Moffat Volunteer Fire Department hosts tasty Cajun Boil

By MARIE MCCOLM
MOFFAT — On Saturday, June 8, the Moffat Volunteer Fire Department hosted a scrumptious Cajun Boil fundraiser at the firehouse.

Members of the fire department served the meal. The meal consisted of a generous helping of white rice and beans, along with a few large, delicious shrimp, pieces of baked potato, onions, a generous amount of crab legs, corn on the cob and two hush puppies.

As an alternative people could also choose blackened chicken and rice for their donation of $20. Drinks included iced tea, lemonade, or water. There was also soda available for sale.

There was a silent auction during the boil that featured donated items from Valley businesses. There was also a 50/50 raffle.

Former member of the Moffat Volunteer Fire Department, Nelly Ruggles was at the Cajun Boil with her husband, and said the dinner was nice.

The deejay table, where Center Police Chief Aaron Fresquez was spinning tunes, had lots of white and blue balloons. There were several gift baskets on the table that were given out to attendees.

There was also a large video screen that read "Father Daughter Night."

Many fathers and daughters danced together to the songs that were playing such as "My Wish," by Rascal Flatts, "Piece by Piece," by Kelly Clarkson, "My Little Girl," by Tim McGraw.

Dairy Farm in Del Norte, Colorado Fresh Farms, and Three Guys Farm in Monte Vista.

The second set of tours will take place on July 27 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Current farms that are scheduled for that day are White Rock Specialties in Mosca, Rio Grande Farm Park in Alamosa, and Elevation Farm and Orchards in Alamosa.

The third set of tours will take place on Sept. 21, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Current tours schedule for that day are to Jones Farms Organics in Hooper, San Juan Ranch in Saguache County, and Alpine Valley Mushrooms in Saguache.

More farms may be added to each of the tours.

Nick Chambers spoke about the Valley Roots Food Hub, "Valley Roots is a Colorado local food distributor. We have over a hundred producers in our network statewide, and that's across produce, meat, dairy, and value added. You know we run online markets, where customers place orders. We are a project of the nonprofit in Alamosa called the San Luis Valley Local Food Coalition. We operate in Mosca, and we operate out of White Rock Specialties, which is a potato and quinoa plant. We are all about just small, medium, and large-scale Colorado local foods. We essentially aggregate all the products from those hundred producers that we have in our network. We put them all together for buyers to see. Buyers will get one invoice representing over 100 producers. This is again across, meat, dairy, produce, and value added, all those categories."

Chambers said they operate on a produce model, so the idea is to sell the produce before it is harvested. Chambers explained that this gives farmers fresh numbers to know exactly how much to harvest.

"When the food is harvested, it is picked up and aggregated in our warehouse in Mosca, and then it has a very quick turnaround time to our customers, since it's already sold, of about 24 to 36 hours from warehouse to customer establishments," he said.

Chambers said that the customers in network include, grocers, restaurants, buying clubs, hospitals, dude ranches, dude trucks, caterers, and wholesalers. Chambers also said there is a CSA market specifically for people who like shopping from home.

"We do home deliveries for them. We also have a bunch of pick-up locations in their communities where they can pick up their goods once per week," he said.

Chambers said that for as many stakeholders and moving parts as Valley Roots has, they are mission driven as well.

"We come out of the pioneer for organic food, are some of the founders of our board. We really want to promote soil health and growing food. We really wanted to bring that to the forefront of consumers' buying choices. We really try to encourage the development of the economy and community. It really starts with the buying choices that all our community members have. We really want to be the ones that people buy from. We also know that if we keep the buying local, that's how we create wealth and abundance in our community," he said.

as they walk in the door and grab a cold breakfast or a student not having to ask for a dietary-changed meal as she already knows what they need, she truly is there for the students," read her nomination for the award.

Curtis Garcia, director of the Adams State School of Education, along with professors and support staff made the presentation during the last week of the school year. Each month, Adams State highlights an educator to recognize, with an intention to bring a focus around the importance of K-12 education and to motivate others to become educators.

Pinales, who resides in Monte Vista, has spent "28 wonderful years" with the Sargent School District. She began as a preschool teacher before making the change to the school cafeteria and a career feeding students.

"I've had kids that I had in preschool when I was a teacher there and I still have them as parents and their grandkids," she said of her career with Sargent.

On the favorite food the cafeteria serves, she said, "Sargent's favorite lunches are cheeseburgers and chicken alfredo."

It's not just the lunches that the students remember of their time in the cafeteria that serves Sargent schools.

"Ms. Darlene was there from day one of kindergarten for me," one student wrote in her nomination. "She always knew my name and asked me about what was going on in my life. Come graduation time, I don't think I truly realized how big of an impact she made on my K-12 career."

The Educator Highlight Award recognizes Adams State University School of Education alumni, prominent local teachers, and other educators working within or hailing from the San Luis Valley. In so doing, Adams State University hopes to build familiarity with the community as a serious destination for future educators.

and ties. According to Teresa Chavez, an onlooker who attended to watch her daughter and husband enjoy the evening together, "the event was spectacular and very touching to watch."

Police Chief Fresquez said that everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves.

"Everything is going really good tonight. We have quite a few little kids. We are getting ready to do the best dressed contest and give out prizes. We couldn't have done any of this without the committee that put themselves together for things like this. The committee decided that they wanted to do stuff like this in support of law enforcement, and the town of Center in general. I really want to thank them. We have a good group here and they were able to put everything together for tonight," he said.

Town of Center trustees helped serve dinner for everyone. There was also a King and Queen crowned at the event. Sgt. Adam Fresquez attended the event with his two daughters and said they were enjoying the event.

Chris and his young daughter Ella attended the event together. Chris said that it was his wife's idea to attend the event.

"My wife saw the event on Facebook and sent it to me and told me I should attend. I was like yes! We were at a rodeo bible camp this morning and I told my wife if our daughter doesn't want to go, we won't go though. My wife said, oh no she picked out her dress this morning. ## Happy Birthday Ol' Dutch

Yep, it looks like another year has rolled around for Ol' Dutch and I can chalk another birthday up on the proverbial wall, which seems to be taking more and more space to tally on. If you hang around long enough those numbers start to take on a life of their own and grow seemingly exponentially in volume.

Regardless of my "advanced age," as Miss Trixie so kindly points out on a regular basis, I probably worked harder this past year than I have since I retired. All in all, I feel pretty good. I gained some muscle and learned a lot which is never bad.

Long ago a friend told me to celebrate not only a birth day but a birthday week and so I will party-hardy all this week. For those of you that may have missed the actual date of my birthday and the root beer floats at the party last Sunday, let me remind you that a belated gift is better than none at all and that no gift is too large. So, surprise me.

Usually, I buy myself a gun for my birthday but this year I bought myself a new laptop. So, while awaiting the start of my rootbeer float party, I practiced getting used to the new keyboard. Why is it that change gets harder as we age?

While Miss Trixie hurried around getting ready for the party, I strategized how to make an entrance befitting someone of my stature. Which really means that Miss Trixie "told me" to come right on time and bring the ice cream so it doesn't melt before the guests arrive for the grand event. It's rough being the guest of honor.

It was a great party and about 50 people showed up for the eats. Funny cards, delicious brisket, homemade cookies and even a gift certificate for Mexican food were received and I feel truly blessed to have such dear friends.

I plan on a week of such "doings" and will be fishing, go to Bingo underground at Creede, hike up in the Aspens and maybe take an ATV ride up Alder Creek. (In case you need to find me for some present giving.) No use cutting short on the festivities if I can help it, is what I always say.

Miss Trixie and I also have a whirlwind week ahead rafting with Mountain Man which will keep us busy until next Sunday when I again get celebrated on Father's Day. Man, how can a guy beat that? Two celebrations and good tidings coming my way all in the same week.

All that makes me grateful that my parents thought to conceive me on the right day so this week would work out later in life with a double celebration. Thanks to my Dad, Fast Freddy, for that selfless act of kindness so many years ago so that I might be born and have such a great life.

No matter where life finds you this next week, try and remember your father this week on his special day. I know that some of you may not have had the best dad in your lives but everyone has a father and if you can, thank him for your life or at least remember him for it.

Being born is the greatest gift that each of us receive this side of Heaven and each day I am more and more thankful for my Dad and his sacrifices he made for me.

And if you are the dad, spend a few extra hours with your kids, revel in their accomplishments, laugh at the grandkids and hopefully open some cards and gifts that you probably paid for.

Have a great week and get outside to enjoy this weather.

How long before this house in Douglas County is uninsurable?

It's a perfect storm for fire insurance

Westerners have begun looking at their homes differently these days. Are those trees too close? Should I move all that firewood stacked up next to the deck?

Meanwhile, in California, some fire insurers have lost so much money they've pulled out of the state. Overall, fire insurance is becoming as expensive and unpredictable as the natural disasters — not just wildfires but also hail and windstorms — that are driving up rate increases. In some places, increases are as much as 1,000% for houses and condos nestled close to trees.

In Colorado, Tiffany Lockwood said she was dropped twice by fire insurance carriers over the 10 years she's lived in Evergreen, a heavily forested suburb of Denver.

A former Florida resident, Lockwood, 59, only has one way out in case of a wildfire — and even then she'll have little warning. "When I lived in Florida," she said, "we knew four days ahead when a hurricane was coming. Here we get 40 minutes."

Lockwood thinks insurance companies are running scared and giving impossible directives. One insurer asked her to remove all the shrubs and trees within 30 feet of the house. But the plan meant taking down a lot of her neighbor's trees, too.

Evergreen's attraction is that residents live amidst towering conifer trees. But red zones on fire maps are being expanded all over Colorado after several recent large forest fires and the wind-driven Marshall grassfire outside of Boulder, in December 2021. It destroyed more than 1,000 suburban homes and was the state's most expensive fire yet. Formerly "safe" places are now described as at-risk.

Jeff Geslin lives in high and dry La Plata County, in southwestern Colorado, surrounded by 35 acres of piñon and juniper trees. He and his wife Lorna are used to remediation plans, he said, and when their insurance increases, "I just pay it, no questions asked."

But they were shocked when their condo association in Summit County, governing their second home, lost its insurance policy.

"It might be because we're close to Forest Service land," Geslin said, "which must be more risk." Every condo owner was assessed $6,772 extra for the new policy the Homeowners Association managed to find — an increase of 1,000%.

Colorado State Senator Dylan Roberts is working on legislation to insure larger structures. "I've gotten calls about insurance for the last year if not two years," he said. "The single-family upset has quieted down, but the big thing I hear about is HOA and condo buildings."

The state already has what is called the Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (FAIR) Plan in place for smaller buildings when insurance companies refuse to underwrite traditional coverage. It's backed by private insurers and administered by an appointed board of insurance professionals.

"We hope to insure no one," said FAIR Plan board member Carole Walker. She's the executive director of an insurance trade group covering, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

"This is insurance of last resort," she said, "as we don't want to compete with private insurers. They're struggling after 10 straight years of unprofitability in property insurance."

The FAIR Plan board, which plans to sell policies late next year, hired industry veteran Kelly Campbell as executive director this May. It will offer bare-bones coverage with high deductibles and low maximum amounts. The plan would offer coverage of $5 million per commercial structure and $750,000 per house.

"Everything has escalated," said Walker. "Colorado is in that perfect storm of catastrophes. The number of claims and the cost to pay those claims is at a record pace. Add in the escalating number of events like hail and wildfire, and it's the hardest insurance market in a generation."

Walker says Colorado established a resiliency code board via state law in 2023, with a mandate of hardening structures with fire-resistant siding, metal roofs and landscaping. "We need confidence back in the marketplace," she said about the board. "Ultimately, this is a life-safety issue because wildfire knows no boundaries. You're dependent on your neighbor."

Kevin Parks, a State Farm insurer in Western Colorado, has some advice for Western homeowners: "Widen your driveway and road to 20 feet, install a turnaround big enough for fire vehicles, remove shrubs and trees close to your house, and add a perimeter of gravel all around your structure. Finally, hope you live where two roads lead to your house."

In this new age of longer and meaner fire seasons, Parks added, "The fire is coming — now it's a question of being ready."

LETTER

Consider voting Hurd for 3rd Congressional District

Editor,
With the primary ballots out, I would like to ask the voting public to consider Jeff Hurd for a congressional seat for the 3rd Congressional District. A native of Grand Junction, small business owner and very well educated on what it takes to represent the challenges of the 3rd. He is running for the U.S. Congress because he believes western and southern Colorado deserve a sincere and hardworking representative focused more on doing something than being someone. Having grown up in Colorado's 3rd Congressional District and now raising his kids there, Jeff wants to deliver results that will help rural Colorado thrive.

Realizing the problems that face our nation, I believe he will work hard to bring sanity to our congress. With his background of working with agriculture, he understands the challenges we face on a daily basis such as water, inflation and the day to day struggles. I believe Jeff Hurd, who was born and raised in Grand Junction, is a rarity in which would benefit the 3rd Congressional District as well as the nation. I humbly ask for your vote for Mr. Hurd.

RG County holds work session on Dominion Voting System update

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

RIO GRANDE COUNTY — For the past several weeks, Rio Grande County Clerk and Recorder Cindy Hill has been speaking with Rio Grande County commissioners regarding an update to current elections systems used in Rio Grande County and after the approval to move forward with the update, commissioners requested a work session to answer questions.

Rio Grande County uses Dominion Voting Systems to count ballots and has passed every audit required by the State of Colorado since the voting system installation in 2017.

There was some expectation that a Dominion representative would be at the work session, but according to RG County Administrator Skip Shoen, “they not able to make our chosen time fit with their schedule.” Shoen conveyed this in an email to Valley Publishing.

The purpose of the work session, Shoen explained, with the commissioners was to provide them with information on the upgrade to version 5.17 of the Dominion Democracy Suite. The commissioners and the public were provided a Dominion document describing the product changes included with the system upgrade to version 5.17.

According to Hill the upgrade is to the existing contract and is a first amendment to the original contract signed March 31, 2017. No new equipment is being added, no programming changes have been made since 2017.

The contract renewal approved by commissioners will include new equipment and improved software scheduled to be installed in July.

Hill also explained that the new software and equipment must undergo the Logic and Accuracy Testing (LAT) and pass all Colorado State requirements before it is used in the election this fall.

During the testing LAT, judges mark 25 ballots each, all voting combinations are run, all ballot marking devices must be tested and the results are hand counted to confirm accuracy. If there are any errors detected or found the process is repeated until 100 percent accuracy is confirmed.

During the meeting, Rio Grande County commissioners heard from six experts, three representing each side of the conversation, those for and against the use of Dominion Voting Systems. Each person had a five-minute time limit beginning with those against the use of Dominion.

Dr. Walter Daugherty, an expert in Computer Science and Professor Emeritus at Texas A&M University was the first to speak. He asked commissioners to consider seven questions as they gained more information on the Dominion Voting System.

Daugherty was a co-author for the Mesa County Report Number 3 which found the Dominion Voting System created unauthorized databases and deleted election records. Daugherty continued stating that the first question that needed to be asked was whether or not these issues had been addressed and corrected by Dominion.

Throughout the rest of Daugherty’s comments, he highlighted other potential issues posed by the voting system and said Dominion Voting System tested in Texas were tested twice and failed both times by the Secretary of State.

Next to speak against the Dominion Voting System was Ret. Air Force Col. Shawn Smith, a former senior military evaluator for Space, Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance Systems under Director, Operational Test and Evaluation (DOT and E) Office of the Secretary of Defense.

“I want to address and focus on the election systems that you have in your county. The voting systems are not made here. The problems with the voting systems nationwide are the same and from the same sources,” said Smith. Smith said that the voting system used by the county was insecure, though it passed all testing done in compliance with state regulations. “These systems are not secure.”

Smith was followed by IT expert Mark Cook who spoke about how hard it was for the general public to understand how these systems work and that he has been working on the Dominion Voting Systems for four decades. Cook said there are concerns about Dominion’s inability to conform to basic transparency regulations by potentially covering up several errors throughout their use in counties around the country.

Those who spoke for the use of Dominion were from the Colorado County Clerk Association (CCCA), including Executive Director Matt Crance, Weld County Clerk Carly Koppes, and Jackson County Clerk and President of the CCCA, Haley Johnson.

Johnson was the first to speak stating, “The CCCA is comprised of all 64 county clerks in the State of Colorado and a four-member executive board. We are very active in the proposed changes to elections, motor vehicle and other services throughout the state.”

Johnson explained the purpose of the CCCA. The Colorado County Clerks Association is a non-governmental entity and includes in its membership the 64 County Clerks of Colorado and their designees. County clerks are elected through a vote of the residents of the county they serve, or they are appointed by the city council.

Next to speak was Weld County Clerk Koppes. “All the mail ballot envelopes go through signature verification, and as you all are very well aware, in-person voting is still available. Only 6 percent of voters in Colorado actually use that option, so we listen to our voters. We are all paper ballot here in Colorado for those who have expressed that concern.”

After Koppes, CCCA executive Director Crane finished the meeting by answering some of the questions raised during the conversation including whether the CCCA maintained election records to which he responded, “Yes, absolutely, one hundred percent, yes.”

Koppes said that it was not required by the state to maintain the operating system logs and that wireless devices on voting systems components are not illegal regardless of what other experts may have to say.

At the end of the presentations, Rio Grande County Commissioner Scott Deacon said that he voted against the renewal of the Dominion Voting System because of the discrepancies.

“If Dominion is selling this product, then where are they,” he asked.

Commissioner Gene Glover said that he also had more questions than answers.

“We are blessed to have Cindy; we all know that. I have some concerns about Dominion overall,” he said.

Rio Grande County Administrator Skip Schoen in closing reminded everyone “this was an informational work session to obtain additional information for the county commissioner.”

Summer fun at Medano Creek

By JOHN WATERS
GREATSANDDUNES NATIONAL PARK AND PRESERVE — A favorite destination for many San Luis Valley residents and tourists this weekend will be Medano Creek.

On a recent visit, the creek was running wide (about 100 yards) and very shallow. Most of the creek was between one –two inches deep with one channel that was six to seven inches deep. According to the National Park Service, the peak flow of the creek is about 40 cubic feet per second (cfs) and peaked at 21 cfs on May 31-June 1.

According to the official park service report the current conditions are: Medano Creek has a shallow to moderate flow at the Dunes Parking Lot. The creek is flowing in braided channels about 1-5 inches (2-13 cm) deep. There are small surges 1-4 inches (2-10 cm) high in some channels, but not enough water for floating. Flow is typically highest at dawn, and lowest at dusk. These conditions are typical of late June.

The beginning of June is the best opportunity to experience “surge flow”, where waves flow down across the sand. The water is not deep enough in 2024 for floating.

Because of the creek’s popularity, early June weekends are extremely crowded, with long lines of traffic, overflowing parking lots, a crowded beach, and full campgrounds. If possible, plan your visit on a weekday this time of year.

As the creek becomes much lower around the second week of June, mosquitos emerge in large numbers. Move away from vegetation, to the far side of the creek to avoid the worst of the mosquitos; they don’t like open sand but prefer to be near shady bushes and trees.

Although mountain snowpack in many parts of Colorado is above average, the watershed in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains that constitutes Medano Creek is about 5% of average leaving the creek with less water than banner years. Medano Creek is one of the few places in the world where the phenomenon of surge flow can be experienced. Surge flow is a stream flowing in rhythmic waves on sand. Three elements are needed to produce the surge, a relatively steep gradient to give the stream a high velocity; a smooth, mobile creek bed, in this case, sand, with little resistance; and sufficient water to create surges. In spring and early summer, these elements combine to make the waves.

As water flows across the sand, underwater sand ridges called antidunes form on the creek bed, gathering water. When the water pressure is too great, the dams break, sending down a wave, or surge about every 20 seconds.

Recently, the park service conducted a public comment period for initial proposed ideas for Great Sand Dunes National Park and Preserve Transportation and Transit Plan to focus on relieving congestion and to allow visitors to have a more enjoyable experience. The comment period ended March 29, and currently, the park service is analyzing all comments and is expected to issue a draft environmental assessment by late fall. A final decision on the plan is expected to be issued in early 2025.

Prescribed fire on Bighorn/Stateline planned

Operations will cross the Colorado-New Mexico border

CONTRIBUTED

LA JARA – With favorable conditions in the forecast, Rio Grande National Forest fire crews have begun preparing for the 1,000-acre Bighorn/Stateline prescribed fire project located approximately six miles southwest of Mogote. Ignitions could begin as early as Tuesday, June 11.

Two of the burn units are on the Conejos Peak Ranger District in Colorado and one 192-acre unit is on the Carson National Forest in New Mexico.

“There is a need to reduce fuel loading and prepare a seed bed that will be receptive to new growth,” said Judi Perez, acting Conejos Peak district ranger. “After a couple of years of unfavorable burn windows, we are excited to resume prescribed fire operations and to be working again with our Carson National Forest partners across the state line.”

The project aims to reduce downed slash from previous hand thinning treatments designed to improve forest health with secondary benefits of improving big game habitat and reducing fuel loading. The prescribed fire will reduce the overall fuel load, cycle nutrients, and stimulate the growth of grass, forbs, and aspen.

Due to the location of the planned fire, smoke will be visible from around the southern San Luis Valley and parts of the Tres Piedras Ranger District and may be heavier locally. No significant smoke impacts on towns or highways are expected.

The Bighorn/Stateline project is part of the 3.8 million-acre Rio Chama Collaborative Forest Landscape Restoration Project, which supports the national Wildfire Crisis Strategy.

Updates for the Bighorn/Stateline will be posted on InciWeb at <https://inciweb.wildfire.gov/incident-information/corgf-bighorn-stateline-prescribed-fire>.

Polis comes to the Valley to sign 3 significant bills into law

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER
ALAMOSA — Governor Polis was in the Valley on Friday to sign several bills into law, two sponsored by Rep. Matt Martinez (D-D62) and one by Sen. Cleave Simpson (R-D6), which hold special importance to the communities in the area. All passed with significant bi-partisan support.

The ceremony started at Milagro's in Alamosa where the governor signed HB24-1314 "Modification Tax Credit Preservation Historic Structures," sponsored by Reps. Martinez and Lucas and Sens. Gonzales and Will.

Gov. Polis thanked everyone for being present for this "exciting bill that will send $5 million out for projects for preserving historic projects and making sure they can play a role in improving our quality of life."

He then turned the podium over to Rep. Martinez, who acknowledged that "it feels really good to be back in the San Luis Valley." He then went on to explain how HB24-1314 increases the impact of legislation already in place.

"This rule has really supported efforts to revitalize Main Streets in our state. In the San Luis Valley, we've had three projects that have been able to access these funds, including the Saguache Hotel and Bain's Dept Store as well as this space right here. With this bill we added an additional $5 million to existing $10 million for a tax credit that will allow us to positively impact projects across our state as well as adding much needed housing. Since the tax credit's inception, we've seen 800 additional housing units added to existing infrastructure, and this bill will continue to build upon that program."

Governor Polis and staff then moved to Sen. Cleave Simpson's Mt. Valley Farms for the signing of two more bills.

Surrounded by verdant crops and farming equipment used in regenerative farming, Governor Polis said of Sen. Simpson's SB24-037 "Study Green Infrastructure for Water Quality Management", "I'm so excited by the opportunity to reduce costs, benefit our climate and protect our water. Traditional gray infrastructure removes pollutants from water before getting released back into circulation but it's very costly and energy intensive. We know green infrastructure can do it more efficiently and in better ways."

Sen. Simpson then took the podium. "Welcome to Mountain Valley Farms. We're happy to have you here today." He then introduced his wife, his father, his son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren. "This is really kind of a special moment."

Simpson then discussed the bill. "The governor talked about this and green infrastructure really can be a gamechanger. If you have any time to do a little research and see what it can mean to our communities. I have so many wastewater treatment facilities that are really out of compliance and to spend ten to hundreds of millions of dollars on gray infrastructure isn't feasible at all for smaller communities. Green infrastructure won't fit all communities, but it will help some and it's a great opportunity."

After signing Sen. Simpson's bill, he discussed HB24-1249 "Tax Credit Agricultural Stewardship Practices", sponsored by Rep. Martinez. "This is a really important bill that provides a tax credit for farmers and ranchers that really engage in strong stewardship practices."

"Senator Simpson said he has his no till drill, the kind of practice that can help keep nutrients and moisture in the soil. But, of course, many farmers can't do this due to capital expense or can't find one nearby. This bill will help support that kind of infrastructure across our state. It's $2 million which is a good start. It will save farmers, help make their operations more profitable, protect soil health, conserve water and support drought resilience."

Agriculture Commissioner Kate Greenberg followed with her comments, describing HB24-1249 as "a testament to bipartisan effort. It's a true collaboration in support of our agricultural community and we see so many practitioners here who do the regenerative work in agriculture every day and take care of our soil. This really builds on the work over the last five years with Colorado's soil health that supports producers statewide, our Agriculture Drought Climate Resilience Office and now this Agriculture Stewardship Tax Credit that really helps build those tools out for agricultural and rural communities to help meet the challenges of the future and invest in conservation and stewardship as they always have but with new tools form the state. I couldn't be more proud and delighted with this bill - both for what it means to agriculture and the way that we got here."

Rep. Martinez then took the podium, first mentioning his and Senator Simpson's bill addressed uncertified potato seed. "It's not the most exciting bill title but it's very important," he said, drawing a laugh from the crowd.

"This session I was proud to carry bills that support our rural communities, especially farmers and ranchers. And today, we're here for 24-1249. This is soon to be a law that works in two different ways. It rewards farmers and ranchers and encourages good stewardship practices, including water conservation and improving soil health. It saves farmers money, fosters diversity and drought resistance and helps agriculture producers thrive. In Colorado, agriculture is so important and I'm so proud to see this soon become law." He also thanked his co-sponsors.

Governor Polis then signed the second bill into law, joking that coming to Senator Simpson's beautiful farm shows he is "a full-service governor." That also drew a laugh.

In a conversation with the Valley Courier, Polis discussed the legislative session. "Overall, we were able to do a significant property tax cut, which is a big deal, and an income tax cut and to fund schools better than we have in recent history with about $17,000 per classroom. That allows us to pay teachers better, reduce classroom size and improve instruction."

When asked about specific impact of funding education in the San Luis Valley, he added, "We also changed the formula to benefit districts like the San Luis Valley so it will be based more on factors around students' needs and the students the district serves."

"These were statewide bills. It took a lot of collaboration from Republicans and Democrat across the state to get these bills done. And, as a result, the whole state benefits."

Rep. Martinez also reflected on the session with the Valley Courier, stating, "This legislative session really showed that bi-partisanship really works. We can get bills across the finish line. That's something that Senator Simpson and I have accomplished together and everyone benefits from those kinds of relationships."

One Surfing Way to Love Your Life

If someone asked you if you love your life, what would you say? It seems most people would say they don't love their life. But as believers in Christ, we can learn to love the life we have.

I know what it's like to have a miserable life, and how wonderful it is to live with God's peace and joy. I remember when God spoke to my heart and told me, "You're not happy because you're selfish." It wasn't easy to hear, but facing that truth helped me surrender my will to God, so He could begin working in me and help me make the changes I needed to make.

I discovered that the key to loving my life is making God's love the central theme of my life. God is love. It's not just what He does, but who He is. He loves us unconditionally, and when we believe that, it changes us; it makes us confident and secure.

Knowing you are loved gives you courage and boldness to step out and try new things, so you don't have to be stuck with a negative attitude about life in general, or in a situation you hate. It gives you security that enables you to confront unhealthy relationships, knowing you'll be okay—and even better than before—however things turn out.

Here's how God's love works in our lives: We receive His love for us, then we see ourselves the way He does and love ourselves in a healthy way, and finally, we let His love flow through us to others.

The goal is to take in the good things God offers us, and then go out in the world and give to others what He has given to us! God wants to give us His love, mercy, grace, and forgiveness, and He expects those things to flow through us to the people in our world.

God created us to be loved and to love others. First John 3:11 (AMPC) says, "For this is the message (the announcement) which you have heard from the first, that we should love one another." That's real Christianity.

If we really get down to it, how much do we really think about what we can do for other people? I've learned that when I'm selfish or too focused on myself—what I want or how I can get others to do what I want them to do—I am frustrated, easily offended, and upset much of the time.

In fact, if you're having a bad day, one of the worst things you can do is to keep thinking about yourself and all of your own problems. It only makes things worse! So, what should you do? Get your mind off yourself and help someone else.

Helping others isn't something you will normally feel like doing—it requires a decision. But making a choice to be good to others has the power to help you and them. It's a spiritual principle....

The Apostle Paul says in Acts 20:35 (NIV): "In everything I did, I showed you that by this kind of hard work we must help the weak, remembering the words the Lord Jesus himself said: 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

So, if I'm having a bad day, this scripture tells me I can be happier by simply getting myself off my mind and helping someone else.

It's actually amazing how just a few words of encouragement can change someone's entire day. Sometimes it can even change their life! It can be as simple as picking up the phone and calling a friend who's been going through a rough time, letting them know you're thinking about them and praying for their situation. Or maybe you can send someone a text message to let them know how valuable they are and how much you care.

Would you like to make every day better? Would you like to find joy even in the midst of difficult times? Then begin taking even just a few minutes every day to think about what you can do to help someone else.

Because when you give your life away, you'll find that it comes back to you in the most marvelous ways. *****

Architect Darden to keynote Homelake Foundation annual meeting

CONTRIBUTED

MONTE VISTA — Architect Barbara Darden will be the keynote speaker at the 19th annual Homelake Historic Preservation and Restoration Foundation meeting and silent auction fundraiser at 6 p.m. on June 14, at Dos Rios Restaurant north of Monte Vista.

Darden has been involved with the renovation of structures at the historic veterans' center for many years now. The June 14 event is the annual meeting for the Foundation that preserves and restores the historic campus of Homelake, the oldest veterans' center in Colorado and the official repository of all unclaimed military medals in the state. In addition, the Foundation will be holding its annual membership drive and donation requests.

"My love for small vernacular buildings really developed growing up in Germany and small rural Texas towns. After graduating from high school, I enrolled at Texas A&M University to study Architecture, receiving my bachelor's degree in Environmental Design and another bachelor's degree in Building Construction. I went on to graduate school and majored in Historic Preservation and Interior Architecture, receiving my master's degree in 1986.

"After graduation, I worked in Fort Worth, restoring a WPA Coliseum, along with several small vernacular buildings dating from the early 1900s. Moving to Boston, I gained additional experience rehabilitating buildings from the 1770s, expanding my knowledge of older buildings, their historic characteristics and construction details."

In 1991, Darden and her husband moved to Colorado where she worked at several architectural firms, opening her own firm with one of my closest friends, Rick Scheuber, in 1999. "Since 1999, I have driven millions of miles all over the State of Colorado. The special historic places in Colorado have touched my soul and driven me to seek out the important history and its impact on the local citizens of every building I have restored. My hope is that my work will take on a special meaning for its citizens and provide an opportunity for their children to experience its history and to reflect their cultural heritage."

Many of the small communities she has worked in have buildings and sites that are important on a National Level such as the Amache Japanese Internment Site in Granada and the Ludlow Tent Site near Trinidad. "These sites hold a very special place in my heart as their influence has a wide-reaching audience and impacted millions of people at the time, but have slowly slipped from people's knowledge, minimizing their importance," she said.

The June 14 meeting will include reports, news of the past year's progress, elections and a silent auction. Anyone interested in attending the meeting and dinner, becoming a member and/or serving on the board and being part of the Foundation may call Foundation secretary Christa Davis at 719-588-2484.

Social hour is at 5:30 p.m. with dinner at 6 p.m. and the meeting will follow. Dinner is $20 per person.

Notice is hereby given that a proposed budget has been submitted to the Board of Education of the Center Consolidated School Joint District Number 26 for the Fiscal Year beginning July 1, 2024 and ending June 30, 2025 and has been filed in the Office of the Superintendent located at 550 South Sylvester Avenue, Center, CO 81125 where it is available for public inspection. # District Attorney forms drug task force

'We're going after the big players'

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — Shortly after District Attorney Anne Kelly was appointed to her position as the chief prosecutor of crimes in the San Luis Valley, she shared with the Valley Courier one of her goals. She intended to form a drug task force to take on the pervasive illegal drug activity that exists in the Valley.

"I identified this as being a core problem when I first came here," Kelly says. "Addiction breeds a need for more drugs which lead to increased property crimes and quality of life crimes."

Once Kelly was in office and started asking for public input, her commitment was solidified even more. "When I came to the Valley and started talking to police agencies in the communities, leaders in the communities and citizens in the communities, the number one concern over and over was that the drug problem had gotten progressively worse over the years."

Her decision to focus on forming a drug task force did not come as a surprise. After Governor Jared Polis announced her appointment in August of 2022, Kelly took the podium and, while standing in front of the Justice Center in Alamosa, made the statement, "To those of you who are distributing and selling your poison to the citizens of this valley, I promise you this. We are coming for you."

Less than two years later, Kelly has made good on that promise.

The district attorney's office is currently in the process of officially forming a standing drug task force, comprised of specific law enforcement officers from sheriffs' offices and police departments across the valley.

"We have a core group of law enforcement officers who are involved as part of a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) among the agencies who employ these individuals," she says, "and we've committed to investigating drug operations across the entire Valley."

The concept of a drug task force is not new to Kelly. She worked with a task force in Weld County when she was a prosecutor with the DA's office for that jurisdiction.

"I knew the effectiveness of drug task forces in other jurisdictions to be able to start creating longer term investigations that required more manpower. In order to avoid just arresting and charging addicts, we need to go after the people who are distributing the poison to people in the valley. And to be able to do that, we really need to be able to pool our resources together and come up with more effective ways of investigating and charging those dealers."

Effective drug investigations require time, she says, to build trust with people in the community and to gather information. "It takes time to investigate a particular dealer for a longer period so the charges we can bring are more serious charges because we have more information. We can interdict a one-time sale but that doesn't happen as often as we'd like. We need to have the resources to commit longer periods of time for the investigation."

Obviously, people distributing and selling drugs aren't exactly brick and mortar operations. "These dealers aren't staying in Alamosa or Center," she says. "They're moving and selling across the Valley. So, the drug task force will enable us to pool resources and information from all the agencies in the valley to make our information gathering more effective and useful in going after higher dealers."

With that in mind, Kelly describes why the MOU between agencies is so important. "If Monte Vista is working with Alamosa Police Department, they don't have any jurisdiction in Saguache. But this MOU provides them with the authority to do that in that jurisdiction."

As Kelly describes how the drug task force is established, she says her office is going to be actively involved in investigations and overseeing the team. "But this team was formed organically," she says. "Because of the relationships they have built, they'd been working together anyway."

"The DA's office is a mechanism to organize the group and establish legitimacy and purpose to the group so they can have some recognition for the work they've done and find ways to be even more effective."

When asked if she sees this as a proactive approach to law enforcement addressing illegal drug activity, Kelly says, "One hundred percent. That's the key to a strong task force, by developing relationships and strong sources of information in the valley."

"Most of these drug dealers, their business plan involves not getting caught. They're not necessarily the ones committing homicides or other offenses where police would respond. Their business is based on being confidential and private because their business won't survive if they're exposed. So the goal of the task force is to expose their business operations and try to cut them off."

The drug task force mission is to go after big players.

"When you have a group of law enforcement agencies that can demonstrate a level of legitimacy and competence, it becomes less attractive to operate your drug business in that area. The valley has been an attractive place to operate drug business in comparison to other parts of the state where drug task forces are more active. We want to make it a less attractive place to do business for these criminal and poison distributors. So, we're not only going after residents of the valley, we're trying to cut off the head of the snake."

Female inmate at Alamosa County Detention Center found unresponsive in cell

Autopsy rules out foul play

PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — During a routine cell check at the Alamosa County Detention Center early Sunday morning, an unresponsive female inmate was found in her cell.

The 41-year-old woman was discovered at 7:19 a.m., at which time deputies and EMS staff performed life-saving measures. Unfortunately, she was pronounced deceased at the scene.

Joe Dzuris, Alamosa County Coroner, has identified the woman

as Erica Ann Martinez. The Valley Courier reached Dzuris when he was returning to Alamosa after an autopsy on Martinez had been completed, the results of which, he says, confirmed there was no foul play.

Alamosa County Sheriff Robert

Jackson has contacted the Colorado Bureau of Investigation and requested a thorough investigation of the incident. According to a statement from the Sheriff's Office, this is an ongoing investigation, and no further details will be released at this time.

The Hope in the Valley treatment and recovery center in Alamosa.

Hope has opened its doors

'Hope in the Valley' now accepting clients

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — In the fall of 2022, the Valley Courier reported that founders Justin Riley, Kim Reed and Paul Reed of "Hope in the Valley," a new treatment and recovery center, had signed the dotted line to purchase the 6,700 square foot building that would ultimately become the site of their facility from Alamosa County.

Last week, less than two years later, an announcement signed and sent out by Kim Reed, also serving as development director, notified the public that they have accomplished what they said they would do.

"It is with great excitement and profound gratitude that we announce the official opening of Hope in the Valley, a new treatment and recovery center dedicated to serving individuals battling addiction and mental health challenges," Kim Reed's announcement reads.

"As of today, our doors are open to providing much-needed support to those in need. At Hope in the Valley, we are proud to offer 10 detox beds for immediate assistance, along with intensive outpatient therapy and partial hospitalization programs.

"While our ribbon-cutting ceremony opening is scheduled for July 11, we are already actively helping those in need. It is truly heartwarming to see the community's overwhelming response, with a waiting list already in place.

"We are honored to announce that Attorney General (Phil) Weiser will be joining us for the ribbon-cutting ceremony on July 11. Until then, we urge anyone who knows someone struggling with addiction to reach out to our facility without delay.

"Our location behind the sheriff's office in Alamosa, 1317 17th St., Alamosa, serves as a beacon of hope for those seeking help.

"As we embark on this journey, we humbly ask for your prayers, support, and continued assistance in making Hope in the Valley a shining light of hope for the entire San Luis Valley.

"Together, we can make a positive impact and provide much-needed resources to those who need it most.

"Thank you for your unwavering support!"

Mini-grants make small improvements happen in SLV

CONTRIBUTED

ALAMOSA — The San Luis Valley Council of Governments is offering funding to counties and municipalities in the San Luis Valley for small projects that benefit their communities. The funding is available through SLV COG Mini-Grants program and is open to any town, city, or county that is a member of the San Luis Valley Council of Governments.

Applications and guidelines for the 2024 SLV COG Mini-Grants are available online at www.slvdr.org/slv-cog-mini-grants/. The deadline to apply is June 30.

Since 2016, the program has contributed over $388,000 assisting with a wide range of projects that have enhanced communities and provided benefit to public services. Projects funded in recent years include replacing the gazebo in Creede's town square; a new boiler for the South Fork Visitor Center; lighting for La Jara's Main Street; playground equipment in Center; and security improvements for the Alamosa County Clerk and Recorder.

Potential projects may receive funding up to $5,000 and the project cost may not exceed $20,000. Grants also require a one-to-one cash match and are paid on a reimbursement basis. Counties or municipalities may apply for more than one project.

The SLV COG Mini-Grant program is funded by a grant from the Colorado Department of Local Affairs' Energy and Mineral Impact Assistance Program.

Potential applicants may contact Alliyah Garcia with the SLV COG at (719) 589-6099 if they have questions about SLV COG Mini-Grants.

La Jara Glory Days offering prize money for parade floats

CONTRIBUTED

LA JARA — The 2024 La Jara Glory Days celebration will take place on Saturday, July 27.

Most years, the town strives to add a few more attractions to bring the community together to celebrate life in the little town.

This year, the town received a substantial donation from a generous benefactor, who has requested that they use the funds specifically to enhance and improve the parade.

To that end, the town would like to invite all business friends, community organizations, clubs, and anyone one else who may be interested, to ignite their float building creativity. They will three categories:

1. Floats
2. Marching Bands/Drill/Dance Teams
3. Clubs, organizations, saddle clubs, 4-H, Scout troops

The top three winners in each category will receive cash prizes (first place will receive $1,000, second place will receive $500, and third place will receive $250). Winners will be selected by a panel of judges.

The annual Art Lopez Memorial Car show (Cars for a Cause) will also take place during the Glory Days event, and the town would encourage all entries in the car show to also participate in the parade and be eligible to win some of the prize money.

For more information, contact Town Manager Larry Zaragoza at 719-274-0553 or 719-992-4073.

"We hope to increase participation in the parade this year and in the future, however, there is no guarantee that our benefactor will be available in future years to offer the same financial support; therefore, we encourage everyone to take advantage of what we can offer in 2024," town officials stated.

The Crestone Food Bank has opened at a new location next to the Baca Grande Library on County Road T in Saguache County. The food bank is open on Thursdays from 3 to 5:30 p.m. A ribbon-cutting ceremony was held on May 30.

Crestone Food Bank opens in new location

By MARIE MCCOLM

CRESTONE — There was plenty of cause for celebration on Thursday, May 30, in Crestone. Approximately 30 people attended the grand opening of the Crestone Food Bank in its new location right next to the Baca Grande Library in Crestone.

At a little after 2 p.m. staff gathered at the top of a staircase that leads into the food bank, to cut the red ribbon that had been strung across the bottom of the staircase, to signify the official opening of the new food bank building. Everyone on the staircase clapped and cheered.

Saguache County Commissioner Tom McCracken made a brief speech at the ceremony.

“I just want to express our excitement and happiness that the food bank is open again. I want to thank the stakeholders, the Baca POA with the building here. We have the Food Bank Network. We have the Community Care Collective, La Puente, Care and Share, Saguache County and Saguache County Human Services. All the volunteers that have helped pull this all together. We really appreciate it,” he said.

McCracken also stated that they are excited that Saguache is going to be involved now, as a long-term partner.

“They are going to be a permanent stakeholder now, and make sure that the food bank is sustainable for the future,” he said.

According to Commissioner McCracken the food bank had been closed for over a year and finding the new food bank building, along with renovating the new building, had been more than a 6-month process.

“It’s been in the making for a while. It was time for us to get it going,” he said.

Managers of the prior food bank, Marge Hogllin and Joe Buckley, spoke about the opening of the new food bank.

Hogllin said, “We ran the food bank at the previous location for about 3 years. I am just really happy that the new place is open, and it’s happening, and everyone is working together. I think it’s going to be great.”

Both Hogllin and Buckley said that the prior location got to be too small. Buckley said that there was a definite need for more room.

“We outgrew the space. The space had been donated. We started with about 400 people a week, and when we closed there was about 200 people,” Buckley said.

Hogllin said that they began looking for another location, and they hoped to move into a place that was move-in ready.

“There was a deadline, and the space just wasn’t readily available. So, we made the decision to back off, and retire at that time too. We figured it was time to back off and let someone else run it. It’s great to see all the people here today that we used to see. We always enjoyed the people. It’s such a great organization,” Hogllin said.

Hogllin also said that they were glad that the county had stepped up to help the food bank.

“The food banks in Saguache and Center, are in the county, and staffed by county employees. Here in Crestone everything we offer, well we cover our own expenses, and have our own volunteers. When Tom became commissioner, he really wanted to change that. It’s good to see that the county is helping and a partner now,” Hogllin said.

Eden Elderberry, a volunteer of the food bank network for a long time, was proud to see the doors open to the food bank. Elderberry helped with the construction of the new food bank and was involved with all aspects of the new food bank.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you’ll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here’s How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Medicare Fraud Prevention Week runs the week of June 5

CONTRIBUTED
ALAMOSA - Fraud costs Medicare an estimated $60 billion per year. It costs Medicare beneficiaries in time, stress, their medical identities, and even their health. It costs families, friends, and caregivers in worry and lost work when helping their loved ones recover from falling victim to Medicare fraud.

"Medicare fraud has a devastating impact on both beneficiaries and the Medicare program," said Michelle Phillips State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) & Senior Medicare Patrol (SMP) Coordinator. "We teach people how to avoid experiencing Medicare fraud. By preventing fraud from happening, this program helps individuals and protects the Medicare program for generations to come."

Learn how to protect yourself and your loved ones by joining the Senior Medicare Patrol (SMP) and their partners for Medicare Fraud Prevention Week which runs the week of June 5, or 6/5, because most people become eligible for Medicare when they turn 65. Learn more about Medicare Fraud Prevention Week at www.smpresource.org.

SMPs help educate and empower people on Medicare in the fight against health care fraud. Your SMP can help you with your questions, concerns, or complaints about potential fraud and abuse issues. It also provides information and educational presentations.
