Report gives demographic snapshot of SLV

CONTRIBUTED

ALAMOSA — The 2024 San Luis Valley Statistical Profile was released Monday, April 29, by the San Luis Valley Development Resources Group and Council of Governments (SLVDRG).

The annual report provides the latest demographic and economic trends in the San Luis Valley using data from the U.S. Census Bureau, Colorado State Demography Office, and other reliable, public sources to illustrate changes in population, housing, school enrollment, and labor force.

"Last year's Statistical Profile identified three substantial changes from the previous year's profile that were worth noting," said SLVDRG Regional Grants Navigator Craig Barraclough, who compiled the 2024 regional profile. "Those same three indicators are notable again this year. Median household income for the San Luis Valley continues to rise. There was an estimated increase of 9.3 percent from 2021 to 2022: $45,644 to $49,901."

Median household income is a key indicator of a region's wealth and economic health. An increase is a sign of economic growth. However, the Valley's median household income still lags significantly behind the statewide level of $87,598.

"Total public-school enrollment for the Valley continues a downward trend. Fall enrollment in grades K-12 in the Valley decreased 6.7 percent from 2019 to 2023," Barraclough noted. "That number compares to last year's report that showed a decline of 9.2 percent for the period 2018 to 2022. Statewide, Colorado's K-12 fall enrollment declined 3.5 percent over the past five years.

"Retail sales in the Valley have shown tremendous growth over the last five years. For the period 2019 to 2023, retail sales are up by a whopping 42.1 percent," Barraclough said.

Some of the increase in retail sales can be attributed to two factors. The region saw an influx of millions of dollars in relief by the federal government during the pandemic, bolstering business and personal spending during shutdowns. Secondly, the state began collecting taxes on online retail sales during this period, which enabled tracking of previously unrecorded online sales transactions.

Besides illustrating trends over periods of years, the statistical profile also shows single-year numbers for

Creede School District hires Birdsey as superintendent

By LYNDIE FERRELL

CREEDE — The Creede School District Board of Education recently announced the hiring of Susan Birdsey as its new superintendent.

She replaces Keith Crispell, who was tabbed to be the next Prentice School District administrator in Wisconsin. PSD made its hire public in early April.

Having lived in the Creede area for several years and owning the Ramble House, Birdsey says she is more than excited to get back to her educational roots and is looking forward to serving the district and community of Creede.

"I worked for the district for about 10 years before moving on and securing an administrative background in education. I am really excited to be coming back home and to serving the community I have grown to love," she said.

Birdsey spent the first half of her educational career in Creede before moving on to Rifle where she worked as principal. After 10 years in Rifle, Birdsey then moved on to serve as interim principal for a district in Grand Junction where she will finish out the school year before heading back to Creede.

"I really enjoyed bringing my experience from a small school district like Creede to the larger districts. It afforded me the ability to be well informed on several educational areas and gave me a unique perspective that I was able to use while pursuing my administrative experience," said Birdsey.

During her time at the Creede District, Birdsey did what many of the teachers and staff do at the school and taught several topics and classes. From journalism and English language arts to high school Spanish, Birdsey speaks about her time with enthusiasm and excitement.

"I really enjoyed working for the district and look forward to doing so again," she said.

Birdsey comes to her new position with an undergraduate degree from the University of Texas El Paso, a bachelor's in Education, a master's in Educational Leadership, and a doctorate in Education from Walden University.

Birdsey starts with the Creede School District in July and for the first year is looking forward to getting to know the students, teachers and staff.

"My first goal is to just watch and learn. Things and

SLV man sentenced to 12 years for extortion, forgery, retaliating against judges

CONTRIBUTED

DENVER — A San Luis Valley man with recent ties to Gunnison County was sentenced earlier this week to 12 years in the Department of Corrections for committing extortion and threatening several judges, law enforcement officers, prosecutors, attorneys, and citizens in Gunnison, Montrose, and Alamosa counties over a two-year period.

Last month, a jury found Brett Andrew Nelson guilty on 20 of 24 counts brought against him by the statewide grand jury in April 2022.

According to the office of the Attorney General, who announced the sentencing in a press release on Wednesday, Nelson lived in a rural area north of Alamosa. No additional information, such as where Nelson specifically lived or when, was available.

“Brett Nelson’s actions undermined the integrity of our legal system and endangered the safety of several Coloradans who were doing their job,” said Attorney General Phil Weiser, whose office prosecuted the case. “This conviction and sentencing advances the rule of law and protects public safety.”

State prosecutors presented evidence that, starting in 2018, Nelson used sovereign citizen-like tactics by starting to submit numerous fraudulent documents such as powers of attorney and default judgments against public officials and individuals involved in criminal and domestic relations cases where he was a defendant.

Nelson also filed documents containing threats directed at judges and lodged announcements of liens on several judges’ properties in an attempt to influence case outcomes.

In efforts to dismiss cases in which he was involved, he submitted powers of attorney, granting him authority to represent judges.

Other evidence presented at the trial demonstrated how Nelson submitted fraudulent quitclaim deeds on multiple properties, aiming to transfer ownership to himself. The properties belonged to various individuals involved in Nelson’s criminal and domestic relations cases, including victims and law enforcement officers. Nelson also filed false default judgments against individuals connected to his legal matters, including the mother of his child.

Nelson’s case went to trial in Gunnison County District Court. The jury returned a verdict after five hours of deliberations.

“The Colorado Bureau of Investigation and our law enforcement partners understand and appreciate the public interest surrounding this case,” said CBI Director Chris Schaefer. “The investigative team assembled to work this case continues to follow the evidence and only the evidence as we seek justice for Suzanne’s death.”

Last September, Morphew’s remains were found near the town of Moffat in Saguache County while investigators were conducting an investigation unrelated to her death. She went missing in May 2020. Saguache County is in the

Spring has sprung OPINION & EDITORIAL

As many of you already know, Miss Trixie and Ol' Dutch have been busy this year with building a new house. It's a labor of love for sure as most of the work is being done by Yours Truly, the old mountain man himself. And of course, that means that progress on some days can be measured in small increments but the slow and steady wins the race they say. I sure hope so.

Recently warmer weather has accompanied our efforts, but it does have its drawbacks as evidenced by this past week's tornado activities. Generally speaking, it takes hotter days to spawn those demons from Hell and we went from nice 60-degree days to 80 seemingly overnight and will be pushing 100 sooner than you think.

The warm weather does bring about a change in people's activities, of course. The Big Box stores have potted plants for sale by the millions, kids are playing outdoor sports, and boats are being sold to naive buyers who have yet to learn the two best days when buying a boat is the day you buy it and the day you sell it.

No matter where you look there are families with children of every age and description. I can't help but think that just some short years ago these same parents were carefree and fun-loving youngsters themselves. They decided, though, that lugging around diaper bags, strollers, and car seats would be more "fun." And not to be outdone by their friends, they all seem to be purchasing plastic wagons to carry the plethora of things needed on a typical family outing.

Attending a soccer match the sidelines look like a tailgating party with all the chairs, coats, food, balls and ruggats in their red wagons all gathered in a circle like the pioneers of old. And Ol' Dutch can only sit and smile at the harried look on the parents' faces as they try and keep it all together one more Saturday.

Ol' Dutch and Miss Trixie can feel at least a little of their frustrations as we have had to try and find a way to attend soccer games, volleyball games and horse shows in different towns on the same day in the midst of Dallas-level traffic. Often, it's a race to the next spot to hopefully get there in time to see the next grand play.

So, I can sense that same frustration in the lives of young parents as they have to split up as a couple to try and make it all work. God help the ones that have four or five kids as I have no idea how they make that all work.

All this pressure often boils over at the games and these once sane parents can be seen pulling their hair out individually and as a couple. You can tell they have given up on maintaining sanity when they simply hand money over to the baby of the family for concessions in copious quantities just to shut them up.

Another place I often see families or at least some families is at the big lumber stores like Lowes and Home Depot. For it is here that you will find the dads with the kids and mom is nowhere in sight. I finally figured out this is because the mother has "had enough" and told the dad to "take these kids and get them out of this house." The kids are generally well-behaved as they know they have "hit the wall" as far as being mischievous with their mothers all week and dad is not going to put up with that nonsense.

And to their credit the moms do get hit with most of the work with the kids all week and their dad has learned that aged old saying "happy wife, happy life" to be true. Good luck to all of you that have to balance kids' activities against work and schedules this Spring and Summer. And if you are a dad, grab those ruggats and get them out from under foot around the house. These times will not last forever. It will just seem like it.

A candy bar fueled the Iron Horse Bicycle Classic

By DAVE MARSTON

If you don't know much about the Iron Horse bike race that begins in the town of Durango in southwestern Colorado, know that it is brutal, pitting cyclists against a narrow-gauge train that takes an easy route up a valley.

Riders, though, must climb a curvy route of 47 miles over two passes, both more than 10,000 feet high, as the road threads its way through the rugged San Juan Mountains.

Winners finish about two and a half hours, the train chugs in an hour later.

An enduring race legacy belongs to one man, Ed Zink, who died five years ago. He spent decades running the race or being involved through its nonprofit board from 1972-2019. Though the race is now 52 years old, attracts 3,000 riders and has a big budget and staff, its beginnings were entirely local.

In 1971, two brothers named Mayer thought it would be fun to pit bicycles against the local train, where Jim Mayer worked as a brakeman for the Durango and Silverton Railroad. Jim's brother, Tom, bet his brother he could beat the train riding his bicycle. He did just that, winning a candy bar.

The next year the brothers teamed up with Zink, a born organizer, to start what became an annual race during the Memorial Day weekend.

For the next 30 years, said Patty Zink, the race was a bootstrap operation. Her husband "and his kids and employees at our Mountain Bike Specialists store led the volunteering, food and cleanup. It's fabulous that it's thrived and now is the second oldest bike race in the United States."

"Zink worked so hard organizing the race, he didn't get to ride in it until 2006 when he was 59," said Gaipe Sippy, who took over as director in 2007, until 2022.

Sippy said to this day, there has always been at least one Zink family member and often 10 volunteers helping out along the route of the race,

More recently, the race has featured the remarkable Mara Abbott, an Olympian biker who's also the winningest Iron Horse rider. She's beaten thousands of men six times.

In a TEDx Talk, she recounted almost winning an Olympic race until running out of gas with just a few hundred yards to the finish. At that point, she said, three cyclists passed her, leaving her "with the privilege of a broken heart."

Sippy credits Abbott and local Durango legend Ned Overend, who owns the second most wins, with inspiring legions of riders to take on the mountain passes.

But before Abbott and Overend and the race's national reputation, there was Zink. He kept the race going until it became an institution that helped define Durango, a sports-loving town.

Many locals recall Zink as a man who loved to get good things going. An example was his founding of the easier Quarter Horse Bike Race, where riders only grind out 25 miles uphill to the Purgatory ski area. Once the shorter race was established, Zink let someone else lead the event.

Zink was also early to the idea of mountain biking having its own home. Sippy recalls him saying, "We're always trying to fit in, riding on trails sharing with other folks. It would be great if cycling had its own stadium."

Back in 1990, it was because of Zink's work that the Mountain Bike World Championships came to Durango. It was early days for mountain biking — just a decade after riders on homemade Klunker bikes started traversing old mining trails.

Marc Katz, founder of a big park for mountain bikes and other sports that's underway close to town, said he deeply feels Zink's loss. "I had many chats with Ed Zink along the way. I am sad he isn't around to talk with now that we're getting this thing done."

Sexual trauma and mental health: concepts to consider

By JENN MCCOY, MSW

Sexual assault, unwanted sexual contact, rape, molestation, sexual violence...these are just a few words that can be used as signifiers of sexual trauma. What do you notice about your body, mind and heart's response to these words? Is there a tightening in your chest? A dropping sensation in your stomach? Perhaps a resistance to acknowledge these words at all...a desire to read these words no further, an aversion to allow these concepts to sit with you too deeply...or potentially criticisms towards the writer who so boldly positioned them in the opening line to a newspaper article.

Whatever your response to these words may be, reflect on how impactful the acts these words symbolize may be. If the word itself can generate a felt bodily response, consider the intensity of the experience.

Chances are, you or someone close to you, does have an experience of sexual trauma; according to the Center for Disease Control, "Over half of women and almost 1 in 3 men have experienced sexual violence involving physical contact during their lifetimes." Often, the devastation of these experiences transcend the assault itself; increasing one's chances of struggles with anxiety, depression, trust, intimacy, and many other areas of healthy human functioning. And the body's response to mental health struggles such as these hold potential to manifest in physical health, as illustrated by a quote from trauma expert, Dr. Bessel Van Der Kolk, "After trauma the world is experienced with a different nervous system. The survivor's energy now becomes focused on suppressing inner chaos... These attempts to maintain control over unbearable physiological reactions can result in a whole range of physical symptoms, including fibromyalgia, chronic fatigue, and other autoimmune diseases." Research linking trauma and subsequent mental health struggles to somatic symptoms and ailments is abounding; the Adverse Childhood Experiences study that began in 1995 was one of the first to explore this concept. Since then, the field of mental and behavioral health has been excavating understandings of trauma, stressors, the nervous system, interpersonal and intrapersonal relationships, and so much more to inform human health and well-being.

With a public health issue this far-reaching, it can become overwhelming or seemingly impossible to consider the thought of conjuring change. While a society where sexual violence is extinguished may be a vision seen through rose colored glasses, your thoughts, feelings and behaviors can embody the spirit of this aspiration. The power that is propagated through compassion and connection is not to be underestimated; Dr. Peter Levine has explained, "Trauma is not what happens to us, but what we hold inside in the absence of an empathetic witness." The power of showing up for another through connection and compassion is further supported by author and psychotherapist Jennifer Nurick, LPC, as she shares, "we can learn to self-regulate as adults, but this is only part of the process. The other part is the healing that happens in a two-person system, relationally" and the inspirational Brene Brown, PhD, LMFW who tells us, "by responding with empathy and compassion, the healing results affect us all".

The message hopefully conveyed, is to hold space for two truths; the intensity of sexual assault can be significant on the body and mind, and the impact can be countered with the power of humans who demonstrate empathy and care for others' experiences without judgement. It's easy to deviate attention from difficult subjects such as sex and violence, particularly the two together, but avoiding will likely increase shame, disconnect and suffering. In alignment with the nature of this article, it is fitting to end with a quote. Dr. Gabor Mate provides the insight, "All of western medicine is built on getting rid of pain, which is not the same as healing. Healing is actually the capacity to hold pain". As we reframe the impact of sexual assault on mental health as a community issue rather than an individual's issue, we hold the burden together and lighten the weight of such heavy happenings.

The snowmelt waters have now reached the area near the Dunes Parking Lot with a shallow and gentle flow. The creek is about one inch deep and between 10-20 feet.

Residents and other visitors to the park enjoy the cool water of the creek. Aside from the recreational pleasure, the creek is also of interest to scientists and the familiar pulse of the creek is a rare phenomenon. The "surge flow," of the creek is one of the few places on Earth where water flowing over the instream sand creates the pulse.

There are three attributes needed to create the surge flow. A relatively steep gradient that gives the water velocity. A smooth and mobile creek bed with little resistance which creates a laminar flow, and a sufficient supply of water. These components make dams or antidunes that create temporary small pools in the creek. When there is enough pressure from impounded water, the antidunes break sending the surge of water downstream. The magnitude of the surges depends on the depth (quantity) of water and can be as high as one foot.

Medano Creek, on the east and southeast sides of the dunes, and Sand Creek, on the northwestern side, influence the shape of the dune field. Researchers have concluded that without the influence of the streams and their role in transporting sand, the dunes would look different and would most likely be more oval-shaped.

Wearing Love

"Above all, clothe yourselves with love, which binds us all together in perfect harmony" (Colossians 3:14 NLT).

Love is the highest level of spiritual warfare. We are to "wear" it like a garment, or armor. That's why it's so important to learn to love like the Bible says to—on purpose. But there are so many angry, wounded, unhappy people in the world. Angry people cannot love others because basically, they just don't love themselves... and you can't give away something you don't have.

Don't get me wrong, I understand there are numerous reasons for people's pain. A lot of times people have been mistreated, many from their childhood into adult life. I've shared my story openly about how my father abused me sexually from a very early age. I grew to believe that it must be my fault—that there was something wrong with me that made him do that. I became ashamed, embarrassed and angry about my life. I didn't like myself, much less love myself.

How I felt about myself certainly became a major part of how I acted and treated others. Even though I gave my life to Jesus when I was very young, it was years before I began to comprehend the power of God's love. So, I understand the fact that hurting people hurt people.

What I had to learn—and most of us have got to learn—is to love self. You need to first receive God's love and then learn to love yourself in a balanced way before you can truly love your neighbor as yourself. So, learn to love what God loves—YOU!

God's love will change you. It will make you a happier, kinder, more generous person.

I'm reminded of a story about a young boy who came to his mother and presented her with his "bill" for chores he'd done around the house that week. For cutting the grass, his charge was $5; for cleaning his room, $1; for running to the store, 50¢; $1 for taking out the garbage; $5 for a good report card; and on he went until he gave her the grand total of $14.75.

The mother looked at the bill, turned the paper over to the backside and began to write. For the nine months I carried you while you were growing inside me, NO CHARGE; for all the nights I sat up with you, doctored, and prayed for you, NO CHARGE; for all the trying times and the tears you've caused through the years, NO CHARGE; for all the nights that were filled with dread and all the worries I knew were ahead, NO CHARGE; for the toys, the food, the clothes and even for wiping your nose, NO CHARGE. She finally said to him, "Son, when you add it all up, the cost of my love is NO CHARGE!"

The boy finished reading what his mother had written, and with tears in his eyes, he turned the paper back over and wrote across his bill: PAID IN FULL.

The moral of this story is true love is free. Real love is not something we can "charge" people for. We must not try to make someone pay for our love: "If you're nice to me, I'll love you." "If you do things for me, I'll do things for you." That's not the kind of love of God calls us to. To love like God does, we have to make up our mind that we're going to do it on purpose.

And many times, that will mean choosing to love, regardless of how we feel about a person. There will be times we will be called to love difficult people or people who have hurt us in some way. We must learn to look beyond the person, or what they did to hurt us, to what the enemy is using them to do. Because as long as we are angry or hating someone for what they've done, we will be the one who is being tormented.

I know I said real love is free. But there is a cost involved for the one who loves. It's called sacrifice. As I've studied love in God's Word over the years, I've learned that it is definitely something we must do on purpose, and if we will make the sacrifice to "put on" love and walk in it, our feelings will catch up.

A minister once told a story about a wife who wanted to divorce her husband. She said she hated him, not only wanted to divorce him, but she wanted to hurt him as much as he'd hurt her. The minister suggested she try something before she went through with the divorce. He told her to go home and "act" as if she really loved her husband. He told her to tell him she loved him, to praise him for every good thing she could think of, to go out of her way (sacrifice) to be as kind and generous to him as she possibly could, to spare no effort to please him, to make him believe in her undying love for him. Then, he told her, drop the bomb and tell him she was getting a divorce. That would really hurt him.

She willingly followed the plan with enthusiasm, playing the part of an adoring wife, acting as if she loved him while thinking how much it would hurt when she told him she was getting a divorce. But she never called the minister back to report. So when he called her after two months to find out if she was ready to get her divorce, the woman replied, "Divorce? No, never! I've discovered that I really do love him!"

Now, I'm not advocating that preacher's advice; we must follow the Holy Spirit's lead in each situation. But the point is, God does amazing things in a person—or in yourself—when you walk in love toward them...especially when it's difficult. The bottom line is giving real love is free. But let it cost you the small sacrifice of your time and effort. Because that place of sacrifice will be the place of your breakthrough.

When you put on love and walk in love toward others in obedience to God, you will be fighting the highest form of spiritual warfare. And there will be absolutely nothing or nobody able to keep you from being blessed!

Celebrating Colorado's cultural heritage through folk and traditional arts projects

CONTRIBUTED

DENVER — The Colorado Creative Industries (CCI) Division of the Colorado Office of Economic Development and International Trade (OEDIT) announced that 21 artists and art organizations across Colorado have been awarded Folk and Traditional Arts Project Grants.

These grants will help preserve, celebrate and document the local artistic traditions and heritage of unique Colorado communities.

“By celebrating Colorado’s folk and traditional arts, we preserve values and traditions that are passed from generation to generation,” said OEDIT Director, Eve Lieberman. “The recipients announced today will help carry on the diversity, culture and heritage of Colorado communities, offering all of us the opportunity to realize the rich history our state holds.”

The Folk and Traditional Arts Project Grants seek to enhance community well-being, cultural identity, economic vitality, and sense of place especially in areas that are often underrepresented in the contemporary art space. Funds will support the creation, presentation, or teaching of folk and traditional arts, and or the documentation of folk or traditional arts and cultural heritage through community archiving, oral histories, photojournalism, video or other creative works.

Among the recipients, the Spanish Peaks Community Foundation will use the grant funds to publish a cookbook of recipes and stories representing Huerfano County. As part of the grant’s preservation efforts, all funded projects will be archived in the State Archives and made accessible to the public through History Colorado.

“Folk and traditional art is a vital and ever evolving artistic tradition that reflects the cultural life of a community. We are so pleased to see renewed interest nationwide in preserving these traditions and are proud to celebrate Colorado’s many unique communities,” said CCI Director, Josh Blanchard.

SLV fallen peace officers memorial on May 15

Respect, honor and remember

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — Continuing with a tradition that is now in its 18th year, the city of Alamosa is holding a memorial service honoring peace officers of the San Luis Valley who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

In recognition of National Peace Officers Memorial week from May 12 to 18, the service in Alamosa will be held on Wednesday, May 15, at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Alamosa Safety Complex, 425 4th St.

The memorial service will be preceded by a procession of lights with officers instructed to meet at 3110 1st St. at 5 p.m. A dinner will follow the service.

“We would like to take this opportunity to invite law enforcement and the public, as well, to join us during this time to recognize and honor all of the Fallen Police Officers in the San Luis Valley, as well as those officers across the state and nationwide who have fallen in the line of duty,” reads the press release from the city.

According to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, there were 136 law enforcement officers in federal, state, county, municipal, military, tribal and campus agencies across the nation who lost their lives in 2023, representing a 39% decrease from the 224 officers who died in the line of duty in 2022.

The organization’s website also states that, of those 136 law enforcement officers who died in 2023, 47 were firearms-related fatalities. That is a 25% decrease from the 63 officers killed by gunfire the previous year, but firearms-related fatalities are still the leading cause of death.

“There is no such thing as ‘good news’ when reporting even a single officer being killed in the line-of-duty,” states National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund CEO Bill Alexander on the organization’s website. “Yet we are encouraged to see fewer overall officer deaths across all major categories in 2023. Using and reporting on this data allows us to highlight the continuing dangers faced by our law enforcement professionals, particularly the number of officers who are shot and killed each year.”

RG Community Trust gains on affordable housing goals

CONTRIBUTED

DEL NORTE — It has already been a busy year for the Rio Grande Community Trust (RGCT), a nonprofit formed in 2022 with a mission to sustain vibrant, durable communities in the San Luis Valley by creating homes that remain permanently affordable.

As part of this mission, RGCT is partnering with the Sawmill Meadow Village Housing Development in South Fork, which will create 30 affordable workforce housing units in the area, immediately addressing the need identified in the 2021 SLV Housing Needs Assessment. To ensure that the first 10 homeownership units remain affordable in perpetuity, RGCT will steward the deed restrictions. As homeowners buy the land and homes at Sawmill Meadow, these deed restrictions will ensure future buyers also have access to affordable homeownership.

“We started RGCT because we love the San Luis Valley and want living here to be affordable for everyone. We know that many people who are the backbone of our communities are at risk of being left behind and pushed out of the SLV,” says Martha Williamson, co-founder and president of RGCT. “We are thrilled to carry forward the work of Sawmill Meadow, the Town of South Fork, and the San Luis Valley Housing Coalition as our first opportunity to make perpetually affordable homeownership a reality.”

The Sawmill Meadow development has been in motion since 2022, with construction on the first 10 homes beginning in late 2023. Matt Dorsett, the lead developer on the project, expects those units to be available by mid-summer 2024.

“The right people have come to the table to make this happen,” Dorsett says. “RGCT has brought their expertise and resources to the project to help ensure affordability is preserved and get this project across the finish line.”

As this opportunity to execute on its mission opened, the means to make it so converged. In February, Wolf Creek Ski Area made a generous $100,000 philanthropic pledge. RGCT is over the moon at this donation, which is instrumental to the nonprofit scaling its efforts going forward. Using the support from Wolf Creek, as well as funding from other sources, RGCT will use the community land trust model to create more affordable homeownership opportunities throughout the San Luis Valley.

“In the changing and dynamic world that we are all living in, it is of the utmost importance to stay grounded. When I was made aware of a grassroots attempt to help residents of the San Luis Valley continue to be able to afford and live in the Valley with the possibility of raising their families, gaining equity, and improving their financial security, the path was clear that supporting this fledgling program was worth it,” says Davey Pitcher, president and CEO of Wolf Creek Ski Area. “Wolf Creek Ski Area is a seasonal weather dependent business, if all goes well and we have another successful winter, and the Rio Grande Community Trust continues to gain momentum we plan on continuing our support for many years to come.”

Formed in 2022, the nonprofit Rio Grande Community Trust (RGCT) supports the San Luis Valley remaining a place where people can afford to live and work for decades to come. RGCT stewards deed restrictions or purchases land, works with builders and developers to build or rehab houses and work directly with buyers to create a path to ownership that ensures properties remain within reach in the long term. RGCT also purchases commercial real estate and leases it to community businesses who would not otherwise be able to set up shop in the towns that so dearly need them.

Historic investment in agriculture, CDA approved in state budget

By COLORADO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BROOMFIELD — On Monday, Governor Jared Polis signed the Long Bill, sponsored by the Joint Budget Committee, which commits significant investments into programs and staff supporting agriculture across Colorado.

The state budget for Fiscal Year 2024/2025 includes a 13 percent increase in funding to the Department of Agriculture, to build out and add support to existing programs working to improve our state’s agricultural industry. Funding included in the Long Bill will support farmer-driven conservation efforts, emergency preparedness, renewable energy adaptation, and more.

“The state budget includes funding to expand CDA programs that are directly benefiting producers, developing new leaders in agriculture, and helping use water wisely across Colorado,” said Commissioner of Agriculture Kate Greenberg. “This budget package is a result of countless conversations with ag communities and is reflective of some of the biggest needs we have heard from the field. These resources will be making their way back to these communities to support resilience, stewardship, and a vibrant future for Colorado agriculture.”

Funding included in the state budget will help CDA advance:

Next Generation Agricultural Leadership and Agriculture Workforce Development Programs, which help fund hands-on internships at Colorado agricultural businesses for people interested in gaining real world experience in agriculture and which provide funding to organizations that train and develop future leaders in all areas of agriculture.

Wolf Conflict Mitigation, to support producers implementing non-lethal predator control measures and conflict reduction practices.

Agricultural Drought and Climate Resilience Office (ADCRO), to accelerate how quickly

Colorado agri businesses adopt or expand green energy generation and to support a suite of on-farm resilience practices and renewable energy projects.

Creation of a new Division of Animal Welfare, to increase oversight of the Bureau of Animal Protection and Pet Animal Care Facilities Act Program; expand proactive education and outreach; and create additional capacity for the State Veterinarian to support animal health efforts.

Agricultural Workforce Services Program, to increase coordination, outreach, and support to agricultural employers and workers to address agricultural labor issues.

Agricultural Emergency Management program, which engages directly with Colorado’s rural agricultural communities to facilitate a comprehensive approach to disaster preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation.

Over the past several years, Colorado has been leading the way toward a more resilient future, and agriculture has been a large part of that movement. These programs have been critical in supporting the priorities for the Department, which are expanding water-resilient agriculture, supporting future generations of agriculturalists, developing local food systems, and advancing animal health and welfare.

In addition to the daily regulatory work of the agency, CDA has been expanding the work of the Conservation and Markets divisions to grow programs that prepare Colorado’s agricultural communities for the future. Initiatives such as the Colorado Soil Health program help small and medium-sized producers expand their climate smart practices and access emerging markets for food grown with these practices. In the Markets Division, programs such as Colorado Proud and International Markets will be leading the way to promote Colorado products among consumers in our state and across the world.

A Burro's Tale coming to RGC Museum

STAFF REPORT

DEL NORTE — With summer quickly approaching, the Rio Grande County Museum is getting ready to offer several events beginning with a celebration to honor the donkeys and burros that helped shape the course of history and continue to bring joy and a fuzzy touch to day-to-day life here in the good old west.

The Rio Grande County Museum will be hosting the Asses of Rio Grande County, A Burro's Tale on June 1 from 10 a.m. until the fun stops. Presentations for the event will include representatives from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), Tiny as is Donkey Experiences and the Silva Family. The day will be packed (pun intended) with tales of long ago as well as recent efforts to help save and care for wild burros throughout the region.

According to the Bureau of Land Management, "The Bureau of Land Management created the Wild Horse and Burro Program to implement the Wild-Free Roaming Horses and Burros Act, passed by Congress in 1971. Broadly, the law declares wild horses and burros to be 'living symbols of the historic and pioneer spirit of the West' and stipulates that the BLM and the U.S. Forest Service have the responsibility to manage and protect herds in their respective jurisdictions within areas where wild horses and burros were found roaming in 1971."

Not only does the BLM offer significant aid to wild burros and horses alike, but South Fork is home to two burro sanctuaries where burros are given a home, a job and a life free of worry. Tiny as is Donkey Experiences and Burro Buddies are places where the public can learn more about burros.

The event also features a presentation by a Silva Family descendant who is eager to come and share stories about one of the first settlers in the area and the life they lived alongside burros and their sheep herds. The Silva Family dates to the early 1800s and was one of the first families to reside in the area after receiving land from the Spanish Land Grant agreements.

The day will be packed full of fun and educational opportunities and a chance to meet some burros so be sure to mark the calendar for June 1 and come out to have some fun. For more information or a full schedule of events, visit www.riograndecountymuseum.org or call 719-657-2847.

What a way to end April

By HIGH VALLEY COMMUNITY CENTER

DEL NORTE — There has been so much going on at High Valley Community Center, and we have loved getting to be with our community as much as we have this last week. From after-school programming to after-prom festivities, it has been the best way to end April and launch into May.

We made funny face planters to plant seeds in, played a ton outside in the beautiful weather and ended the week with a splash at Hooper Pool. The kids loved getting to participate in activities that encouraged them to celebrate Earth Day.

Soccer has been as fun as ever! We would love to see you cheering us on at our games at Chapman Park every Saturday morning.

Adult Open Soccer is still happening every Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at Voss Field. Come join us in a friendly competition!

We are counting down the days until our Summer Programming starts! As a reminder, we will not have after-school programming from May 20-31. The first day of Summer Programming will be June 4 - we hope to see you there!

"I'm on the move again with my UPWalker!"

FREE shipping!

The UPWalker is a revolutionary new mobility device that can change your life by changing the way you walk. It enables you to stand upright when you walk - with your spine straight and your eyes looking straight ahead. Your weight is supported by your upper arms and shoulders, some of the strongest parts of your body. Traditional walkers and rollators force you to put the pressure of your body weight on your hands and wrists. You push them in front of you, looking at the ground instead of where you are going. The UPWalker moves with you, with your body perfectly aligned and your feet free to walk in a normal fashion. Its easy-adjust height system allows it to be the perfect fit/height for anyone from 4'10" to 6'1" and supports up to 300 pounds. The new stand-assist handles enable you to distribute your weight across your arms and shoulders, not your hands and wrists to help reduce back, neck, wrist pain and discomfort. It features comfortable arm pads, hand brakes, a fold-down seat, a backrest and two storage bags. It's built with aircraft-grade aluminum to be sturdy yet lightweight, and its sleek design and oversized wheels make it perfect for tight spots in the house or walking in the yard. Why spend another day bent over and shuffling around - or worse yet, plopped in front of the TV all day. Pick up the phone and take back your life. Call now.

and the current Rio Grande County Board of Commissioners to make this happen. The stage office was moved three times over the years, but this was the first time the building was completely dismantled.

Efforts to save the Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office began back in the 1970s when local historian Ruth Marie Colville set out to see that the historic building was preserved. The building was built in 1875 near the Windsor Hotel. Once plans to build the hotel were underway, the building was moved to the west end of Del Norte where the Barlow and Sanderson Stables were located.

In the 1970s, Colville gathered a group of volunteers and had the building moved once again to the park across from Town Hall on the north end of Del Norte where it slowly fell into disrepair. It was then that Colville's daughter Suzanne Off and resident Patty Kelly decided it was time to try and save the building.

Over the past two years, the Rio Grande County Museum, the Town of Del Norte, the Rio Grande County commissioners, the Windsor Hotel and the Del Norte Public Library worked with several volunteers and donors to raise the funds to save the building and move it to its new home at the museum.

Now with the help of Creek Water Construction, the building will be restored and rebuilt in the back courtyard of the museum and will serve as a permanent exhibit. The exhibit will showcase what the office would have looked like when travelers arrived in the Del Norte area in the late 1800s and is reunited with the original 1876 Barlow and Sanderson Stagecoach that was loaned to the museum by the City of Monte Vista.

Plans are to have the new building available to the public for viewing by the end of the summer, weather and time permitting. A huge thanks goes out to everyone who made donations and supported efforts to save the Barlow as well as those who are continuing to help volunteer time and services to see the building restored to its original glory.

BIRDSEY

Continued from Page 1A — people have changed since I last taught in this district and I want the opportunity to learn before I commit to any changes big or small," explained Birdsey. "I want to show respect for the district and learn, build relationships and figure out what the district needs."

In addition to getting to know the district, Birdsey also plans on working with the community of Creede and to have public discussion pertaining to topics like enrollment.

"Every district has discussions on how to increase enrollment. Just like in other communities, enrollment should be a community discussion because it involves so much more than just bringing in new students. You have to talk about housing, transportation and the things that make your district a place where parents want to send their students," she said.

Birdsey is excited to start her new position and is also looking forward to coming home to family.

"I am excited to come back to where I began my educational career and to be home with family," she said.

Six months in, seven grants awarded

Howlin' Dog Music Group is making it happen

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — Just six months after introducing themselves and their purpose to the public, Howlin' Dog Music Group (HDMG) — the Alamosa based, one-of-a-kind non-profit devoted to "keeping music alive," and helping highly gifted artists get their music out into the world — has just completed their first grant cycle. Seven artists coming from Colorado, New Mexico and Texas were recently awarded grants ranging from $2,500 to $3,000.

"The artists will be using the grant funding to record music," says Teri McCartney, who manages operations for the non-profit and is one of its co-founders. "Some will be recording here [at Howlin' Dog Studios] and others in recording studios in other places. The awards aren't enough to completely fund a recording, but they give the artists a pretty good start."

The grant recipients are separated into three categories — Developing, Professional/Working and Legacy — but their profiles reveal a very diverse group of artists, ranging from those in the first stages of their careers to a seasoned, well-known artist who defines the word legendary. And each comes with a very unique story to tell.

Nicole Haworth, a Taos native, uses her lyrics to speak of her life. "I live nestled among the old growth trees, 8,000ft above the seas..."

Megan Clarisse Cave of Denver whose diagnosis of breast cancer at the age of 37 "propelled me even farther into music. I just really started to feel like it's now or never."

Lisa Kori Chung of Santa Fe whose discovery of the travails of her ancestors who immigrated to the U.S. inspired her album, "Daughter of the West", based on imagining if the music of Chinese and Japanese workers naturally became part of the mix of influences of American music.

Michael O'Connor of Texas who's been performing for almost 40 of the 60 years he's been alive, including as a lead guitarist with Ray Wylie Hubbard, Slaid Cleaves, Susan Gibson and dozens Izzy Gonzales, Keith Pierce and Rylie Dominguez are only a few of the cast for the Upper Rio Grande School District's Del Norte Theatre's production of the classic 'Momma Mia,' which will open April 25 at the Del Norte High School Theatre.

URGSD Theatre Group brings classic to the stage

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

DEL NORTE — For the past few years, the Upper Rio Grande School District (URGSD) Trades and Theatre Instructor Bill Sauvigne has been bringing the joy of theatre back to the stage in Del Norte and this spring's performance of "Momma Mia" is not to be missed.

Though the theatre class is not part of the everyday curriculum at URGSD, Sauvigne and his students have made it a part of their everyday lives, dedicating time and attention to the production.

"We wanted to take the theatre program from dinner theatre to Broadway, so we started doing things differently. We wanted to do bigger plays, try to build the program up," said Sauvigne. "When we chose this play,

Monte Inked raises awareness, tattoos for a cause

By MARIE MCCOLM

ALAMOSA — On Saturday, April 20, at the Adams State University Student Union Building Court, Monte Inked tattooed for Sexual Assault Awareness Month.

The tattooing was approved by the Adams State board. The owner of Monte Inked LLC, Yolie Trujillo, was excited and pleased with the flash sale.

"We were so honored to have students, faculty members, and staff come down and receive tattoos from us," she said. "Today we did well over 100 tattoos at the university. It was a good turnout. This was the first of what we hope will be many. They like to do things like this at the college. This month was Sexual Assault Awareness month. We combined it with Suicide Awareness and Mental Health Awareness. We did like the semi colons, a lot of my body my rules, type of stuff. We love to support causes, and this is a cause that we really wanted to support. We were very honored to do it."

Trujillo, who has been a tattoo artist for over 12 years and owned and operated Monte Inked LLC for over 3 years now, was excited when Adams State contacted her about 2 months ago.

"The college knows that we do a lot of these types of things at the shop," Trujillo said. "Every year, we do Mental Health Awareness. So, when we were contacted, we were super excited about doing this event. To be approved

Alamosa commissioners address violence in Sexual Assault Awareness Month Proclamation

CONTRIBUTED

ALAMOSA — On April 10, the Alamosa County Board of County Commissioners issued a proclamation in recognition of the trauma caused by sexual assault. On hand to receive the proclamation were Tu Casa employees, an organization that provides social services, including assistance to victims of sexual assault and child sexual abuse.

The proclamation read in part, "Throughout Alamosa County, Colorado, in recognition of Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM) we call attention to the fact that sexual violence is widespread and impacts every person in every community. SAAM aims to raise public awareness about sexual abuse, harassment, and assault and educate communities about how to be involved in prevention. "This year's SAAM campaign theme, Building Connected Communities, calls on each of us to work together to prevent sexual abuse, harassment, and assault. We believe when anyone experiences sexual violence, every community member is affected. We must strive to build more connected, respectful, and inclusive communities to promote our collective well-being and protect against the risk of sexual violence. We believe all of our communities will be safer and stronger by making them more equitable for people of all gender identities and sexual orientations, races and ethnic backgrounds, ages, faiths, and abilities."

we knew everyone knows 'Momma Mia.' It has good name recognition. We would love to see more than just our local community members."

Students that participate in the program work countless hours during their free time to put together each production the theatre group has done.

"These students come after sports in the evenings and sometimes dedicate their personal time to the show. It's amazing how dedicated they are. At one point, I thought of retiring, but it was this group of students that kept me here. We really have become like a family," said Sauvigne.

One of the students who will be playing the character Donna in the coming production spoke about what she enjoyed when it came to the theatre group.

"I like being here with the people I know. We can be who we are and not worry about anything. We are like a family and that is what I love," said Izzy Gonzales.

Senior Keith Pierce who will be playing the character Bill had the same reaction when asked about what brings him back to class day after day.

"We just accept everyone here and for a school that is mostly athletic based, it's nice to have something different to focus on. We have some science clubs but outside of that, this is the only thing we can do that is not sports related," Pierce said.

The theatre group brings in other classes such as the choir and woodshop.

"We have the choir students come and help be people in the background, and we work with the woodshop students to create our sets and set designs. It really is an entire production from start to finish that brings in several of the other teachers and their students," explained Sauvigne.

Even though not all the students were in favor of a production like "Momma Mia," they still enjoyed the process of putting it together.

"It wasn't my first choice as a play, but I have had a lot of fun putting it together with the people I know and we really just have a great time," said Rylie Dominguez who will be playing the character Sophie.

This production will be performed on April 25 and 26 at 7 p.m. in the Del Norte High School Theatre, 950 French St., Del Norte.

Synopsis of the play - On the eve of her wedding, a young woman's quest to discover the identity of her father brings three men from her mother's past back to the island they last visited 20 years ago. Non-stop laughs and explosive dance numbers, along with the magic of ABBA's hit songs including, "Super Trouper," "Dancing Queen," "Knowing Me, Knowing You," "Take a Chance on Me," "Thank You for the Music," "Money, Money, Money," "The Winner Takes It All," and "SOS," combine to make this sunny, funny show a trip down the aisle you'll never forget.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Advanced

Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Del Norte community invited to adopt a tree

By LYNDSIE FERRELL

DEL NORTE — The Town of Del Norte recently announced that it was awarded funding through the Colorado Tree Coalition (CTC) in the amount of $3,000 and is inviting homeowners to come and adopt a tree through this free program.

According to a press release issued by the town, “The CTC awarded $113,463 in grants to 29 organizations in 2023. These grant projects allowed recipients to plant and manage trees in the community forests across Colorado. Grants are made possible through the Colorado State Forest Service, the Xcel Energy Foundation, Colorado Public-Radio and out CTC members and supporters.”

The town will be using half of the funding to continue work on their tree trimming program and the other half to purchase 12 trees of varying types. According to the town, they will be buying 12, 15-gallon trees such as Maple, Hackberry, no thorn Honey Locust, Kentucky Coffee Trees and more.

Through the Adopt-a-Tree Program, homeowners around Del Norte can come into the town, fill out an application and choose the tree they would like to plant. Homeowners who are awarded the tree will need to commit to caring for the tree as long as they own their home. The best part about the program is that the Town of Del Norte will come dig the hole and plant the tree for homeowners! And it is all free!

Trees must be planted either on the front of the property or on the green belt facing the street.

“The Adopt-a-Tree project’s goal is to plant a variety of tree species throughout the town’s neighborhoods to increase tree diversity, shade and beauty. Qualified homeowners must commit to their tree’s ongoing care which will include watering, fertilizing and trimming the tree as necessary.”

Through the program, the town hopes to plant four of the trees purchased on April 25 in honor of Arbor Day which is April 26 this year. Homeowners can visit the Del Norte Town Hall, 140 Spruce St., during business hours, which are Monday through Thursday from 7 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. or call 719-657-2708, for more information.

GRANTS

more. “I show up on time, in tune. I love making music,” he writes.

Erin Ivey of Austin, who had the entire upper lobe of her left lung just a few months ago, is now learning to sing again with a new voice and a new perspective and has found that playing Native American wooden flute music makes sounds that heal body and soul.

Jana Pochop of Albuquerque is working with friends so that each new single of her music will be produced with its own artwork and video.

And finally, Shake Russell of Spring, Texas, well-known and much beloved by followers, tells his story in a straightforward way. “I came to Texas in 1972 with John Vandiver and The Ewing Street Times, played with him for a few years, then started my own bands. I have been playing and writing music in Texas for 52 years now.” Russell, who’s been the subject of numerous accolades including being inducted into the Texas Music Hall of Fame, recently had his newest song recorded by Miranda Lambert.

From its inception, HDMG has been both visionary and practical. No other group, non-profit or otherwise, is solely devoted to providing support to artists so that, eventually and with a lot of hard work, those artists may actually be able to work at doing what they love. Those who are on the board and guiding these efforts understand – first hand – what’s involved. They recognize it’s a lofty goal.

At the same time, they realize that there is “power in the collective,” and have created a model where, for just $25 a month, “patrons,” can know they’re doing their part in making sure troubadours will continue into the future.

To date, HDMG already has 73 patrons, not counting those individuals making one time donations that range from smaller amounts to donations in the thousands. They’re hoping to have 100 patrons by the fall, which would make a second grant cycle possible this year.

And in exchange for their support, patrons will receive MP3s of the recordings the grant recipients produce.

By awarding these grants to artists across such a broad spectrum of experience, HDMG is doing precisely what the group of professional artists, experts in the music business and supporters of up and coming artists intended to do: offer a helping hand to artists who are trying to negotiate, “an ever-changing landscape that requires new methods and capabilities,” to be able to continue to work and share their music with the thousands of new and long-time listeners.

Seven grants after just being around for six months? Looks like a sign of real good things to come.

The owner of Monte Inked LLC, Yolie Trujillo, pictured, said they did more than 100 tattoos.

INKED

Continued from Page 1 — by the Adams State Board is huge to us. We heard that this is the first time ever that a tattoo shop has been approved to be on campus and tattoo, so it was exciting.”

Trujillo stated that Monte Inked LLC is very supportive of different causes.

“Last year we did over 300 tattoos for Mental Health Awareness,” she said. “We do self-harm cover-ups for about half off, if not more. I do gang affiliated tattoo cover ups for free. We also cover up scars for women who have had breast cancer and had to have mastectomies. We cover those for free. We are definitely a shop who really cares about people, and different causes.”

Trujillo said that people should not be forced to walk around with things they are uncomfortable with.

“I wanted to have a tattoo shop that not only creates beautiful art for people, but also helps people,” she said. “Sometimes it’s not all about money, it’s about helping people and making people feel good about themselves. We have always told our clients, if they ever need a place to come hang out, diffuse, if they ever even just need someone to talk to, we remind people that they are not alone. We want people to come down, hang out, talk, we are here for people. We love our jobs, but we love and care about people too.”

Trujillo first became interested in tattooing when she was younger. She has always been an artist but wanted to tattoo when she saw how beautiful it looked. She stated her biggest inspiration for tattooing is her sister. Trujillo is grateful to be doing what she loves because she stated that for her it’s a passion and it never feels like work. She stated that the group at her shop is more like family than co-workers.

“I have an amazing crew of over 15 people who all work at the shop that are like family. We try to treat everyone that comes to see us the same way too. We love the community of Monte Vista and love what we do,” she said.

Trujillo feels passionate about being able to tattoo for Sexual Awareness Month, at Adams State College. She stated her and her crew felt very fulfilled by being able to provide so many people with tattoos that would hopefully help them feel empowered by what they have gone through.

“We care about the cause, and we care about people. We look forward to going to many more future events,” she said.

Trujillo stated that for anyone who had missed the sale at the college that they are holding a $20 flash sale this weekend for the same cause at her shop that is open to everyone.

It enables you to stand upright when you walk— with your spine straight and your eyes looking straight ahead. Your weight is supported by your upper arms and shoulders, some of the strongest parts of your body. Traditional walkers and rollators force you to put the pressure of your body weight on your hands and wrists. You push them in front of you, looking at the ground instead of where you going. The UPWalker moves with you, with your body perfectly aligned and your feet free to walk in a normal fashion. Its easy-adjust height system allows it to be the perfect fit/height for anyone from 4'10" to 6'1" and supports up to 300 pounds. The new stand-assist handles enable you to distribute your weight across your arms and shoulders, not your hands and wrists to help reduce back, neck, wrist pain and discomfort. It features comfortable arm pads, hand brakes, a fold-down seat, a backrest and two storage bags. It's built with aircraft-grade aluminum to be sturdy yet lightweight, and its sleek design and oversized wheels make it perfect for tight spots in the house or walking in the yard. Why spend another day bent over and shuffling around— or worse yet, plopped in front of the TV all day. Pick up the phone and take back your life. Call now.

USDA Forest Service invests more than $232M to support schools, roads, other services

By USDA
WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service today announced it is issuing more than $232 million to support public schools, roads and other municipal services through the agency's Secure Rural Schools program, including $12,574,121 for Colorado.

The program was reauthorized for fiscal years 2021 through 2023 through President Biden's Bipartisan Infrastructure Law. Fiscal year 2023 funds will be paid to 745 eligible counties in 41 states and Puerto Rico.

"National forests and grasslands cover more than 193 million acres, including across rural counties that are important partners in helping sustainably manage resources," said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack. "Thanks to President Biden's Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, the Secure Rural Schools program is able to contribute to the economic vitality and well-being of the communities intertwined with our forests."

"The Secure Rural Schools program is just one of the ways the Forest Service supports communities nationwide," said Forest Service Chief Randy Moore. "This funding aids schools and roads, reimburses counties for national forest emergency services, and assists in creating community wildfire protection plans—all critical programs designed to enhance the quality of life in these communities." In addition to Secure Rural Schools payments, the Forest Service is using Bipartisan Infrastructure Law and Inflation Reduction Act funding to improve forest conditions, support local economies and create jobs by investing in forest restoration projects, road and trail maintenance, recreation opportunities and wood innovation development. Over the past 10 years, the Forest Service has distributed $2.4 billion through the Secure Rural Schools program.
