Wesley Stafford is the DA's new Assistant District Attorney

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER
Courier Reporter

ALAMOSA — When 12th Judicial District Attorney (DA) Anne Kelly sent an email to Wesley Stafford about a potential Assistant District Attorney's (ADA) position, it turned out to be the right offer to the right person from the right person at the right time.

Kelly, like DAs across the state, has encountered challenges in recruiting and retaining good, experienced prosecutors. Even though she has been fully staffed, she has been operating without an ADA since she was sworn into the job two years ago.

Stafford is an attorney with more than 10 years of experience in general prosecution and sex crimes prosecution, seven of which were spent in the Miami District Attorney's Office and, more recently, three years with the Houston DA.

"My fiancé had always dreamed of moving to Colorado," he says. "In fact, she'd planned to move to Colorado, and I screwed up all her plans. So, when I showed her the email and said, hey, are

Explorer Program opens a new world

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER
Courier Reporter

ALAMOSA — There have always been kids who wanted to be a "fireman," at some point in their lives, and Aiden Clark was no different. Clark, who just graduated from the eighth grade at Ortega Middle School, has always wanted to be a firefighter. But, for a lot of students at Ortega Middle School and other schools where students may come from homes with economic challenges, learning what's involved in being a firefighter while still at a young age is pretty much out of reach.

That's where the Explorer Program comes in

Alamosa murals bring life to downtown

By JOHN WATERS
Courier News Editor

ALAMOSA — The stunning mural created in Downtown Alamosa by artist Bianca Maestas is progressing. The artwork is a collage of all things San Luis Valley and features sandhill cranes, orange and red poppies, sweet peas, and tulips (growing through the snow,) according to the artist.

The mural is part of a series of murals sponsored by the Alamosa County Chamber of Commerce.

"My grandmother grows sweet peas, she planted them 40 years ago and they still come up in her yard," Maestas said.

"The Alamosa Chamber is thrilled to be facilitating the installation of three new community murals this July as part of our greater 100-Year Mural project," said Erin

OBITUARIES

Nadine Dieckman

Nadine was born Feb. 28, 1934, in a country home near Leigh, Neb. After two sons, Duane and LaVern, a baby girl made the depression more tolerable for her parents Olie and Florence. Four years later, a second daughter, Bonnie, was born.

Nadine attended the small, rural, District 17-Praha Elementary School and went on to graduate from Schuyler High School. For a country girl, this diploma was earned on rather shaky ground, except, she excelled in business. So much so, that Kermit Wagner, of Wagner Mills in Schuyler, hired her while she was still in school.

It wasn't long before wanderlust grabbed her. She moved to Denver and was employed by Continental Airlines as an executive secretary. Nadine loved this job — loved the free and reduced flying privileges. One of her favorite trips was to Alaska. She was ill prepared for the weather, but locals lent her boots and a coat, and she continued on with her adventure.

Nadine also loved living so close to the mountains and spent much time hiking and camping.

Nadine married Frank Dieckman of Moffat, Colo., on Nov. 11, 1961, in Denver. They had two children, Troy and Renee. Frank dragged her, loyal and uncomplaining, to the orchard country of Palisade where they lived on an orchard in a fixer upper with an indoor hand pump and an out-house. They then lived in a converted school bus traveling around and in the mountains for a time. Finally, they landed in the beautiful San Luis Valley. They lived in yet another fixer upper in Mosca until the children graduated high school. Nadine then moved to Monte Vista where she created a nice comfortable home that she loved.

Frank and Nadine tried their hands at several endeavors, orchard operators, trail ride guides, sign painters, etc. until they purchased a flower shop in 1977. Much to her surprise, Nadine took a nearly empty, struggling store and turned it into a successful, beautiful floral and gift shop, Nadine's Flowers and Gifts. When she retired 23 years later, she left behind an unbelievably talented and devoted staff whom she loved and admired.

In Nadine's own words, "after 21 years of marriage, Frank got itchy feet or maybe it was a midlife crisis. We divorced and he went away. And actually, we could say — I lived happily ever after."

After her retirement from the flower shop, she took a summer, stipend-pay, work experience at a Yellowstone gift shop. She worked there for 3 years and came to love her coworkers. She loved exploring Yellowstone's beauty and spoke of that adventure for the rest of her life.

Nadine was the mother of Troy and Renee, who she enjoyed immensely and who supported her emotionally. Renee married Perry Hazard, a rancher from Saguache. Nadine loved and respected her son-in-law as well as her four grandchildren. Megan, Will, Ben and Kait were the joy of her life.

She could be seen wrestling, reading, painting, hiking, having picnics, and so much more with all of them. She and several other grandparents made up the cheering section at school sports and activities. Nadine could be seen smiling, laughing, and cheering on both sides, as everyone needs some encouragement. She rarely missed anything the grandkids were doing. When Kait was in high school, she coached youth basketball. When asked why Nadine went to all of her games even though Kait didn't play, Nadine said, "if I don't go, then it's over."

She never wanted any of her time with her grandkids to be over. She followed their lives on a huge map on her dining room table. She would say, "it's like I can be with them along their way." She helped to shape each of them into the people they are today.

Nadine had hidden plans we just recently found. They included, running with the bulls at Paloma, climbing breathlessly up a beautiful mountain, though I think she did this throughout her life, and walking the Appalachia Trail. She may not have accomplished all of those plans but there were so many she did.

Nadine could, among other things, paint a house inside and out, dry-wall, tape, and texture, letter truck emblems, operate an orchard, embroider, make beautiful quilts, ride a horse, make blankets, sing solo at a wedding, sing lead in a barber shop chorus, play the piano and pump organ for church and pleasure, sing in the church choir, scrapbook, run a tractor, rake hay, play cards, do paper quilling, make miniature houses. Everything she pursued, she did so with excellence.

Nadine was a sign painter, the owner of 18 horses, a trail boss, pilot and navigator, a delivery person, a volunteer, a good cook and baker, a florist and an excellent gift buyer, an executive secretary, and a business owner.

She spent her first 18 years on the plains of eastern Nebraska where she lived and grew. She realized how beautiful that country is — so green, so lovely, sometimes so lush. But, oh the mountains, her heart was there. She lived the rest of her life surrounded by the Rocky Mountains. She was sure anywhere she was; she'd find the beauty.

More than anything, Nadine loved her family. Nadine Florence Clausen Dieckman died on Friday, June 20, 2024, at the age of 90.

Nadine is survived by her brother Lavern Clausen, sister Bonnie Converse, sister-in-law Pat Clausen, son Troy Dieckman, daughter and son-in-law Renee and Perry Hazard, and her beloved grandchildren Megan and Matt Varoz, Senior Master Sergeant Will and Dr. Linh Hazard, Ben and Dr. Kaeli Hazard, Professor Kait and Zach Cureton-Hazard.

She was preceded in death by her parents Olie and Florence (Glandt) Clausen, her brother Duane Clausen, sister-in-law Alma Clausen, brother-in-law Robert Converse, and great-nephew Robert Clausen.

The older Nadine became the more she realized trying to grow old gracefully was harder than she thought it could be and the more she realized she had no desire for drama or conflict. She just wanted a cozy home, good food, and to be surrounded by lovely people who made her happy.

Her wish was for us to be giddy, silly, and to have fun.

There will be a celebration of life on Monday, July 22, at 10 a.m. at Living Water Bible Fellowship, 2910 Clark St., Alamosa, Colo.

In lieu of any gift, please consider donating to the Mosca-Hooper Volunteer Fire Department at 5235 N Hwy 17, Mosca, CO 81146

Marylou Perea

Alamosa resident Marylou Perea, 85, fell asleep in death on July 2, 2024. Marylou was born to John Smith and Molly Padilla on March 6, 1939, in Greeley, Colo.

Marylou came to love and appreciate Jehovah's ways (John 17:3). Marylou loved reading her Bible every day. Alone with reading her Bible, she loved studying and preparing for Christian meetings at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses. She enjoyed associating with her brothers and sisters at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses. Marylou was extremely lovable and was loved by family and friends.

Marylou fell asleep knowing that she will be resurrected in perfect health and young again and will live in a beautiful paradise here on earth just as it is promised in the Bible at Psalm 37:29-30 "The righteous will possess the earth, and they will live forever on it" and John 5:28 & 29- "The hour is coming is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out." She held on to the hope of living forever on earth and seeing her loved ones again when Jesus will resurrect them and that thought alone reassured her heart of better things to come.

Marylou is survived by her children, Tammy Ruybal, Jackie (Terry) Cunningham, Roberta Martinez, Dondy (Dishon) Perea and Rodrigo (Nikki) Perea. She is survived by seven grandchildren, Roger Romero Jr., Rick J Romero, Don Jacob Ruybal, Corey James Ruybal, Lenny Martinez, Michael Martinez, and Keith Martinez. She is also survived by her siblings Joe, Sunny, Ruby and Lupe and many nephews and nieces.

She was preceded in death by her siblings Ruth, Jessy and Bobby and her grandson Luke Martinez.

Memorial services for Marylou are pending.

nieces. Her sisters Alice and Barbara were her dear friends and spending time with their families was very important to Lois. She married Arthur Siri, and he completed our family.

that embraces them both. Lisa Morales' credentials on the songwriter scene were established long before the release of her debut solo album, "My Beautiful Mistake," in 2011. In addition to performing and recording for nearly two decades as part of the acclaimed San Antonio-based sibling duo Sisters Morales (with her beloved sister, Roberta, who passed away from cancer in August 2021), Lisa also produced "Flowers & Liquor," the 2002 debut album by Americana music favorite Hayes Carll.

But it was "My Beautiful Mistake" (hailed by Lone Star Music Magazine as "an absolutely flat-out devastating and stunning work of art") and it's equally luminous follow-up, 2018's "Luna Negra & the Daughter of the Sun," that marked the Tucson, Ariz.-native's true arrival as a creative force to be reckoned with and, according to Rolling Stone, "one of the most multifaceted artists to watch in 2018."

On her third album, 2022's "She Ought to Be King," Lisa Morales once again affirmed her world-class stature with a distinctive perspective and a remarkable capacity for looking both inward and outward.

"I've been looking at how strong we women are," she says "We keep evolving and gaining more confidence with time. We don't sink into our own shoes — we stand taller in them."

Morales recently finished recording her next album "Sonora," as yet unreleased, and will be featuring some of the new material in her Society Hall concert.

in, a 75-hour training program that exposes kids ages 14 to 18 to what it's like to be a firefighter. This week, Alamosa Fire Chief Bill Stone gave the Rotary Club an overview of the program as it concludes its first year. He opened by introducing Aiden, a recent graduate from the group of eight who participated.

"I love the program," Aiden said. "I love everything you learn. I've always wanted to do it. I grew up watching my uncle do it every year in Pueblo. He's an engineer [with a fire department], and I saw how it works. And when Adam (Lopez) went to my dad and said they were going to do the program, I was excited. I've been waiting for a long time to be in the program and I finally got to do it."

Stone then provided a little background.

"My wife teaches at Ortega Middle School, and she said that she sees so many kids who have no hope. Economically, a lot of the kids are at a major disadvantage, have no support at home and they just need...something. A lot of people were trying to think of what could be done to support our youth, so, the wheels were already turning."

Stone saw the Explorer

Program as an immediate fit for those teenagers — boys and girls — who need something to look forward to in life that would also hold such interest that the experience could possibly prevent them from getting into bad habits.

"I've been a part of fire departments where they had Explorer Programs, but those were affluent areas. It seemed like it could make an even greater impact to initiate something like that here."

So, I spoke with some of our fire guys. I spoke with (Alamosa City Manager) Heather Sanchez and a lot of different people."

Stone admits that "there was pushback, as always happens with new programs." But he kept at it. "I saw the bigger picture as being more important than the pushback. I told them this is bigger than you or me or all of us, and, eventually, this is going to come back around and affect us all in a positive way."

As is also true with any new program, funding was needed to get it off the ground. Stone singles out two people who were invaluable.

Adam Lopez, an engineer with the Alamosa Fire Department, works with the Boys and Girls Clubs of the San Luis Valley and was able to obtain grant funding to make the program a reality. Reyna Martinez, who works with RETAC [Regional Emergency Medical and Trauma Services Advisory Council], garnered even more support for the effort. And Stone "rearranged some things" in his budget to make it work.

"We just wanted to get the program rolling and expose [the students] to what it could be like. We invited them to weekend duties and various trainings. They went through CPR, and we got many of them red cards, a qualification needed to fight wildland fires."

To be successful, the program also had to be led by the right person. Chief Stone does not hold back in praising AFD Engineer Adam Lopez for organizing the program and heading up much of the training.

"Adam Lopez did an incredible job in training this first class of explorers," Stone said.

At the end of the program, some of the 18-year-old students wanted to pursue a career in firefighting or volunteer at a fire department. One student is going to Leadville Junior College to pursue an Associates in Fire Science. Others just wanted to test it out and see if it was right for them.

But even those students gained from the experience. "Those students said, 'I may not want to do this, but I learned a lot about teamwork and physical fitness. I got a lot of positive out of this and I spent my time in a positive way.' That's what we wanted to accomplish."

Aiden is the youngest in the group at 14 years old. Stone said they weren't certain about reaching out to students still in middle school. But he's such a "stand-out kid", they now know that they can reach out to students who are that young and still have it be a successful experience.

Some of the other training they were exposed to was automobile extrication. "They went through the same training all of basic firefighters go through, so they got to learn how to utilize the jaws of life and all the cutting tools."

Stone also brought in firefighters from Milwaukee, Wis., and South Carolina that he had known for years who provided training on ladder work, hose, forceful entry. "That was a very taxing weekend. They worked their butts off, but they got a lot out of it."

When asked about his favorite part, Aiden said "the rescue part." He's also more interested in structure fires than wildland fires.

"It's been a lot of fun. They learned a lot from us, but we learned a lot from them, too," Stone said. He also added that the students put in 75 hours of training and, in exchange, received a $700 stipend.

Stafford

we interested in this, she almost tackled me pushing the 'yes' button."

Stafford, who comes across as an engaging and friendly yet clearly professional person, can also hit the ground running. Due to being licensed in both Texas and Florida, he has a "practice pending admission" which, under Kelly's supervision, allows him all the "normal workings of an attorney", like filing paperwork or acting in court on his own behalf.

While in Miami, Stafford was an assistant state attorney handling a broad range of cases. When he moved to Houston, he became more specialized in sexual abuse. During the past year and a half, while he was in the Child Sexual Abuse Division, Stafford had 270 of his cases in two courts with 75 of them set for trial. In one nine-month period, he went to trial 12 times, all child sex abuse cases.

When asked what prosecuting so many really tough cases does to a person, Stafford laughs, a genuine and warm sound. "That's why I'm here," he says. "There's a difference to go from a trespass to a theft to a crime with guns to child sexual abuse. That's a whole different world you just have to get used to."

Asked how he keeps faith in humanity prosecuting cases like that, he says, "It's actually easier here — at least for the time I've been here so far — because it's such a closeknit community. When I go out and talk with people, there are real, human connections. When you're in a city with three million people, they're completely anonymous, so all you see is the bad and everybody is just going about their lives as fast as they can. Here, there's real community and, so far, I'm really enjoying it."

Stafford sees his role as ADA directly tied to Kelly, who "has a pretty solid view" of where she wants the office to go.

"We've integrated really quickly the administrative side as well as the litigation side of what I'm doing. So, it's about making sure her vision keeps moving forward. From what I've seen, it's really headed in the right direction," he said.

He then adds, "But, ultimately, I serve at the pleasure of the District Attorney."

Stafford will be chief of staff over the attorneys, involved in training other attorneys as much as he can. Along with Kelly, he's also going to try to give law enforcement on the ground a little more training.

"I'm actually really excited about going to work with the police departments to give them as much help as I can," he said.

Stafford comes from enormous DA offices in both Miami and Houston. When asked about making the adjustment, he says, "One of the bigger reasons I wanted to work with Anne is that she's one of the nicest people in the world. But she's also very supportive and direct with how she wants to change things and make things better."

"I came here with the intention of staying. It's a great opportunity and a great position. I love the idea of being able to help people as an Assistant District Attorney and the case load that I have. I'm very passionate about the sex assault cases. It's one of the areas where you can really put on that white hat and say, 'I have an innocent victim' because a child is always going to be innocent. And it's always satisfying to give the family justice because these are some of the worst crimes that can happen."

Being an ADA in a small town can be a different experience from what he's known in the past, but not as big as people might expect.

"People see justice as people going to prison. That's not always what happens. There are a lot of things we can do to help young people get back on track. But there are also people who need to be in jail. Although a lot of what we do happens in the courtroom, everything we do has an impact on people outside. That's true everywhere," he said.

"Our Office continues to prioritize recruiting and retaining skilled and dedicated attorneys to serve the San Luis Valley," Kelly states. "We have attracted attorneys here by highlighting the opportunity to be part of a team focused on materially improving the community's perception of the district attorney's office and the justice system. I am proud of the work that we have done, and recruiting Mr. Stafford is a huge win for the San Luis Valley."

Church Project owner Madelein Ahlborn cuts the ribbon during a ceremony on July 5 at 256 South Broadway in Monte Vista.

Ribbon Cutting held at Church Project

By MARIE MCCOLM
MONTE VISTA – Approximately 40 people gathered at the Church Project for its ribbon cutting and official opening on Friday, July 5.

Church Project owner Madeleine Ahlborn was joined by her parents from Wisconsin, her Godparents from Wyoming, and fellow artists to christen the building at 256 South Broadway.

Monte Vista Chamber of Commerce Manager Heather Hillin and members of the OptiMystics Citizen Action Network cheered with everyone as Ahlborn cut the red ribbon.

With the members of her board for the Church Project and the volunteers who helped with the many hours of restoration standing behind her, Ahlborn looked up at all the balloons near the entrance of the Church Project, and said, "I am so thrilled to see all of you here today, as we celebrate the transformation of the historic First Baptist Church, into a creative space, to provide the freedom for all people, to unlock their creative potential. Over the last year since I have moved into the space, we have had more than 30 community members, and over 500 hours of volunteer work, that's been put into this space so far, to launch this transformation."

Ahlborn thanked her board of advisors, stating that she appreciated their support and creativity in helping her move the project forward, by helping her organize finances, and hang drywall, and reminding her to stay hydrated throughout the process.

"I can't thank these individuals enough for being the scaffolding in this wild vision that I have, which we call 'The Dream Machine,'" she said.

Ahlborn said that she appreciated the financial support from her parents, Seth and Carrie Ahlborn, and others such as First Southwest Bank, the LOR Foundation, the Redline Contemporary Arts Center of Denver, and The Gates Family Foundation.

"As an artist myself, I have always been intrigued by what a space is, where it can take us, and what it can become. This project belongs to the community of Monte Vista, and the greater San Luis Valley. We can build it together," she said.

Hillin, of the Monte Vista Chamber, welcomed Ahlborn to the community.

"Today we are celebrating the transformation of this historic Church into a vibrant community art center. The space, once a place of worship, will now be a sanctuary for creativity, inspiration, and community engagement. Special thanks to Maddy, (Madeleine) whose vision and hard work made this all possible," Hillin said.

Ahlborn's vision for the Church Project is to provide the space and the freedom for people to unlock their creative potential.

"I really want this building to not only belong to me, but to belong to the community. I want people to feel that and to believe that they collectively own the building too," she said.

Ahlborn's parents said they were proud of their daughter.

Ahlborn moved to the San Luis Valley in 2014. Last year, she was offered the chance to purchase the beautiful historic building for the Church Project by her former landlord Ron Douglas.

Ahlborn's vision for the Church Project is to provide the space and the freedom for people to unlock their creative potential.

Carrie said, "We are so proud, this is a very important project, not only for Maddy but also for Monte Vista. I believe there will be more Church Projects around the country when the time comes. Maddy has been here a long time now and has gotten to know a lot of people. They have seen her vision; people collaborate here well. What is so amazing is how Maddy looks at this building, it's not a building, it's a piece of art."

Ahlborn's Godparents, Cindy and Tim Butera, surprised Ahlborn. When Ahlborn saw them, she did a double take, and then ran and greeted them with a big hug. Cindy and Tim both said they would not have missed her big day for anything.

"We are very proud of her. We knew she would be a wonderful woman and she is," they said.

For more information on the Church Project, visit the Church Project's Facebook page.

Hillin handed Ahlborn a plaque from the Monte Vista Chamber.

The ribbon cutting took place one year to the day that Ahlborn moved into the location and began her restoration.

Mercadillo en el Rio grand opening is July 17

Opening brings fresh, local produce to Community

CONTRIBUTED
ALAMOSA – Mercadillo en el Rio recently announced its opening will be on July 17. Located at Rio Grande Farm Park, 6935 Highway 17, Alamosa, the market is a vibrant part of the community, offering a wide array of fresh, locally grown produce, artisanal goods, locally made food and handmade crafts from regional farmers, vendors, and food trucks. The Mercadillo, featuring naturally grown onsite produce, will be open 3 to 7 p.m. every Wednesday, providing a convenient and enjoyable shopping experience for residents and visitors alike. Through its diverse offerings and events, the market aims to support local agriculture, promote sustainable practices, and foster a sense of community.

“We are excited to bring another year of Mercadillo en el Rio back to life and provide a space where the community can come together to enjoy fresh, healthy food and unique products,” said Market Manager Fernando Herrera. “Our vendors are passionate about their products, and we believe this market will become a beloved weekly destination for families and individuals in Alamosa.”

Attendees can meet local farmers, sample fresh produce, and learn more about sustainable farming practices.

Key highlights of Mercadillo en el Rio this week include lettuce, chard, kale, cilantro, garlic, and beets.

The San Luis Valley Local Foods Coalition’s Rio Grande Farm Park creates and sustains a vibrant place where people come to learn, play, and grow. The RGFP maintains 15 acres for farmers to grow food regeneratively. The park welcomes aspiring growers to join commercial or community plots and participate in regenerative agriculture workshops.

During summer, people may purchase fresh produce from RGFP at Mercadillo en el Rio. While the whole 38 acres provide youth and community education, robust volunteer programs, a public park, and an orchard, the diverse community of farmers hails from Mexico, Guatemala, and Southern Colorado, coming together to cultivate an organic, regenerative farm that nourishes body and soul.

Mercadillo en el Rio will start its season from 3 to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, featuring local produce and much more.

Freeloading dad wants to add a freeloading wife

DEAR ABBY: My father has depended on my mother (and me) for money for as long as I can remember. It wasn't because he was unable to work, but because he was lazy and had a drinking and gambling problem. My parents eventually divorced, and my father moved in with his sister (my aunt). She died in 2016, which would have made my father homeless, so my sister and I bought our aunt's home from our cousins so he could stay there.

Fast-forward: Our father is planning to remarry. We do not love paying for him to live rent-free in our house, but in no way do we plan to pay for his future wife to live in the house. The money isn't that significant, but it is more the principle of the matter to me. I don't believe in supporting lazy people who take advantage of others. How do we kick our father out of the house without being total jerks? He is older and not in great health. We suspect the equally nonworking, slightly younger woman he plans to marry sees this as a chance to move into a house for free, knowing it is hard to kick out squatters. Please advise. -- FRUSTRATED SON

IN NEW YORK DEAR SON: You and your family have ALLOWED your father to continue living his life dependent upon all of you. I hope your aunt's house is in your and your sister's names, or you will have no say about who your father invites in. The time has come to put your foot down. Consult an attorney for legal guidance about this matter. You are not obligated to financially support any person to whom your father takes a liking and wants to live with, married or not.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 47-year-old woman. I have been with my partner for 10 years. He was the most amazing person in years past, but lately he has been dismissive, avoids all emotional topics and is absent for days off and on. If I bring it up, he borders on abusive. Suddenly, he's belittling me and making me feel like I'm not the beautiful person he's always proclaimed I was. For my own sanity, I left him. Now he's promising he will have counseling (together and separately) so that he can get better and help me understand why he did a complete 180. Should I believe him? Should I take another chance on us? I love him, but it took so long to heal that I'm stuck in self-preservation mode. What should I do -- walk or talk? -- FRACTURED IN ARIZONA DEAR FRACTURED: You say you left him -- that was healthy. Some women stay and tolerate abuse until their self-esteem is completely eroded. Because you still care for him, I vote for giving him the second chance he is asking for, BUT ONLY AFTER THE COUNSELING HE HAS PROMISED IS WELL UNDERWAY. You deserve not only an apology but answers for the treatment you received from him. Do not reconcile until you have them.
