Forefathers of the Colorado Division of Aeronautics receive Lifetime Achievement Awards

Valley's Entz and former Gov. Romer honored by CAB

WATKINS — The visionaries behind the creation of the Colorado Division of Aeronautics were honored with the "Lifetime Achievement Award" by the Colorado Aeronautical Board (CAB) for their crucial roles in its establishment. Colorado's 39th Governor, Roy Romer, and former Colorado State Senator Lewis Entz received their awards on Thursday, June 6, during a ceremony at the Colorado Airport Operator's Association (CAOA) Spring Conference.

Entz, 92, served 14 years as county commissioner for Alamosa, followed by 16 years as a house representative (1983-1998). During his first eight years, a new law set term limits. He served a full eight-year second term, and then he spent another six years in the Senate (2001-2006). Entz was born in Monte Vista and currently

Solstice celebrates creativity in music and art

BY MARIE MCCOLM

CENTER — This year's Solstice in Center was an enlightening and creative experience. Alluvium Studio organized this imaginative event on Friday, June 21, and Saturday, June 22.

The event was held at two locations — the Center Motor Car Garage, 335 E. Third St, and Alluvium, 342 Worth St. Artist Marie Bannerot McInerney spoke about her display, which was a large window covering, laid out with various holes for light to enter, and beautiful dripping textures, fluidly placed all over the window. On the floor near the window were large pieces of what looked like gold, with a black piece of a meteorite stone in the middle.

San Juan Fiesta brings Center together

BY MARIE MCCOLM

CENTER — A day of celebration, beauty, and culture was enjoyed by the Center community on Sunday, June 23, during the San Juan Fiesta at Casa Blanca Park.

People enjoyed the traditional Spanish music being played in the park, along with various vendors and food trucks. The street in front of Casa Blanca Park was lined with canopies and vendors.

There were people selling t-shirts, tumblers, Tupperware, and green and red chile. There were vendors selling shoes, purses, blankets, and many vendors selling all different types of food. At one table, quesadillas were being handmade and deep fried, and at another table someone was selling hot dogs, hamburgers, chips, and a drink.

There was a bake sale at the pavilion at the park, with cookies, cake, and other tasty baked items.

Children in bathing suits and swimming trunks ran through the sprinklers that were set up, laughing and giggling, and enjoying the cool water.

The reason for the celebration was also recognized by many, people could be heard talking about the mass that was held in the morning, and the birthday of St. John the Baptist.

AHS principal headed to Center CSD

Lavier will be new asst. superintendent

ALAMOSA — After spending a decade as the principal of Alamosa High School (AHS) preceded by almost twice that many years with the district where he was both in and out of the classroom, Andy Lavier is headed north to Center where he has been hired as that district's new assistant superintendent.

Lavier leaves behind a record marked by outstanding achievements, most notably in academic performance.

"Mr. Lavier leaves a legacy of being at the Performance Level for ten years during his tenure at Alamosa High School, and he has accomplished a great deal," says Diana Jones, Alamosa School District superintendent. "We wish him the best as he embarks on this new journey and opportunity."

Under Lavier's leadership, AHS also excelled in other areas, as noted by Luis Please see LAVIER on Page 2A

“Most of the art that I do, is finding ways of connecting to larger systems that we are always operating under. I think of our relationship to the natural world, and I think of our relationship to the cosmos and how they are interrelated. I can only speak for myself, but I find myself thinking of how we are related to the stars and the earth that is surrounding us. This particular work is an evolution of other work,” she said.

The first work she did was in 2017 at a gallery in Nashville, Tenn., and was like the display in Center.

“I created a cement textile that hung in a western facing window, that had little holes in it, that created apertures where light would come in as the sun set. This here uses buttermilk to frost the windows, which allowed me to create the drips you see in the window. This piece references erosion, and land, and reformation according to time, that’s what this piece is about,” she said.

McInerney said in working on the floor in front of the piece of art in the window, she could envision continental edges, or edges of land mass, that have similar references of left-behind shapes, with a direct connection to earth. The gold on the floor represented the earth, with a black piece in the middle.

“This piece here is a 4.5-billion-year-old meteorite,” said McInerney, referencing the black piece in the middle. “This side of it is crystallization of millions of years in our cosmos, and what the core of our earth is made of.

There is something really grounding and connecting to this, and that’s why I placed it in the middle of the gold. This has a symbol of connective quality.”

McInerney, who is from Kansas City, said she was invited to the Solstice by another artist and was excited to attend and be included. McInerney is also a teacher at an art institute.

Artist Mark Cowardin was also at the Solstice event and had two large lit up sculptures in the main room at the Solstice event. The sculptures were made up of colored bars, and lights.

Cowardin said that the sculptures were clouds, but he enjoyed hearing people’s interpretations of what they thought his sculptures were.

“I have always been really interested in the connection between humans and nature. The idea of these clouds is that they are floating in the sky, but they are actually on scaffolding, which is something that is used to fix things, or the things we use to get higher up. There are lots of meanings in these pieces for me, but these are clouds. The colors also imitate the sunrise and the sunset, like the reds and the oranges and yellows in the sky,” he said.

Cowardin said that he has been an artist his entire life and he is also a teacher. He enjoys making big display pieces.

“One person thought that these were potatoes. Which, this is an agricultural place, so it’s neat they thought they were potatoes, it’s relative,” he said.

Cowardin, who is from Kansas, said that he was invited to the event and brought others to the event to share their art.

“For me, one of the things I love about making art is conversations. I am excited that other artists also chose to come up from Kansas City to display their art too. While I have inspirations about what exactly these pieces mean, I try not to say exactly where they came from just because I want people to walk in and be in awe, and be inspired, and have conversations about what they think they are. That’s part of what I really enjoy about being an artist,” he said.

Throughout the Center Motor Car Garage there were other displays from artists, including a large blue banner made of plastic strips, and various other small paintings with skulls, people, and abstractly drawn items.

Alluvium Studio was also decked out inside, with artwork made by people who had visited during the event.

Alluvium owners Steve Huey and Krystal Anton were on site and Huey said that the turnout for the two days had been good.

“We have had a lot of people come in. There were many people who came in and created collages and we hung them on the wall. We are helping bring these people in here, with these artists,” Huey said.

Huey said this year they hit the jackpot because Cowardin brought many of his artist friends from Kansas City with him and made it a bigger event than last year.

“We have been here since 2019. This is the fourth year we have done this. Each year more artists show up. We are very happy to be here. This year we have engaged more of the locals too. There were a lot of people from Alamosa and resides in Hooper. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1951-53.

Saguache here. Making sure they know what this is, and what we are bringing out here is exciting. The studio has been busy all day. It’s been good. We are very happy with the turnout,” Huey said.

On May 24, 1988, on the tail of Senator Entz’s aircraft, Colorado Gov. Romer signed House Bill (HB) 88-1250 into law, leading to the creation of the Colorado Division of Aeronautics under Colorado Revised Statute (C.R.S) 43-10. This legislation marked a significant milestone in Colorado’s aviation history, particularly with the creation of the Colorado Aviation Fund and the Colorado Discretionary Aviation Grant Program (CDAG). Funded by aviation fuel sales taxes, the CDAG Program has contributed over $1 billion to the Colorado Aviation System.

Since its inception, the Division has been essential in developing, maintaining, and enhancing Colorado’s aviation system. It oversees various critical initiatives, including funding airport improvements, promoting aviation education, and enhancing the safety and economic viability of the Colorado Aviation System.

“Governor Romer and Senator Entz came from different political parties, but they worked together to promote and protect aviation and airports for the good of all Coloradans,” said CAB Chair Kent Holsinger.

Romer, a licensed pilot for 70 years, served as Colorado’s Governor from 1987 to 1999. He frequently used his personal aircraft for business, demonstrating his advocacy for aviation and his vision to improve Colorado’s infrastructure, with aviation as a key element.

Sen. Entz, the bill’s sponsor, was also a licensed pilot. He represented Colorado’s rural communities and had a personal connection to small rural airports. His legislative vision supported both large busy airports and small rural airports, which are vital to their communities. He is also a member of the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame.

Today, the Colorado Airport System includes 76 public-use airports, with 14 offering scheduled air service.

On May 24, 1988, on the tail of Senator Lewis Entz’s aircraft, Colorado Gov. Roy Romer signs House Bill (HB) 88-1250 into law, leading to the creation of the Colorado Division of Aeronautics under Colorado Revised Statute (C.R.S) 43-10.

According to the 2020 Colorado jobs, generating $16.2 billion in Aviation Economic Impact Study, annual payroll and $48.6 billion in Colorado airports support 345,661 total annual business revenue.

Murillo, assistant superintendent.

“Mr. Lavier has been an integral part of AHS’ success,” Murillo says. “In his time at the helm, AHS transformed into a performing school and has stayed there for the past 10 years. Also, in his time at AHS, the student body competed in sports and academics, winning several championships. Andy bleeds maroon and will be missed. We wish him the best of luck in his leadership endeavors.”

There are other accomplishments that can be attributed to Lavier, but they aren’t the kind that end up in reports from the Colorado Department of Education or scoreboards on a field.

As principal, Lavier brought AHS and its students through the COVID-19 pandemic, one of the most challenging times for schools in recent history. The graduating class of 2024 started their high school experience at the height of the pandemic.

During that time, especially when the scope of the pandemic was not yet known, Lavier was a regular at school board meetings where, along with other principals, teachers, and staff, they would provide feedback to the ASD Board of Education about how things were going.

And, in the end, the class of 2024 was noted for the number of honors, scholarships and accolades they received.

During Lavier’s tenure, AHS was also the target of what the FBI calls, “swatting,” where a fake call is placed to the school saying there is an active shooter on campus.

As a result, the executive management team and their partnership with Lavier, other top administrators at the schools and staff, ASD now has a strong, flexible but effective security protocol.

In his role as principal, Lavier also addressed a grieving community when he spoke at the funeral of Eric Melgosa, Lavier’s close friend and Alamosa’s Athletic Director who passed away in January of 2023. Despite grieving himself, Lavier spoke with dignity and grace.

When asked about hiring the next person to AHS into the future, Superintendent Jones said the position will be posted immediately and “a hiring committee will participate in a first round of interviews.”

OPINION & EDITORIAL

403,356 miles and counting

This past week I helped shuttle some fishermen's rigs and one of the trucks had 403,356 miles on it. Not only was this remarkable vehicle still running, but I also honestly think it ran as good and as quietly as the day it was driven off the showroom floor.

Miss Trixie and I have been shuttling some vehicles for a local fly shop and so Ol' Dutch has found himself getting to compare every make and model of truck and SUV out there over the past few weeks. And it's been a real eye-opening experience, let me tell you.

Ol' Dutch has long been a General Motors products purchaser as I seem to get a whale of a deal any time I trade for a new one. I have, of course, looked at other brands made in the good old USA, but always seem to come back to GM.

Very early in my driving years — shortly after the Model T went into production according to Miss Trixie — a company I worked for had all Dodge trucks. And they were the cheapest ones a person could buy at the time, so my impression of them was not that great. I think it was the daily crawling under the one I drove to plug in the transmission wire that probably soured me like a "pickle my puss" gummy bear. And I really have never liked the body style of any Ford. Like they say, "beauty is in the eye of the beholder" and I just don't feel like beholding a Ford.

So, I've ambled along with my Chevy and GMC trucks all these many long years and they seemed to work out just fine for me with no major hiccups. And like they say, "don't change horses in the middle of the river" so I stuck with what I knew and I "thought" I was satisfied.

That is until this past week. There I was just minding my own business, happily satisfied with my paid off Chevy truck when I was asked to drive a truck that came from far East Asia. I still recall the moment when Miss Trixie drove me up to the truck that needed to be moved downriver. Thinking back, I believe I heard angels' wings. Or something like that.

For there it sat in all its splendor and glory, a brand-new Toyota Tundra truck. I can still recall the awe I felt as I climbed up into the cab and was immediately immersed in first class appointments all around me. This was not the 1988 Toyota pickup that my son drove through high school with the cramped-up leg room, tiny cab and small engine. No-sirree-bob this was a horse of a different color for sure. This Tundra beast drove like a new Caddy and handled extremely well. I was smitten. It reminded me of the first time I saw Miss Trixie to tell you the truth. A mind-bending experience. Or something like that.

Which leads me to the title of this expose "403,356." That exact mileage was found on a 2005 Tundra I drove and while not the expansive cab of the newer ones, it was full size for the day and quite comfy if I might say so myself.

I could not believe my eyes when I glanced down at the odometer and there it was for all to see, almost a half million miles on that truck. And what was most amazing is it drove and ran perfectly and was as quiet as a church mouse on Sunday morning. I know, right? Most vehicles with that age, not to mention high mileage, are starting to show the effects of potholes and there are rattles and noises galore in them. But not this little workhorse. She just ran along like a sewing machine on zigzag.

I parked the aged truck and gave her a pat on the hood as I walked away, a slight tear appearing in my eye. Or not. I sure enjoyed that ride and couple that with the new ones I got to drive, and Ol' Dutch is wanting to trade the old Bowtie for a Yota.

I am praying that temptation stays far from me but so far, it's sitting in my hip pocket as I look online at those Japanese wonders. Say a prayer for me to resist.

An ugly tower threatens Bears Ears National Monument

My Navajo homeland is the great expanse of land between four sacred mountains in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah.

It is our place of origin and Navajo spiritual traditions are rooted here. Even when we were forcibly removed from our homeland by the federal government's Army in the 19th century, our spiritual and cultural connection to these lands has never been extinguished.

Utah Navajos still make use of this historic homeland, which is now known as the 1.35-million-acre Bears Ears National Monument, designated by President Obama in 2016. It is where we practice our ceremonies; gather herbs, firewood and cedar poles; hunt for game; rejuvenate our spirits and caretake our sacred places. Because the monument closely involves us, Navajo and other tribes in the area have been pushing for tribal management.

For many years, the Navajo and other local tribes — Hopi, Uintah, Ouray Ute, Zuni and Ute Mountain Ute — worked together to gain federal protection for this land. But what we gained is now threatened by developments that defile and dishonor the cultural and spiritual significance held by Navajo and other Native peoples.

The most recent example is the plan to build a 460-foot telecommunications tower on a parcel of land owned by a Utah state agency, the Trust Lands Administration. The land that would house the tower is in the heart of the Bears Ears National Monument.

If erected, this alien-looking tower will be a spear in the heart of the Bears Ears area. I am also saddened to think there will likely be more inappropriate developments on Utah Trust Lands within Bears Ears, now that the state has derailed a proposed land exchange between the Trust Lands Administration and the federal government.

The land exchange would have helped ensure that Navajo homelands are managed to protect our cultural and spiritual traditions. Now these lands — our heritage — face death by a thousand cuts.

The company placing the telecommunications tower has applied for and received a conditional use permit from San Juan County. But the company must also apply for and receive a variance from the county, because any tower higher than 35 feet is prohibited. So far, it has not applied for a variance.

The National Park Service opposes the tower and has submitted comments to both the Utah Trust Lands Administration and San Juan County. The federal agency said the tower would blight the viewshed, diminish the area's dark skies, and harm habitat for several threatened and endangered bird species.

For more than a century my people have had to fight for our rights. In 1868, when Navajos were finally allowed to return from forced exile, we were confined to a reservation south of the San Juan River. It was much reduced in size from our original homeland.

The prime lands higher up near the water and lush vegetation of Bears Ears were denied us. Nevertheless, these lands have always been a part of our cultural traditions, despite a documented history of racial injustices levied against Utah Navajos.

At every level, from county to state to the federal government, that history includes violations of voting rights, education and civil rights. All had to be litigated in federal court. Through all of that, Utah Navajos have fought to conserve and protect the public lands we traditionally used.

These lands need to exist as nature intended — to regenerate traditional plants and provide homes to wildlife that in turn sustain Navajo cultural traditions.

The Utah Trust Lands Administration and the federal government have a chance to do the right thing for Bears Ears. I urge the state of Utah and the federal government to restart discussions about a land exchange.

Otherwise, more out-of-place and inharmonious developments such as this 460-foot blinking tower could come to dominate the Bears Ears landscape.

Colorado Springs to Great Sand Dunes National Park a top road trip for families

CONTRIBUTED

Colorado Springs to Great Sand Dunes National Park was second with voters in a survey of America's Top Family Friendly Road Trips.

The US offers an array of road trip routes that are globally renowned for their expansive skies, breathtaking natural landscapes, and opportunities to meet new people. While many of these journeys captivate adults, they might not always cater to the interests and energy levels of younger travelers, who may have limited attention spans and less interest in lengthy drives focused on geography or history.

However, the country is packed with shorter, child-friendly road trips (and shorter day trips) ideal for young explorers. For example, Florida offers family-friendly adventures with attractions like the Key West Butterfly and Nature Conservatory, Busch Gardens Tampa Bay, and Orlando's theme parks such as Disney World and Universal Studios.

Gunther Mitsubishi carried out a survey of 3,000 families, asking them to identify the ultimate family-friendly road trips they aspire to experience this summer.

The top 5 were as follows:

1. Flagstaff to Grand Canyon: Arizona

Coming in first place, the route from Flagstaff to the Grand Canyon offers a variety of attractions. Start with the Lowell Observatory or the Museum of Northern Arizona in Flagstaff. Older kids will love the zip lining at the Flagstaff Extreme Adventure Course. On the way to the Grand Canyon, stop in Williams to enjoy a scenic ride on the Grand Canyon Railway. Conclude the trip at the Grand Canyon National Park, where families can enjoy breathtaking views, easy hiking trails, and ranger-led programs.

2. Colorado Springs to Great Sand Dunes National Park: Colorado

Taking the second spot, the trip from Colorado Springs to Great Sand Dunes National Park is filled with exciting stops. Start with the Garden of the Gods or Cheyenne Mountain Zoo. En route to the Great Sand Dunes, stop at the Royal Gorge Bridge and Park for stunning views and thrilling rides. Finish the trip at the park, where kids can play on the massive sand dunes and splash in Medano Creek.

3. Hilo to Kailua-Kona: Hawaii

In third position, the route from Hilo to Kailua-Kona offers a mix of natural beauty and historical sites. Start in Hilo with visits to the Panaloa Rainforest Zoo and Gardens or the Lyman Museum and Mission House. Don't miss the nearby Rainbow Falls, a stunning natural attraction. Continue to Kailua-Kona, detouring to visit Volcanoes National Park with its dramatic landscapes and educational exhibits. End the journey in Kailua-Kona with visits to the Kaloko-Honokohau National Historical Park, the Kona Coffee Living History Farm, or snorkeling at Kealahou Bay.

4. Boston to Cape Cod: Massachusetts

Fourth on the list is a family trip from Boston to Cape Cod offering historical and coastal attractions. Start in Boston with a visit to the Boston Children's Museum, the New England Aquarium, or the Museum of Science. A walk along the Freedom Trail is also great for exploring the city's history. On the way to Cape Cod, stop in Plymouth to see Plymouth Rock or visit Plimoth Patuxet Museums for a living history experience. Conclude on Cape Cod with beaches, the Cape Cod National Seashore, or a whale-watching tour. The Cape Cod Museum of Natural History is also a great stop for kids.

5. Buffalo to Niagara Falls: New York

Rounding out the top five, a trip from Buffalo to Niagara Falls combines cultural and natural attractions. Start in Buffalo with a visit to the Buffalo Zoo, the Buffalo Museum of Science, or the Albright-Knox Art Gallery. The Buffalo and Erie County Naval & Military Park is also a great stop. Before heading to Niagara Falls, detour to Lockport to take a tour of the Erie Canal locks and enjoy a boat ride through the Lockport Cave. Conclude at Niagara Falls with a ride on the Maid of the Mist, exploring the Cave of the Winds, and visiting the Niagara Falls State Park.

Colorado had two other trip routes voted among the most sought-after by families:

21. Denver to Rocky Mountain National Park

A family road trip from Denver to Rocky Mountain National Park offers diverse attractions. Start in Denver with a visit to the Denver Zoo, Denver Museum of Nature & Science, or the Children's Museum of Denver. Stop in Boulder to explore the Boulder Farmers Market or hike in Chautauqua Park. End at Rocky Mountain National Park with wildlife viewing, scenic drives, and easy hikes suitable for kids.

39. Fort Collins to Steamboat Springs

A road trip from Fort Collins to Steamboat Springs offers a variety of family-friendly activities. Start in Fort Collins with visits to the Fort Collins Museum of Discovery or the Gardens on Spring Creek. Stop in Estes Park to explore the town or enjoy a scenic drive through Rocky Mountain National Park. End in Steamboat Springs, where families can enjoy the Old Town Hot Springs and Yampa River Botanic Park.

14-hour search for shooting suspect ends with citizen tip

Henry Corral, accused of fatally shooting one, injuring two

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — The 14-hour search for Henry Corral, wanted for the alleged fatal shooting of one man and critical injuring of two others, concluded on Sunday evening when Corral was taken into custody at 6:45 p.m. by law enforcement.

According to a statement from the City of Alamosa, “an alert citizen,” contacted law enforcement saying they had seen someone who matched Corral’s description, leading to his capture and arrest.

Corral is facing charges of suspicion of murder in the first degree, two counts of criminal attempt first degree murder, tampering with physical evidence, possession of a weapon by a previous offender and criminal attempt of aggravated robbery.

What caused the altercation between the four men, or the nature of their association is still under investigation. Joe Dzuris, Alamosa County coroner, has identified the man who died of his wounds as Aurelio Piña, 61. Piña was transported to a local emergency room where, Dzuris says, he was pronounced deceased.

The identities of the two other men have not been released, but the Alamosa Police Department confirms that both sustained critical injuries and were transported to the Front Range where they continue to be in serious to critical condition.

Shortly after 2 a.m. on Sunday morning, officers were dispatched to the Sunset Inn, 1310 W. 8th St., on a report of shots fired. When they arrived on scene, they found three victims who had been shot, one of whom died of his wounds.

Corral fled the scene in a Chevrolet Avalanche, heading south-southwest out of Alamosa to the area of County Road 106 and the 12 South where he crashed the vehicle. Officials state Corral then set the Avalanche on fire and attempted, unsuccessfully, to carjack another vehicle before fleeing on foot – barefoot, it appears, as his shoes were found at the scene of the burning vehicle.

Law enforcement officers from APD and the Alamosa County Sheriff’s Office were immediately on the scene with authorities focused on the area around CR 106 and the 12 South, which is largely undeveloped and sparsely populated with ranches, outbuildings and significant space in between. Multiple calls went out for assistance from other agencies.

Residents of Alamosa County became aware of the situation at 4:50 a.m. when a “Reverse911” call advised people to stay inside and lock their doors.

Beginning in the early morning and throughout the day, law enforcement did a laborious house-by-house search throughout the area, “primarily for the safety of the residents,” APD Police Chief George Dingfelder said at the time, “with the priority to get Corral into custody as soon as possible.”

There were also aircraft with thermal imaging capabilities, he said, and the Chaffee County SWAT with drones also equipped with it.

Mid-afternoon on Sunday, when the Valley Courier reached out to Dingfelder for an update, he said the search area had been expanded from 10 South to 15 South and further west into Rio Grande and Conejos counties, not because of any information but “given how long it’s been, that’s how far he could have traveled.”

Dingfelder also said that the U.S. Marshals Fugitive Task Force and agents with the Colorado Bureau of Investigation, described as “the best of the best,” had arrived on the scene.

And then, at 6:20 p.m., law enforcement got a break when a citizen reported seeing someone who matched Corral’s description north of CR 10S and east of CR 106, outside of the area where law enforcement was searching.

“A lengthy foot pursuit with law enforcement officers from APD SWAT, Alamosa County Sheriff’s Office, Adams State University Police, US Marshals and CBI Fugitive Task Force officers led to Corral being taken into custody without further incident.”

Corral was transported to San Luis Valley Regional Medical Center for injuries resulting from the crash of the Chevrolet Avalanche and then transferred to a Front Range hospital for treatment. APD officers accompanied Corral to the hospital and upon his release, transported him to the Alamosa County Detention Center.

Corral is known to local law enforcement, as confirmed by ACSO Division Chief Ken Anderson who said Corral was arrested for domestic violence on Trinchera Road just two weeks before.

Dingfelder also described Corral as having an “extensive criminal history across the state of Colorado,” but provided no details.

“The capture of Corral,” Dingfelder said in a statement, “involved the majority of agencies from across the San Luis Valley, including Alamosa Police Department, Alamosa Fire

At the height of the manhunt, over 80 officers from these agencies were going door to door looking for Corral and searching by ground and air.”

Dingfelder thanked the community for its support, including “Woody’s Q Shack for drinks and water, SLV Health and Alamosa County Commissioners for food, and Alamosa County Shield 10-78 and SLV RETAC for breakfast and lunch for all the first responders who were investigating this horrific crime and searching for the suspect”

As of Monday afternoon, Corral was not yet scheduled for arraignment.

Three dogs lost in fire

STAFF REPORT

ALAMOSA — A manufactured home in the Town and Country Mobile Home Park on the west edge of town was a total loss Monday morning, taking three family dogs with it.

Devan Haynie, deputy chief with the Alamosa Fire Department (AFD), said the three human occupants of the home at the time of the fire were treated on scene by Alamosa EMS for smoke inhalation but were then released. No firefighters were injured.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, Haynie said.

AFD responded with three trucks and 12 personnel with assistance from Colorado Division of Fire Prevention and Control with one truck and five personnel. Firefighters were on scene for about two hours.

held in the past five years. Deacon Jerry LeBlanc spoke about the celebration.

"This used to be an annual traditional celebration that always took place right around the 24 of June, which is the birth of St. John the Baptist. A lot of people in our community have a devotion to St. John the Baptist," he said.

LeBlanc also said that one of the biggest purposes for the fiesta was to raise funds for the local Catholic church building. Last September, the building's roof was damaged by high winds. According to LeBlanc, the southern half of the roof has been repaired, but they still need to.

"We want to use the fiesta to gather people together in their faith and help raise funds to repair the north half of the Church," he said.

Vendor coordinator Paula Alvarez said that she appreciated everyone's support.

"Thank you to everyone who came and showed support for the Catholic church at Casa Blanca Park. It took a village to make this a successful event, the turnout was amazing," she said.

Resident Marisol Mendoza was at the celebration with her baby daughter and her three older children and said that the celebration was fun.

"My kids are having a blast walking around and seeing everything. My baby girl is looking around and smiling at everything," she said.

Mendoza said she hopes this event continues and she would like to see Center do more of them.

"The town of Center needs celebrations like this, they really bring people together, and that's a good thing," she said.

Children's Garden Early Learning Center is located at 1304 San Juan.

Two day care staffers charged with child abuse

Children's Garden director called law enforcement

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — Two staff members with the Children's Garden Early Learning Center appeared in county court on Tuesday for arraignment in connection with allegations of child abuse. According to Veronica Vasquez, Assistant Director, the staff members have been terminated from employment.

The two individuals, charged separately, were identified as Savannah Perales and Amber Rosario. Neither was arrested in connection with the allegations but, instead, were issued summons to appear in court.

According to documents obtained from the Alamosa County Sheriff's Office who assisted the Alamosa Police Department in investigating the case, a review of a videotape by the facility's director, Denayea Martinez, prompted the call to law enforcement.

The date of the video was April 23 and taken in a classroom of toddlers, where both women were working.

Martinez told ACSO Deputy Sergio Cazares that one segment of the video showed an incident where a staff member, identified as Perales, "forcefully picks up a child, forces the child into a chair and while doing so the child hit her head on the chair." The child was then "forcefully pushed" into a table, after which she begins to cry.

As described in ACSO's investigative report, a second segment of the video, recorded 30 minutes later, showed an individual identified as Rosario "forcefully pulling a child across the room by his arm" and "lifting him off the ground with her left hand."

Cazares then viewed the videotape and confirmed that Martinez's description was accurate.

He also spoke to the parents of the child who had been pushed into the table and was told that a "thin red mark" had appeared on the child's stomach.

When interviewed by Cazares, Rosario said that she remembered the incident and was "confused" as to why she was being issued a summons. She felt the complaint had been filed out of retaliation for her reporting another teacher.

According to Rosario's statement, Perales had thrown shoes at the child's face, causing him to cry and prompting Rosario to pull him in front of the camera in the room to document what was happening.

Cazares told her there was no camera footage of Perales throwing shoes at the child.

Perales was out of state when ACSO reached out to her to issue the summons. When she returned to Alamosa, Cazares went to her home and explained the reason for the summons. The investigative report does not indicate any further conversation.

According to documents obtained from the court, Perales has been charged with suspicion of child abuse, a class 1 misdemeanor, and is scheduled to appear in court for a pre-trial conference on Aug. 14.

Rosario, who has been charged with suspicion of child abuse, a class 2 misdemeanor, is scheduled for her pre-trial conference on Aug. 10. She indicated at her arraignment that she plans to represent herself. "I have nothing to hide," she said.

The Valley Courier reached out to the director of Children's Garden Early Learning Center for comment but did not receive a response prior to press time.

Freedom from Judgement and Criticism

Years ago, I was truly one of the most critical and judgmental people I knew. It was my "default" setting.

If I was at the mall or even at church, I could look at someone and immediately make three or four judgments about their clothes, hair, behavior, or family. Or if I walked into someone's home, everything could be absolutely perfect, but somehow I would notice that one corner of wallpaper that was ripped slightly.

I'll admit, judging and criticizing others was something I rather enjoyed doing before God began to change me. However, little by little, He used His Word to begin showing me truth about myself.

I'll never forget one day in particular. I had just finished judging someone and knit-picking them about something in my thoughts, when the Holy Spirit so clearly spoke to my heart and said, "Joyce, you look at everyone else with a magnifying glass, but you look at yourself through rose-colored glasses."

I got the point! The truth is, we can be pretty quick to recognize what's wrong with other people and see all of their issues. However, even though we may have some of the same problems ourselves, we usually have good excuses to justify them.

Look at what Jesus says in Matthew 7:5: "You hypocrite, first take the plank out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye" (NIV).

I love this—it's so practical. Jesus is basically saying, "You love to point out everyone else's faults, but you should really begin with yourself. Until you get yourself straightened out, you can't really even help anyone else!"

We need to forget about what everyone else is or isn't doing, present ourselves before God, and let Him do a work in us. The truth is, the more we allow God to change us, the less we are bothered by the faults of others.

Our circumstances may never be perfect, and the things we don't like about our family, friends, or co-workers may not change, but God can do something even better: He can change us.

These days, if there's something about my husband, Dave, that I think needs to change, I will pray and ask God for help. But even then, my attitude is completely different than it used to be.

Now, I'll pray something like, "Lord, if it's Your will, I ask You to help Dave change in this area. But first, if the problem is really me and not Dave, please show me. Show me if there's anything I need to change."

Sure, there are times when we may need to sit down and talk with a friend or family member about their weaknesses or faults for the health of the relationship, but even then, it should be done with humility and love. Our motive should always be to help them.

Psalm 51:6 (AMPC) says, "Behold, You desire truth in the inner being; make me therefore to know wisdom in my inmost heart."

And Ephesians 4:15 (AMPC) says, "Let our lives lovingly express truth [in all things, speaking truly, dealing truly, living truly]..."

God wants to reveal the truth to us. He desires for us to face anything that is coming between us and Him... things that are holding us back from His good plan and purpose for our lives.

I've learned to ask God on a regular basis, "Show me truth. And help me to face the truth You show me... especially what You show me about myself."

Can I tell you something? All of those days when I was constantly judging and criticizing others... I wasn't happy. First, I wasn't walking in love with people, and I was also sowing seed for others to judge and criticize me.

But even beyond that, there is such freedom when we can learn to "live and let live"—when we can focus on our own growth and change, and leave the spiritual progress of other people up to God.

When I look back at all of the years I pestered Dave and pressured him to change, it's almost comical! And now that I have allowed God to change me, I can truly say that I love and enjoy my husband for who he is...and there's freedom in that.

Let God begin with you. I encourage you to pray, "Lord, please show me the truth about myself. Please change me so I can better help the people around me."

As you do, the Holy Spirit—the "Spirit of Truth"—will start to show you things about yourself...and help you walk in new levels of freedom.

Last Chance Mine receives plaque, opens new tour

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

CREEDE — Nestled in the rock face of a multi-colored boulder hewn from the Last Chance Mine in Creede, now lays a new plaque honoring the work current owner, Jack Morris, has done to preserve and protect the history of the mine. Morris and his crew celebrated the dedication with members of the Ancient and Honorable E. Clampus Vitas or ECV.

The Ancient and Honorable Order of E Clampus Vitus (ECV) is a fraternal organization dedicated to the study and preservation of Western Heritage, particularly the history of the Mother Lode and gold mining regions of the area. There are chapters in California, Nevada and other Western states including Colorado.

The Last Chance Mine was discovered by Ralph Granger in 1891 and the new plaque captures the early days of the mine incased in bronze forever. "Located on a steep slope of Bachelor Mountain above West Willow Creek in Creede, Colorado, the Last Chance Mine was started in 1891 when Ralph Granger and Eric Von Buddenbrock grubstaked a prospector named Theodore Renninger."

As the story goes, Renninger was down to his last $10,000 and was getting ready to leave Creede empty handed when he headed up to the Bachelor area one last time. His burro escaped during this trip and lead Renninger further up the mountain to an outcropping of rock. As he sat on the rock, he struck it with his hammer and found, to his surprise, an apex of Amethyst and silver. Renninger named the aptly named the mine "The Last Chance."

Now, 133 years and hundreds of thousands of pounds of silver later, the Last Chance Mine is a stark reminder of those long-lost days of Colorado mining thanks to the efforts of Morris who counts his blessings every day. The mine has now been transformed into a public attraction, not only giving the public a glimpse into the past but fortifying the future of historical preservation as well.

According to Morris, the mine opened with a new tour this year, bringing guests through a new section of the old mine. "We now have a new tour that takes just over an hour. Guests get to see more of the old tunnels and some amazing things along this tour. We also have three main tour guides which means we can do three tours simultaneously. It's going to be a great season, so come on out and join us," said Morris.

Morris also hinted at another tour that may be coming later this summer. "We have been wanting to do a lunch tour for a long time and we are hoping to open it later this summer. If we do not open this summer, we will have it for folks next year. The tour would include lunch in one of the many caverns inside the mine," said Morris.

Morris and his team are knowledgeable about the history of the area, geological formations, rock and minerals throughout the mine and the region and are master story tellers that captivate attending crowds. The Last Chance Mine is a one-of-a-kind destination and one that should not be missed.

Rio Grande Hospital opens doors to wellness

By LYNDSIE FERRELL

DEL NORTE – Rio Grande Hospital rolled out the red carpet on Saturday and welcomed more than 200 people to its new Wellness Center in Del Norte. The project has been in the works since 2017 and was near and dear to many who work at and support the hospital.

Attendees were greeted as they came in the door by local artist Casey McCoy who did an amazing job on the drywall mural in the main lobby of the building. The piece captured the essence of what the Wellness Center was going to be for the community, bringing to life the image that Rio Grande Hospital CEO Arlene Harms helped to make a reality for the greater Rio Grande County community and beyond.

The ribbon cutting ceremony began with a brief statement from Rio Grande Hospital Board Vice Chair and Secretary Emily Brown and Board President Tyler Off.

“This is such a wonderful event. We want to welcome you here for this really exciting ceremony. The hospital and the board has been talking about this since 2017. This is the result of concepts that Arlene had hearing about but really there was such a big community that came together to make this a reality. Rio Grande Hospital is a community hospital and the whole reason this hospital exists is to give back to the community,” said Brown.

The vision of the Wellness Center was to model health and wellness and offer another resource in the region that serves the community as a means of preventative health care.

Off was the next to speak. He focused on how the project came to be.

“I want to follow up with a little bit about Arlene’s piece in this. She has been a driving force with this even when there was some resistance from the board. We could see the vision, but not as clearly as she could. She turned this into a passion and made this her goal. It is really inspiring what it has become and where we are at today,” Off said.

Harms emulated cultures where long life has become something of a norm in places termed as Blue Zones. These locations span the globe and through the concept of preventative health, wellness and community, people who live in these areas tend to live past 100 years old.

Harms was the next to speak, stating that her vision for the Wellness Center began during a conference in 2016 when keynote speakers addressed the commonalities of Blue Zones.

“Blue Zones are rural, they have lots of community, they have a background and family is very important. I thought to myself, the Valley would be really an easy place to have something like that,” said Harms.

Harms said that through her passion and perseverance, she did not work on this project alone. Funding came from the Rio Grande Hospital Board, private donations, donations from local organizations like the Outcalt Foundation, the LOR Foundations, local banks like the Del Norte Bank and RG Bank and several other organizations and businesses.

Harms thanked all the people who worked on the project, including Owners’ Representative Joe Aldrich, Phipps Construction and Keyes and Lauer Architects, and many others who pulled together to make this a reality. The ribbon cutting ceremony was followed by refreshments and tours of the property.

2024 Colorado Byways awards presented at symposium

CONTRIBUTED

ALAMOSA — Four organizations have been recognized for their outstanding contributions to the state's Scenic and Historic Byways. Colorado's Scenic and Historic Byways Commission presented awards for Protection, Partnerships, Promotion, and Placemaking at this year's Byways Symposium.

The first award, for Protection, was given to Keep It Colorado, for their outstanding stewardship of statewide resources. Their efforts included releasing "Conserving Colorado: A 10-year Roadmap for the Future of Private Land Conservation," a statewide plan to help prioritize preservation efforts. Keep It Colorado focuses on five areas, including a forum, policy advocacy, health and sustainability solutions, coalition-building, and advancing a conservation culture.

Colorado Electric Byways, a collaboration between the Colorado Energy Office, Colorado Department of Transportation, and Colorado Tourism Office, received the Partnership award. These agencies collaborated to engage communities along the Byways to apply for grants to install Electric Vehicle Charging Stations. Once a Byway corridor has met specific guidelines, the team then recommends the Byway be approved by the Byways Commission to be a designated Colorado Electric Byway. Colorado has 17 Electric Byways to promote to electric vehicle owners.

The third award recognizes Promotion, through ColoradoByways.com, to History Colorado and the Colorado Tourism Office. A branded URL has provided a successful landing page on Colorado.com and was funded through the Colorado State Historical Fund, with matching funds and coordination from the CTO. In 2023, the landing page baseline analytics showed a total of 512,328 total views and 194,918 article views. The pages have had robust views, strong engagement, and lots of time spent with the content (one minute+ average time spent per "byway" page).

Free seed packets available for pickup across Colorado

CONTRIBUTED

DENVER — Generation Wild, a movement from Great Outdoors Colorado (GOCO) that seeks to reconnect kids with nature, is calling on Colorado's kids to help Save the Bees this summer.

Generation Wild is distributing over 100,000 free packets of "Wilderflower" seeds — a nod to Generation Wild's friendly spokescreature, Wilder — and is encouraging kids and families to plant the seeds in their backyards. Wilderflower packets are now available for pickup at local libraries and more partner locations across the state.

This initiative aims to make our state more beautiful, more ecologically diverse and more friendly to pollinator friends — all while rewilding Colorado's kids.

"The Western Bumblebee population has declined in Colorado by 72% (CBS News), and we're calling on kids across Colorado to Bee the Change!" said GOCO Executive Director Jackie Miller. "Through this effort, kids will be empowered to improve the environment and learn firsthand what helps our local ecosystems thrive. Most importantly, they'll be outside engaging with nature in a fun and personal way — and Generation Wild knows that 'Kids Grow Better Outside.'"

The Wilderflower mix was developed in partnership with Applewood Seed Co. and packets are now available for pickup at local libraries and designated partner sites including more than 80 Little Free Library boxes.

By distributing 100,000 Wilderflower packets, Generation Wild is providing more than 56 million seeds for planting in every nook and cranny of the state. All seeds are regionally-native to Colorado, which is important for sustaining the living landscape of bees, birds and other animals.

Additionally, Wilderflowers use less water than non-native plants. This is especially important as we strive to conserve Colorado's precious water resources.

"Applewood Seed Co. was excited to jump in and help Generation Wild identify a seed mix that is native to the Colorado region and the American West, containing a diversity of flower species to attract and support Colorado's pollinator populations," stated Norm Poppe, CEO of Applewood Seed Co. "We hope efforts like this continue to educate the public on pollinator con-

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

SLVH recognizes latest DAISY winner Garcia

CONTRIBUTED

ALAMOSA — San Luis Valley Health has another DAISY winner — Ellie Garcia.

Garcia was surprised to be chosen as a DAISY recipient at SLV Health. When the shock wore off a bit, she was all smiles. When she signed the traveling DAISY banner, she commented, “I’m going to sign my name right by Taylor’s because she has been my mentor.”

DAISY awards are given for nursing excellence and can be submitted by co-workers, patients, and family members.

This family member wrote this about Garcia, “My dad came into the Emergency Department in Alamosa with sepsis. The doctor/PA was very pessimistic. However, Ellie was a ray of sunshine. She explained everything she was doing, taught me how to read the screens, and helped my dad feel comfortable with everything that was going on. While we are still not out of the woods on his treatment, we are in a much better place than we might have been. I think Ellie was a big part of that. Her positive outlook and true care for my dad was so apparent and we are truly grateful for her.”

Former DAISY recipient, Kat Cummins, BSN, RN, read about the award and posed for a photo with the traveling banner. Garcia is the second nurse in the SLVH RMC ED to receive this distinguished recognition.

SLVH Chief Nursing Officer, Roberta Bean, RN, read about the history and origin of the award. She also read the nomination form to Garcia.

At the reception, Garcia met many of the nursing leaders and senior team members at SLVH. She was also surprised when her husband showed up to support her. The traditional cinnamon rolls were served and then Garcia jumped up high to place her name on the wall art for DAISY winners in the RMC lobby.

To nominate a nurse at SLVH for the DAISY award, visit online www.sanluisvalleyhealth.org/about-us/daisy-nursing-excellence/.

South Fork Police Department seeking support for National Night Out event

CONTRIBUTED

SOUTH FORK — The South Fork Police Department is having its first-ever National Night Out event on Tuesday, Aug. 6, from 6 to 10 p.m. at Rickel Park in South Fork.

National Night Out is an annual community-building campaign that promotes strong police-community partnerships and neighborhood camaraderie to make neighborhoods safer, more caring places to live and work.

Most communities celebrate National Night Out by hosting block parties, festivals, parades, cookouts and other various community events with safety demonstrations, seminars, youth events, visits from emergency personnel, exhibits and more.

National Project Coordinator, Matt Peskin said, "This is a night for our nation to stand together and promote awareness, safety and neighborhood unity. National Night Out showcases the vital importance of police-community partnerships and citizen involvement. When law enforcement and the community work closely together, some amazing things can happen."

The South Fork Police Department is looking for interested business owners, community groups and individuals to help with South Fork's National Night Out activities.

"We need donations to help pay for the free food, music, and goodies as well as volunteers to help with family-oriented games and activities. Suggested donation amount from businesses is $100," SFPD officials stated.

If you would like to help, email at ojpierce@southfork.org, the South Fork Friends Foundation, southfork-friendsfoundation@gmail.com or the South Fork Chamber of Commerce, Info@southforkchamber.com.

Banners displayed at the event will highlight the names and logos of local business sponsors. A schedule of events, donation form, and volunteer sign-up sheet can be obtained by contacting any of the above groups.

For more information on National Night Out, visit natw.org.

conservation and the need to protect our native bees and butterflies."

According to a new report from the Colorado Department of Natural Resources, 20% of Colorado's bumblebees are now at risk of extinction. Even in a small area like a backyard, planting Wilderflowers can make a positive impact on the local ecosystem and provide native bees a healthy place to live.

Wilderflowers are native Colorado wildflowers, which means they have adapted to our climate and soil, and don't need pesticides to survive. (Pesticides are another key cause of the decline in bee populations.)

With this initiative, Generation Wild is introducing the Bee Team, which will join Wilder out in the community this summer at various events for kids and families. Kids can join the Bee Team movement simply by spreading Wilderflowers in their own backyards and in public areas with approval.

In addition to providing seed packets, Generation Wild highlights several other ways for kids and families to get outdoors and take part in this movement, including:

Pollinator Week (June 17-24) is an annual celebration in support of pollinator health. What better time to spread Wilderflowers than during Pollinator Week? Beginning in July, Colorado families can visit stops on the Pollinator Trail, a Denver Park Trust-led initiative to restore native landscapes throughout Denver, providing resilient habitats where nature can thrive.

Pollinators are responsible for one in every three bites of food we eat. In Colorado, pollinators help produce apples from Paonia, pumpkins from Lafayette, tomatoes from Grand Junction, peaches from Palisade, cantaloupes from Rocky Ford and lots more.

On Generation Wild Day, kids statewide are encouraged to get outside and spread Wilderflowers. Those located in the Denver Metro area are invited to come celebrate at the Children's Museum's Joy Park Free Night from 4:30-8:00 p.m. where they can get free Wilderflower seeds and meet Wilder.

For more information and a statewide directory for where to find seeds in every community, visit generationwild.com/wilderflowers. Tag @GenerationWild on Facebook and Instagram to share your Wilderflowers.

FOURTH

Parade. The shuttle will take riders from the Creede School to Loma Street and will run from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. A full map of the route and other information is available on Facebook under Creede Happenings or people can call the City of Creede at 719-685-2276, for more information.

The theme for this year's parade is simply "Creede." Every year people are welcome to join in the parade and are asked to fill out a parade participation form either at Town Hall or by visiting cityofcreede.colorado.gov. Those wishing to participate must have the participation form in by July 28.

In addition to the family fun events, the parade, a new shuttle service and the vendors, Creede is also famous for its Days of '92 Mining Competition over two full days in Basham Park.

According to the Creede and Mineral County Chamber of Commerce, "It's only fitting that Creede's largest festival of the year centers around preserving the history of mining. Like many Western mining towns, Creede has always had mining competitions. When the area's mines were operational, the events were sponsored by the different mining companies as morale boosters for the miners. With the mines being mostly closed for more than 30 years, the need to preserve Creede's mining past is as important as ever. Creede is and always has been a close community whose residents pride themselves on the town's storied past."

For more than 46 years now, Creede has hosted a two-day competition that draws mining competitors from across the Southwest region. The competitors are actual miners who come to Creede on July 4th each year to battle for the highly coveted prize of "Best Overall Miner of the Year."

On the first day of the competition, the Colorado State Mining Championships features a taxing gamut of events that test the miners' skill levels physically and mentally. The second day of competition, the Days of '92, has been a staple since the 1960s. When the State Mining Championships came to Creede in the late 1970s, the two competitions were melded into one.

The different events - Jack-Leg Drilling, Hand Steeling, Hand Mucking, Spike Driving, and Machine Mucking - are designed to show spectators the daily life of a hard rock miner.

Spectators can enjoy the mining events in the Basham Park arena in downtown Creede. The events are

THIRD

Continued from Page 1 — Following the catfish fry, people can go to the frontage road on the western edge of town and grab a seat for the annual Third of July Parade. What makes this parade fun is that everyone is invited to participate. Sign up with the South Fork Visitor Center to join in on the fun.

After the parade there is just enough time to refresh and then go to the Rickel Rodeo Grounds for the Burris and Sons Rodeo. This event features bucking bulls, mutton busting and all top rodeo events.

Later, the annual firework display is put on by the Town of South Fork and South Fork Fire Rescue. The fireworks are shot off from the Rio Grande Club and Resort and can be seen from almost anywhere in town.

free to the public and a permanent grandstand has been constructed for easy viewing. The events begin both mornings at 9 a.m. and usually last until mid-afternoon.

People can also enjoy a special Fourth of July Rodeo by Burris and Sons, see a wonderful performance at the Creede Repertory Theatre and what has been dubbed the most beautiful firework display in the San Luis Valley that night after dark.

Local achievements are critical, so the fourth award for Placemaking was presented to the Pawnee Pioneer Trails Scenic and Historic Byway's Committee. While work progresses, the Byway has been consistently working with an engaged committee, a strong leader, updated their logo, map, and Corridor Management Plan, as well as hosted the Colorado Byways Photo Exhibit at Overland Trail Museum.

"These awards recognize the dedicated work that our Scenic and Historic Byway organizations and agencies deliver," says Heidi Pankow, current chair, and western Byways representative of the governor-appointed Byways Commission.

The Colorado Byways Symposium 2024 was hosted by the Los Caminos Antiguos Scenic and Historic Byway and the Sangre de Cristo National Heritage Area in the culturally rich and beautiful San Luis Valley.

"It is gratifying to get together and recognize amazing achievements at our 35th anniversary event," said Lenore Bates, Colorado Byways program manager. "We appreciate the award winners, participants, sponsors, national presenters, hosts, and volunteers for making the Colorado Byways Symposium 2024 a success. Furthermore, having our Sister-Byways delegates join us from Scenic Byway Hokkaido, have inspired us until we meet again."

Saguache County recognizes value, dedication of SAR teams

By JOHN WATERS

SAGUACHE COUNTY — In a statement the Saguache County Office of Emergency Management saluted the volunteers of Saguache County Search and Rescue (SAR) for their dedication and professionalism.

“Training to save lives and serve their community on the Sunday afternoon of June 9 showed a true spirit of service. The county thanks REACH Air Med and the crew of Reach 29 for donating their flight time, fuel, and equipment to conduct this training.”

Each year in Colorado, 2,800 SAR volunteers respond to over 3,000 backcountry incidents across the state. According to a 2021 Colorado Parks and Wildlife study, the volunteers spend about $1,500 of their own money on gas, equipment, and other related expenses

Since 2023, Colorado residents can get a $29 Keep Colorado Wild Pass when registering a car, motorcycle, recreation vehicle, or light truck through the Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV). The $29 pass is included in your registration total unless you choose to opt out. It is estimated the pass will bring over $41 million in revenue to Colorado Parks and Wildlife (CPW), $2.5 million to SAR teams, and about $1 million to the Colorado Avalanche Information Center.

According to CPW, “Backcountry Safety - Your pass supports the volunteer and equipment needs of search and rescue professionals across Colorado and avalanche safety programs through the Colorado Avalanche Information Center. Because of your support and the tremendous generosity of our search and rescue responders, Colorado will be a safer place to play.”

Just south of Saguache County, the men and women of the Alamosa Volunteer Search and Rescue (AVSAR) are ready to respond to backcountry emergencies in the county. The unofficial motto of the group is, “Our purpose is to coordinate and conduct search and rescue operations in Alamosa County so that others may live.” They can be reached at www.avsar.us.

Staff recognized with Boots on the Ground Awards

By MATTHEW TULLEY

ALAMOSA — The San Luis Valley Joint Interagency Oversight Group (SLV Joint IOG) is pleased to honor partner agency staff members with the “Boots on the Ground” award in recognition of employees who exemplify the spirit of cross-systems collaboration.

The award recipients for June 2024 are Cristalray Dominguez and Jamie Dominguez of Shooting Stars Cultural and Leadership Center. Both are co-founders of center and have passion to restore the generational trauma of Alamosa, CO. They were nominated by Don Hanna of PALS (Positive Activities Lead to Success).

“Jamie and Cristal have been incredible community advocates for years. Their hearts for the community, especially Southside residents and the Latino community is palpable. Again and again, they have gone above and beyond to lift up youth and families who too often are overlooked or fall through the cracks. Their sensitivity to the culture of the families and youth they are working with, their ability to share their lived experience, and their deep understanding of the needs of the community, make their efforts particularly valuable and effective. They both serve as shining lights for Alamosa. We are incredibly lucky to have them and the work that they are doing,” from the nomination written by Don Hanna.

Established in 2008 and funded through Colorado House Bill 1451, the SLV Joint IOG currently includes Alamosa and Saguache Counties. Over twenty agencies participate including the 12th Judicial District, Probation Department, the Colorado Youth Detention Continuum program, Alamosa County Department of Human Services, Alamosa County Public Health Department, Alamosa School District, Center for Restorative Programs, Colorado Division of Youth Services, Colorado Health Partnerships, Crossroads’ Turning Points, San Luis Valley Early Childhood Council, San Luis Valley Behavioral Health Group, San Luis Valley BOCES, Signal Behavioral Health Network, Health Colorado Inc., Boys and Girls Club of the San Luis Valley, Saguache County Department of Social Services, Saguache County Public Health Department, Center School District, Moffat Consolidated School District, Mountain Valley School District, Valley-Wide Health Systems Inc., La Puente Inc., Tu Casa, and Teri Sisneros, Family Representative for the SLV Joint IOG.

The goal of the SLV Joint IOG is to develop collaborative approaches for the provision of individualized, strength-based, family-centered, and culturally sensitive services to children, youth, and families. The SLV Joint IOG works to increase the quality and appropriateness of services while encouraging cost sharing and reducing service duplication and fragmentation.

Its easy-adjust height system allows it to be the perfect fit/height for anyone from 4’10” to 6’1” and supports up to 300 pounds. Consumer How To CHOOSE THE RIGHT UNIVERSITY FOR YOU

Tips for Finding the Right University

While a fresh crop of high school graduates is set to walk across the stage at high school commencement ceremonies across the country, for the many students about to become high school seniors now is an important time to start thinking ahead. That's because the college application process is about to begin.

Choosing a college is a big choice for parents and children alike. For parents, it's a financial commitment they've likely been preparing to make since the day their child was born. For kids, it's more than likely the biggest decision they've ever faced. Before the process begins, consider the following tips for choosing the right college.

- Consider a possible career path. Most 18-year-olds have no idea what they might want to do for a living, and that's perfectly fine. When looking at colleges, kids should look at all of the programs they offer, and make a list of the programs that most interest them. This isn't choosing a career (as many students change majors while in college), but rather doing some preliminary research about what you may want to study. For students who really have no idea what they might want to study, consider applying to a larger state school, as those often offer the most programs of study, meaning a student won't have to transfer once they do decide on a course of study.

- Make a list of what you want out of a school. For some kids, going to school too far away from home is a frightening prospect, while others might embrace the freedom. Also, schools vary greatly depending on the size of the college. Some students might prefer a smaller, more close-knit college community, while others might prefer a larger school with more students. Students should make a list of what their personal preferences are and seek out schools that match those preferences.

- Discuss finances. Thanks to the ever-increasing costs associated with higher education, finances figure heavily into the college decision. While parents would love to send their children to their first choices, sometimes finances mandate otherwise. Parents and children should discuss how much they can afford to spend, and how realistic some college choices might be. While financial aid and scholarships are options, they aren't always enough to cover tuition and room and board costs. Rather than risk a heated argument when it comes time to make a decision, parents and children should get on the same page with respect to what's affordable as soon as possible.

Most high school students dread junior year. Not only is it one of the most difficult, but it is also one of the most important years when it comes to applying to colleges. Students have to take the SATs, visit schools and make other college-related decisions. With so many colleges out there, how do you know which ones to apply to, let alone know which one to finally go to? Believe it or not, you can make these decisions stress free. Here are a few simple steps for kids to follow that will make the whole process easier on everyone.

- Write down reasons for wanting to attend college. Though your reasons can be to become a doctor or study art history, they don't have to be limited to getting a degree. You might want to live in another part of the country or be in a community with a lot of artists. Then, prioritize the list of criteria. (Revise the list a few times during your search since your priorities are likely to change.) By deciding what's important to you and what takes priority, it will be easier to find schools that interest you.

And if this still sounds overwhelming, many students also factor in school size, location, academic philosophy, courses of study, reputation and extracurricular activities when applying to various colleges.

- Make a list of ideal colleges. Once you've established why you want to go to a school, try to find schools that offer what you're looking for. Michael Fleischner, vice president of college guide publisher Peterson's, says you should apply to between four and seven schools. You want to name at least seven schools, preferably more. Place schools that meet all of your criteria towards the top of the list and colleges that only have one towards the bottom. However, don't disregard the schools at the bottom of the list. What's important to you might change as you go through the process. If this school has a great architecture program and is within your price range (we'll get to that in a minute), it might end up being a better possibility than you first thought.

- Get information. See as many colleges as you can in person. Though a cafeteria might look really fun and full of life in an online virtual tour, you'll never get its real vibe until you have lunch there. While at the school, take advantage of it as much as you can. Take a tour of the campus, ask current students questions, and sit in on a class. Some schools even offer a chance to stay in the dorms with a current student — a great opportunity to experience dormitory life firsthand.

Of course, if it's completely unrealistic to head cross-country just to visit one campus, a virtual tour is better than nothing. Also, many university Web sites include student pages and blogs by current and former students which can provide insight into campus life. Read the college paper online to get in the loop on campus happenings and issues. On top of that, there are numerous books and magazines that describe campuses and schools. College fairs enable you to pick up information and chat with alumni. And local alumni branches can put you in touch with previous students.

- Think about money. Figure out who will be paying for college. If you, the parent, will be paying for everything, establish how much you are willing to spend. If the student will be responsible for part of or all of his educational costs, he or she will need to figure out how to pay for it, such as taking out student loans, applying for financial aid or working a part-time job while going to school. Whoever is responsible, it's important to get an early start on researching financial aid since federal forms are usually due in January of a student's senior year in high school. In the end, be realistic about how much you want to spend on education. But if you love one school that is out of your price range, apply to it anyway. Check out fafa.ed.gov for information on federal loans and college Web sites for financial aid information on individual schools. You might be surprised by how much merit-based financial aid you may receive and end up paying less than you would if you attend a state school.

- Narrow down your options. Now that it's time to figure out where you'll actually apply, take a look back at your initial list and assess if your priorities are still the same. If they're not, juggle your list as well as the ranking of schools based on your criteria. Also, you might be able to eliminate some schools based on what you found out when you were gathering information. For example, if you want to go to a school with a football team and found out that George Washington University doesn't have one, it would be a waste of money and time to apply there.

Now is also the time to assess how your academic standing matches up with that of the university and how your financial situation factors in. Keeping all of these things in mind, you should now be able to select four to seven schools that you would like to apply to. According to CNN Money, it's a good idea to choose both an academic and financial "safety" school. That way, even before your acceptance letters and financial aid packages are sent out, you will not only have a school on your list that you will most likely get into, but it will be one that you can afford as well.

- Reevaluate acceptance schools. After the applications were sent in and you've received your acceptance letters, there's one more big step: Deciding on which school to attend. Reevaluate the schools you were accepted to based on your list of priorities and financial situation, considering how much financial aid you've received, student loans, and whether you'll have to work during school. If you can, revisit the colleges. It might sound silly, but it's different looking at a school once you've been accepted, and a second visit can answer any last-minute questions or concerns.

Whatever college you finally decide on, make sure that it is your decision and that you feel good about it. Don't go to a school just because a friend, boyfriend/girlfriend or even a parent wants you to go there. If you listen to your inner voice, you'll make the right decision for you.

What you should know about peripheral artery disease and chronic wounds

RIO GRANDE HOSPITAL — Peripheral artery disease (PAD) is a common circulatory problem stemming from fatty build-up, or atherosclerosis, in the arteries. Also known as peripheral vascular disease (PVD), PAD causes blood vessels in the limbs to narrow, significantly reducing blood flow and sometimes causing the development of a wound that is slow to heal. If left untreated, these wounds can become infected and put patients at risk of sepsis, gangrene, or amputation.

PAD affects over 8.5 million U.S. adults and over 113 million people worldwide. Risk factors include aging, diabetes, obesity, and smoking. Symptoms include pain, cramping, discoloration, and swelling of the legs or feet. If you've been diagnosed with PAD and have a chronic wound that hasn't healed within 30 days, it's very important to have it evaluated and treated in order to save the limb and control the disease.

Types of Chronic Wounds in Patients with PAD/PVD:

Here are the three of the most common non-healing wounds for patients with PAD/PVD:

Arterial ulcers: Also referred to as ischemic ulcers, these are caused by damaged or blocked arteries which are unable to get nutrient-rich blood and oxygen to the lower extremities. This causes an ulcer or a break in the skin. Arterial ulcers are typically located on the foot or ankle.

Diabetic neuropathic ulcers: Many patients with peripheral artery disease also suffer from diabetes. Approximately 25 percent of individuals with diabetes will experience a non-healing open wound or diabetic ulcer caused by pressure or trauma on the lower limbs or feet. Because diabetic neuropathy causes a loss of sensation in the limbs, many patients don't know they have an ulcer until it becomes infected.

Venous ulcers: When patients have poor blood circulation in the legs, the blood can back up and "pool" in the veins, causing an ulcer. This can cause a painful open wound and edema, or swelling, on the ankles or lower leg.

Tips to Manage PAD:

With lifestyle changes and a commitment to treatment, PAD can be managed. Here are eight tips to help:

Lose weight (if overweight) or maintain your current healthy weight

Maintain a structured exercise program

Eat a well-balanced, heart-healthy diet

Control diabetes and high blood pressure

Stop smoking

Limit alcohol intake

Avoid standing for long periods of time

Wear compression wraps/stockings

At Rio Grande Hospital's Wound Care, we're using advanced wound care modalities and hyperbaric oxygen therapy to treat non-healing wounds caused by peripheral artery disease, including venous and arterial ulcers. Chronic wounds can be diagnosed, effectively managed and healed, oftentimes within eight weeks. If you or someone you love has a non-healing wound, give us a call at 719-657-3277 for more information and assistance.

eSports is an explosive industry encompassing the world of competitive, organized video gaming representing the next generation of sports and entertainment. Trinidad State College is excited to present the first collegiate eSports team in Colorado at the community college level and part of the National Junior College Athletic Association eSports (NJCAA). Equivalent to traditional sports offered at Trinidad State, such as cross country and softball, eSports offers digital gaming experiences to promote teamwork, social skills, strategic thinking and planning, managing success and failure, maintaining academic standing, and promoting pro-social values. Competition is fierce, and the Trinidad State team will be playing in tournaments with colleges from around the country for prizes and championships. Games will be streamed with a live streaming service called Twitch, in addition to opening up the arena for in-person spectators during competitions.

In the fall of 2021, eSports players will be invited to play in Trinidad State's new, state-of-the-art gaming area. The well-equipped eSports arena will be furnished with heavy-duty gaming computers, ergonomic furniture, and a comfortable atmosphere to enhance the players' gaming experience. eSports is a growing industry; the U.S. experienced an increase of 118 percent in full-time jobs in 2019, and the eSports market is on track to surpass $1.5 billion by 2023. Players can also begin to prepare for a career in eSports.
