CPW applauds USFWS decision on Rio Grande chub, sucker

CONTRIBUTED

MONTE VISTA — Generations of Colorado Parks and Wildlife staff were rewarded for their work this month as the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced its decision to not list the Rio Grande chub and Rio Grande sucker under the Endangered Species Act (ESA).

Colorado Parks and Wildlife commended the USFWS for its June 17 decision that acknowledged critical partnerships that have ensured neither species is in danger of extinction or likely to become in danger of extinction.

“CPW staff have worked tirelessly for decades to ensure Rio Grande chub and sucker continue to persist,” said Matt Nicholl, CPW’s Assistant Director of Aquatic Wildlife. “The responsibility of successfully managing these two species deeply aligns with our mission, and we are thankful for the continued support and collaboration with all of the partners who have made this announcement possible.”

CPW along with several agencies and species experts consulted with the USFWS during its status review for each of the cool-water fish species that occur within the Rio Grande Basin.

For several decades, CPW and multiple partners including federal agencies, states, tribes, municipalities, non-government organizations and private landowners have worked to conserve the two species and implement long-term management actions to ensure their persistence.

“CPW has provided steady leadership in the recovery of Rio Grande sucker and Rio Grande chub, though this progress has always been mediated through strong partnerships,” said CPW Native Species Aquatic Biologist Daniel Cammack. “Through a shared commitment to execute the meaningful and collaborative conservation actions, the future for these important native species is bright.”

Historic accounts suggest that Rio Grande chub and sucker were some of the most common fishes in the Rio Grande and its tributaries, though declines were evident as early as the late 1800s because of dewatering, habitat degradation and invasive species establishment. Recognizing significant declines, CPW initiated conservation efforts of these species in the early 1990s.

Work included translocations to establish new populations, broodstock development, genetic testing, invasive species removal and habitat protection and enhancement. CPW identified both species as Tier I Species of Greatest Conservation Need under the State Wildlife Action Plan and designated Rio Grande sucker as State Endangered and Rio Grande chub as a Species of Special Concern.

Over the past three decades, CPW and its partners have completed five chemical reclamations and numerous habitat and connectivity enhancements related to these species. The CPW Native Aquatic Species Restoration Facility (NASRF) in Alamosa has served a critical role in recovering both fishes, innovating novel culture techniques and writing the book for production methods of these fish.

“Since 2002, NASRF has stocked nearly 450,000 Rio Grande suckers in 20 waters and 1.2 million Rio Grande chub in 11 waters,” Cammack said.

CPW maintains two Rio Grande sucker broodstocks and seven Rio Grande chub broodstocks to sufficiently represent genetic diversity within Colorado and has produced fish for the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish to support repatriation projects for the partner agency.

Cammack said CPW’s aquatic biologists have worked tirelessly to monitor and conserve aboriginal populations and to identify suitable habitats for reintroduction efforts.

“Synergy between field biologists and hatchery staff has translated to reestablishing multiple populations of both species in the San Luis Valley,” he said. “This progress is especially evident for Rio Grande sucker, as there were only two self-sustaining populations of this species in Colorado by the early 2000s. Now, there are eight established sucker populations with multiple other reintroduction sites showing great promise.”

Following the 2014 petition to list these species under the ESA, CPW coalesced with multiple state and federal agencies, tribal entities and other stakeholders throughout the species’ range to form the Rio Grande Chub and Sucker Conservation Team.

In 2018, a Conservation Agreement with 12 signatories, including CPW, was finalized to implement carefully coordinated conservation measures for both species to mitigate the threats that could eventually lead to their federal listing under the ESA. The conservation team collaborated on a Conservation Strategy for each species, which was adopted in 2021.

Over the past two years, species experts from CPW have served on the Technical Advisory Team to support USFWS in developing a Species Status Assessment (SSA) for each species. This included providing thorough input on early drafts of the SSA and enhancing the scientific accuracy and defensibility of this document to support an informed listing decision.

“CPW biologists played a significant role in the writing of this strategy, which details specific conservation actions and collaborative approaches that will reduce and/or eliminate threats to the long-term viability of both species,” Cammack said. “Following this announcement from the USFWS, we look forward to continued partnership with the conservation team as we continue to advance conservation goals for these unique species.”

Newcomer’s Guide to Gardening in the San Luis Valley

CSU Extension - Colorado Master Gardener

SAN LUIS VALLEY — We have some crazy tough plants here in the Valley, and surprisingly some of them are roses.

There’s a decades old rose bush growing in the piled up dirt on the side of our dirt road. It collects tumbleweeds all winter and the county regularly buries the lower half of it when they grade the road. Despite this complete mistreatment, it covers itself in brilliant orange-red and yellow blossoms every June. Growing nearby it, I found a smaller, similar rose bush hidden under a pile of tumbleweeds, a two-stemmed beauty with arching branches draped against the split rail fence, each branch decorated with multiple orange-red blossoms. Let me introduce you to the Austrian copper rose, a gorgeous, rugged, “species rose” with a no nonsense, can-do demeanor.

Austrian copper rose is a variant of the non-native Rosa foetida species rose. It often grows as a dense shrub 4-6 feet tall and wide, although I’ve found several growing as smaller 2 to 4 stem bushes. Its blossoms are usually a beautiful orange-red with yellow centers, but occasionally it has all yellow flowers or a mix of both.

Unlike roses that are bred for particular attributes, species roses like the Austrian copper rose develop in the wild. When grown in the garden, they are typically low-maintenance plants that choose to flower even when they’ve been ignored. Species roses often bloom only once for a few weeks in spring or summer, but some have a second lesser bloom in the fall. They often produce beautiful rose hips, the fruit of the rose, that provide fall and winter color as well as food for wildlife.

In addition to the Austrian copper rose, I’ve seen two other sturdy species roses growing in the valley. One is the Persian yellow rose, another variant of Rosa foetida. It was lighting up multiple gardens in Alamosa last month. Historically, the Persian yellow rose has been used to develop new rose cultivars because of its vivid yellow color. Once you see it, you’ll understand why. It is stunning! It grows as a large shrub 4 to 7 feet tall and when it flowers in its one heavy flush, it is covered with vibrant yellow blossoms in the most spectacular show of color.

The Valley also has Rosa woodsii, or Woods’ rose (also called wild rose and mountain rose). This species rose is one of Colorado’s native roses. It has delicate blossoms ranging in color from pale pink to fuchsia. After its blossoms fade, it produces beautiful deep red rose hips that persist into winter.

You’ll find Woods’ rose growing in the mountains, along streams, and along our country roads where it too tolerates getting dirt piled on it by the road graders. It will grow in full sun or part shade, and is very drought tolerant. It loves to spread but is containable. Mine lives on the sunny east side of the house where it is bounded by a walkway. Woods’ rose can grow as a large shrub measuring 3 to 6 feet tall, but my roses grow as multiple, individual, straight and curved stems no more than a foot high. They gave us a beautiful show of pink blossoms for much of May.

I’d love to hear what roses you’ve grown here in the valley. Have you had luck with other rose varieties? Please share your experiences and your photos! Send me an email at slvgardening@gmail.com.

OPINION & EDITORIAL

Rescue on the Rio

As most of you know, Miss Trixie and I have been driving for Narrow Ridge Outdoors/ Mountain Man Rafting for several years now. It's a fun endeavor, we get to meet all kinds of great people, and we work with a bunch of stellar youngsters, which is always invigorating.

Just this past week we were busy shuttling vans down to pick up rafters who were enjoying a great day on the river when someone flagged us down on the highway. She had seen our logo on the van and said, "I am so glad to see you as there are some people who have fallen in the river and need help badly."

Disclaimer: what follows may or may not be an accurate reflection of events.

So, we kicked into our rescue training mode and quickly found these poor folk clinging to rocks in the raging rapids, all life about to ebb from their cold bodies. Trixie remarked that they were a lot "older" people and I think she said that since she herself is starting to add on years like a runaway abacus.

But anyway, Ole Dutch and Miss Trixie assessed the situation and realized that the kayakers were close to unconsciousness so we both dove into the torrent disregarding the threat to life and limb of our own bodies. All I could think about as I swam out to them was poor little Cooper being an orphan if I did not live through the ordeal.

A few quick powerful strokes brought us to them and while Ole Dutch secured a firm grip on the gentleman and began an exit to the shore, Miss Trixie had quite another predicament to face. For you see the poor woman lost her grip just as Miss Trixie got to her and slipped away into the raging torrent. She made one last grab for the drowning woman and miraculously came up with a handful of pigtailed with which she was able to tow her to shore.

As I write this, Miss Trixie's eyes have gone to rolling around in her head like marbles. I have offered her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but she has refused to be rescued thus far.

Back to my story, even though we were now safe and sound on the bank, the poor kayakers were in miserable condition having been subjected to the icy water of the river for many hours. Fighting near hypothermia ourselves we nonetheless were able to carry these folks to the warm van and get them inside. We then began rubbing their extremities trying to keep them from going into shock or having a heart attack and certain death.

Miss Trixie saw that the woman was in really bad shape and given her history of survival on Mt. Everest, she grabbed Cooper and like a mini hot water bottle, thrust him down against the womans ample bosom.

Gathering every ounce of reserve strength ourselves, we were finally able to drive back down the valley and deliver them into safe hands for further treatment and we counted our lucky stars that it was not worse than it had been.

Both Miss Trixie and I were exhausted beyond description, but we had rafters and fishermen depending on our delivery of vehicles, so we just changed clothes and hit the road. Ole Dutch had to "man up" and Miss Trixie put on "her big girl panties" in order to complete our jobs and not disappoint those depending on us that day.

You never know each day when you begin how the Lord will use you to help others I guess, and this day was no different in that regard. Being in the right place at the right time is sometimes all it takes to be a blessing to someone else.

Miss Trixie is now full-on frowning at me over the description of the rescue and wants me to clarify some parts of it before I submit it for publication.

Well, in fact a woman did flag us down and knew that Mountain Man has a reputation of rescuing folks in dire straits, that's true. And two people did fall out of their kayak and in fact, they were very cold and in danger of hypothermia when we found them. Another truth. And we did take them back to town to safety and warm clothes.

But the rest of the story is what they call Literary License and makes it a lot more interesting at least. (Plus, do not fear, Cooper was not harmed in any way.)

And if you enjoyed that one you should hear the one about Little Sarah and the grave up on Del Norte Peak. It's a dandy.

As Miss Trixie always says, Ole Dutch never lets the truth get in the way of a good story.

Sharing memories

The following article by Tom L. Thompson, titled The Sign of Memories, was first published in The Last Word column of the Rocky Mountaineers Rendezvous, a newsletter for a great group of Forest Service employees from the Rocky Mountain Region, many of them long retired. I had the honor of providing the photograph used for that story.

While I am a bit younger than Mr. Thompson, I share the same sentiment and warm feeling as I pass the National Forest signs across the country. Thompson served as the Deputy Regional Forester of the Rocky Mountain Region for 12 years and before that, as the Forest Supervisor on the Siuslaw NF in the Pacific Northwest Region. He retired as the Deputy Chief with responsibility for the National Forests and Grasslands.

The Sign of Memories

The Rio Grande National Forest Sign on Highway 149, just north of South Fork.

As you travel across the country and come upon a National Forest or Grassland entrance sign, how does it make you feel? Especially, if it is a well-maintained sign, I just get this warm feeling of being home where I belong. In a sense it is a feeling of welcome, of security, of pride, of gratitude, and of just plain old comfort.

I have visited every national forest and grassland sometime in my 78 plus years, and from as early as I can remember to now, I have always had that same special feeling knowing that the Forest Service entrance sign signals a very special place ahead and it belongs to all of us. It is not for sale, and it will always be there, just for us.

In reflecting back on my early years, I think to a large degree it was a Forest Service sign that probably led me to a career in the Forest Service. Growing up on the high plains of southeastern Colorado it was quite a distance to the mountains of Colorado. On a very clear day if you were on a high point, you could sometimes make out the tops of the mountains off to the west. Every year our family set out on what I considered to be the most special week of the year and went off to the mountains. Like so many families the discovery of the National Forests started at the end of World War II.

Toward the end of World War II in 1945, my dad, who had worked at the Pueblo Air Base all through the war, was treated to a weekend fishing trip on the upper Rio Grande

River by a grateful doctor who was indebted to my dad for all the neighbor-in-the-apartment next door mechanic work he had done on the doctor's Buick during the war years. With this experience my dad came to love the Rio Grande country and thus began what became a lifetime of annual visits back there.

I don't have vivid memories of my first trip there in 1946 at six months of age, but I do have many, many wonderful memories of those early great adventures for our family on the Rio Grande National Forest as I grew up. The log cabins where we stayed were built in 1926 and surrounded by National Forest. The cabins were one room with two beds, a wood stove, a table, a bench and a few chairs, no electricity, no running water, and the outhouse was shared with a few other cabins. There was fishing right out the door, clear crisp air at over 10,000 feet elevation, views of elk on the slopes every evening, and lots of space with aspen and spruce forests in every direction.

Every year when we would make our annual trip there, I so much looked forward to coming to the Rio Grande entrance sign because we were within a couple hours of being at the cabin. The dirt road up to the cabins was a very rough road, not paved like today, but that made it even more special because it was a "trip".

So early on I had a love for the Forest Service and at age 10, with the help of borrowed stencils from my uncle I made an official Forest Service sign for my room out of 4 x 11-inch piece of 3/8 inch plywood and even drew the Forest Service shield on the lower right corner. In looking at this sign today and the craftsmanship, the artistic touch, and the layout, I can see why I never did all that well in art classes. Even so the sign gave my room in our basement an identity and reminded me of a place off to the west where I yearned to be.

My own family continued with this tradition of making at least one trip to the Rio Grande as best we could over the years. In the mid-nineties we decided to begin using cabins down river a way that had electricity and indoor plumbing. There is a special spot on the ridge up near Spring Creek Pass in an open parklike meadow where I sat with my grandfather probably seventy years ago. I have sat there with my dad, my mom, my sons and daughter, and now my grandchildren and every time I come to the Forest entrance sign for the Rio Grande there are memories, but there is also so much gratitude that these places are still there and will be there for my grandchildren's sons and daughters and their grandchildren.

Democratic Congressional District 3 candidate Adam Frisch.

Republican Congressional District 3 candidate Jeff Hurd.

Congressional district race may be a contest based on issues

NEWS ANALYSIS BY PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — In Congressional District 3, (CD3) candidates Republican Jeff Hurd, and Democrat Adam Frisch will face off in the November general election. They won the primary election held on June 25.

With former incumbent Congresswoman Lauren Boebert deciding to switch Congressional Districts from CD3 to CD4 earlier this year, the primary race for the Republican nomination was wide open, drawing a field of six candidates.

The top two Republican contenders in the primary race were Ron Hanks, a former lawmaker who positioned himself as an ardent supporter of Donald Trump, and Jeff Hurd, a political newcomer and attorney from Grand Junction.

Hurd had declared his intention to challenge Boebert before she switched districts. That announcement garnered endorsements from some of the top “establishment” Republicans in the state, as many felt that Boebert’s antics were no longer viewed favorably by many in her district.

While the primary race between Hurd and Hanks was, at times, expected to be somewhat close, by the end of Tuesday night, it was called for Hurd who came in at the end leading Hanks by 14 percentage points.

On the other side of the aisle, Democrat Adam Frisch was the sole candidate to run for the seat. Frisch announced his campaign within days of former opponent being sworn into office for her second term, and Frisch has been on the campaign trail, literally every week, since then.

Once a race that even the pundits didn’t pay attention to, CD3 became highly competitive in the last election, specifically due to Frisch, himself a political newcomer at the time, coming within 546 votes of taking Boebert’s seat in Congress.

The seat is now viewed as one that may determine the majority in the House of Representatives, which makes it even more important.

In a brief interview with the Valley Courier Hurd on Thursday morning, said, “I’m going to work hard to get the [Republican] party united” He continued, “I’m going to work hard to earn every vote from Republicans but also unaffiliated and maybe even some Democrats.

“My priorities are those things that are most important to voters. The cost of living, the cost of housing and the price of a gallon of gas.”

That was a bit of a switch from February when, speaking on a non-partisan show called Action 22, Hurd had listed security at the border as the number one priority.

Hurd was also quoted by Colorado Public Radio as saying he was focused on rural areas but he has since expanded his sites.

“I’m going to work for voters everywhere, from people in the cities to small towns, families and small businesses, farmers, ranchers and people like employees of the power company in Craig where workers are looking at losing their jobs. And I know I have to earn every single vote.

“I think voters are wanting someone to work more than to shout, and I’m a person who can do that. I believe in what I’m doing and in trying to be the kind of representative that I would want.”

After the results of the primary were known, Adam Frisch’s campaign issued the following statement.

“First, I would like to thank all the candidates who ran in CD3’s Republican primary and personally congratulate Jeff Hurd. My hat always goes off to anyone who is willing to stand up to represent their country and community. It’s unfortunate, however, that both political parties often cater to the extremes and prioritize party loyalty over the best interests of the country. It’s why I entered this race. I won’t be a yes man for either party. I’ll be an independent voice of reason for rural Colorado to cut inflation, secure the border and protect a woman’s freedom to make her own health care decisions.”

Frisch then focused in more closely on Hurd.

“The last thing our district needs is another corporate lawyer funded by corporate PAC money. My presumptive opponent won’t have the backbone to stand up to Washington interests. He will choose a federal abortion ban over trusting the women of CD3 to have the freedom to make their own health care choices and he threatens one of our most precious resources: water. One of Hurd’s biggest backers is actively working to take San Luis Valley’s water to the Denver metro area,” said Frisch.

Frisch is referring to former Colorado Governor Bill Owens, one of the primary investors in Renewable Water Resources (RWR) a scheme to export water out of the San Luis Valley.

Bond for Corral set at $5M

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — After allegedly shooting three men, one of whom died, and leading multiple law enforcement agencies on a 14-hour manhunt, Alamosa resident Henry Corral is being held in the Alamosa County Detention Center on a $5 million bond to be paid in cash only.

Bond was set by Alamosa County Judge Jason Kelly, presiding, when Corral, 44, appeared in court Wednesday afternoon related to his arrest for one count of murder in the first degree and two counts of criminal attempted murder in the first degree plus aggravated robbery, tampering with evidence and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

District Attorney Anne Kelly addressed the court, stating that Corral had “executed one man and tried to execute two others”, was going to be charged as a “habitual criminal” and poses “an extreme danger to the community.”

She then provided the court with a summary of Corral’s criminal history. Corral has been charged with murder twice before - once in 2000 and a second time in 2016. In both cases, he pleaded guilty to lesser charges of manslaughter and felony menacing, respectively. After he was released from the Department of Corrections, “He tried to kill his girlfriend by strangling her,” Kelly said.

Kelly requested the court set bond at $10 million, to be paid in cash, as a means of assuring that Corral would remain in jail and the community “would be protected.”

Defense counsel James Waldo viewed the amount as excessive, saying, “That might as well be an imaginary number.” He cited two other clients he was representing who were involved in a “shoot-out” and their bond was $3 million with a $300,000 cash surety.

Judge Kelly said he had reviewed Corral’s criminal history and “the charges are as serious as they can be.”

He went on to say, “We want to assure the public is protected,” and set bail at $5 million, cash.

According to an arrest affidavit received from the court, officers with the Alamosa Police Department were dispatched to the Sunset Inn, 1310 W. 8th Ave., on a report of shots fired shortly after 2 a.m. on the morning of Sunday, June 23. Dispatch said the caller reported two men had been shot. Upon arriving, APD officers found two men in a room, one of whom had been shot in the head while sitting in a chair. The victim, later identified as Aurelio Piña, 61, died from his wounds. The second victim, 37-year-old Gabriel Piña, had been shot twice. He was identified as Aurelio’s son.

The arrest affidavit states that an APD officer, attending to Gabriel Piña, asked him who shot him. Piña named Corral as the shooter.

The affidavit further states that “it’s important to note that Corral’s long-time girlfriend... was later located in the hotel, as well.”

After allegedly shooting Gabriel and his father, Corral left the room and encountered Manuel Flores, 43, in the hallway. Corral then allegedly shot Flores five times, including in various parts of his body and face.

APD learned that Corral reportedly ran out of the building and, driving a Chevrolet Avalanche, fled west on 8th Street into a more rural part of the area, driving so fast that, according to the document, he “flew over two irrigation ditches” and landed, getting stuck in a field near County Road 106 and CR12 South.

When a resident nearby attempted to help, Corral tried to hijack the resident’s truck and, when he was unsuccessful, set the Avalanche on fire and fled on foot.

Authorities believe Corral did that to destroy evidence, specifically a cell phone and weapon, Kelly said.

Courtesy photo Henry Corral, 44, is being held on $5 million bond in the Alamosa County Detention Center for allegedly fatally shooting one man and critically injuring two others.

When Alamosa Fire Department and Colorado State Patrol were dispatched to a crash in the area, they determined the vehicle belonged to Corral, leading law enforcement to believe he was still in the area. That initiated an intensive search that involved more than 40 officers as well as CBI and the U.S. Marshals.

After a report from a citizen who spotted someone matching Corral’s description, he was taken into custody at about 6:30 p.m. Sunday night.

Although no motive for the shooting is stated in the affidavit, it is noted that Flores had recently been released from prison, was visiting from Denver and was a childhood friend of Corral’s girlfriend. The two had been spending time together.

The affidavit also states that Corral’s girlfriend said they had been discussing separation or divorce.

Unrelated to the arrest affidavit, the Alamosa County Sheriff’s Office has confirmed that both Corral and his girlfriend had been arrested for domestic violence on June 11.

Corral’s next court appearance is scheduled for July 2 at 1:30 p.m.

San Juan Sports celebrates 50 years of adventure in Creede

By LYNDISIE FERRELL
CREEDE — San Juan Sports is celebrating its 50th year in business on July 13. The store will be closing the section of Main Street in front of the store and having a giant street party to celebrate 50 years of adventure and a lifetime of service to Creede.

George Ameel started the business as “San Juan Hiking” in June 1974. It was located where the Creede Olive Oil company is now. When it first opened, the business focused on hiking gear and custom T-shirts but over the years it expanded to include some apparel and in 1980 moved to its current location, at 102 S. Main St., and changed its name to San Juan Sports.

San Juan Sports became a staple of Creede, and a place people could go for all their outdoor adventure needs. Their slogan quickly became, “Before you go out, come in!”

Ameel was a popular local resident and often was seen at the 4th of July parades, skate-skiing down Main Steet or working in the community hosting mushroom forays and wildflower workshops.

In 2006, Ameel began considering selling the store and in 2011 Amy and Michael McNeil bought it from him, and his wife Charlene, in February of that year. In April 2011, San Juan Sports went under construction to remodel the look and layout of the store.

The new rustic and eclectic look gave San Juan Sports a special welcoming feeling when customers walked in the doors. Soon, a new tradition would begin where folks that bought new shoes would toss their old ones over the sign out front and this soon became a permanent part of the store’s history.

In 2018, the owners busted through the south wall and extended San Juan Sports to the space south of the original building, which had been a dream of Ameel’s for a long time. In 2020, Amy and Michael’s dream became a reality when they opened Sunnyside Bar, a beer and wine bar located inside San Juan Sports.

Sunnyside Bar got its name from a dairy topper from the Sunnyside Dairy that was found under the floor while running plumbing for the bar. Since it opened, Sunnyside has become “Creede’s Living Room” hosting karaoke, game nights, sports events, live music, town events and even birthday parties.

In September of 2023, Ron and Deb Durre, of Monte Vista, purchased the store and continue to honor its legacy and push its boundaries. In May 2024, they opened Swee-T’s, two doors down from San Juan Sports and it is the town’s ice cream and souvenir shop.

When asked what advice he had for the next 50 years, original owner Ameel said, “Go with the flow! And listen to your customers!”

For 50 years, San Juan Sports has been the place to go for all outdoor gear. Now it’s also the place to go to get a drink, meet up with friends, get the latest trail reports, sing your heart out, meet up for a race, gear up before a backpacking trip, and, most of all, gather with friends.

For the 50th celebration, attendees will be able to have drinks from Sunnyside Bar outside on the will be performing at noon, Corey and the Contradictions (FKA The Bent Ears) performing at 3 p.m., and The O’s, a singing along, dancing along, drinking along, and playing along type of band, will perform

Enjoying Life God’s Way

I have this burden to see people enjoy the life that Jesus died to give them—and I want to see people not just talk about it but walk in it. John 10:10 (AMPC) says, “The thief comes only in order to steal and kill and destroy. I came that they may have and enjoy life, and have it in abundance (to the full, till it overflows).”

The thief, in these particular verses is Satan. But John 10 tells us that while the thief comes only in order to steal, and kill, and destroy. Jesus came, that we may have and enjoy life and have it in abundance, to the full, until it overflows. What a scripture! Not only are we alive, but we should enjoy being alive.

When Jesus came to give us life, He didn’t come just to give us breath—we were already breathing! Instead, he came to give us life as God has it, life as God knows it! But not only does He want us to have and enjoy life, but He gets radical and says: In abundance, to the full, until it overflows.

God wants us to enjoy life just for the sheer sake of enjoying life! But He also wants us to enjoy it because we are His ambassadors. The Bible says in Corinthians 5:20 that God is making His appeal to the world through us. If you are a born-again believer, you are a direct representative of Almighty God. You and I are showing the world what God is like. We’re advertisements for having a personal relationship with Jesus.

With this in mind, it’s no wonder Satan wants to keep so many people in the body of Christ sad, and mad, and operating in all kinds of wrong fruit: Judgment, criticism, gossip, backbiting! He wants to keep people depressed and angry and stressed out and full of strife. He doesn’t want us to have any joy because it might make others want to know God!

It’s also important to enjoy your life, because you don’t want it to pass you by and leave you with regrets. I know this sounds awful, but when I was raising my children, I loved them and I was a responsible parent, but I look back now, and I did not enjoy my children the way that I could have. And do you know why? Because I was a workaholic. And I was so busy keeping everything neat and tidy and clean—but that dirt will be there tomorrow. And that doesn’t mean you just live a sloppy life, and you never clean up things and take care of things, but I can remember my kids wanting me to stop working and play with them. And I always said something like, “I can’t do that, I’ve got work to do.” Well, you know what? You’re always going to have work to do, so, you need some balance in your life because some things are passing you by. And you don’t want to come to the end of your life and look back with regrets.

The only way you can keep from having regrets is to do something about making better choices right now. And the truth of the matter is, you may not really be enjoying the journey. If we are letting the devil steal from us, we need to make a decision. We need to put our foot down and say, “That’s it, devil. You have stolen my joy long enough. I’m determined that I’m going to learn how to enjoy my life.”

When I say, “enjoy your life,” I’m not just talking about vacations, Friday night when the work week is over, and payday. I’m talking about enjoying everyday life. That’s why I called my program “Enjoying Everyday Life.” Because most of life is not some big hilarious event. It’s Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday. And we have years of that. Most of life is very ordinary. It’s about going to work, and driving in traffic, and taking out the trash, and dealing with the grouchy neighbor.

But thank God, we have the power of the Holy Spirit to help us deal with things that ordinary people cannot deal with. We are supernaturally anointed to live ordinary life in a supernatural way. You can be happy in situations where nobody else could be happy if they didn’t have Jesus in their life. Why? Because it’s not our situations, it’s the joy of the Lord that is our strength (Nehemiah 8:10).

And I believe that’s the first place we have to start is by saying: “God really does want me to enjoy my life!” Somehow Satan has sold us the lie we shouldn’t enjoy it. But John 17:13 (AMPC) tells us, “And now I am coming to You; I say these things while I am still in the world, so that My joy may be made full and complete and perfect in them [that they may experience My delight fulfilled in them, that My enjoyment may be perfected in their own souls, that they may have My gladness within them, filling their hearts].”

We need to lighten up and stop being so deadly serious about everything, including our own faults. We are no surprise to God. He told Jeremiah, “Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you and I approved of you as My chosen instrument” (Jeremiah 1:5). Stop being against yourself and picking on yourself and examining all your faults all the time, and just say: “You know what? I am what I am and I love God and I want to change, and I’m changing all the time, and He’s changing me every day from glory to glory, but this is what you got today and I’m going to enjoy myself because God loves me.”

SLVH launches 'milestone' renovation project

CEO Konnie Martin: 'A significant change that our patients deserve'

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — With the help of a $1 million grant from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), San Luis Valley Health (SLVH) will be renovating a permanent structure to create five private rooms in an area of the hospital named "Three South."

"The total project budget is about $3.1 million," SLVH CEO Konnie Martin told the celebratory crowd of supporters who filled the lobby of the San Luis Valley Regional Medical Center last Wednesday. "Without this foundational funding from the USDA — a key piece in making this project happen — it would not have been possible for us to have achieved such a significant change."

In a nod to the USDA directors who were present for the announcement, Martin added, "I also want to acknowledge how special it is to celebrate this accomplishment with USDA leaders, one former (Armando Valdez) and one current (Crestina Valdez), who are also known to us as friends and neighbors."

The project will not increase the numbers of in-patient beds at SLVH, but will, instead, renovate existing space to create the private rooms that can accommodate the need for isolation, when needed. The rooms will also be updated to meet current standards of care, will have an up-to-date healing aesthetic and, of course, provide patient privacy.

Although the idea of the renovation has been a long-standing goal for SLVH, the possibility of it becoming a reality dates back almost three years to 2021 when the USDA announced Recovery Grant Funding was available.

But the situation that created SLVH's undeniable need for renovation preceded the grant even being made public.

"In 2021, during the pandemic, RMC (SLV Regional Medical Center) was the only facility in this south-central region of the state accepting positive COVID patients," Martin told the group. "Conejos County Hospital and Rio Grande Hospital provided care to less acute patients and patients recovering from COVID."

"At the time we wrote the grant, we were averaging 22 patients a day — bed placement for patients presented significant challenges, both for patients with and without COVID. We were also getting calls from other areas of the state — and even out-of-state — who didn't have beds available for COVID patients who needed them."

"And RMC's hospital rooms are semi-private and over-crowded with medical equipment, entering and exiting staff, bathrooms that don't meet ADA requirements, and lack patient privacy."

When the grant was made public, its goals — supporting immediate health care needs, helping to prepare for a future pandemic, increasing access to quality health care services and improving community outcomes — seemed tailor-made for SLVH, and an application was submitted.

"It was a perfect fit," Martin said.

"We've been looking for something like this for a long time," Karla Hardesty, chair of the SLV Health Board of Trustees, told the Valley Courier. "We're really excited to offer this to our patients. It will be a lovely asset to our facility."

"We're focused on improving access of care to our community across the Valley and even beyond, especially in the summer when we get people here from other places. I also think it's very forward-thinking for us to be thinking about upgrades to our facilities. Patient quality is first and foremost but so is a good experience when people are going through hardships. They're not here because they're feeling good. They're here because they need quality medical care. We're able to do that having top notch facilities."

Hardesty went on to add, "We're fortunate to have partnerships with the USDA. It's very supportive of poor, rural communities to make these investments and sustain our financials and our communities' access to care."

When asked what message she thinks an investment like new private rooms sends to the funders, Martin told the Valley Courier, "I think this shows federal agencies that leaders believe in what we're doing here and we're worthy of this kind of investment. And we're going to do good things with federal money and turn it into a community solution."

When asked what message adding five private rooms sends to the patient population of the Valley (and beyond), Martin responded, "We believe our patients deserve the best health care we can provide. Having private rooms with better visitation and state-of-the-art equipment is what our patients and our community deserve. And that is our goal every single day."

WASHINGTON, DC – The San Luis Valley Regional Airport in Alamosa will receive $456,849 in federal funding for snow removal equipment.

On July 2, U.S. Senators John Hickenlooper and Michael Bennet celebrated an additional $10 million in new funding from the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) Airport Improvement Program (AIP) and the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law for infrastructure improvements at 16 Colorado airports.

"From Yuma to Montrose, Colorado's airports help connect rural communities and power local economies," said Hickenlooper. "Our Bipartisan Infrastructure Law is delivering much needed improvements to make air travel safe and accessible for all Coloradans."

"Colorado's regional and municipal airports are an important part of our state – they connect our communities and boost local economic development," said Bennet. "This funding will support airports across Colorado as they make critical investments to meet our changing needs."

The investments are funded through the FAA's AIP and the Airport Infrastructure Grants (AIG) program, which deliver funding for airports nationwide to improve runways, taxiways, and airport signage, lighting, marking, and facilities. The programs receive funding from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, which Hickenlooper helped negotiate. The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law has provided over $399 million to Colorado airports across the state for infrastructure improvements since being signed into law., which deliver funding for airports nationwide to improve runways, taxiways, and airport signage, lighting, marking, and facilities. Reverse 911 can save a life

By JOHN WATERS

ALAMOSA — On Sunday, June 23, at 4:51 a.m., many San Luis Valley residents were alerted of an emergency by the Reverse 911 system maintained by Alamosa County.

The reverse system operates across the country and sends emergency calls, texts, and emails alerting people to various events including natural disasters, evacuations, school emergencies and safety threats.

In 2009, Connecticut became the first state in the nation to utilize a reverse 911 system and now they are deployed across the U.S. and Canada. In 2004, reverse 911 was used in Granby, Colorado to notify residents of a bulldozer rampage. Reverse 911 was used in during the 2012 Sandy Hook — Newtown Connecticut school shooting. And locally the system has been used twice locally in the last few weeks.

If you did not receive the message sent out last Sunday morning, signing up to receive the notifications is easy. Go to the Alamosa County website at www.alamosacounty.colorado.gov and go to the red tab on the site, "Sign Up for Alamosa County Emergency Alerts," and click on it to be directed to the Hyper-Reach website and sign up. The website was launched in 1995 by the Asher Group, a computer service provider.

According to the company, Hyper-Reach is a leading provider of mass, enterprise and team notification systems for public safety, other government agencies and companies throughout North America.

Hope in the Valley brings addiction treatment services to region

By JOHN WATERS

ALAMOSA — Valerie Gurule-Duran, Clinical Director from the Hope in the Valley recovery center in Alamosa briefed county commissioners on June 26 regarding progress the addiction treatment facility has made recently.

Gurule-Duran told the commissioners, "We are a community-led program, we currently offer a detox that is a social, medical withdrawal detox. We don't carry narcotics onboard, but we have nurses on staff 24-7. Our doctors can call in and prescribe [meds] we are trying to get patients medications like Suboxone [opioid dependence treatment medication] we can definitely do that.

"We also have a partial hospitalization program, that is five hours a day, five days a week where they participate in groups. We are using a curriculum out of a company based in Los Angeles that is evidence-based and it covers many aspects [of recovery.] We also have outpatient treatment, which is three hours a day, three days a week.

"Our goal is we are trying to create this continual treatment, if somebody comes in, we are trying to not let them go out on the street. We use the encouragement to ask, 'What is your goal, what needs to happen, do you have adequate housing, do you need in-patient treatment? Do you need sober living?'"

Wynonna is world renowned and known both as a solo artist and duet artist with her beautiful late mother, Naomi Judd. They were known on stage as The Judds. According to the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame, Naomi and Wynonna formed one of the most successful duos in country music history, recording 14 number one singles between 1984 to 1989. The Judds recorded many memorable songs such as, "Momma He's Crazy," "Rockin' with the Rhythm of the Rain," "Give a Little Love," and "Grandpa," along with one of their most notable songs, "Love Can Build a Bridge." Due to unexpected illness, Naomi retired in 1991, and in 1992, Wynonna made her debut as a solo artist and released many more successful albums. Max McNown, a singer and songwriter from Bend, Ore., is the opener for Wynonna.

Stick around for the after-concert dance featuring the Justin Kemp Band, who will also perform nightly following the rodeo action on July 12 and 13 beginning at 9 p.m. Friday night Colorado's oldest PRCA rodeo returns to town, and brings all the thunder with it, including broncos, roping riders, the ever-popular barrel racers, kids' mutton busting, and bull riding. There will be rodeo action on July 12 and 13 evenings and July 14 in the afternoon. Downtown parades will take place July 12 and 13, beginning at 10 a.m. The parades are always filled with colorful floats from local businesses, and plenty of candy and treats are always thrown for all the kiddos and crowds to enjoy. Rio Grande County celebrates employee's 57 years of service

By LYNDSIE FERRELL
RIO GRANDE COUNTY — Rio Grande County Board of Commissioners welcomed Jody Kern, Director of Rio Grande County Social Services, alongside Larry Desbien, Director of the Division of Child Support Services and the Colorado Department of Human Services, to their work session on June 26 to celebrate Helen Martinez who has worked for the Department of Social Services for an astounding 57 years. Martinez is the longest standing employee in Rio Grande County and announced her retirement earlier this year. "We have been so pleased to have Helen for all these years. She has done wonderful things in the Department of Social Service and child support," said Kern. Martinez was presented with a plaque and an American flag for her years of service. The plaque presented by Desbien reads, "CDHS honors Helen Martinez for her 57.5 years of dedicated service, devotion and commitment to serving Coloradans in Mineral and Rio Grande County." Rio Grande County commissioners helped celebrate Martinez and acknowledged that she may be the longest standing county employee in the state besides one other county employee who will be celebrating their 58th year in another location. "We are just so happy to have had her services and we are going to miss having her in the office," finished Kern.

 Helen Martinez was presented with a plaque honoring her devotion to her job and an American flag to mark her willingness to serve. Pictured is Martinez with Rio Grande County commissioners Gene Glover, Scott Deacon and Tyler Ratzlaff.

For nearly 58 years, Helen Martinez has helped serve the greater Rio Grande County Community and has now chosen to say goodbye and enjoy her retirement. Pictured is Larry Desbien, Director Division of Child Support Services Colorado Department of Human Services.

"We have been open since May 22, and we have had a handful of people come into the facility and the transformation we are seeing is amazing."

On July 11, Hope in the Valley will hold an open house and ribbon cutting. Details will be in the Valley Courier when they are known.

Commissioner Lori Laske said, "I am glad you are looking at residential in-patient because that is the gap we have in the San Luis Valley, and we appreciate you are working toward that."

Hope in the Valley can be reached at 719-206-4673 and www.hopealamosa.org. For information regarding meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous in the San Luis Valley, visit www.slvaa.org.

"Thank you guys, this is a resource that is needed," said Commissioner Vern Heersink.

Commissioner Arlan Van Ry said, "I can speak from experience, I've never been shy about my recovery. As a Veteran, it is extremely hard to get any kind of treatment. Luckily, I was able to do it on my own. For the other Veterans who struggle with PTSD, one of the side effects is turning to dependency on alcohol or other drugs. If there is any way I can help, and assist with getting Veterans Affairs TRICARE, I am more than willing to help volunteer my time."

Van Ry added he just celebrated 1,500 days of sobriety and offered he is willing to talk with any Veteran who is experiencing addiction. TRICARE is the Department of Defense health care program for uniformed service members, their families, and retirees. According to the website of the organization, "Hope in the Valley is more than a rehabilitation center; it's a haven built on empathy, understanding and the unwavering belief in the transformative power of recovery... Hope in the Valley stands tall, not just as a rehabilitation center, but as a living testament to the possibility of transformation, a testament that no matter how challenging the journey, hope can be found, and recovery is within reach."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

We are so excited to celebrate our 102nd anniversary this year! On Thursday, July 11, the Monte Vista Rotary Club will be doing dinner serving roast beef, baked potatoes, beans, with cookies and a drink. After supper, we are pleased to announce another spectacular concert featuring Wynonna Judd with special guest Max McNown. Immediately after the concert, join us for the first dance of the weekend featuring Justin Kemp. On Friday, July 12, the first rodeo of the event will kick off at 7 p.m. with the world class stock contractor Stace Smith and announcer Andy Seiler. Friday night is Family Night at the rodeo.

Rodeos will also take place on Saturday the 13th at 7 p.m., and Sunday the 14th at 2 p.m. Saturday's Rodeo theme is "Tough Enough to Wear Pink" - so make sure to wear your pink that day.

There will be parades on Friday, July 12, and Saturday, July 13, at 10 a.m. This year's parade theme is "Heroes Among Us."

Don't forget to take your family to Wright's Amusement Carnival as they exceed our expectations every year.

Contractor Smith Pro Rodeos provides quality stock

MONTE VISTA — If the bulls look meaner, the horses rougher and the calves and steers more agile, thank perennial Stampede favorite stock contractor Stace Smith Pro Rodeos.

At end of 2023, the torch was passed from father to son as Riffin Smith began running the show for his father, Stace Smith.

Stace Smith PR produces more PRCA rodeos than any other PRCA stock contractor. In addition to PRCA rodeos, Smith Pro Rodeos produces PBR and Bronc Match events throughout the year. It is in large part to his experience that Stace Smith has been named PRCA Stock Contractor of the Year in 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, and 2014. Smith and Harry Vold are tied for the most all-time PRCA Stock Contractor of the Year awards at 11.

Stace has worked at every level of rodeo, beginning as a contestant, then spending time as chute boss, and pickup man. Smith was chosen as pickup man for the Texas Circuit finals in both 2005 and 2007 and continues to pick up at several events.

In 2009, Stace Smith became a shareholder in Mesquite Championship Rodeo, and in 2014, Smith Pro Rodeos has served as the committee or partners with the committee at 26 of the 39 events produced. This one-of-a-kind experience gives them an inside edge on what it takes to help the committees achieve one of the ultimate goals of spectator sports, putting spectators in seats.

In 2014, Smith Pro Rodeos had seven PRCA rodeos nominated in the four "Rodeo of the Year" categories. Smith Pro Rodeos produces rodeos across nine different states from Mississippi through Texas, Colorado, North Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming.

Each performance is carefully planned, from building equal, exciting pens of livestock, to planning the order they will be presented according to the stock and rider's attributes. All timed event livestock come directly from the Smith ranch, so there are no mismatched pens or delivery issues. Because of these efforts, turnouts are at a minimum, so each rodeo is a balanced representation of the sport.

For more information, go online to www.smithprorodeos.com.

Andy Seiler to announce Ski-Hi Stampede

MONTE VISTA — The oldest rodeo in Colorado will be welcoming a familiar voice to announce the goings-on in the arena, this year. Andy Seiler is back handling the announcing duties for Ski-Hi Stampede.

Seiler has been in the business for over a decade and his career has followed an ascendant path being branded "an up-and-coming voice for professional rodeo," by Boyd Polhamus and according to former NIRA Commissioner John Smith. "I honestly believe Andy will be one of the best-recognized announcers in the sport of rodeo."

Rodeo is a family affair for Seiler as he and both parents competed in rodeo. In his high school competition days, he was a three-time champion team roper in the National High School Finals Rodeo. From there he qualified three times for the College National Finals Rodeo during his time at Troy College in Alabama.

To earn some extra money for college expenses, Seiler used his first-hand experience to take up gigs announcing at amateur rodeos. After winning the Walt Garrison Award of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA), Seiler's first big break came in the form of an invitation from announcer Boyd Polhamus for Seiler to be his co-announcer at the National College Rodeo Finals in 2008.

After three years of working various rodeos including Rodeo Houston, Cervi Championship Rodeo and Harry Vold, he stepped away from the scene to get a "real" job, working for a feed supply company in Florida. During that time, he married his childhood sweetheart. Bringing about his next big break, in the form of another phone call from Polhamus asking Seiler to fill in as the announcer at Rodeo Houston.

From there, his announcing career took off as he was in demand at rodeos across the nation. All this eventually led to a prestigious spot at-mic for the National Finals Rodeo.

Seiler is well suited for his profession as he has plenty of experience with rodeo as well as a broadcast journalism degree. He also knows a thing or two about making the event fun for all ages as Seiler is a husband and a father.

He has announced all over the country in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA).

Rodeo couple exhibits trick riding and roping, gun spinning

CONTRIBUTED

A pair of western entertainers will hit the "stage" at the Ski-Hi Stampede on July 12-14.

In the tradition of Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Rider Kiesner and his partner Bethany Iles entertain with trick riding, trick roping, and gun slinging!

It's an exhibition of the Western arts, heralding back to the old west days of Annie Oakley, the Will Rogers Follies, and the glory days of TV, when westerns were king.

Kiesner and Iles are well-known for their work. Kiesner has performed at the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo, pro rodeo's world championship, seven times, and has done his act in all 50 states and 15 countries.

Their act is all western: Kiesner trick ropes and does gun spinning tricks, standing on a specially designed platform on his truck, doing such rope tricks as the butterfly, the wedding ring (with 70 feet of rope) and the Texas skip. Iles rides around the arena, doing dangerous yet beautiful trick riding stunts like the suicide drag, the shoulder stand, the liberty stand, the full fender drag, the stroud layout, and one of her newest, the cartwheel vault.

He's no stranger to the art of western talent. When he was nine years old, he got a Will Rogers trick roping kit for Christmas and taught himself to rope. His entire family, including younger brother Roper and parents Philip and Julie, took their show on the road. When Rider turned 18, he got his PRCA card and began his solo career.

Iles grew up with a mother who was terrified of horses, but when Iles saw trick riding, she and her twin sister knew that's what they wanted to do.

Bethany Iles will trickride at the Ski-Hi Stampede on July 12-14. The talented cowgirl will be alongside trickroper and gunslinger Rider Kiesner.

"My mom, being a good mom, signed us up to take riding lessons, and within a month, we had three head of horses," Iles said. The sisters made their own trick riding equipment and hung off horses, "which is totally not safe," she laughed. Their riding instructor hosted a trick riding clinic, which the girls attended, "and a year later, we had learned enough to do local shows," Iles said.

The two of them paired up in 2018 and have performed at rodeos across the nation.

World champion trick roper Rider Kiesner will entertain with his brand of fancy trick roping and fire. The Oklahoma cowboy has been a showman and entertainer for more than 20 years.

Kiesner is a four-time world champion trick roper and a two-time world champion gun spinner, and the couple is the 2020 PRCA Specialty Act of the Year.

They will entertain during each night of the Ski-Hi Stampede July 12-14. Performances begin at 7 p.m. on July 12 and 13, with a 2 p.m. matinee on July 14.

Wynonna to headline Stampede concert

STAFF REPORT

MONTE VISTA — Longtime country artist and multiple award winner Wynonna Judd will be the featured act for Ski-Hi Stampede concert on Thursday, July 11, as the 100-year plus event moves up two weeks earlier than normal.

Up and coming artist Max McNown will be the guest artist. Tickets are available at skihistampede.com.

Wynonna is one of the most widely recognized and awarded female country musicians in history. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wynonna_Judd In all, she has had 19 No. 1 singles, including those with The Judds. Her solo albums and singles are all credited to—and performed under—the singular stage name, Wynonna.

She first rose to fame in the 1980s alongside her mother, Naomi, in their mother-daughter country music duo, The Judds. They released seven albums on Curb Records, in addition to 26 singles, of which 14 were No. 1 hits. In 2023 Wynonna was named the best country music artist picking up the “country champion” award at the “People’s Choice Country Awards”.

McNown is a singer-songwriter from Bend, Oregon. His soulful music attracted international attention on TikTok and other social media platforms, which built an engaging and committed fanbase.

His powerful lyrics and resonant vocals led to collaborations with renowned producers and songwriters and the opportunity to audition in front of Katy Perry, Lionel Richie, and Luke Bryan during the 2023 season of “American Idol.”

Stampede Parade Grand Marshals

Ronnie and Carolyn David

Ronnie and Carolyn David were high school sweethearts and have been married for 60 years.

Ronnie graduated from Sargent High School and Colorado State University with a degree in science and physical education.

Carolyn graduated from Monte Vista High School and St. Joseph Hospital School of Radiological Technology in Denver.

They returned to the Sargent area following graduation and Ronnie taught and coached at Sargent schools. Carolyn worked at Monte Vista Hospital, and they also farmed.

They raised three children, Kirk of Monte Vista, Stan of Pagosa Springs, and Marcia Schneider of Abilene, Kan., and have one grandson, Brody of Colorado Springs.

Their greatest joy was supporting their children and grandson in their various activities and sporting events. There were many hours spent on bleachers and traveling but "what fun it was."

Ronnie served on the Colorado Potato Administrative Committee, the Sargent Steering Committee and two terms on the Sargent School Board. He coached grade school, junior high and high school basketball for more than 20 years, most of that was as a volunteer. For 35 years, he refereed football and basketball both locally and on the state level. "Being around young people adds a lot of joy to your life."

Carolyn volunteered on the Stampede Parade Committee, 9 Health Fair and has been a member of Bethlehem Chapter #56 Order of Eastern Star for 50 years and has enjoyed helping with all their philanthropic work. Carolyn was director at Legacy Assisted Living for 24 years and gained so much enjoyment from serving the seniors of the community.

The David's enjoy spending as much time as possible with family and at Santa Maria Reservoir. Carolyn still enjoys playing bridge, volunteers at the Rio Grande Hospital and serves as a member of the Monte Vista Community Ambulance Board of Directors.

Rodney and Domey Salazar

Domey and Rodney Salazar were born in the little community of Lariat. Growing up they were neighbors, Domey went to Catholic school, and Rodney went to public school.

They met in high school and were high school sweethearts.

Rodney graduated high school and Domey later got her GED.

They have five wonderful children, who are doing well; nine grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

After the kids got older, Domey went to work at HeadStart and then with Dr. Hilmes. She also worked at McDonalds Clothing Store. Then later, she worked at Polston Elementary School as a teacher's aide before retiring.

Rodney's first job here in Monte was for Boy's Market, then for John Rogers Motors, who sold to Steinert Motors. Then he went to work for Phillips 66. He was offered a job with the Department of Agriculture (US Forest Service) as seasonal labor. After 32 years of service, he was promoted from labor to mechanic helper, to heavy equipment operator before retiring as supervisor of the forest road maintenance crew.

Rodney served on the board of directors for HeadStart, Colorado Migrant Council and the 12th Judicial Court in Alamosa. He has been a lifetime member of the Monte Vista Elks Lodge, where he served in various offices with 39 years of service to date.

When they were younger, Domey and Rodney bowled in leagues and hunted. Rodney loved to golf. They also loved to dance.

Nowadays, they enjoy going to casinos and working on their condominium. Rodney just celebrated his 90th birthday with family and friends.

"Life is pretty sweet," they said.

Dance the nights away with the Justin Kemp Band

MONTE VISTA — Thursday, Friday and Saturday night's dances will feature the Justin Kemp Band.

Justin Kemp was born and raised in Hobbs, N.M., on the Texas Border. Growing up in a musical family he was heavily influenced by the great Merle Haggard, George Jones, Keith Whitley, and all of the legends going back to the 1970's.

Once he picked up the guitar at the age of 11 there was no turning back. He began songwriting in high school and pursued music at South Plains College in Levelland, Texas. With the support of his father, David Kemp, who also plays bass and keyboard with the band, the Justin Kemp Band was born.

Justin co-writes many of the original songs the band records along with his father and bandmate David Kemp. Their recent releases include "Borrow A Kiss," "Money In My Pocket," "Better Man," "Heart's Desire" and "Legends Never Die."

Justin and the band tour nationally and he also performs as a duo with David. They have opened for many major acts including Joe Nichols, Chase Rice, Dylan Scott, Travis Tritt, Tanya Tucker, Josh Abbott Band, Kevin Fowler, and Wade Bowen to name a few.

He likes and covers the music of Luke Combs, Brett Young, Jon Pardi, Midland & Cole Swindell. Justin and the band have toured primarily in the South West.

In 2018 he signed a management deal with Heart Songs Records and he has spent the last year writing, recording in Nashville and continuing to tour with his five-piece band.

Justin Kemp Band was on multiple 2019 Country Artists to Watch lists. His successful single "Better Man" garnered him a place on Apple Music's hot tracks for 9 weeks.

Still tough enough to wear pink on Saturday

SAN LUIS VALLEY — For more than 100 years, the Ski-Hi Stampede has entertained crowds from all over the country and provided one of the best pro-rodeo events in the state. Not only has the Ski-Hi Stampede brought joy to the Valley, guests to the area and fun for all who attend, they have also provided donations to a local cause and have helped save the lives of many through their generosity.

The Stephanie L. Miner Women's Imaging Center at San Luis Valley Health in Alamosa was created when Miner, a local teacher, was diagnosed with breast cancer after her fourth child was born. When Miner lost her fight with cancer, her family approached SLV Health with the idea and starting funds for a center where women could go for early detection, prevention and all the state-of-the-art equipment needed to fight the disease.

It was in 2006 that the members of Ski-Hi Stampede board of directors approached the hospital and asked if they could help by becoming a part of a nation-wide program known as "Tough Enough to Wear Pink." The Saturday, July 23, program is an initiative supported by Wrangler and has participants from around the country.

"The Ski-Hi Stampede Committee's commitment to the TETWP campaign has raised more than $100,000 to directly benefit the Stephanie L. Miner Women's Imaging Center," stated Kelly Gurule, SLV Health Foundation director.

The Stampede committee, in conjunction with the San Luis Valley Health Foundation, is encouraging everyone to participate. All staff and volunteers for the event will be wearing pink throughout the festivities. "We know everyone is proud to be "Tough Enough to Wear Pink," said Gurule.

Tough Enough to Wear Pink was created by project founder Terry Wheatley in 2004. Wrangler presented the pink western shirts during the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo that same year and has continued as the head sponsor for events nationwide. The program has raised cancer awareness as well as raised funds for research, equipment and to help families with financial assistance. The amount of money raised has been staggering in the 18 years since the program's inception.

Wrangler donates all funds raised that come through their program to the national Breast Cancer Research Foundation that has been dubbed one of the best charitable programs in the nation. According to the website, "The Breast Cancer Research Foundation" (BCRF) was founded in 1993 by Evelyn H. Lauder as an independent, not-for-profit organization dedicated to funding innovative clinical and translational research. In 2010, BCRF awarded $33 million to 172 scientists across the United States, Canada, Latin America, Europe, the Middle East, and Australia. Currently, more than 90 cents of every dollar donated is directed to breast cancer research and awareness programs."

Gurule was pleased to talk about the things the donations have done for the center to date. Funds from previous years have been used to purchase equipment and maintain the center so the services provided there can be available to those that need them.

"There is one thing that people really need to understand," said Gurule. "The money that is raised here stays here in the Valley to help local residents and provide local services."

The women's imaging center in Alamosa directly benefits from the funds raised during Ski-Hi Stampede, so keeping the money local is of the utmost importance. Breast cancer awareness, prevention and early detection is paramount in the fight against this disease.

Through these efforts, women from all over the world have the tools and support necessary to overcome the disease and find new hope in life.

Mutton Busting, an unforgettable experience

MONTE VISTA — Nobody expects to break or ride a sheep, but it has a benefit. It's a chance for little kids to get a taste of adventure, a feel for what it's like to be a cowboy. They might get bruised and they'll definitely get dirty, but it's an experience they will never forget. Mutton busting is the sport of bareback sheep riding. Kiddie competitors challenge themselves and the sheep to see who can hold on the longest as they try for a qualifying time in the rodeo arena.

Mutton busting is similar to bull riding, except that the contestants wear more protective gear and are closer to the ground. A sheep is held still, either in a small chute or by an adult handler, while a child is placed on top in a riding position. Once the child is seated, the sheep is released and usually starts to run in an attempt to get the child off. Often small prizes or ribbons are given out to the children who can stay on the longest.

There are no set rules for mutton busting, no national organization, and most events are organized at the local level. However, children who begin as mutton busters could go on to be top Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) money winners or, at least, tops on the hometown rodeo circuit.

The vast majority of children participating in the event fall off in less than 8 seconds. Age, height and weight restrictions on participants generally prevent injuries to the sheep and implements such as spurs are banned from use. In most cases, children are required to wear helmets and parents are often asked to sign waivers to protect the rodeo from legal action.

The practice has been documented as having been introduced to the National Western Stock Show in Denver, at least by the 1980s when an event was sponsored by Nancy Stockdale Cervi, a former rodeo queen. At that event, children ages five to seven who weighed less than 55 pounds could apply, and ultimately seven contestants were selected to each ride a sheep for six seconds.

There are no statistics about the popularity of the sport, but anecdotal reports suggest thousands of children participate in such events every year in the U.S. Supporters consider the event both entertaining and a way to introduce young children to the adult rodeo "rough stock" riding events of bull riding, saddle bronc, and bareback riding, and they may liken its rough-and-tumble nature to the way youth sports such as football are played.

Barrel racing is an exciting sport

Sports fans and athletes have a plethora of sports to enjoy in this country and around the world, and those options include equestrian events. Equestrian sports have a deep-rooted history and have inspired some avid fans, including those enamored with the sport of barrel racing.

Barrel racing originally was established as an event for women on the rodeo circuit. While men rode bucking broncos and bulls and competed in roping events, women displayed horse speed and stamina in barrel racing competitions. Today, barrel racing primarily is a female sport at both the collegiate and professional levels.

Barrel racing can be an entertaining experience for spectators and a rewarding one for riders. The goal of the barrel race is to complete a perfect pattern in the least amount of time, so the rider who completes the pattern the fastest wins the competition.

The pattern riders face is a complicated cloverleaf design. Riders can choose to enter the first barrel to the left or the right. They circle the barrel and proceed across to barrel number two, then finish out at the third barrel, where they will complete the pattern and exit the course. The approach to the first barrel should be carefully timed and executed to set the stage for the rest of the course.

An official distance between barrels exists for professional races. Riders cover 90 feet between barrel one and two. There is 105 feet between barrels one and three and between barrels two and three. Finally, 60 feet marks the distance between barrels one and two and the entry/exit "score" line.

According to Michigan State University Extension, barrel racing requires a mild-tempered horse with natural athletic ability. Horses need to be fast, agile and intelligent. A hot-headed horse is not a good choice because he may fight the rider and cause injury. Riders also must be in tune with their horses' movements and sit correctly in the saddle to allow the horse to hug the sides of each barrel. Riders need to be both physically fit and capable of planning ahead to accommodate their horses' speed.

Experts advise riders to run horses through repetitive drills to improve their performance. A horse learns by release and will think he's done a good job if a rider moves on to a new task. If riders are unhappy with a turn, they should return to the same barrel over and over until it is mastered, as riders need their horses to remember the good techniques. Horses can do drills running straight lines as well as circles. Soon both horse and rider should develop a feel for each other and move more intuitively together.

Although barrel racing has been around for a long time, one of the premier governing bodies of the sport was only established 66 years ago. The Girl's Rodeo Association was formed when 38 cowgirls came together in San Angelo, Texas, to create an organization dedicated to the promotion and advancement of women in the sport of rodeo. In 1981, the association changed its name to the Women's Professional Rodeo Association, and it remains one of the most influential sanctioning bodies in the sport. It also is the oldest women's sports association in the United States and the only one governed entirely by women.

In 2007, the WPRA instituted the My Horse's Choice Junior Division for girls ages 17 and under. The junior division introduces a whole new group of members to the ranks of professional competition and allows mothers and daughters to compete for world points at some of the same events.

Barrel racing is most popular in the western and southern areas of the United States and some parts of Canada. To learn more about a particular racing circuit or the sport of barrel racing, visit www.wpra.com.

Renowned rodeo champions

The Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association has produced its fair share of memorable performers over the years. One of the more prestigious honors a rodeo rider can earn is the PRCA All-Around Cowboy Champion, which is given to the rodeo competitors who are most successful in two or more events. The following are a handful of rodeo competitors to win multiple All-Around PRCA All-Around championships.

- Trevor Brazile: The record holder for most all-around titles, Brazile eclipsed former record holder Ty Murray in 2010 when he won his eighth all-around championship. The 2014 season marked the ninth straight year the Texas-born Brazile was named the PRCA All-Around Cowboy Champion.

- Ty Murray: Though Murray's record for most all-around championships has been eclipsed, he remains one of professional bull riding's most recognizable faces, having crossed over into popular culture with appearances on television shows such as "Walker, Texas Ranger," "WWE Raw" and "Dancing With the Stars."

- Lewis Feild: A member of the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame, Feild is a three-time winner of the PRCA All-Around Cowboy Championship, with three consecutive wins from 1985 to 1987. Feild's son, Kaycee, is an accomplished rider as well.

- Tom R. Ferguson: The Oklahoma-born Ferguson is another legend of rodeo, having won six all-around championships during the 1970s. Ferguson was also something of a trailblazer in rodeo, as he was the first rodeo competitor to earn more than $100,000 in the arena in a single year, a feat he accomplished in 1978.

- Larry Mahan: Upon winning the PRCA All-Around Cowboy Championship in 1970, Mahan became the first rodeo competitor to win five such championships in a row. Mahan's 1973 comeback even garnered him some acclaim and attention in an unlikely place: Hollywood. "The Great American Cowboy," a documentary film from Kieth Merrill, focused on Mahan's comeback and battle with Phil Lyne for the world championship. The film would win the 1973 Academy Award for Best Documentary Feature.

- Jim Shoulders: The first competitor to ever win the bareback, bull riding and all-around events at the PRCA Championships, Shoulders also had a successful career outside of the rodeo arena, where he was a notable presence in print and television advertisements for jeans, boots and beer.

Bull riders' gear protective as well as functional

Many fans of sports like baseball, basketball and football enjoy wearing jerseys of their favorite players when attending a game, watching at home or gathering with fellow fans to watch somewhere in public. While it's nearly impossible to attend a professional sporting event today without seeing someone decked out in the same attire as their favorite player, such sightings are less likely to occur within the sport of rodeo.

Unlike baseball and basketball uniforms, the gear worn by many professional bull riders has more practical applications, namely to protect riders as much as possible. The following is a rundown of the gear professional bull riders wear during competition.

- * Headgear: While many professional bull riders are allowed to wear cowboy hats during competitions, the Professional Bull Riders, Inc., mandates that all new members who turned 18 years of age on or after Oct. 15, 2012, wear helmets. Those born before that date do not have to wear helmets, but some choose to do so to protect their heads from potentially threatening blows. In addition, bull riders can wear face masks to shield their faces and jaws from injury.

- * Vest: A protective vest is worn by bull riders to absorb shock and dissipate any blows to the body. The vest also was designed to protect riders' torsos from punctures caused by direct contact with the bulls' hooves and horns during competition.

- * Glove: Bull riders only wear one glove, which is on the hand they use to grip the bull rope. This leather glove makes it easier to grip the rope and offers some measure of protection to riders' hands and fingers.

- * Chaps: Riders wear chaps on their legs, and professionals often wear chaps emblazoned with logos of sponsors. Chaps offer extra protection for a rider's legs against the hooves and horns of the bull.

- * Bull rope: The bull rope, which is equipped with a handle braided into the rope, is a rider's only anchor during a ride. The rope is flat and braided from nylon or grass and goes around the bull's girth area behind the animal's front legs.

- * Boots: Bull riders' boots include a special spur ridge on the heel, and this helps their spurs to remain in place. Some riders wear pull-on boots, while others prefer boots that lace up.

- * Spurs: Spurs help bull riders stay in position once the ride begins. These spurs come equipped with dull rowels, which are the revolving disks at the end of spurs. The rowels are dull so they do not injure or cut the skin of the bull.

More information about bull riding is available at www.pbr.com.

2023 Stampede Concert was a hit

Stampede carnival offers fun for all

MONTE VISTA — The Wright's Amusements Carnival is expected to be at full capacity for 2024.

Based out of Elbert, Colo., Wright's Amusements has been in operation for over 50 years. The carnival is a part of Stampede tradition and features a variety of attractions from children's rides to newer varieties of thrill rides.

In 1962, Floyd Wright and his two brothers, Frank and Charles, launched a traveling carnival that put family fun first. A half century later, Floyd Wright's nephew, John Ring, runs the show in the same treasured tradition. "My life — my heritage—is all about making sure people have a great time," says Ring. "What better 'job' is there?"

There are several options that are available for purchasing carnival tickets. Pre-order armbands are available at the Ski-Hi Stampede Office. On Wednesday, July 10, the carnival will hold a canned food drive. Those who bring two canned food items can purchase an all-day carnival pass for $25.

There will be fun for all ages at the 102nd Ski-Hi Stampede and the attractions that Wright's Amusements provides will be no exception.

Wright's Amusements will be open from 5 p.m. to midnight on July 10, and during the Stampede from 11 a.m. to midnight on July 11, 12 and 13; and from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on July 14.
