CO-4.)

Dear James:

I write to thank you and all of the farmers and ranchers across Colorado for your hard work and selfless actions in the face of this unprecedented crisis. The coronavirus is an adversary unlike anything this country has seen before, but as agriculture professionals you are relied upon to serve your communities every day.

Coloradans are able to rest a little easier in these trying times knowing that you and your colleagues remain on the work to serve our friends and neighbors. Our farmers' actions are a display of the American spirit in action and serve as an exemplary model of public service in the highest order. On behalf of Colorado's Fourth Congressional District, I job, dedicated to feeding the nation. I commend your selfless thank you again for putting the needs of your community at the forefront. Your sacrifices during this difficult time are truly appreciated. If there is anything I can do to assist you please do not hesitate to contact my Castle Rock office at (720) 639-9165 or my Greeley office at (970) 702-2136.

Sincerely, Ken Buck

Scientists developed COVID-19 test that knows you're sick before you do

BOULDER — Imagine a test that could tell you if you were infected with COVID-19 before you had a single symptom, came at an affordable price without the need to go to a doctor, and returned results in minutes.

Those who tested positive could swiftly quarantine themselves, while those who tested negative could head to work or spend time with family without fear of spreading infection.

That's the vision behind a new University of Colorado-born technology that researchers are fast-tracking in hopes of not only helping to curb the current pandemic but also radically change the way we track disease in

"With most infectious diseases, by the time you develop symptoms you have already been contagious for days and out and about spreading it to people," said Nicholas Meyerson, a scientist in the Department of Molecular, Cellular and Developmental Biology (MCDB) and CEO of Darwin Biosciences, a start-up formed to commercialize the SickStick. "Our device acts at the earliest stage of infection. It knows you're sick before you do.'

For a decade, Meyerson has been working with MCDB Professor Sara Sawyer, a virologist at the BioFrontiers Institute, to understand the basic science underlying the body's early immune response to infection. While most labs and tests have focused on antibodies – proteins in the blood that signal a mounting defense against a bacteria or virus – Sawyer's lab has taken a different

"Antibodies don't arise in your body until after the copy number of a pathogen has gotten very large," said Sawyer, noting that this can take days or - in the case of coronavirus – more than two weeks. "They are the last chapter in the immunology textbook. We specialize in the first chapter – the smoke signals that infected cells send off to indicate a pathogen is present."

Disease 'smoke signals'

Those smoke signals, called nucleic acids, rise up in the cells within hours of exposure to a virus and can make their way into saliva. With this in mind, and a $3 million grant from the Department of Defense in hand, Sawyer and Meyerson set out two years ago to develop a new kind of diagnostic test. Also involved are researchers from the BioFrontiers labs of Associate Professor Robin Dowell and Professor Roy Parker, and Dr. Eric Poeschla at the CU Anschutz Medical Campus.

"There is a lot of utility in knowing that people are getting sick before they go and infect others, yet there is currently only one tool for knowing that – the thermometer,' said Sawyer, noting that because some pathogens don't prompt fever it's an unreliable tool. "Our technology fills a void."

The user spits in a receptacle, sticks in a strip that soaks up the contents and within minutes – much like with an at-home pregnancy test

– a series of lines appear. The original prototype was designed to be agnostic about the kind of infection present: one line for healthy; two lines for sickness brewing. The researchers envisioned it being used on military bases. In another scenario, seemingly healthy civilians who had been exposed to a virus could pluck a SickStick off the shelf at the local drugstore and test themselves.

Then, coronavirus happened, and Meyerson and Sawyer quickly pivoted.

They've been in the lab ever since, working to identify biomarkers that will enable them to add a third line to the test that would indicate whether the user has coronavirus.

"Even before coronavirus it wasn't hard to convince people that this device could be useful," said Meyerson, noting that while antibody tests help identify who is sick or recovered, they do little to prevent unknowing carriers from spreading disease. "Now, in this world we are living in, where people are social distancing and selfquarantining, it's very clear that it's the device we need."

Under normal circumstances, the path from lab to commercial availability could be years.

But these circumstances are anything but nor-

"We have a very ambitious goal of six months," said Sawyer.

From lab to market

With patents already secured, they have several clinical trials in the works to confirm that the test is accurate in predicting respiratory infections in general, and help them refine biomarkers to predict COVID-19 specifically.

This week, Darwin Biosciences won first place at the New Venture Challenge event, earning it an additional $55,000 boost on top of a $126,000 grant from Venture Partners, a CU Boulder office that also provides mentoring and support to researcher-led startups. In March, the company welcomed a new COO, Rick Whitcomb, a longtime biotech entrepreneur from Lyons. "I would be remiss not to call out the amazing biotech support network that CU Boulder and this community has offered us," said Sawyer. "We are just university scientists who discovered we had our hands on something that can really matter. It's remarkable how far we've come so fast.'

The SickStick team is now working on an advanced prototype and exploring what it will take to get clearance from the Food and Drug Administration, which has sharply expedited its review process for diagnostic tests for CO-VID-19.

While their timeline may not help to address the current situation, if a second wave of COVID-19 hits next fall, they're confident SickStick could help prevent it from taking hold. And when other epidemics emerge, we'll be ready.

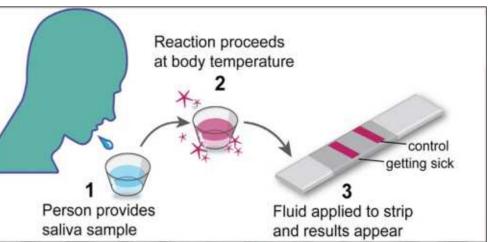

"Long-term," said Meyerson, "this could transform how we think about diagnosing disease."

Sweet chocolate a hallmark of Easter celebrations

Few people would not enjoy finding carefully crafted chocolate confections in an Easter basket. As revered as hidden eggs are on Easter. chocolate and other candies nestled in a bed of green plastic grass often call out like a siren's song.

Many people have their preferences in regard to Easter sweets. Some can't wait to sink their teeth into a milk chocolate bunny. Others savor marshmallow chicks or sweet jelly beans. Still, chocolate often reigns supreme, and people may wonder how chocolate Easter treats came to be.

Eggs and rabbits have long been associated with fertility and new life, long before they became symbols of the Easter holiday. In German folklore, the Osterhase. now known as the Easter Bunny, was a mythical creature that magically laid eggs, which he then carried in a basket and delivered to children as gifts on Easter morning. These first eggs were decorated chicken and duck eggs.

As the custom of giving eggs spread, egg-shaped toys started to be manufactured in the 17th and 18th centuries. Chocolate Easter eggs were not created until the 19th century. France and Germany pioneered the manufacturing of these eggs. The first eggs were solid until chocolate artists could master the art of molded, hollow eggs.

One of the first chocolate eggs was made by John Cadbury in 1845. But it wasn't until both the Dutch invention of a press for separating cocoa butter from the cocoa bean and the introduction of pure cocoa by Cadbury Brothers in 1866 that molded chocolate—and molded chocolate eggs—could be made easily. As the process for molded chocolate evolved, just about any shape could be possible.

Easter bunny and egg traditions came to America by way of German and Dutch settlers. In 1890, a Pennsylvania pharmacist became the self-proclaimed "father of the chocolate Easter bunny" when he displayed a five-foot-tall chocolate rabbit in his shop as an Easter promotion. After this, sales of chocolate Easter bunnies began to skyrocket.

According to the confectionary company Piece, Love & Chocolate, 90 million chocolate Easter bunnies are produced every year around the world. Millions more chocolate Easter eggs also are made and sold. Seventy-six percent of Americans claim to eat the ears on their chocolate rabbits first.

Chocolate bunnies and other candies are part of many families' Easter traditions. These beloved confections have a rich history. TF204834 a woman, "Stephanie," whom I love and believe can be my next wife. We each other.

We each are blessed with three grown children, and we love our families has few friends who aren't related to her. I, on the of friends and like to do a lot with them -- dinner parties, sporting events, concerts, traveling, etc. My friends are great people, and she agrees with me on that, but when we make plans with them, she says she feels like an outsider and prefers to be with her family.

Currently, Stephanie sees her daughter at least three times a week and her oldest son twice a week. In addition, her ex-husband and his wife host family events almost every other weekend -- birthdays, a good friend who, every holidays, game nights, etc., and she never wants to miss them. They are so close that there are no

DEAR ABBY: I have seem to get used to this been divorced for three much "togetherness." Once years. I have been dating my kids were grown and out of the house, I wanted to enjoy my life while they pursued their own fun. I'm talk about marriage and at the point that I'm tired have been very good for of her family, especially since her ex always seems to be the organizer of these get-togethers.

I don't want to hurt her immensely. The difference or her family's feelings, is, Stephanie socializes but I would prefer more only with her family and private time traveling or visiting with my friends and family, and we are other hand, have a wealth not finding a good balance. They all attend the same church every week and even sit together as if they were still one big, happy family, even though it has been 20 years since their divorce. She tells me that I am No. 1 in her life, but her actions say otherwise. What do I do? -- DIFFER-ENT IN MISSOURI

> DEAR DIFFERENT: I suggest you stop listening to what Stephanie says and concentrate more on what you see she's doing, then act accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I have time I invite her and her husband over for dinner, always assumes their 20-year-old daughter can secrets and lots of "inside have a plate as well. They make her a plate before they serve themselves and before assuming it's OK. Most of the time I make enough food so I have leftovers for my boyfriend to take for lunch the following day. Is she being rude? Or am I just being a not-so-nice friend? -- NO LEFTOVERS

DEAR NO LEFT-OVERS: What your friend is doing is rude. But don't blame her for it. This is your fault for not speaking up when this first started happening and explaining that the leftovers are intended for your boyfriend's lunch the next day, which is why you would appreciate her not taking them. A way to avoid this in the future might be to plate the food yourself rather than let your guests do it, and immediately refrigerate whatever is left. Out of

How to spark more family

Communication is at the core of any successful relationship. Families who are able to communicate effectively can express their concerns, needs and desires to one another in an open and honest manner. Effective communication can change a home environment, foster more intimate and trusted relationships, and serve as a foundation for children to grow.

The benefits of effective home communication are numerous. According to Hearing and Speech-Language Services, regular and intentional communication with a child is one of the most effective tools parents and caregivers can use to foster healthy development, paving the way for the child to be an effective communicator as he or she grows and interacts with others. In addition, regular communication can foster a strong sense of self-esteem, improve problem-solving abilities, decrease problem behaviors, and prepare kids for voicing their opinion on important issues.

No topics are off limits when it comes to stimulating family conversation. In fact, the more creative, funny and adventurous the ideas, the more apt children and adults may be to engage in the discussion. These talking points can help get the conversation flowing and require specific answers instead of vague generalities.

· What has been the best part of the week so far?

· Tell me something interesting you learned at school (work) today.

· What is the funniest joke you have ever heard?

• If you could be anyone or anything in the world, what would you be and why? • If you won a lot of money, what would you spend it on? • What do you do when you see someone being teased?

 Name a quality of yours that you are most proud of.

 If a genie granted you three wishes, what would they be?

· What is your favorite childhood memory?

· Where in the world would you like to live most?

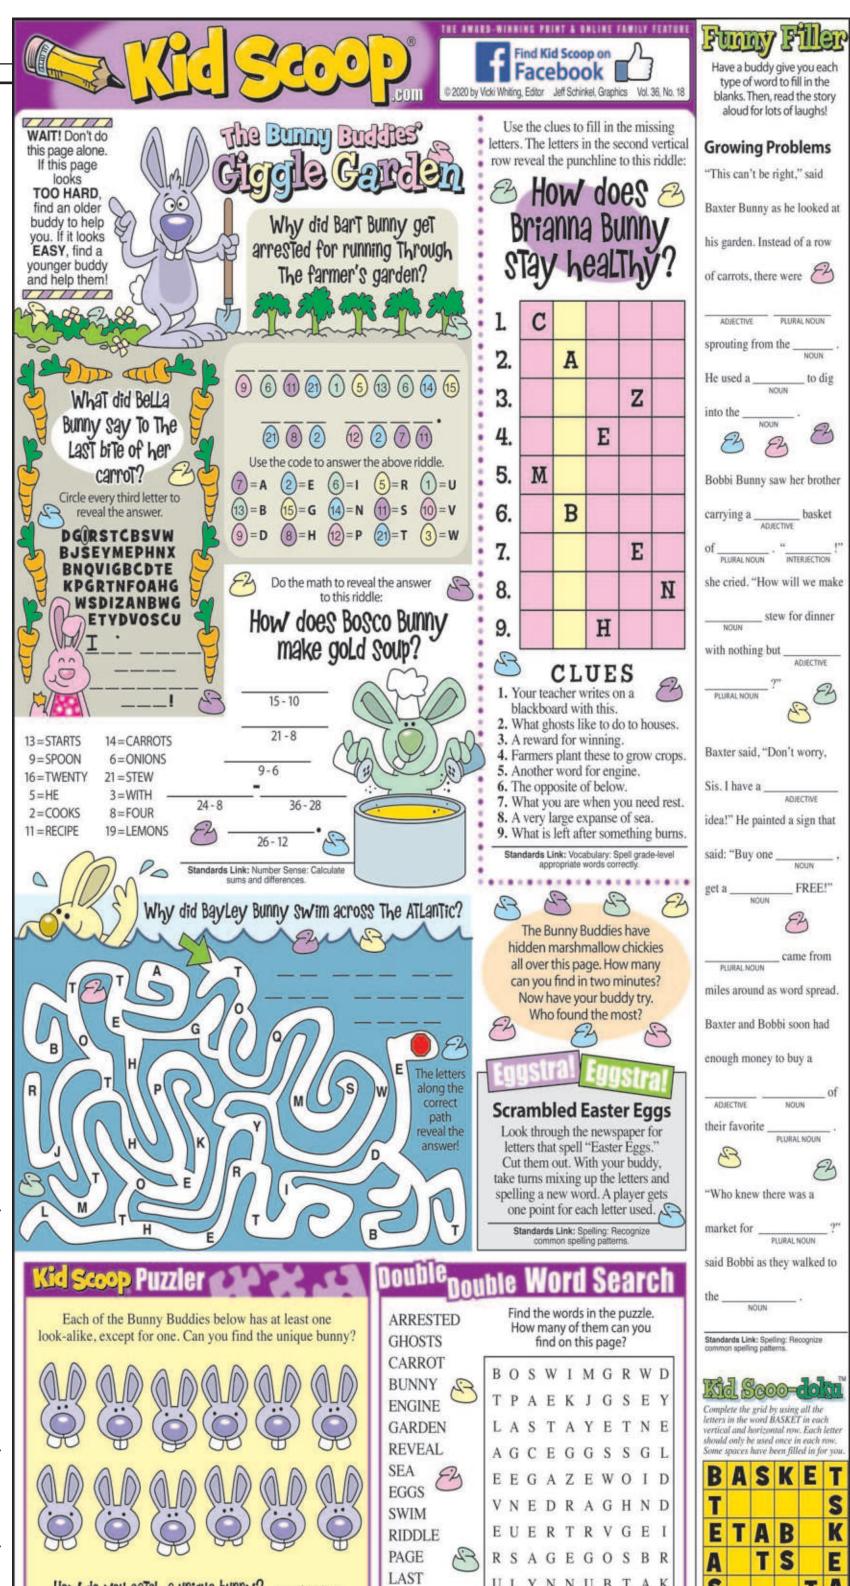

· Are there things that scare you? If so, what? · What would your superhero power be?

 If you could fly for a day, where would you go?

These are a handful of interesting conversation starters that can get creative conversation juices flowing at home. Families can customize the questions or turn them into a regular game that everyone can enjoy throughout the week. FP205883

Easter sweet (and sour) Pot Roast

For Christians, Easter is not just a time to celebrate their faith, but a time to do so with the people they love the most. In recognition of that, many families gather for Easter dinner year after year.

Lamb is a staple at many Easter Sunday dinner tables. However, hosts who do not feel beholden to tradition when planning Easter Sunday dinners can expand their horizons and prepare something other than lamb. This recipe for "Sweet-and-Sour Pot Roast" from Andrew Schloss' "Cooking Slow" (Chronicle Books) can infuse Easter Sunday dinners with a boost of unique flavor and mark a departure from more traditional lamb-based

Sweet-and-Sour Pot

Makes 6 to 8 servings

- tablespoons sweet paprika
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon coarse sea salt
- $1\square 2$ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- pounds boneless chuck roast, trimmed of excess fat
- tablespoons olive
- 1 large onion, chopped
- cup vegetable cocktail juice, such as V8
- $1\square 2$ cup apple juice
- $1\square 3$ cup apple cider vinegar
- $1\square 2$ cup firmly packed
- brown sugar

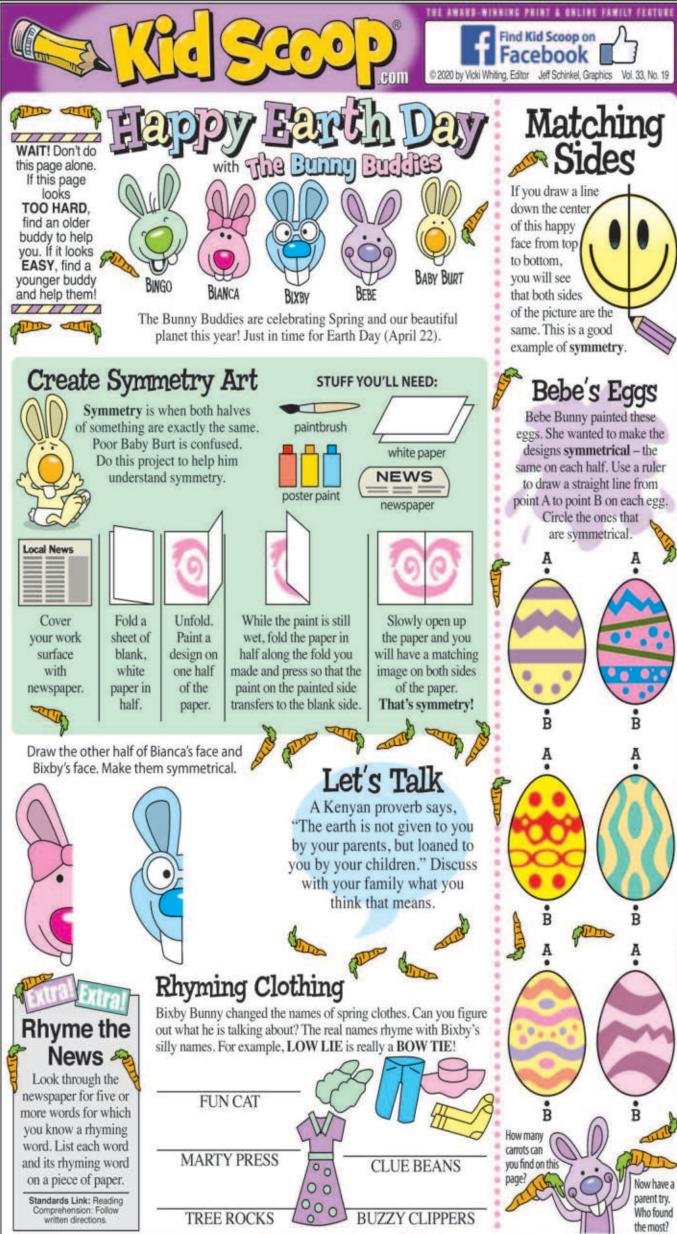

Mix the paprika, garlic powder, salt, and pepper in a small bowl. Rub all over the meat, wrap in plastic wrap, and rest for 1 hour.

Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a large frying pan over medium-high heat. Brown the roast on all sides, starting fattyside down. Transfer to a 6-quart slow cooker.

Add the remaining 1 tablespoon olive oil to the frying pan. Add the onion and cook until browned, about 3 minutes. Add the vegetable juice, apple juice, vinegar, and brown sugar, and bring to a boil. Pour over the meat and cook on high for 4 to 6 hours or on low for 8 to 10 hours, until the meat is fork-tender. Transfer the roast to a cutting board. Skim the fat from the surfaces of the juices in the cooker. Heat the juices on high for 10 minutes while the meat rests. Slice the roast against the grain and arrange the slices overlapping on a large platter. Ladle enough sauce over the top to moisten; serve the remaining sauce on the side. TF204836
