OBITUARY

Martha Kelly Owens Jan. 16, 1939 - May 2, 2024

Martha Kelly Owens, 85, passed away Thursday, May 2, 2024, at Alive Hospice in Murfreesboro, Tenn., after a brief illness. Born on Jan. 16, 1939, in Tullahoma, Tenn., Martha was the daughter of the late Virgil S. Owens and the late Ethel Spencer Owens. As a child, she was surrounded by her extended Owens Family. While she loved her two brothers, Robert (Bobby) and Patrick (Pat); her first cousin, the late Nancy Owens Bussche, was her near constant companion.

Martha excelled in school – both academically and socially – and remained lifelong friends with her school girlfriend group that included her cousin Nancy, Ann (Soesbe) Rust, Joanne (Hawkersmith) Roberson, Martha (Marty) Parish Ligon, the late Nancy Potter Newby, and others. Together they giggled their way through Sunday School, Tullahoma High School, Sub-Debs, and adventures large and small in the 1950s. Martha learned the satisfaction of hard work done well from her mother, Ethel.

As a 14-year-old she was recommended (by Mrs. Blanche McClure – an adored teacher) as “the fastest, best typist” among the young girls in Tullahoma which resulted in Martha taking her first job at WJIG Radio in Tullahoma. Her work at the radio station solidified her love of great music – rock and roll, soul, blues, country, and bluegrass. Unlike many of her friends – she preferred Fats Domino, Aretha Franklin, and Chuck Berry over Elvis. In later years, she was all Willie Nelson, all the time.

As a junior at Tullahoma High, she was bowled over when a young man named John Grider moved to town from Louisville, Kentucky. They married in 1957, the same year they graduated from THS and had two children – John Clay Grider, Jr. and Lisa Elizabeth Grider, before divorcing in 1962. Martha remained friends to the end with John Grider, Sr. and came to love and cherish his wife, Sharon Grider. Martha was a welcomed guest at their home several times and enjoyed being co-grandparents, and great-grandparents.

A combination of necessity and drive, propelled Martha through a professional life filled with accomplishments, accolades and an enormous amount of dear friends who crossed her path “in the office.” After working for a number of years as a secretary at AEDC (Arnold Engineering Development Center), she became the secretary to the late John M. McCord at the Tullahoma law firm of Henry & McCord. Martha was forever grateful for the guidance, tough love, and demand for high quality work that Mr. McCord instilled in her.

“The law” became Martha’s professional calling and she continued to work as a legal assistant for many years, serving as Legal Assistant and Office Manager for Manchester attorney and business leader J. Stanley Rogers, on and off, from the mid-1980s until she finally put down her steno pad in 2017. Numerous young professionals have expressed appreciation for all that Martha taught them, including retired Manchester attorney Christina Duncan who said, “I learned as much about the law from Miss Martha as I did in law school!”

Martha’s life took another surprising turn in 1988 when she traveled with her daughter to a small town in the San Juan mountains (the southern Rockies) called Creede, Colo., for the first time. From the moment she got there, Creede captured her heart and her spirit. As much as she loved her dear friends and colleagues in Middle Tennessee, she quoted the great John Muir: “The mountains are calling and I must go.” Visiting Creede and Thirty Mile Resort at the headwaters of the Rio Grande for several years, she surprised almost everyone by resigning her position at Mr. Rogers’ firm, selling her home in Coffee County, and moving to Creede, where she lived for 17 years. Only reluctantly, did Martha leave Creede in 2017 when her children expressed their concern about the remote location and her health.

As was typical, Martha quickly became a force in the small town of Creede. Shortly after settling in town, she went to work for Mark Richter of Willow Creek Realty, eventually earning her real estate license and becoming Mark’s partner in that business, helping many other Creede lovers find their place in what she considered paradise. The vagaries of the real estate business eventually prompted her to end her relationship with Willow Creek and she accepted a position as the Director of the Creede Chamber of Commerce.

Even her move to Creede paled in comparison to the most significant change in Martha’s life. In early 1990, Martha took two enormous steps, simultaneously. The first was to return to the faith of her youth and recommit her life to Christ at Tullahoma Baptist Church. The second part of her leap of faith was to walk through the doors of a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous. Committing herself completely to both aspects of that journey, she left this world a devoted Christian and sober for 35 years.

Beyond Martha’s professional career, she was an active volunteer most of her life, lending her energy and expertise to a wide range of organizations. From Sunday School and women’s ministry leader, City Council member in Creede and Board member of a state-wide Legal Assistants association to a women’s prison ministry program and church-based thrift store – Martha shared her time, her talent, and her expertise joyfully.

Martha is survived by her son John C. Grider, Jr. of Manchester, Tenn., and her daughter Lisa Grider and son-in-law Mitch Lawrence of Fort Worth, Texas; her three granddaughters – Lindsey Celeste (Grider) Jarvis and her husband Jon Jarvis of Carlsbad, Calif.; Lauren Kelly Grider of Carlsbad, Calif.; and Cornelia (Neeley) Elizabeth Lawrence of Fort Worth, Texas; and her beloved 4-year-old great-grandson John Callum Jarvis. She is also survived by her two brothers and their wives: Rear Admiral Robert S. Owens, United States Navy (retired) and his wife Martha (Rutledge) Owens of Fairfax, Va.; Patrick W. Owens and his wife Libby (Stilts) Owens of Mt. Juliet, Tenn., and her nieces and nephews: Charles Owens of Knoxville, Tenn.; Cathy Owens of Virginia Beach, Va., Andrea Owens of Mt. Juliet, Tenn., and Thomas Owens of Daytona Beach, Fla. In addition to immediate family, Martha is treasured by her extended family of Owens cousins and special friends throughout the United States.

Martha’s life will be celebrated in two locations – with dates to be determined in the coming days. One Memorial Service will take place in Coffee County, with another to be scheduled at Creede (Colorado) Baptist Church later this summer. Members of the Colorado Division of Fire Prevention and Control (DFPC) prepare to battle a house fire in Sanford late Monday afternoon. The home was reportedly a total loss, but no injuries were reported according to a DFPC spokesman. Sanford Fire was first on scene and requested mutual aid from DFPC.

Fire destroys house on Willett Ranch

No injuries reported

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

SANFORD — A fire resulted in the total loss of a house on Willett Ranch near Sanford in Conejos County on Monday afternoon. People were occupying the house but fortunately, according to Conejos County Sheriff Garth Crowther, no one was home at the time, so no injuries, either to people or animals, were reported.

Crowther stated that his office was notified of the fire in progress at about 4:20 p.m. on Monday afternoon. The property is located in the Sanford Fire District but there was an immediate response by numerous agencies in the area, including the Colorado Department of Fire Prevention and Control as well as fire departments from Sanford, Romeo, La Jara, Antonito, Manassa and Carmel. Conejos County Road and Bridge was also on scene with an excavator.

Crowther said that some of the firefighters were on scene until 10 or 11 p.m. Monday night but all crews had left when he returned to the scene at 6 a.m. Tuesday morning.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation. “We’re still looking into it but, at this point, it looks to be accidental,” Crowther said.

Crowther praised the efforts of the firefighters in containing the fire as, despite the high winds at the time, flames did not spread to surrounding land.

“If it had been two or three weeks ago, we would have been chasing that fire all the way to Fort Carson, but things were still green enough. There were a couple of spots that started up, but they were able to contain them. The fire departments did an excellent job. It’s very sad for the family but it could have been a whole lot worse,” Crowther said.

OPINION & EDITORIAL

Go call your mother

I knew this old man who loved to tell the same story over and over and over, like old people often do. He got such a huge kick out of it, though, so we all tolerated him and laughed along. The story went something like this: a private detective was hired by a woman to find her son, a Mr. Dun, as he had seemingly disappeared into thin air.

The search soon expanded to a world wide adventure but each time the detective almost caught up with the missing man, he disappeared again. Finally in the wilds of Tibet the detective thinks he has tracked Mr. Dun down and goes into a bar which is devoid of people. He asks the bartender if anyone else is around. The bartender says well only one guy who is out back in the outhouse.

The detective quickly proceeds out to the outhouse only to be met by a man coming out of the privy. The detective blurts out "Are you Dun?" and the man stammers, "Yes." To which the Detective says, "Go call your mother." I know. It's a cornball joke but my friend found great joy in telling it over and over much like Ol' Dutch has been known to do on different subjects of course.

For you see the problem is as we get older we can't remember who we told what and, to be quite honest with you, we don't care. You only have to be around an RV park all summer to find out that this is not only happening on a daily basis but also quite common in occurrence.

And I said all that to bring us around to this week's highlight of another Holiday Weekend. That's right. It's Mothers Day come Sunday.

There is one thing I guess that joins us all in the human experience for sure and that is we all had a mother at one time or another regardless of our present circumstances. Think of all the mothers in the world. Some were overprepared for the arrival of the bundle of joy. And, some were a bit more nonchalant about the event. No matter what, though, most of them loved us deeply.

I know. There are always a few bad apples out there who for one reason or another were terrible at the job but this weekend we are going to celebrate the good mothers with the bad regardless. For without their contribution of bringing us life we would not be around to bother other people.

Ol' Dutch has a wonderful mother and I was also fortunate to have known Miss Trixie's mother before she passed to her great reward. She was a jewel like none other.

We were both fortunate to have been raised by women who loved us deeply and always wanted the best for us and I believe it showed throughout our adult lives. Miss Trixie, of course, got the best of training and it seems to have stuck as she is a great partner to me, friend to others and helpmate like no one I know. And Ol' Dutch also had a great time growing up with a good mother even though some or most of that training may have been forgotten along the way according to Miss Trixie.

Come Sunday, take time to call your mother or take her out to lunch. And if your mother has passed away like ours, take your wife or best friend out in celebration of the day. And when the waitress asks you at the end of your meal, "are you done?" you can smile and recall my old friend and say "yes."

Keeping wildlife wild

We crept through the dense forest as if our life depended on it. The forest floor was soft and silent from the recent spring snowstorm and the vanishing winter's melting snow. Quietly stalking our targets that we had seen from the ridge an hour before, we weaved through the snow drifts and trees, careful not to make any unnatural sounds.

Slowing our pace as we neared the edge of the tree line, the brightness of the open meadow cast an increasing number of dart-like rays of light through the forest. Taking care to remain in the shadows, the last few feet took a painstaking ten minutes to cover.

Moving slow and purposefully, and filled with excited anticipation, we watched as our quarry began moving around in the meadow.

Oblivious to our presence a mere hundred yards away, the calf elk alternated grazing on the green shoots of grass and with what can only be described as childish antics – running, dodging, jumping, and bobbing their heads in a form of play that presumably had a more meaningful purpose arising from deep within their genes.

We slowly set up the tripod in our chosen shadow with tree branches providing the cover we needed to remain undetected. With the camera in position Daryl slowly lowered his head to the viewfinder. After only a couple seconds of looking he turned to me and frowned.

Switching places, I looked for myself and instantly realized Daryl's disappointment. The sun was in our eyes, nearly washing out the entire frame of the camera, rendering our dreams for an awesome photo to remain in dream status indefinitely.

The silver lining was that we were able to watch this small herd of cow and calf elk in their spring habitat. The social interactions within the herd seemed incredibly complex to me, even though I've been watching elk for years.

We took a few photos just to document the situation and backed out as quietly as we had come in. A glance back, just as the forest blocked our view of the elk, led us to believe they still had no clue that we had been secretly observing their family on this fine spring day.

You probably noticed that we paid particular attention to using a stealthy approach as we neared the meadow. The intent was to not frighten the herd and cause them to run, which can cause undue stress on the animals. Especially in the spring.

Their favorite and most productive forage has been buried under the snow for months and is just now starting to become available for grazing, but certainly not in abundance. The cows have been using stored fat to sustain themselves during the long winter months. They have recently given birth to the calves and their bodies need to recuperate from the stress of calving, nursing their new babies, and simply the long winter.

Of course, the calves just need to eat, drink and get bigger and stronger as fast as they can to ensure their survival. Running in a primal fear will burn critical energy that would be better spent on growing up.

This brings up another point. We often hear of well-intended forest users finding deer fawns or elk calves (or any baby animal for that matter) sitting, almost hiding alone in the woods and, much to our dismay, they bring those wrongly considered abandoned babies to the forest or wildlife offices.

This is not recommended by literally every wildlife agency I can think of. If you see a lone young animal, leave it alone and clear the area as quietly and soon as possible. The most likely scenario that is happening is that the mother purposely placed their baby there so they could come back to it soon. Your presence is probably stopping the mother from returning to the baby.

A common myth to dispel is that "if you touch it, the mother will reject it." That's truly not likely to happen and you should just leave it where it is or put it back. It will most likely be fine.

Finally, I want to discourage everyone from feeding these animals. They are wild and need to stay that way. Instinctually, animals will find food and yes, sometimes it is difficult for them. But, by offering food, you risk developing a reliance on you and altering their natural movement patterns, possibly putting them in danger of roads and predators.

Understand that you cannot always be there for them, and they will always need food and water. Their natural habitat provides it for them. It always has.

The earlier story happened many years ago and, frankly, I can't imagine even trying to quietly sneak around to get a photo now. I know better and it's just not worth the risk to the wildlife. I urge you all to join me in keeping our wildlife wild.

Rio Grande Reservoir Rehabilitation Project Recreational & Environmental Provisions – Action Far Past Due

Editor,
Recreation on the Rio Grande is a vital contributor to the local economies of Mineral, Rio Grande and Hinsdale counties, and the principal reason many come to our area to live and recreate. It was, therefore, exciting to hear at the 100-year anniversary of the Rio Grande Reservoir in 2012 that the rehabilitated dam would operate as a "multi-purpose" facility with provisions for enhancing environmental and recreational assets. Attendees were told that "we won't just provide minimum flows," "we're going to provide optimum flows." The rehabilitation project was named "The Rio Grande Cooperative Project" and was described as, "a breakthrough partnership that provides for rehabilitation of the reservoir with "new operating strategies to meet multiple needs." Taxpayer and grant funding for the rehabilitation (now $40 million) was predicated on implementing these provisions. After 12 years and numerous promises, however, that commitment remains an empty promise.

Water releases from the Rio Grande reservoir were again completely shut off from last November to this April - five months. This longstanding practice leaves much of the upper Rio Grande's riverbed completely dry year after year. The combination of long-term drought and a lack of winter releases has negatively impacted fishing and recreation on the Rio Grande as well as the aquatic insect populations that fish depend on for survival. Many longtime Rio Grande fishers have expressed concern over the diminished insect hatches and fishing success in recent years. Given climate trends this situation will only worsen without intervention.

The SLV irrigation District which owns and operates the dam has recently stated that an engineering defect in their revamped dam design now makes low winter flows problematic. At a minimum the Irrigation District should expedite input from stakeholders and resource experts to determine both long and short-term solutions to that problem. That is only part of what is needed and long promised, however. After 12 years of repeated excuses and inaction, residents and visitors that rely on the Rio Grande for recreation and their livelihoods, and the taxpayers who helped fund the dam restoration, deserve to know how their interests are being served - and that promises made are promises kept. The SLV Irrigation District and the Colorado Water Conservation Board that coordinated funding for the restoration project should be held to account. To that end plans for a working group to help drive this effort are underway. If you would like to participate and/or receive updates, please respond to loudjim431@gmail.com. The Rio Grande has been very good to us. It's time for us to return the favor.

New Electrify and Save Program expands access to beneficial electrification and energy efficiency to REC members

CONTRIBUTED

DENVER — Rural consumers can benefit from greater access to electrification and energy efficiency through a new program announced Friday from members of Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association, including San Luis Valley Rural Electric Cooperative (SLVREC).

Administered by the Colorado Clean Energy Fund (CCEF), the Electrify and Save On-Bill Repayment Program will bring more affordable energy efficiency and electrification benefits to rural consumers.

The effort also will be boosted by the announcement that Tri-State and its members have secured $75 million in loans for rural energy efficiency efforts, through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Energy Savings Program (RESP).

In an event held Friday at the Colorado State Capitol, Gov. Jared Polis voiced support for the On-Bill Repayment Program, which will allow members and businesses in Colorado and across the West to install home improvement efficiency and beneficial electrification measures, at no upfront cost with the ability to repay over time through their monthly utility bill. Unlike traditional loan programs, unique underwriting criteria (rather than traditional loan underwriting criteria) assess the member's bill pay history, thereby qualifying a broader base of participants.

Eligible energy measures under the On-Bill Repayment Program include funding for new insulation, windows and doors, water heaters, heat pumps, HVAC systems, electric vehicle charging and other qualifying energy-efficient technology. The program also includes home energy assessments and vetting for authorized contractors. Because the financial obligation is tied to the service location, rather than the individual, this program also is unique from traditional consumer loan programs, in that it does not affect credit scores or create additional debt for the member consumer.

In many cases, the energy savings achieved through the newly installed measures are greater than the monthly repayment obligation, thereby saving consumer members and businesses money on their utility bill every month.

Tri-State Chief Executive Officer Duane Highley and CCEF Chief Executive Officer Paul Scharfenberger joined Gov. Polis today in announcing the program.

"With this opportunity, members of electrical co-ops that are Tri-state customers can easily update their heating and cooling to more energy efficient options without upfront costs, saving them money and supporting the state we love for generations to come," Gov. Polis said.

Tri-State, its members and CCEF learned earlier last week that the U.S. Department of Agriculture had approved $75 million in loans to Tri-State through the RESP, to be used on energy efficiency efforts for its members; of that amount, $50 million in loans will be used to support the On-Bill Repayment Program. The RESP provides loans to rural utilities and other companies that, in turn, provide energy efficiency loans to qualified consumers who implement durable, cost-effective energy efficiency measures.

The first phase of the On-Bill Repayment Program, initially offered in March by SLVREC, is a standardized program developed by Tri-State, its distribution system members and CCEF. The Sangre de Cristo Electric Association (SDCEA) launched its on-bill repayment program last week, with other distribution cooperatives to initiate the program later this year. Eleven other members are planning to offer the program in the near future.

"Working together with Tri-State, our members are solving challenges and supporting the rural communities they serve" Highley said. "One of the historic roadblocks to helping consumers and businesses embrace energy efficiency and beneficial electrification has been securing access to the capital needed to make meaningful improvements that reduce their energy costs."

With CCEF and our members, we have a solution that provides financing in a simple, transparent and cost-effective way," Highley said.

Beneficial electrification refers to technology that takes advantage of a reliable, affordable and cleaner electric grid, thus reducing emissions and energy costs. For example, heat pumps can heat and cool homes using only electricity and their technology is highly efficient.

With energy expertise and significant assets under management, CCEF will act as the program administrator, directing activities of the program center; recruiting and enrolling authorized contractors; and managing financing disbursements and servicing.

"This program will help improve the lives of our members through energy savings and increased home values," added Eric Eriksen, chief executive officer for SLVREC in Monte Vista, the first Tri-State member to offer the On-Bill Repayment Program. "I know this to be true because I've experienced the positive impacts of a similar program first-hand in Alaska."

Moffat archers travel to national tournaments

By JACK SCIACCA

Moffat Pk-12 Archery Coach

MOFFAT — Moffat Pk-12 Schools recently competed in the National Archery in the Schools Program 2024 National Western Tournaments in Sandy, Utah, representing Moffat and Colorado.

Archers from across the country and several provinces turned in a total of 5,831 individual scores across three separate shooting venues. The tournaments began on April 25 and continued through April 28.

Moffat traveled with seven competitors, all securing positions in the tournament by finishing in the top 10 in their respective divisions in the 2024 NASP Colorado State Tournament. Moffat archers participated in a Bullseye round on the morning of April 27 and a 3-D (animal targets) the same afternoon. Most archers submitted scores above their averages with a few notable standouts.

Kandra Pollard, eighth grade, and Tanner Shellabarger, seventh grade, both qualified in the Bullseye competition to compete in the NASP National Open Tournament in Daytona Beach, Fla., in June. Kandra placed 22nd out of 374 middle school girls and Tanner placed 35th out of 417 middle school boys.

“Coach Shellabarger and I are very proud of Moffat archery and the cumulative performances of the team. It is an honor to represent our state in a tournament of this caliber,” said Jack Sciacca, Moffat archery coach.

CSU Extension receives grant from the SLVREC Energy Foundation

CONTRIBUTED

MONTE VISTA — The Colorado State University SLV Area Extension office would like to thank San Luis Valley Rural Electric Coop for its donation of $10,000 to the endowment fund from the SLVREC Energy Foundation.

Beginning in 2021, the SLV Extension office has been in a rebuilding period. After years of instability and a reduction of staff, Larry Brown has stepped into the leadership role to rebuild the extension in the San Luis Valley.

In the last two years, the full-time staff has doubled. Operating now with a Director/Ag Specialist, a Youth Development/4-H Specialist, a Family and Consumer Science Specialist, a Juntos 4-H Specialist, and Office Administrator. Their newest addition, made possible by 3 years of funding from the Outcalt Foundation, is a second 4-H Specialist. Brown's team focus now is to secure permanent funding for an additional 4-H agent.

“We are extremely grateful and appreciative of all who have generously jumped on board and contributed to the project. Once our funding in the endowment fund is secured, this community driven project will leave a lasting legacy for our youth,” officials stated.

If anyone is interested in donating to the endowment fund, checks can be dropped off at the SLV Extension office at 1899 E. Hwy 160 in Monte Vista or mailed to PO Box 30 Monte Vista, CO 81144. If you have any questions, call 719-852-7381.

Four SLV grads among Boettcher scholars

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

DENVER — The Boettcher Foundation has announced the 2024 Class of Boettcher Scholars. Listed among the 50 outstanding graduating seniors from around the state are four students from the San Luis Valley, including Brock Benton (Alamosa High School), Jaymi Gile (Alamosa High School), Gus Miller (Monte Vista High School) and Kaia Skadberg (Centauri).

The Boettcher Scholarship is considered to be one of the most prestigious scholarships offered in the state of Colorado, not only recognizing the most remarkable students but also in providing full tuition and expenses for four years of college at the Colorado college or university of their choice.

As part of the announcement, scholars offered some information about themselves.

When asked about his accomplishments, Benton (AHS) said, "My proudest achievement is creating an entire student-supported mental health team within my school." Benton will be attending the University of Colorado.

Gile (AHS) stated, "My favorite Colorado experience is camping outdoors with my family and becoming a Junior Ranger at the Great Sand Dunes, my second home." Gile is also attending the University of Colorado.

In speaking of his accomplishments, Miller (MVHS) said, "My proudest achievement is having learned the ability to lose and be unsuccessful graciously and celebrate even the smallest of accomplishments and continue on." Miller plans on attending Colorado State University.

Skadberg (Centauri), who will be attending the Colorado School Mines, said, "During my undergraduate career, I plan to acquire a degree in engineering and learn not only how to work but how to live."

As described by Curtis L. Esquibel, Senior Director of Communications and Community Engagement with the Boettcher Foundation, the Boettcher Scholarship Program has been in place since 1952, aiming to retain Colorado's inspiring high school graduates within the state for their college education. More than 1,900 students applied for the scholarship this year.

Scholars are selected based on academics, service, leadership, and character. In addition to receiving an $80,000 scholarship award across four years, Scholars can also receive institutional, merit, and/or need-based aid from their respective campuses. The Boettcher Scholarship is more than just financial assistance; it includes a comprehensive program and support system designed to help Scholars maximize their academic and leadership capabilities.

The Boettcher Scholar community is a robust network of over 2,800 leaders who have made significant contributions in various fields such as business, government, nonprofits, and education.

This year's cohort of 50 Scholars includes the following:

- A stuttering awareness advocate who spreads information and insight on stuttering to her 230,000 followers on TikTok.
- A student who works full-time,

Brock Benton, Alamosa High School

Jaymi Gile, Alamosa High School

Gus Miller, Monte Vista High School

Kaia Skadberg, Centauri High School

takes care of younger siblings before and after school, and still maintains the highest GPA in her school's 20-year history.

- A student that lives off the grid, commuting 90 minutes to school every day and relying on solar energy to power her life.

- The year-round manager of a local nonprofit bike repair shop, overseeing a team of 10 peers.

- A "Positive Peer" presiding on her city's Municipal Teen Court, focused on issuing judgments rooted in compassion that have the greatest potential for positive change in the respondents.

- A proud, self-proclaimed "nerd" with a mission to destigmatize STEM education by making it more accessible and appealing to younger generations.

- A scientist, so passionate about science that she conducted her own, self-designed research on algae at home throughout high school.

- A 4th generation farmer who is committed to returning to the family farm after college.

"As we welcome the newest cohort of Boettcher Scholars, we're thrilled to highlight their remarkable talents and passions. These dynamic thinkers and leaders bring a diverse array of skills and interests to our community," said Vanessa Roman, director of scholarships & foundation programs. From self-taught knitters and private pilots to vocal soloists and innovative entrepreneurs, their commitment to leadership and service has already enriched communities across the state."

home after it was destroyed in a fire.

Earlier this year, Myers experienced tragedy that turned her whole life upside down. A fire struck the historic home that she had lived in for 30 years. Her home was destroyed.

Myers thankfully escaped the blaze unharmed, but unfortunately lost three of her cats and all her possessions in the blaze.

In a blog attached to Myers GoFundMe page, Myers wrote about how the fire had affected and changed her life and how grateful she was that so many people had reached out to help.

"This last month has been a transformative time for me. The total loss of my historic home of 30 years has been tempered by the support and caring of my community.

Within minutes of calling 911 and running out of the house in my stocking feet, my neighbors arrived with comfort, water, food, a coat, and offers of a place to sleep. My phone was blowing up with concerned friends as far away as Crestone that could see the flames from their homes.

"It seemed like half the town was there offering help and lamenting the loss of one of our oldest buildings in Moffat. I'm sure they were worried the fire might spread in the dry and windy conditions and threaten their own homes. The successful containment of the blaze was an amazing feat thanks to the Moffat, Northern Saguache County, and other Valley fire departments. My deepest thanks to all our emergency personnel for their dedication, they monitored and revisited the site until it was completely out, (a week later), as well as fighting other fires in the area. I ran into one Moffat fireman at the store, and he said they had been on duty for 36 hours straight with only a few breaks.

"We may all be involved in our individual lives, minding our own business, but when tragedy strikes, we link arms and show up to help. I am very grateful for this community for the care and help it has blessed me with, I can't imagine going through this without that support.

"The road back to having a home again will be long and filled with stumbling blocks, but I have a good start now," she posted on the GoFundMe page.

At the dinner, Myers received hugs and words of support. Myers thanked everyone for attending. When asked how she was doing, Myers replied, "Everyone has been so wonderful."

Moffat resident Katie Hefty said, "I am thrilled to be here for Melinda. She has been part of this community for such a long time, so we all want to support her."

Donations to Melinda are ongoing and can be made through Neighbors Helping Neighbors. Neighbors Helping Neighbors has an account at Aventa Credit Union in Crestone. In the memo check line on the check, people can reference the donation to Melinda Myers, for any amount they would like to contribute to help her.

Living with Purpose and Passion

Have you noticed that some Christians are never happy or satisfied? They always have a long face and they're constantly talking about their problems and circumstances. They have a lifeless, lukewarm, apathetic and pathetic attitude.

The world may have this type of attitude, but we as Christians shouldn't because the only way that we're going to affect other people who need Christ is to let them see His life in us!

That's our job every single day—everywhere we go. People want to enjoy their lives—to live with passion and enthusiasm. If they can see us being that way, then they can ask us, "So what's going on with you that you seem to be happy all the time?" Or, "You always have a good attitude no matter what's going on."

So, I ask you today: How are you living your life? Do you have passion and purpose?

When people notice our good attitude in life, it gives us a wide door of opportunity to tell them, "Really, I deal with the same things you deal with in life. It's not that I never have a struggle, but Jesus Christ is in my life and He makes all the difference in the world!"

It's helpful to think of it this way: You and I may be the only Jesus that our neighbors will ever see. And if God didn't have something for us to do here on earth, He wouldn't have left us here. We are here for a purpose.

1 Peter 2:9 (AMPC) highlights our purpose beautifully, saying, But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a dedicated nation, [God's] own purchased, special people, that you may set forth the wonderful deeds and display the virtues and perfections of Him Who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light.

Now, the Lord has a special, unique plan for each one of our lives. We've each been given gifts and talents, and there are specific things we are meant to accomplish while we are here.

However, first and foremost, we as Christians share one main purpose. We are here to live for God's glory, tell others about Him, and reflect His goodness in our lives.

In my own ministry, I've been asked how I stay passionate and keep doing what I'm doing. Now, I can give some really cool, spiritual answer. But truthfully, I've come to believe that it's really a decision about what kind of an attitude we're going to have.

Our attitude is ours to own. We don't have to let some outside force rule our attitude. God doesn't want us to be passive. He wants us to be active and make decisions based on the Word of God. He doesn't want us to stand around saying, "Well, I'm just so confused about the will of God for my life. I just don't understand. I just don't know what my purpose is, and I just feel so useless."

Many Christians have literally done nothing because they can't figure out what it is they're supposed to do. God does not call us to do something and then refuse to tell us what it is that we're supposed to do. So, if we're thinking, "Well, then why am I so confused?", it may be because we're living life with our "head" instead of our "heart."

For example, I know a story about a man who had been preaching all his life, and started feeling like he wanted to teach the Bible in college. "But I'm a pastor", he thought, and he couldn't reconcile what he had been doing for so long with the new desire that God was putting into his heart.

He wrestled with it until he came to a point where he had to decide between the two. He had an epiphany moment where God said to him, "Know that whatever you choose, I'll be with you."

Freedom scares us because many of us have the idea that God is in heaven with His hammer saying, "You better do this exactly because if you don't, you're going to be in big trouble."

We start to worry, thinking, "What if I miss God?" because we're afraid to make a mistake. Now I'm not suggesting that we start doing stupid stuff, but 95 percent of what we're supposed to do is in the Word. The other five percent is ours to freely pursue what God has planned for us.

So, let's make a commitment to make progress by faith. Maybe we've been doing something for a long time, but then we start to sense that God is changing things in our life, even though what we've been doing is good.

The possibility of change can scare us and also be the reason why we sometimes feel like we're being pulled apart, not knowing what we're supposed to be doing. But faith propels us to take a chance—to step out and find out. We need to be willing to try and risk being wrong if that's what it takes to find out what God has for us.

Scripture tells us that even if the righteous fall seven times, they rise again (Proverbs 24:16)! You and I need to dare to be passionate and purposeful...and move forward in the life God has planned for us.

CHANGE

Saguache County Commissioners unanimously voted upon Tuesday, May 7, as the new name for Kit Carson Peak.

The name change is under consideration because some find Carson's interactions with Native Americans objectionable. Carson was a frontiersman and Commander of Fort Garland.

Wapiti Peak will be submitted by the county to the Colorado Geographic Naming Board for consideration as a new name for the 14,171-foot peak located in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains. Currently, the board has several names under consideration for the peak.

If the state board decides to rename Kit Carson, it will make that recommendation to the federal U.S. Board on Geographic Names which has final renaming authority.

The state board also has the option to keep the current name without any changes

During the commissioners meeting several names were discussed for the rename, including a Spanish word for elk, the Spanish word for deer, and Saguache Peak (already taken).

"The name wapiti derives from a Shawnee and Cree word meaning white rump for elk," said Commissioner Liza Marron.

Commissioner Tom McCracken said, "I move that we make the suggestion "Wapiti," to the naming board for the large flat-top mountain that is now designated Kit Carson Peak."

In other business, the commissioners also accepted the resignation of Bobby Woelz from the Office of Emergency Management and appointed David Frese as interim. McCracken said of Woelz, "I would just like to say we appreciate his service to the county and he did a really good job."

The Crestone Food Bank set to reopen on May 30 after a long hiatus was also discussed and Commissioner Thompson said she would like to tour the facility before it opens.

wanted it," he said.

Davis then introduced the song "For Good" from the musical "Wicked."

"Kerry Adams, Sharon's husband has stated that this was one of Sharon's favorite songs, and he asked that it be played today," Davis said.

Davis then began to talk about the dedication of the bench that sits in front of the Sargent School District building.

"We are gathered here at this bench, to remind everyone who passes this bench to take a pause, so that students, teachers, administrators, and community members, who pass by here, can take a moment, some time, a pause, to remember and learn about Sharon Adams and her impact on Sargent School District, FBLA, and the community," he said.

Davis emphasized that her impact with Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) was not just at Sargent - it was district wide, statewide, and nationally.

Davis then introduced Sargent High School Principal Michelle Shelley David.

"As I remember Mrs. Adams, I think back to the strong qualities that she modeled for her students and colleagues," David said. "The first quality that I remember is that she was always available to students and staff. Her second quality was consistency. She expected students to all not be at the same level, but to all give their best effort. The third quality was her commitment to her values.

What she valued she committed to. She defined commitment by her presence, her passion, and her persistence. Even though she had retired it took about two years for her to turn in her school keys because she wanted access to her passion. It is my great honor to have known such a wonderful woman. This bench is a beautiful memorial dedicated to her memory and what she meant to the Sargent community. Thank you."

Chance Padilla, who was a student of Adams, also spoke.

"Sharon was the type of person that always put others first," Padilla said.

"Besides my parents, Sharon was my number one supporter, without her I wouldn't be the person I am today. Sharon was more than an advisor and a teacher. She got to see me during defeat and exhaustion. During those times she was there, encouraging, strategizing, and building me into a strong individual. I am truly grateful for all those stories that I have of Mrs. Adams. I can't wait to share them with my children. I hope that everyone finds their Sharon Adams. An influential, encouraging, loving, number one fan, to cheer for them during their victories and support them during their challenges. Thank you."

Current FBLA Advisor Stephanie McBartlett also spoke at the ceremony.

"Mrs. Adams is the reason I went to business school," McBartlett said. "She was always inspirational too, always in your corner. Last summer in August when she found out I was the business teacher, she called and congratulated me. She said anything you need let me know, I will be the anonymous donor to get you anywhere. I said thank you Mrs. Adams. I am bringing back the Mrs. Adams FBLA at Sargent. My whole chapter made it to state and nationals are coming next year for you. Thank you."

Davis said plaque would state how Adams gave 37 dedicated years to Sargent School District as a business teacher, and FBLA Advisor, from 1979 to 2017. Davis read the entire heartfelt inscription. It details her accomplishments, and her winning Teacher of the Year in 1987, 1988, 1996, 1997, and she has also been recognized with many recognition awards over the years. Adams took her students to state FBLA 37 times and took her students to nationals 33 times. She also remained active in the school district after she retired, helping with many activities.

Sharon's husband, Kerry, spoke at the ceremony saying that Sharon found a home that she never wanted to leave in Sargent.

"The song that began tonight, was adapted from the play 'Wicked,' that musical was adapted from 'The Wizard of Oz,' the series features a young Kansas girl, who looks for and discovers life outside the farm but realizes of course that there is no place like home," he said.

Kerry explained that the series reminded him of his wife, Sharon, who grew up on a small farm in Kansas, and left Kansas looking for adventure.

"She got her to the Sargent community and found a home that she never wanted to leave," he said. "She wanted to share that idea with her students, finding adventure yet keeping the option to always come home. I hope that in your travels, students, that you are able to realize that, that you are as the song said a couple of minutes ago, that you are changed for good. I am sure if she were here now, she would want me to thank you all for creating a place for her to sit and look out at where she called home. I hope you take the time to use this wonderful bench that's out here to help solve life's great mysteries. I know you will be able to talk to Sharon here. Please sit down and enjoy it. We appreciate, we want to thank Sargent FBLA. Thanks to all of you for coming and honoring Sharon so nicely. annual Casita Park clean up. The county pays for the dumpsters and people from Casita Park and Baca Grande brought their trash, appliances, and other items. We're even accepting title to old cars and we will tow the cars away. The clean up is fantastic. This town park is amazing with a new pavilion, bathrooms, and running water.

"I also sponsor an adopt a highway for about two miles of T Road near Casita Park," said Navares.

Michael Scully with the Friends of Casita Park said, "We have come together several years ago and we came upon this clean up project to pick up and dispose trash. Our first clean up was on Earth Day and we had local people volunteering and carting off trash to the dump. The property owners association got involved and we now have these dumpsters."

Saguache County Commissioner

Tom McCracken said the county has been proactive in assisting with clean ups, providing dumpsters, and waiving fees at the county dump on certain days. "We passed that nuisance ordinance a while back that requires land owners to clean up their place and rather than use the big stick approach we are trying to incentivize people to clean up their places by making it real easy for them."

Adam Kinney, a Crestone resident who is running against McCracken in the June primary for county commissioner said this, "I love seeing people come together like this to support their neighbors and take pride in their communities, especially around managing waste and cleanup. So many volunteers gave their time to make this happen. And a special thanks to the musicians and Nick Navares for the free meals, turning trash hauling into a community celebration."

Last week, the Rio Grande County Museum and Creek Water Construction dismantled and moved the Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office. Plans to restore the 1875 building are well underway.

Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office comes home to RGC Museum

STAFF REPORT

DEL NORTE — After almost two years, the Rio Grande County Museum recently announced that the Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office has come home to its resting place and will be restored and available for viewing by the end of 2024.

With the help of several volunteers and Creek Water Construction owners, Matt Espinoza and Karie Lichtenfeld, the Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office building was successfully dismantled and transported with the help of the Town of Del Norte to the Rio Grande County Museum. It has taken two years to bring the building to the museum. Just over $30,000 was raised with the help of several donors, organizations and the current Rio Grande County Board of Commissioners to make this happen. The stage office was moved three times over the years, but this was the first time the building was completely dismantled.

Efforts to save the Barlow and Sanderson Stage Office began back in the 1970s when local historian Ruth Marie Colville set out to see that the historic building was preserved. The building was built in 1875 near the Windsor Hotel. Once plans to build the hotel were underway, the building was moved to the west end of Del Norte where the Barlow and Sanderson Stables were located.

In the 1970s, Colville gathered a group of volunteers and had the building moved once again to the park across from Town Hall on the north end of Del Norte where it slowly fell into disrepair. It was then that Colville's daughter Suzanne Off Please see STAGE on Page 8

Mammoth opens on Main Street in Alamosa

BY PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — A new store has opened on Main Street in Alamosa, and it takes the idea of “souvenirs” to an entirely new level. Starting with its name “Mammoth,” which store owners Deb Hankinson and Lew Petersen chose after reading a Facebook post from a park ranger that said mammoths once roamed the San Luis Valley, every item available for purchase was carefully chosen — and, in some cases, created — with the uniqueness of Alamosa and the San Luis Valley in mind.

Located in the space previously occupied by May-Wa Chinese restaurant, Mammoth has been transformed by Hankinson and Petersen along with partners, Jo and Dale Parent, into a space that is colorful and vibrant yet with a warm and rustic feeling.

Mammoth is stocked with an extraordinary variety of “good quality, good price point” items, all communicating in one way or another the aspects that make Alamosa and surrounding areas so special.

From children's books about Dark Skies to extremely soft stuffed animals — including “gators”, in a nod to the Gator Farm — to coffee cups commissioned with designs of the Great Sand Dunes to specially designed refrigerator magnets to pillows with photos of wildlife taking selfies to limited but carefully selected high quality art work by local artists on the walls to cotton t-shirts that won't be seen anywhere else, Mammoth celebrates Alamosa in a way that tourists — and undoubtedly no small number of locals — will appreciate.

“We've tried to provide good quality at a good price point and a good variety,” Hankinson says. “If you want to just spend $3 or $4 on a keychain, we've got that. But if you want to buy a t-shirt that will last you ten years, we have that, too.”

And with an eye toward sustainability and preserving the environment, many of the items are made using recycled or repurposed materials, such as the old horseshoes from a local rescue operation that have been painted and are on sale. Please see MAMMOTH on Page 2

Respect, honor and remember

BY PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — Continuing with a tradition that is now in its 18th year, the city of Alamosa is holding a memorial service honoring peace officers of the San Luis Valley who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

Graphic courtesy of City of Alamosa

In recognition of National Peace Officers Memorial week from May 12 to 18, the service in Alamosa will be held on Wednesday, May 15, at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Alamosa Safety Complex, 425 4th St.

The memorial service will be preceded by a procession of lights with officers instructed to meet at 3110 1st St. at 5 p.m. A dinner will follow the service.

“We would like to take this opportunity to invite law enforcement and the public, as well, to join us during this time to recognize and honor all of the Fallen Police Officers in the San Luis Valley, as well as those officers across the state and nationwide who have fallen in the line of duty,” reads the press release from the city.

According to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, there were 136 law enforcement officers in federal, state, county, municipal, military, tribal and campus agencies across the nation who lost their lives in 2023, representing a 39% decrease from the 224 officers who died in the line of duty in 2022.

The organization's website also states that, of those 136 law enforcement officers who died in 2023, 47 were firearms-related fatalities. That is a 25% decrease from the 63 officers killed by gunfire the previous year, but firearms-related fatalities are still the leading cause of death.

“There is no such thing as ‘good news’ when reporting even a single officer being killed in the line-of-duty,” states National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund CEO Bill Alexander on the organization's website. “Yet we are encouraged to see fewer overall officer deaths across all major categories in 2023. Using and reporting on this data allows us to highlight the continuing dangers faced by our law enforcement professionals, particularly the number of officers who are shot and killed each year.”

to leave their corporate lives behind and move to the Valley.

The quality of merchandise is credited to Jo Parent. “Deb has taught me a lot,” Parent says.

Even with all that, it is also likely that Mammoth will become well known for its food. The first thing customers see when they walk in the door is a large counter filled with freshly made fudge. “I wanted to add the fudge because of what Jo can do,” Hankinson says. Jo (Parent) worked at a KOA campground in Yellowstone National Park for years where she became a fudge aficionado, and her talent is immediately apparent in both the taste and the varieties of fudge that range from strawberry cheesecake to orange swirl to cappuccino (which is amazing) to rocky road to chocolate jalapeño and others. “We make the fudge here and we’ve taught all the staff how to make fudge,” Hankinson says. “We’re always trying new recipes and looking for feedback from the people.”

Starting next week, Mammoth’s will also open their Spud Café, featuring eight different kinds of “loaded” potatoes (sourced from Monte Vista, of course), including specialties such as taco and cheese enchilada potatoes.

“We’re going to give the locals an option for lunch,” Hankinson says, “and that will help to carry us through the season when there aren’t a lot of tourists.” Right now, they’re focused on the lunch crowd but may expand to dinner at some point in the future.

“There’s just still a lot to do,” she says with a bit of a sigh, a comment that draws agreement from the three others.

In a conversation with the Valley Courier, it becomes immediately apparent that nothing in Mammoth was done by happenstance.

Entrepreneurs at heart, Hankinson and Petersen own the KOA Campground east of Alamosa off of Highway 160 where, along with the Parents, they have transformed the site into a surprisingly beautiful spot with high-quality amenities.

Looking to expand into other areas while keeping the KOA, they were interested in opening a business in the downtown area. That led them to contacting Kathy Woods, economic developer with the City of Alamosa, to find out what real estate was available downtown.

The building formerly occupied by May-Wa seemed the best option and — thanks to Nicky at Porter Realty — the purchase was completed on Dec. 13, 2023.

“When we bought the building, we thought the location was a great opportunity, just for the building itself,” says Petersen. “But when we thought about possibilities, we thought what does Alamosa need?”

That brings the KOA Campground into the picture where the souvenir shop at the KOA — that “did really, really well, just great” — showed what was needed.

“We had a couple of other ideas,” Petersen says, “but we thought there’s nothing in town that is specifically related to Alamosa. So, we decided on a souvenir shop.”

Since then, the four have invested tremendous “sweat equity” in the property, repurposing the space from a restaurant into a retail store with a commercial kitchen. Any additional labor that was needed was drawn from the local workforce and materials, like the rough sawed wood used on the walls, came from an Amish business associate specializing in that type of lumber.

And now, with the doors being opened for business on April 2, the same attention to detail that characterizes the KOA Campground is evident everywhere in Mammoth.

But the commitment to the project goes far beyond just owning a retail business in the city and a KOA campground in the county.

Hankinson is on the board of directors at Visit Alamosa and both she and her husband plus the Parents are committed to the success of the community.

Decisions made in selecting merchandise were made so as not to interfere with businesses already in operation. For example, only a limited number of local artists are featured to not compete with other businesses offering local art on Main Street. The same is true of the houseware and jewelry items they offer.

“There may be a little overlap, but our goal is to fill the gap,” Hankinson says. But that gap is evident in other ways, as well.

Starting on May 5 — Cinco de Mayo — Mammoth will be open seven days a week. “When the tourists come, we want to be open in the evening. If you’re going to be a tourist definition, you really need to be open seven days a week. I’ve heard people say it’s too hard to find staff, but we haven’t had that problem, at all,” she says.

Currently, Mammoth has created five new jobs and anticipate, when the Spud Café opens, hiring another two.

She attributes their success in hiring to using Indeed, which brought them “high-caliber people” from Alamosa, Monte Vista, Manassa and Romeo.

All four are also focused on being able to promote the area to customers coming into Mammoth about the array of interesting things to do. Hankinson says they plan to send staff to Visit Alamosa for training on being an ambassador to the area.

In looking at the big picture, when asked if their philosophy is best described as “when one succeeds, all succeed,” Hankinson does not hesitate. “Absolutely right,” she says. “That’s exactly how it works.”

Mammoth is located at 620 Main St. in Alamosa. Open Tuesday to Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5:50 p.m., Friday and Saturday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Historic investment in agriculture, CDA approved in state budget

By COLORADO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BROOMFIELD — On Monday, Governor Jared Polis signed the Long Bill, sponsored by the Joint Budget Committee, which commits significant investments into programs and staff supporting agriculture across Colorado.

The state budget for Fiscal Year 2024/2025 includes a 13 percent increase in funding to the Department of Agriculture, to build out and add support to existing programs working to improve our state's agricultural industry. Funding included in the Long Bill will support farmer-driven conservation efforts, emergency preparedness, renewable energy adaptation, and more.

"The state budget includes funding to expand CDA programs that are directly benefiting producers, developing new leaders in agriculture, and helping use water wisely across Colorado," said Commissioner of Agriculture Kate Greenberg. "This budget package is a result of countless conversations with ag communities and is reflective of some of the biggest needs we have heard from the field. These resources will be making their way back to these communities to support resilience, stewardship, and a vibrant future for Colorado agriculture."

Funding included in the state budget will help CDA advance:

Next Generation Agricultural Leadership and Agriculture Workforce Development Programs, which help fund hands-on internships at Colorado agricultural businesses for people interested in gaining real world experience in agriculture and which provide funding to organizations that train and develop future leaders in all areas of agriculture.

Wolf Conflict Mitigation, to support producers implementing non-lethal predator control measures and conflict reduction practices.

Agricultural Drought and Climate Resilience Office (ADCRO), to accelerate how quickly Colorado agri businesses adopt or expand green energy generation and to support a suite of on-farm resilience practices and renewable energy projects.

Creation of a new Division of Animal Welfare, to increase oversight of the Bureau of Animal Protection and Pet Animal Care Facilities Act Program; expand proactive education and outreach; and create additional capacity for the State Veterinarian to support animal health efforts.

Agricultural Workforce Services Program, to increase coordination, outreach, and support to agricultural employers and workers to address agricultural labor issues.

Agricultural Emergency Management program, which engages directly with Colorado's rural agricultural communities to facilitate a comprehensive approach to disaster preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation.

Over the past several years, Colorado has been leading the way toward a more resilient future, and agriculture has been a large part of that movement. These programs have been critical in supporting the priorities for the Department, which are expanding water-resilient agriculture, supporting future generations of agriculturalists, developing local food systems, and advancing animal health and welfare.

In addition to the daily regulatory work of the agency, CDA has been expanding the work of the Conservation and Markets divisions to grow programs that prepare Colorado's agricultural communities for the future. Initiatives such as the Colorado Soil Health program help small and medium-sized producers expand their climate smart practices and access emerging markets for food grown with these practices. In the Markets Division, programs such as Colorado Proud and International Markets will be leading the way to promote Colorado products among consumers in our state and across the world.

Valley Roots Food Hub launches 2024 Fresh Box CSA program

CONTRIBUTED

MOSCA — Valley Roots Food Hub (VRFH) will be launching the Summer 2024 Fresh Box Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program on June 20. The 13-week program runs alongside the fresh harvest season to bring shareholders fresh and local produce from growers across the Colorado bio-region.

The Fresh Box is a multi-farm CSA, which means we aggregate produce from a handful of different farmers within our extensive Colorado bio-region each week. Every Thursday, shareholders will receive a box with a specially curated menu ranging from stone fruits and root vegetables to leafy greens and melons.

The Fresh Box is an easy way to supplement family meals (2-3 people) with farm fresh produce. With each share, you will receive a weekly newsletter filled with Valley happenings, producer bios, creative recipes, warehouse highlights, and how to store produce. We understand that a program like this is not ordinary, but we will be a part of your food journey every step of the way!

Other program offerings include a weekly egg share from Yoder Farms in Monte Vista and 12 lb ground beef bundles from either Rancho Largo Customer Beef in Fowler, or Blue Range Ranch in Saguache. In addition to the weekly Fresh Box, we encourage shareholders to shop the online market, www.valleyrootsfoodhubcsa.localorbit.com, a la carte style for pantry staples, frozen meats, cheeses, add-value products, and more!

A 2023 shareholder summed up their experience with this statement:

"We have decided that spending our food money locally is a top priority in our family. It is such a gift to our community to have your [Valley Roots Food Hub] services!"

At Valley Roots Food Hub, supporting your local food economy has never been easier. By letting us do the shopping and delivery for you, shareholders save precious time and spend it doing what they love with those they hold close. The VRFH Fresh Box multi-farm CSA program is a direct investment in our local economy, agricultural producers, and the health of regional soils & waterways.

Throughout the San Luis Valley and beyond, we have several pick-up locations that are available to our customers: Alamosa, Del Norte, Creede, Crestone, Del Norte, Leadville, Saguache, and Salida. We also have home delivery options available for an additional fee.

With limited spots available each season, we highly encourage interested folks to sign-up sooner rather than later! You can register with the online market and purchase a 2024 share at https://val-

leyrootsfoodhubcsa.localorbit.com. If you have any questions regarding the Fresh Box CSA program or how to become a regular/weekly shopper with us, please contact our CSA Coordinator & Operations Manager: Maria Karahalios at 719-378-4593 or maria.valleyroots@gmail.com.

Medano Creek in Great Sand Dunes National Park and Preserve on April 21.

The joys and hydrology of Medano Creek

By JOHN WATERS

GREAT SAND DUNES NATIONAL PARK AND PRESERVE — The recreational fun at Medano Creek and the sandy beaches along it are off to another season. The snowmelt waters have now reached the area near the Dunes Parking Lot with a shallow and gentle flow. The creek is about one inch deep and between 10-20 feet.

Residents and other visitors to the park enjoy the cool water of the creek. Aside from the recreational pleasure, the creek is also of interest to scientists and the familiar pulse of the creek is a rare phenomenon. The "surge flow," of the creek is one of the few places on Earth where water flowing over the instream sand creates the pulse.

There are three attributes needed to create the surge flow. A relatively steep gradient that gives the water velocity. A smooth and mobile creek bed with little resistance which creates a laminar flow, and a sufficient supply of water. These components make dams or antidunes that create temporary small pools in the creek. When there is enough pressure from impounded water, the antidunes break sending the surge of water downstream. The magnitude of the surges depends on the depth (quantity) of water and can be as high as one foot.

Medano Creek, on the east and southeast sides of the dunes, and Sand Creek, on the northwestern side, influence the shape of the dune field. Researchers have concluded that without the influence of the streams and their role in transporting sand, the dunes would look different and would most likely be more oval-shaped.

STAGE

and resident Patty Kelly decided it was time to try and save the building.

Over the past two years, the Rio Grande County Museum, the Town of Del Norte, the Rio Grande County commissioners, the Windsor Hotel and the Del Norte Public Library worked with several volunteers and donors to raise the funds to save the building and move it to its new home at the museum.

Now with the help of Creek Water Construction, the building will be restored and rebuilt in the back courtyard of the museum and will serve as a permanent exhibit. The exhibit will showcase what the office would have looked like when travelers arrived in the Del Norte area in the late 1800s and is reunited with the original 1876 Barlow and Sanderson Stagecoach that was loaned to the museum by the City of Monte Vista.

Plans are to have the new building available to the public for viewing by the end of the summer, weather and time permitting. A huge thanks goes out to everyone who made donations and supported efforts to save the Barlow as well as those who are continuing to help volunteer time and services to see the building restored to its original glory.
