Christian 'vocal' band Crystal River coming to Center

CONTRIBUTED

CENTER — A true love for music that was nurtured in a "close-knit" family environment, along with a sincere desire to reach out to people with God's message has made Crystal River an important instrument for God in today's world. The band from Texas will be singing at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 6, at Center United Methodist Church, 387 S. Broadway St.

With Christian songs ranging from mellow contemporary to country and southern gospel as well as other styles, and with personal testimonies covering a wide variety of topics, this group has been on the road since August of 1980.

With over 50 recordings to date, and with appearances on the TBN and Primetime Christian Television Networks, as well as a "daily" radio program that can be heard worldwide through Facebook and the internet, Crystal River has had the opportunity to reach many souls with the message of God's love through song, music, and testimony. Born, raised, and still headquartered in Lubbock, Texas, Crystal River tours extensively to all parts of the United States sharing their music, personal testimony and many of their "family" experiences that so many people relate to. Come and meet the Gonzalez brothers Joel, Carlos and Hector and their nephew Tom and enjoy a fun moment of Christian music and heartfelt worship.

Ag worker appreciation barbecue Aug. 4

By MARIE MCCOLM

CENTER — Attention anyone in the agriculture industry, the San Luis Valley Agricultural Coalition is having its annual appreciation barbecue and resource fair from 2 to 7 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 4, at Center's Casa Blanca Park.

This will be the eighth year of the event and as always it is free.

The event is child friendly and will feature splash pads for the kids. There will also be many fun activities for the children, including face painting and other activities.

Members of the SLV Ag Coalition will be serving food throughout the day.

Agencies will be on site, offering information and assistance to people in the ag industry. Some of the subjects that will be covered by these partnering agencies will be healthcare, education, safety, food security, immigration, and agricultural rights.

Edgar Martinez, of the SLV Agricultural Coalition, stated that they are looking forward to holding the event.

"We really hope the attendees enjoy an afternoon 'off' and come on down. We hope that they can relax and enjoy a meal prepared in their honor," Martinez said.

The San Luis Valley Agricultural Coalition is a group of individuals, agencies and organizations, that strive to improve, assist, and interpret difficulties and obstacles that agricultural workers may face in the San Luis Valley. The coalition offers information on resources and education for ag workers.

Many agricultural workers travel from town to town, switching jobs with the seasons. The need for adequate food, healthcare, and general knowledge of where to go as they travel is key to helping agricultural workers be successful in their work and their travels.

Martinez stated, "This barbecue is being held to offer the agricultural community a respite from the hustle and bustle of the work they do, and to give them the opportunity to break bread with others with whom they work, and those who dearly appreciate their dedication to the toilsome work they encounter daily."

SAGUACHE — The annual Arts Walk and Hollyhock Festival was on Saturday, July 27. The festival began at 10 a.m. with many art vendors and residents in attendance. The sun was high in the sky, but there was also a light breeze that drifted in, as people walked up and down the streets, visiting art booths, making purchases, smiling, and socializing at the beautiful festival.

Many people were wearing wings, and walking around town with wings, for the festival looking for the fairy houses that have become a staple of the event.

Each booth that housed an artist was decorated. There was a booth with large wind chimes that were made of beautiful stained glass with rainbows of colors, that sparkled as the sun hit them. There was a

OBITUARIES

Karla Elizabeth Heckaman

Karla Elizabeth Heckaman, a dedicated and respected longtime Deputy with the El Paso County Sheriff's Office, passed away on July 25, 2024, in Del Norte, Colo. She was born on May 27, 1955, in Del Norte, Colo. Karla led a fulfilling life that touched the hearts of many.

Throughout her professional career as a Deputy, Karla exemplified integrity and commitment, leaving a lasting impact on her colleagues and the community she served. Her dedication to public service was truly commendable and she will be remembered for her unwavering dedication to upholding the law and ensuring the safety of others.

Karla's educational journey was marked by academic achievements, having earned a bachelor's degree from Adams State University in 1977. Not stopping there, she pursued further studies and obtained a master's degree in counseling and furthermore took some Ph.D. classes. This pursuit of knowledge and growth reflected her intellectual curiosity and passion for learning.

Outside of her professional endeavors, Karla found joy in various hobbies and interests. She had a deep love for sports, found solace in the company of her beloved cats, and cherished moments spent with her great-nieces and nephews. Her kind and nurturing spirit extended not only to her work but also to her personal life.

Karla's memory will forever be treasured by her surviving family members: sister, Carol (Paul) Voris, niece, Gail McDowell, nephew, Michael (Rachel) Voris, great-nieces and nephews, Giada, Brock, Josiah, Beau, and Zakiah.

She was preceded by her father, Norman Heckaman, mother, Helen Paulson Heckaman, and twin sister, Kathy Heckaman.

A Celebration of Life service in honor of Karla is scheduled to take place at Mountain Valley Mortuary in Monte Vista, Colo., on Aug. 3, 2024. The event will begin at 2 p.m. as friends, family, and colleagues come together to commemorate the life of a remarkable individual whose legacy will continue to inspire all those who had the privilege of knowing her.

In remembrance of Karla Elizabeth Heckaman's indelible contributions to both her profession and personal relationships, may she rest in peace knowing that she has left an enduring mark on all who were fortunate enough to have crossed paths with this exceptional soul.

In honor of her love for animals, contributions may be made to the Conour SLV Animal Shelter in care of the funeral home. To express condolences, view a tribute slideshow or to stream the service, please visit www.mvmortuary.com.

Michal Jean Thompson Oct. 24, 1945 – July 9, 2024

Michal Jean Thompson, 78, passed away peacefully surrounded by family on the morning of July 9, 2024, at her home in Highland Village, Texas. Born to Gladys and Alton Berry on Oct. 24, 1945, Michal's life was a tapestry of loyalty, kindness, and dedication to her family and friends.

Michal was born in Gladewater, Texas, and later moved to Carrollton in 1950 where she grew up with her siblings, Pat Kozak and Jo Wysong. Her childhood was filled with simple joys such as neighborhood baseball games with the Fultons and Shaws on Rosemon Avenue, cheerleading, and vacationing with her family in Colorado, which laid the foundation for her love of nature and the outdoors.

After being a member of the first graduating class from RL Turner High School in 1964, she pursued her passion for the entertainment industry by becoming a Casting Director. She had the opportunity to meet several actors along the way including her heartthrob, Kevin Costner.

In 1995, Michal rekindled a relationship with her high school friend, Kirk Thompson and a budding romance ensued. They made it official, marrying in 2005 and then began their journey by relocating to South Fork, Colo., where they resided in their dream home, they named Riversong.

Michal's greatest joy in life was her family. Her children, Sean Stone and Shelley Neustupa were her pride and joy, and they blessed her with five amazing grandchildren who became the center of her universe. Her children and grandchildren will forever cherish their summers with Sita at Riversong, where her famous monkey bread for breakfast became a staple of every trip!

Michal was preceded in death by her parents, Gladys and Alton Berry and survived by her devoted husband Kirk; her children, Sean Stone and wife Kathleen, Shelley Neustupa and husband Brad; her five grandchildren, Cameron Neustupa, Cameron Stone, Colby Stone, Caden Stone, and Cody Neustupa; and her beloved sisters Pat Kozak and Jo Wysong, as well as her lifelong friends, who together were known as the Steel Magnolias.

Michal's smile could light up a room and her laughter could fill the largest of spaces. She was a force of nature and an endless river of love and positivity that swept those around her into her current. She will be greatly missed.

We will carry our memories of you in our hearts forever. Until we see you again.

Leonard Martinez

Leonard Martinez, a man of spirited intelligence and profound faith, passed away peacefully on July 14, 2024, in Pueblo, Colo. Born on Aug. 5, 1950, in Center, Colo., Leonard's life was a testament to the love and dedication he had for his family, his country, and the simple joys that life had to offer.

Leonard's journey began as the cherished son of Josie and Celedon Martinez, whose memory he now joins in eternal rest, along with his beloved daughters Leeann, Louann, Gwen, and Jessica.

His life was a tapestry woven with the love of his surviving family members, who were the cornerstone of his existence. His devoted wife, Louella, was his lifelong companion and best friend. Leonard's legacy continues through his brother Elmer, sister Gloria, daughter Anneli (Mike) Savala, and son Leonard William Jr. His grandchildren, Alexis (Jerry) Huff, Austin Echeverria, Genesis Savala (Diego Villegas), Devon Martinez (Kriselle Dupont), Michael (Ceri) Savala, and Jeremiah Silva, along with great-grandchildren Tanzen Garcia, Wynona Huff, and Shia Savala, will carry forward the light of his spirit.

A proud Veteran, Leonard served his country with honor and valor in the United States Navy. His service aboard the U.S.S. Blue Ridge took him across the globe to places such as Vietnam, Okinawa, Hong Kong, and Rio de Janeiro. His experiences during his service not only shaped his character but also instilled in him a deep sense of patriotism and camaraderie.

Leonard's passions were as diverse as they were heartfelt. He found joy in the simple pleasure of playing the lottery, hoping for that lucky scratch-off ticket. Bingo nights were a source of excitement and community for him. His love for music was not just a hobby but a creative outlet, as he poured his soul into writing songs. Leonard's hands were skilled and caring, whether he was under the hood of a car or meticulously tending to his lawn, his pride in his work was evident to all who knew him.

Spirituality was the compass by which Leonard navigated life. His faith was unwavering, and it guided him through life's challenges and triumphs. His family was his sanctuary, the place where he found the most joy and fulfillment. Leonard's love for his wife, Louella, was unparalleled. He often proclaimed that she was "the best cook in the world," and their inseparable bond was a testament to their enduring love.

A recitation of the rosary will be held at 6 p.m. on Thursday, July 18, 2024, at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Monte Vista, Colo. A Memorial Mass will be held on Friday, July 19, 2024, at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Monte Vista, Colo. Burial with Military Honors will be held at Homelake Veterans Cemetery following the Mass.

Rogers Family Mortuary is in the care of the arrangements. To leave online condolences, tributes, and words of comfort for Leonard's family, please visit www.RogersFunerals.com.

Rocks on the brain

Ol' Dutch comes from a long line of rock collectors so it only stands to reason that he would also find pleasure in studying and finding rocks of different kinds. Rockhounding started way back in my roots – and on both sides of the family tree – so the old blood shines through, I guess.

I am not sure how that all works as it can skip a generation or two but then suddenly show back up down the proverbial blood line for no apparent reason. Grand #2 somehow caught that gene and since her toddler days has loved to look for and collect rocks.

Just yesterday Ol' Dutch's nephew came to visit for a vacation, and it appears that he is now going to be hauling rocks home by the truckload, too. His 9-year-old son has also inherited that rock-loving mania and is on his way to collecting pounds and pounds of rocks.

What is amazing is this "disease" can also appear suddenly in a person whose family never really had much interest in collecting pretty rocks. And that is what happened with Miss Trixie. She is also enamored not only with the rock collecting but with identifying just how they were formed.

She has really studied this area and the La Garita Supervolcano that occurred here from which many of the collectable rocks and gemstones originated. We spend time every summer looking for new places to find them. It was a huge volcano and, by some measurements, the largest explosion originating on planet Earth, so we are lucky to have such a place literally in our backyard.

Now Ol' Dutch has been accused more than once of having "rocks for brains" or some such thing but now I tend to have rocks in the truck for our return to our winter abode as Miss Trixie picks them up with raw abandon.

This week we will show my nephew's family some of our favorite spots – and collect more specimens, I'm sure.

And fun it will be as we have some great sites to revisit with Colorado Opal, geodes, amethyst, silver, quartz, thunder eggs, jasper, petrified wood, and innumerable other kinds of rocks.

As you all know, Miss Trixie is generous to a fault and will give away about anything she can lay her hands on. This became apparent to Ol' Dutch when I found a nice piece of amber some 55 million years old.

Miss Trixie asked to see it and Ol' Dutch expected to get it back, but she passed it on to Grand #2 who was with us that day. And poor Ol' Dutch, who had never found a piece of that in his long lifetime, still doesn't have one in my collection as that kid won't give it back. And not to be outdone, Grand #1 found some real gold standing right next to me on the same day so I guess maybe it was just not my day.

This week marks the start of the Gem and Mineral show in Creede, Colorado and vendors and collectors come in from all over the country to hawk their wares to people of like mind. They not only have raw minerals and stones but lots of finished products that they have produced such as jewelry and decorative display pieces.

It is open this week Friday-Sunday, August 2-4, 10am-5pm and I encourage you to pay them a visit at the Creede Community Center if you want to see some great finds from local to around the world collections. Entrance is free, and the inside temps are cool.

We will have to go as I have created a rock collecting monster by exposing Miss Trixie to the hobby of rock hoarding and I am sure she will come away with some new finds there, too. That is if I can get her away from the show as she finds new "best friends" at every booth there and long conversations ensue with Ol' Dutch standing around on one foot and the other while she finds out that she and her new friends are related, something like ninth cousins, removed.

If you are interested in knowing more about the area and where to look, she is willing to share that with you and will give away my prime area locations to all that ask. Thanks again, Miss Trixie.

One person who cares can change a student's life

By the time she took the dais at the Arapaho Charter High School graduation this spring, Principal Katie Law was beyond tired. She'd spent the last two days coaching students at the state track meet, and they made the drive back to Wyoming's Wind River Indian Reservation just in time for the ceremony.

Maybe it was the fatigue of the trip. Maybe it was the years she spent herding this class to the finish line. The hours answering their phone calls, figuring out plan Bs, worrying about them at every setback.

As she addressed the crowd, Law was nearly overcome with emotion. She paused before regaining control. There was so much to celebrate.

On this day, 14 students donned caps and gowns, the largest graduating class in the school's history. Among them were a record four students who graduated at least a semester early and three who were dual enrolled in a community college. Eight were headed to college or Job Corps.

For a tiny school that lags far behind conventional performance measures, these were significant wins.

The school, which serves majority Native American students, reports higher-than-average rates of foster care, homelessness and involvement in the criminal justice system. Some 70% of students live in single-parent households or have a deceased parent. In 2018, the on-time graduation rate was 0%.

I spent four months visiting the school during the semester before graduation this year. Data points can't capture the hurdles they faced — lost loved ones and an education system that's historically failed Indigenous students.

But what the seniors had to their advantage was an advocate and a reliable source of support: Principal Katie Law. An athletic white woman, Law often engaged in tasks that went beyond traditional principal duties. She made sure to learn the personal lives, history and family dynamics of all her students.

Well before Law was recently awarded Principal of the Year by the Arapaho Charter High School Principal Katie Law hands out a diploma. This year, writer Katie Klingsporn spent four months regularly visiting Arapaho Charter High School on the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming. She wanted to know how Law had turned the school around, from zero graduates in 2018, to 14 graduates this spring, with eight going on to college or Job Corps.

Wyoming Association of Secondary Schools in a surprise ceremony, it was clear she had a rare level of commitment.

"I get a lot of, 'That's not your job,'" she says. "I'm like, 'I know, but whose job is it?'"

"You're not going to find another principal or educator that puts as much time in as she does in the evenings, on the weekends," District Superintendent Curt Mayer said.

She was hired to teach in the Arapaho school's district 18 years ago, at age 23. The school was rough. Drug use and gang violence were common. She kept her head down, helped where she could. Slowly, she started building relationships.

Law helps students get their driver's licenses, chaperones college visits and makes calls when kids get arrested. Students have gone to Law with news that they are pregnant, and she has later cared for their infants in her office while they attend class.

The work can be devastating, and many fixes don't last. Law is stubborn. "I think my biggest asset is, I won't give up."

Law doesn't pretend to share a background with her reservation students, but she uses her own experiences to build empathy. School didn't come easily to her. Her brother died young from diabetes. And she witnessed a murder at age 14. These are experiences her students can relate to.

The motivation is simple. "I want to see these students succeed, and I'm going to do what it takes," she said.

It seems to work. At graduation, the seniors handed out roses to people who were meaningful. Law received six roses, and six heartfelt hugs.

Law grew up in Colstrip, Mont., — 30 miles from the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reservation. She was the daughter of educators, and never thought she would enter that world.

It's not realistic to expect all struggling schools to find administrators like Law, who live and breathe their jobs and don't burn out. Still, parents and educators can take this to heart: One caring adult can make an enormous difference in a student's life.

But she wanted to help people, and education ultimately became the vehicle for that. During her first year of teaching in Nebraska, she found a distraught student crying in the bathroom one day and sat comforting her for an hour. When Law saw her years later, the student told her she was a pivotal teacher. It dawned on Law then that she's different.

Hearing delayed – again – in Mari Felix case

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER
ALAMOSA — Mari Felix, Alamosa resident and County Clerk and Recorder, appeared in the court of District Judge Crista Newmyer-Olsen on Tuesday for, what appeared on the docket as, her first appearance. Felix is facing a charge of accessory to a crime, a class 5 felony, related to the alleged sexual abuse of a child by her husband, Martin Felix-Lopez. Michael Martin, acting as defense counsel, addressed the court, stating there could be another delay. "It appears the DA's office has brought in an attorney to handle specifically these kinds of cases. I believe that this will facilitate a probable resolution," he said. Martin was referring to the recent hiring of Assistant District Attorney Wesley Stafford. Martin told the court he recognized that this was yet another delay in proceedings, which had included, at one time, Martin saying he was unable to open a file containing information from the district attorney's office. Judge Newmyer-Olsen said she was willing to set one more first appearance since the attorney involved in further proceedings was not in the courtroom.

She also made it clear it was time for Felix to either enter a not guilty plea or for defense and the prosecution to reach a resolution so the case could proceed. Felix's next hearing is set for Aug. 21. In mid-December of 2022, Mari Felix was taken into custody after one of her children reported a history of sexual abuse by Martin Felix-Lopez, Felix's husband, to a school counselor. At that time, Felix was charged with four felonies for alleged complicity in sexual assault on a child and child abuse. However, in early January of 2023, District Attorney Anne Kelly reduced Felix's charges to a single count of accessory to a crime, a class five felony. When asked to comment, DA Kelly declined, stating it was a case currently in litigation which prohibits her from discussing any details in the case. Mari Felix has been Alamosa County Clerk and Recorder since July of 2022 when she was appointed to the position following the resignation of her predecessor, Nicole Jaramillo. Just a few months later, Felix, who ran unopposed, was elected to office.

Motorcycle crash fatalities on the rise

CONTRIBUTED
STATEWIDE — The 100 deadliest days of summer is the well-known time between Memorial Day and Labor Day that law enforcement sees an increase in traffic crashes and fatalities. July frequently ends up being the peak month for various crash types investigated by Colorado State Troopers, including those involving motorcycles. This year is no exception. So far, in 2024, troopers have investigated 135 fatal crashes from Jan. 1 through July 16, and 15.5% (21) of those involved a motorcycle. But when the Patrol isolated just the first two weeks of July, the percentages more than doubled, with 16 fatal crashes and 37.5% (6) of those involving a motorcycle. "Riding a motorcycle comes with greater risk than driving a car or truck due to the lack of safety features, including airbags and seatbelts. Riders are simply more vulnerable," stated Col. Matthew C. Packard, chief of the Colorado State Patrol. "This underscores the responsibility that every rider must assume for their own safety. Receiving ongoing training, wearing protective gear and adhering to the rules of the road – these are the necessary steps for every rider." Colorado offers some of America West's most scenic and popular motorcycle rides, including routes like the San Juan Skyway National Scenic Byway and Santa Fe Trail. Due to the increase in riders during the warmer weather months, the Southwest District of the Colorado State Patrol began to track serious injuries and fatal motorcycle crashes at the beginning of the riding season (April/May) this year. From Jan. 1 to July 17, troopers in District 5 responded to and investigated 18 serious injury or fatal crashes involving a motorcycle, including two in the San Luis Valley – Del Norte and La Jara. Most riders were from Colorado but not always from the region. Sixty-one percent of the riders had an endorsement and wore a helmet. "It's not the number of years you've owned a motorcycle that builds mastery; it's the actual time spent learning how to control, corner, emergency brake and practice evasive maneuvers," stated Col. Packard. "Advanced motorcycle courses are a fantastic way to learn the best techniques without building bad habits while increasing skills to help you enjoy the ride." Mountain riding also comes with some common hazards. Here are what riders riding on our Western Slope should watch for during their ride:

- Blind corners with sheer rock faces next to the road
- Narrow shoulders or no shoulder at all with sharp drop-offs

- Rocks, gravel and other debris from snow melt
- Switchbacks and tight corners with little preparation time
- Congestion from RVs and vehicles towing boats and ATVs
- Potholes, bumps and weather-damaged surfaces
- Wildlife

STAFF REPORT
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) has granted Alamosa County $1,699,965 to study transmission lines in the Valley, according to Alamosa County Commissioner Lori Laske.

With practice and following the posted traffic rules, you will be ready to tackle the western slope and enjoy the scenic views. District 5 of the CSP encompasses the following counties: Alamosa, Archuleta, Conejos, Costilla, Delta, Dolores, Gunnison, Hinsdale, La Plata, Mineral, Montezuma, Montrose, Ouray, Rio Grande, Saguache, San Juan and San Miguel. out of a resilient and reliable electric grid, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) today announced 20 projects across 16 states selected to receive up to $371 million to accelerate the permitting of high-voltage, interstate transmission projects. "These projects will also support community infrastructure projects along major new and upgraded transmissions lines, including upgrading public school buildings and emergency response facilities. Administered by DOE's Grid Deployment Office, today's Transmission Siting and Economic Development (TSED) grants will help advance at least 16 high-impact transmission lines across the country supporting the deployment of reliable and affordable energy for consumers and creating good-paying jobs."

Alamosa County will receive $1.7M from the U.S. Department of Energy

Suspect in fatal Saguache County OIS identified

CONTRIBUTED
CRESTONE — The suspect killed in a fatal shooting by a Saguache County Sheriff Deputy last week has been identified as 40-year-old Jonathan Aaron Wood, the Colorado Bureau of Investigation reported on Monday. On Thursday, July 25, at approximately 12 p.m., a Saguache County Sheriff's Office deputy was driving near the town of Crestone to serve papers when he observed Wood walking about a mile from the entrance of the Baca Grande Subdivision, CBI reported. The deputy recognized Wood as having active warrants.

reported Wood was insisting he could hear voices screaming for help from his neighbor's shed and then from inside the neighbor's home after neighbors opened the shed to show Wood no one was inside. When deputies later attempted to speak to Wood, he threatened deputies with the wooden stick and allegedly punched a deputy in the head, CBI reported. Wood's failure to later appear in court on that assault charge is what led to the outstanding warrant and his fatal confrontation with a deputy on July 25. The Colorado Bureau of Investigation is assisting the Saguache County Sheriff's Office into the investigation of the fatal shooting. The deputy involved activated his bodycam and the footage is being reviewed by investigators. The deputy has been placed on administrative leave while the investigation continues.

CREEDE — Join in the fun and support Mineral County Search and Rescue. The 39th annual Snowshoe Shuffle 5K run and walk will be held at 9 a.m. on Aug. 3. Registration will start at 8 a.m. The race will begin at Basham Park in downtown Creede. Runners will start at 9 a.m. and walkers will start at 9:02 a.m. Awards are given to both runners and walkers in each age division — and there are a lot of age groups. “This race is for all abilities, ages, and sizes. Make this race as fun or challenging as you like. Runners, walkers, and baby strollers are welcomed as this is a fun family event,” organizers stated.

All entrants will receive a long-sleeved tech T-shirt celebrating the dark skies of Colorado.

Stay after the race for medals for the top three male and female runners and top three male and female walkers. There will also be ribbons for the top three finishers of each age and gender group for both the run and walk. The age groups are: 6 and under, 7-8, 9-10, 11-12, 13-15, 16-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, 75-79, 80-84, 85-89, 90 plus. While waiting for awards people can enjoy delicious cookies donated by Bristol Head Bakery, fruit, and water.

“We look forward to seeing you at this year’s event as we help support those who help us by volunteering their time to serve the Mineral County Search and Rescue,” organizers stated.

If you want to be involved by don’t want to walk or run, come help support the racers. For more information, contact Deb Haverfield at 719-850-7777.

Colorado Master Gardener program accepting applications

CONTRIBUTED

Do you love gardening? Whether you are a person doing your own backyard gardening or someone who does it for a living, the Colorado Master Gardener program may be for you. The Colorado Master Gardener program is where you learn in-depth about gardening in Colorado. The 12 gardening classes include vegetable gardening, tree care, diagnosing problems, weed control, plant pathology, soils and some time spent on mountain gardening. The program will be taught totally on-line, starting November 2024 and going through March 2025.

Getting signed up is a two-step process, first applying, and then after being accepted, registering.

The first step is to apply now, between Aug. 1 and Aug. 30, at ColoradoMasterGardener.org or go to <https://cmg.extension.colostate.edu/about/become-a-colorado-master-gardener-2/>. The second step, once your application has been accepted, is you will be sent a link to register and pay.

You have the option of two different program tracks. The first is the volunteer track. If a person has time and interest to volunteer to teach horticulture and gardening to others in our community, and to develop an ongoing relationship with other Master Gardeners, they can take the class for a much-reduced fee of $200. With the reduced fee, the volunteer agrees to provide 50 hours of volunteer time back to Colorado State University, in the San Luis Valley community, through the local Extension office after they have completed the classes. As is required of all Colorado State University volunteers, a background check and reference checks are required. After the background check is completed, you can register and pay for the course.

Not interested in volunteering? The second track is the non-volunteer track, called the Colorado Gardener Certificate. This is more for the person who just wants to increase their knowledge for themselves. Those who choose this program are not required to volunteer and will not join in with the ongoing Master Gardener group. This track is simpler to get signed up. There is no application or background check required, only registration. Registration for this track opens Aug. 19, and the fee is $545. There is a savings for early bird registration completed by Sept. 30.

For the volunteer track, the application period opens Aug. 1 and closes Aug. 30, and the first step is to apply right now. There are a limited number of scholarships available which cover part of the fee. You can learn more and apply online at ColoradoMasterGardener.org. You can also learn more from the SLV Area Extension Office by calling, emailing, or stopping in at 1899 East Hwy. 160, Monte Vista; phone 719-852-7381; email Larry Brown at L.Brown@colostate.edu or Jennifer Vandiver at Jennifer.Norris@colostate.edu.

Event and Conference at SLV Ski-Hi Complex in Monte Vista to raise over $94,000 for a significant upgrade to SLV Health's MRI machine in the Regional Medical Center in Alamosa.

Each year, an individual is recognized with an appreciation award. This year, the recipient was Geraldine Trujillo, who currently works in the SLVH Business department and has been a dedicated employee since 1998. She was acknowledged for her initiative, enthusiasm, and support of the SLVH Foundation. In 2004, she answered the call for employees to volunteer as Foundation Ambassadors. The Foundation Director at that time, along with Marv Motz, PhD, Foundation Board member, reached out to Trujillo and asked her to help start this group of volunteers.

Over the past 20 years, she has helped with multiple events including the Sporting Clay Shoot, Bolos and Boots, and the SLM walk and run. She not only volunteers her time, but she has also supported the employee campaign with generous donations since 2005. She has done everything from serving food, folding t-shirts, creating balloon arches, and much more. Per her speech, she has also shared her foundation passion with her family.

SLVH Foundation board member, Amy McKinley, introduced Alamosa State Bank as the winner of the prestigious Adamson Award. For over 20 years, Alamosa State Bank has been an unwavering pillar of support for the San Luis Valley Health Foundation. Their commitment and generosity have played a pivotal role in advancing SLVH's mission to provide outstanding healthcare to the residents of the San Luis Valley.

"It is with great honor that we present Alamosa State Bank with the prestigious Adamson Award. This award recognizes individuals who exemplify unparalleled dedication and compassion towards their community. Through their steadfast sponsorship and active participation in numerous endeavors, Alamosa State Bank has demonstrated an enduring commitment to improving the lives of others. Their contributions have been instrumental in the success of critical projects such as the Stephanie L. Miner Women's Imaging Center and the Cancer Center at San Luis Valley Health, among many others. Their philanthropy extends far beyond financial support; it embodies the essence of community stewardship," said McKinley.

With ASB's recent donation, they became a "Pillar of the Community," donating over $110,000 to ensure that the Valley's patients' healthcare needs are met and exceeded.

Chas Moeller, ASB President, accepted the award on behalf of the members of the bank.

"Alamosa State Bank has always felt it is an easy decision to support SLV Health. The hospital is such a vital piece of our community, and we commend all who offer support to SLV Health and the Foundation. Alamosa State Bank is humbled and honored to receive the Adamson Award this year," Moeller said.

A "whiskey draw" brought a lot of laughs and bidding. Several winners donated their bottles back to start the auction all over again. Many thanks to RG Bank for sponsoring this fun event, along with the many other auction item donors.

GREAT SAND DUNES NATIONAL PARK AND PRESERVE — Join the park service on Aug. 3 at Great Sand Dunes in celebrating the dark sky. This year the special presenter is Kozmic Kyle. The presentation will start at 8:45 p.m.

Until modern times, every culture has looked to the skies to find their direction, set their calendar, record their stories, and contemplate their place in this amazing cosmos. Rather than retelling the stories from the ancient Greek perspective, we will create new connections with the stars based on your experiences. You will learn to use a monthly star map to find your new stories in the real night sky. This program is interactive and best for ages 7-adult (but all are welcome). If you can, bring a red light and a pencil or pen for drawing on your sky map.

Kozmic Kyle has been a planetarium educator for 25 years and helped set up planetarium education programs in the UK, Poland, Ghana, Kenya, and many places in the US. He is especially interested in helping empower Indigenous cultures around the world to use modern planetarium tools to record, preserve and teach their own cultural knowledge in a good way. He looks forward to moving from cloudy, light polluted Seattle into the San Luis Valley's dark skies.

Volunteers for Outdoor Colorado in archeological survey

By JOHN WATERS
RIO GRANDE NATIONAL FOREST — According to Katie Goodleaf, volunteer coordinator with the U.S. Forest Service, a group with Volunteers for Outdoor Colorado (VOC), which usually works on trail-related projects, assisted forest archeologist Price Heiner last month in conducting an archeological search. After the fieldwork was complete, Heiner spoke with the Valley Courier and offered his assessment of the findings. “The group conducted preliminary reconnaissance in areas that never had any archeological surveys. This gave us a sense of what was out there. We did pedestrian transect surveys. This was a formal gridding of the landscape in a systematic way. This included marking and recording any archeological material and then recording it formally on state site forms. The idea was to get an idea of what was in that particular area. We picked a 200-acre area that had never been surveyed before and surveyed it.

We actually surveyed 125 of the 200 acres. “We found two archeological sites. One contained culturally scattered material that included ancestral Pueblo and late Archaic. We also found some ancestral black pottery, which is classic Ancestral Pueblo. This pottery dates from 1,200 BP. We also found a projectile point from the Late Archaic that dates from about 2,000 to 3,000 years ago. “The other site was a late 1800s refuse dump with a small prehistoric component. It was probably a small prehistoric campsite that later became a dump for bottles and cans. The point we found is called a San Pedro. That is the style that dates from about 2,000 to 3,000 years ago. We also found a gray-on-black piece of pottery on the same site from about 800 years ago. This was a site where people came back and visited again,” he said. Heiner spoke of the archeological richness of the Valley, “On the Rio Grande National Forest, we have over 10,000 documented archeological sites and they span from 14,000 years old to historic period sites about 50 years ago. We do have a relatively high percentage of early Paleo-Indian sites. That is one of the reasons that brought me here, I’m very interested in those first cultures that came to these landscapes and how they settled. We have a high density of these sites that date to 14,000 years ago.” The group was comprised of about a dozen VOC volunteers. Heiner said this about these and other volunteers value to the national forest, “They are great programs; we usually have partnership coordinators. I enjoy working with the groups because I like to expose different interested publics, people who are interested in archeology. I like people who are interested in archeology and have never experienced doing it or don’t have any formal training or education. I like to expose those people to it. People get hooked and run with it. Sometimes, I correspond with them for years. I do a lot of volunteer projects on the forest.”

large crowds into Chapman Park.” The OptiMystics have announced that this will be their final year hosting the event, and they will be passing the reins for the event exclusively to Valley Veterans Recreation. “We really didn’t intend to be event organizers,” Lock said. “However, that’s what happened, and the Suds and Sounds event just took off, pulling an estimated 4,000 people last year. We don’t want to see the event just die off, so handing it off to VVR is a great thing. That way the OptiMystics can refocus more on the downtown revitalization side of our mission.” The Monte Vista Parks and Recreation Department will also be holding a Cornhole Tournament. There will also be various vendors onsite and many food trucks.

The Poor Boy Car Club has hosted many car shows and attends many car events to show off their spectacular cars. Garcia said that they try not to miss a chance to enter a car show. “It’s always something amazing to be a part of these car shows, and I love these events,” he said. The Poor Boy Car Club also raises money to help people who are sick or fighting illness. Garcia said that the idea for raising money began when his nephew was diagnosed with cancer at a young age. The club raised some money to help his sister and nephew. “We ended up having a car show in Sargent that year and raised quite a bit of money to give to my sister and to St. Jude. We did lose my nephew to cancer which left a big hole in our hearts. That is what made us realize we wanted to do raise money and give it to people in need. So, after that we just have always tried to do that. We have raised money and given it to people who have had illness due to cancer, or other sickness,” he said.

with So Co Suds and Sounds and Garcia on the car show. “When I was asked, I answered by saying I definitely want to do this. This is a great opportunity to bring people together. I want to make sure as many cars, trucks, bicycles, and all types of vehicles, come to the park and join in,” Salazar said. Salazar said he is hoping to bring gearheads from everywhere to enjoy and participate in the show. “I want to help make this show bigger and better than ever before,” he said. For car show information or to register, contact Garcia at 719-580-2673. There are still spaces open for vendors. Vendor registration deadline is Aug. 9. Visit optimystics.org, for a vendor application, or call 719-239-1811, for more information.

Volunteers for Outdoor Colorado group stayed at the historic Duncan Cabin on the Rio Grande National Forest in Saguache County. The cabin dates to about 1880 and was built by gold miner John Duncan. The cabin underwent a significant restoration in 2011 and is now available to the public for overnight stays. The cabin is a four-mile hike, mountain bike, or horseback ride. For more information regarding renting the cabin, visit www.recreation.gov.

Registration for the car show is from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and show and shine is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., with awards being given at 4 p.m. Early registration before the show is $25, gate entry fee is $30, additional car entry fee is $5, motorcycles are $15, and bicycles are $10. Richard Garcia, of Center, who is president of the Poor Boy Car Club, is looking forward to the event. “This all started when we met the OptiMystics, and we realized that all of us had something in common. This year we are also collaborating with Valley Veterans Recreation to bring an even bigger and better event. We love hosting these events. We love to see the community engagement and involvement,” Garcia said.

This year, Garcia would like to break his record and have more than 100 entries for the car show. Garcia said they have been close to the century mark but have yet to reach it. “I would really like to bring in 100 entries, cars, bicycles, trucks, all types of vehicles. We will be giving away more awards this year too. We want to make sure we come close to sending everyone who enters something to go home with,” Garcia said with a smile. DJ Salazar of Valley Veterans Recreation is excited to collaborate

Living by Faith in the Face of Fear

Do you ever wonder what your life would look like if fear didn't exist? For example, what if you had the confidence to pursue every passion God gave you? Just imagine for a moment what that would look like. Well, God gives us a special gift called faith so we can do amazing things for Him. And I want to encourage you to step out of your comfort zone and exercise that gift full time. Faith gives us so much potential because it motivates us to move forward in the plans God has for us. But fear is a feeling Satan uses to keep our focus inward. It makes us feel anxious, causes us to dread the future, and it can keep us from saying and doing things that would reveal more of God's love to the world. We need to learn to interrupt fear at its onset—before it begins to settle in our spirit. The choice is to either let Satan stop us in our tracks or to go forward in faith, believing God is in control. The good news is, when we're struggling with fear, we can turn to God's Word for an inspiring, encouraging reality check. Romans 8:31 (AMPC) says, "...If God is for us, who [can be] against us? [Who can be our foe, if God is on our side?]" And Psalm 27:1 (AMPC) says, "The Lord is my Light and my Salvation—whom shall I fear or dread? The Lord is the Refuge and Stronghold of my life—of whom shall I be afraid?" These scriptures are basically saying that if we believe God's Word, then we have already won the battle we're facing. Jesus tells us in Mark 11:22 that we are to have faith in God constantly. God doesn't want you to be fearful at any time. He wants you to be bold, confident, courageous, and full of faith every day of your life—not just until you have a problem or until someone mistreats you. There's no until. And no one can stop God from answering a prayer that lines up with His Word and His will for our life. Throughout the course of a lifetime, we spend a lot of time waiting. And that is often the case with prayer. We can spend years praying for something to happen. And during that time, Satan will do everything he can to discourage us. He will try to convince us that God doesn't love us, that God's promises are for more worthy people, or that we didn't really hear from God in the first place. But if we will choose to trust God continually, we can keep moving forward in His plans for us. The truth is, even if you don't see the fulfillment of every dream or desire of your heart here on earth, God will be pleased as you continue to believe in His perfect plan. And in the meantime, your faith will fill you with hope, joy, and peace. Romans 15:13 (AMPC) says, "May the God of your hope so fill you with all joy and peace in believing [through the experience of your faith] that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound and be overflowing (bubbling over) with hope." Now if you knew me years ago, you would know that I wasn't always bubbling up with hope. In fact, I was in agony whenever God made me wait for anything, so I would always try to make things happen on my own. And it eventually wore me out! I remember lying on the floor, sobbing, saying, "God, I've tried everything and nothing's working. I just give up!" At that moment, the Holy Spirit spoke to my heart and said: Really, Joyce? You mean, you're going to let Me take it from here? You see, when we're ready to let go, God is right there to fight our battles. We just need to learn to trust Him... and that comes through experience, as we take each new step of faith. Today, instead of trying to pray my problems away, I've learned to pray for things like strength and courage, and for the power to endure whatever comes with a good temper. With God's help, I can choose faith every time I'm confronted with feelings of fear or intimidation. Philippians 1:2 (AMPC) says, "And do not [for a moment] be frightened or intimidated in anything by your opponents and adversaries, for such [constancy and fearlessness] will be a clear sign (proof and seal) to them of [their impending] destruction, but [a sure token and evidence] of your deliverance and salvation, and that from God." With God's help, we can remain stable in the face of fear, putting one foot in front of the other... walking by faith full time. Imagine again what it would be like to pursue your God-given passions in life. Don't let fear stop you! Keep seeking God. Stir yourself up with scriptures on faith. And boldly say, "God is bigger. He's working on my behalf, and I trust Him constantly."

booth with nothing but beautifully handstitched quilts for sale, made of all kinds of different fabrics.

There was a booth of hand-painted wooden signs for sale, with all kinds of fun sayings. There was also a booth of woodworks for children, ranging from a park bench made of wood that was just the right height for a child of about the age of 3, to large wooden blocks that were made and personalized with children's names on them.

A large food truck was also set up in the middle of the festival where residents and artists could be seen purchasing different types of food, including funnel cakes, and munching on them while they walked around the festival.

One of the artists at the festival, Molly McDonald, said she enjoyed being there and felt people were having a fun time.

"It's been a really nice day, and the weather is holding up too," she said. Saguache residents Tom and Adele Lucero stated that they enjoy the festival every year, and they feel it is something meaningful for the town of Saguache.

"This festival is really a beautiful thing," stated Adele. "There are many people who live here that attend, they do window shopping right outside in the streets. There are so many artists showing off their talents. Even if you don't come to purchase art, you should come out and look at all the beautiful art that these artists have handmade, it's just exceptional."

Shoni Kelly, an artist that was selling her paintings, stated she was happy about everyone that purchased from her at the festival.

"This is my first year attending the festival. We just moved here in 2020, and I didn't know about this last year. I have had an excellent day and sold so much. I will definitely be here next year, it's a very nice little festival that seems to draw people in," Kelly said. Kelly also mentioned that it was nice by the firefighters. The department served beans, roasted pork, coleslaw, mashed potatoes, and a slice of bread with the dinner. There were also several beverages available, including ice water and lemonade.

Just inside the fire department were long benches and tables set up for the people who attended, to eat comfortably and socialize with their family and friends. Volunteer firefighters could be seen serving plates of food to the public and smiling.

Many of the children who attended the barbecue could be seen jumping on the back of a fire truck and taking a ride with a gentleman who was all smiles, driving up and down the road, honking and flashing the lights.

Volunteer fire department chief Blaine Witherspoon spoke about the barbecue and the department.

"We have 24 firefighters including myself, that's about all we have room for right now. We have had two guys on the waiting list for a little over a year now, and we appreciate that.

We started this hamburger fry about 25 years ago, to get the community here to show them our appreciation and that we are here to protect them.

We switched over to barbecue about 15 years ago, and it's been a big hit ever since. We have always just made enough at the barbecue to do it again next year. We were able to also buy new tables and chairs, and seat more people here," he said.

Chief Witherspoon explained that it is not really a fundraising event, as they only take a donation for the food, but the event has helped the department buy some new equipment.

"It's just a nice way to bring the community together and show the community that the fire department appreciates them too," he said.

Chief Witherspoon stated that he was excited to see a big turnout at the event this year.

"This is the first time we have had to lay tables on the other side of the building. It was a good turnout last year too, but about 10 of us weren't able to attend because we were out on a call, and by the time we got back, well it was all over," he stated with a chuckle.

Chief Witherspoon stated that he wants the public to know that they are there to serve if they are needed.

"We hope that they don't need us, but if they do, we are coming," he said.

Alamosa resident, Jose Rodriguez was at the barbecue and stated that he has attended for about the past five years.

"I like to come and show my support and donate to the department. My sister lives here in Mosca, and she had to call the fire department a few years back, and they saved her house before anything bad happened to it. Firefighters are important, this is a nice barbecue that they put on every year, hopefully people come out, and donate and show their support to such a worthy cause," he said.

The annual Arts Walk and Hollyhock Festival was on Saturday, July 27, in Saguache.

Creede Rock and Mineral Show first weekend in August

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

CREEDE — Rockhounds from around the globe will be venturing to Creede next weekend for the annual Creede Rock and Mineral Show on Aug. 2-4.

The Creede and Mineral County Underground Community Center will be transformed into a geologists' dream for three full days beginning Friday, Aug. 2.

Well over 40 vendors will line the rock hewn halls of the community center offering tales of discovery, snippets of geological lore and of course, rock and mineral of all shapes and sizes.

Mineral County's geology has fueled a long legacy of interest and fascination from early day prospectors and surveyors to modern mining engineers and mineralogists and mining investors.

One of the world's largest volcanic calderas created unusually rich ore deposits that eventually gave birth to the Creede mining district.

Millions of dollars' worth of silver, gold, lead, and zinc were extracted before the last mine closed in 1985.

Honeybee swarm collected for new hive

By KEITH R. CERNY

ALAMOSA — An estimated swarm of 20,000-25,000 honeybees were collected near the corner of Main and San Juan here around noon Wednesday.

Beekeeper Devin Haynie said the bees likely came from a natural hive in the downtown area and were first seen on a chimney at The Hub operated by the Boys and Girls Clubs of the San Luis Valley at Sixth and San Juan. He would not disclose the location of the natural hive.

Fittingly, a sign posted in front of The Hub states "Save the Bees" by spreading wildflowers in a "Generation Wild" promotion. Generation Wild is a movement by Great Outdoors Colorado (GOCO) to encourage kids to plant wildflowers to help save bees with over 100,000 packets of seeds distributed statewide.

Haynie explained that it's normal for a hive to divide and move to a new

Explorer Program opens a new world

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

ALAMOSA — There have always been kids who wanted to be a "fireman," at some point in their lives, and Aiden Clark was no different. Clark, who just graduated from the eighth grade at Ortega Middle School, has always wanted to be a firefighter. But, for a lot of students at Ortega Middle School and other schools where students may come from homes with economic challenges, learning what's involved in being a firefighter while still at a young age is pretty much out of reach.

That's where the Explorer Program comes in, a 75-hour training program that exposes kids ages 14 to 18 to what it's like to be a firefighter. This week, Alamosa Fire Chief Bill Stone gave the Rotary Club an overview of the program as it concludes its first year. He opened by introducing Aiden, a recent graduate from the group of eight who participated.

"I love the program," Aiden said. "I love everything you learn. I've always wanted to do it. I grew up watching my uncle do it every year in Pueblo. He's an engineer [with a fire department], and I saw how it works. And when Adam (Lopez) went to my dad and said they were going to do the program, I was excited. I've been waiting for a long time to be in the program and I finally got to do it."

Stone then provided a little background.

"My wife teaches at Ortega Middle School, and she said that she sees so many kids who have no hope. Economically, a lot of the kids are at a major disadvantage, have no support at home and they just need...something. A lot of people were trying to think of what could be done to support our youth, so, the wheels were already turning."

Stone saw the Explorer Program as an Stunner Bridge replacement to begin

Minimal traffic delays expected

LA JARA — The Conejos Peak Ranger District announced Wednesday, July 17, that construction on the Stunner Bridge Replacement Project on Forest Service Road No. 250 will begin soon. The project is located approximately 5 miles northwest of Platoro. Equipment was scheduled to begin moving into the Alamosa Canyon as early as this week.

The plan is to use the existing bridge as a bypass just adjacent to it, while the new bridge is constructed. Upon completion of the new bridge, the old bridge will be removed. The work will begin as soon as all the equipment is in place and conditions remain favorable.

"We are pleased to be working with Robins Construction from Antonito, CO on this project," said Judi Perez, acting Conejos Peak district ranger. "Having a local contractor implement this fourth and final planned Alamosa Canyon bridge construction project benefits our communities by creating jobs and providing a safe and sustainable transportation route. We thank the public, in advance, for their patience with slight travel delays that may be caused by heavy equipment activity in the area."

This project is funded through the Great American Outdoors Act (GAOA), which aims to benefit the American public through significant investments in recreation infrastructure, public lands access and land and water conservation.

The construction of the new bridge may take until fall of 2025 to be completed.

immediate fit for those teenagers – boys and girls – who need something to look forward to in life that would also hold such interest that the experience could possibly prevent them from getting into bad habits.

“I’ve been a part of fire departments where they had Explorer Programs, but those were affluent areas. It seemed like it could make an even greater impact to initiate something like that here.”

So, I spoke with some of our fire guys. I spoke with (Alamosa City Manager) Heather Sanchez and a lot of different people.”

Stone admits that “there was pushback, as always happens with new programs.” But he kept at it. “I saw the bigger picture as being more important than the pushback. I told them this is bigger than you or me or all of us, and, eventually, this is going to come back around and affect us all in a positive way.”

As is also true with any new program, funding was needed to get it off the ground. Stone singles out two people who were invaluable.

Adam Lopez, an engineer with the Alamosa Fire Department, works with the Boys and Girls Clubs of the San Luis Valley and was able to obtain grant funding to make the program a reality. Reyna Martinez, who works with RETAC [Regional Emergency Medical and Trauma Services Advisory Council], garnered even more support for the effort. And Stone “rearranged some things” in his budget to make it work.

“We just wanted to get the program rolling and expose [the students] to what it could be like. We invited them to weekend duties and various trainings. They went through CPR, and we got many of them red cards, a qualification needed to fight wildland fires.”

To be successful, the program also had to be led by the right person. Chief Stone does not hold back in praising AFD Engineer Adam Lopez for organizing the program and heading up much of the training.

“Adam Lopez did an incredible job in training this first class of explorers,” Stone said.

At the end of the program, some of the 18-year-old students wanted to pursue a career in firefighting or volunteer at a fire department. One student is going to Leadville Junior College to pursue an Associates in Fire Science. Others just wanted to test it out and see if it was right for them.

But even those students gained from the experience. “Those students said, ‘I may not want to do this, but I learned a lot about teamwork and physical fitness. I got a lot of positive out of this and I spent my time in a positive way.’ That’s what we wanted to accomplish.”

Aiden is the youngest in the group at 14 years old. Stone said they weren’t certain about reaching out to students still in middle school. But he’s such a “stand-out kid”, they now know that they can reach out to students who are that young and still have it be a successful experience.

Some of the other training they were exposed to was automobile extrication. “They went through the same training all of basic firefighters go through, so they got to learn how to utilize the jaws of life and all the cutting tools.”

Stone also brought in firefighters from Milwaukee, Wis., and South Carolina that he had known for years who provided training on ladder work, hose, forceful entry. “That was a very taxing weekend. They worked their butts off, but they got a lot out of it.”

When asked about his favorite part, Aiden said “the rescue part.” He’s also more interested in structure fires than wildland fires.

“It’s been a lot of fun. They learned a lot from us, but we learned a lot from them, too,” Stone said. He also added that the students put in 75 hours of training and, in exchange, received a $700 stipend.

location as part of their natural reproduction cycle and can do so up to three times per year. He has been a registered beekeeper for about eight years.

Before forming a swarm, bees “gorge themselves on resources to produce honey,” he explained, thereby limiting the distance they and the queen bee can fly. Honey-engorged bees weigh in at about 10,000 bees per pound, Haynie said, and he estimates he collected about two and one-half pounds of bees, therefore netting around 25,000 bees.

The swarm is carefully collected into a transfer box and doesn't typically have as much protective instinct while forming a new colony, he said. He recalls collecting bee swarms in that general vicinity at least three times in recent years. Bees are then transferred to a new hive.

Haynie said this swarm was adopted by fellow Alamosa beekeeper Aaron Miltenberger, executive director of the Boys and Girls Clubs, who lost his hive over this past winter. Both Haynie and Miltenberger are contacts for the bee swarm hotline operated by the Colorado State Beekeepers Association (CSBA), primarily taking calls in Alamosa, Conejos and Costilla counties.

Haynie had a similar call earlier this week for a bee swarm at the Rio Grande Farm Park in East Alamosa. He encouraged residents who encounter a bee swarm to call the hotline rather than attempt to kill the bees, noting their importance in the pollination of plants, including food production.

The hotline number is 1-844-SPY-

BEES(844-779-2337) or visit the CSBA website at <https://coloradobeekeepers.org/>.

CSBA encourages people to support local beekeepers by purchasing locally crafted bee products including honey, propolis, pollen and wax. Local farmer's markets are a great location to find honey and other bee products.

and mining depressions, became known as the "little town that would not die."

The spectacular Pillars of Hercules, remnants of an ancient rhyolite wall, frame Creede's bustling Main Street district. Victorian-era buildings today serve as gift shops, restaurants, galleries, and bed-and-breakfasts.

Proceeds from exhibitors' fees benefit the Creede Underground Community Center and the Creede-Mineral County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center.

The tunnels and caverns of the Underground Mining Museum, Community Center, and Fire Station were blasted into the solid rock walls of Willow Creek Canyon by three miners and volunteer helpers. The community project was completed in 1992.

Creede is a geologic haven for amateurs and professionals. The 17-mile Bachelor Loop passes old town sites, mine buildings, and other relics of Mineral County's silver boom. The Last Chance Mine offers on-site tours and on-site rockhounding opportunities.

This event features many opportunities to learn about rocks and minerals, even beginner rockhounds will enjoy this show. Vendors bring specimens from all over the world to showcase during the event and are on hand to answer questions and tell tales of how the specimens were collected.

The event begins on Friday, Aug. 2, and goes from 10 a.m. to 5 each day through Sunday. For a full schedule of events and more information, visit www.creede.com.

Ag Commissioner Greenberg in Alamosa

By JOHN WATERS

ALAMOSA — Colorado Department of Agriculture Commissioner Kate Greenberg held a forum at the Rio Grande Farm Park on July 9 to discuss policy and the department.

About 40 farmers, ranchers, and others interested in agriculture attended the 90-minute event.

Bethany Howell, Director of Strategic Outreach and Engagement with CDA, gave a brief overview to the audience and said the department has partnered with the Colorado Farm Bureau and Colorado State University Extension in producing the feature film, "Legacy: Stories of healing and hope," which features mental health issues in the agricultural community.

After updating the audience on agriculture in Colorado, Greenberg was asked to elaborate on the film and to address mental health in the agricultural community. In this segment of the population, the rate of suicide, according to the National Rural Health Association, is about three 3.5 times the rate in the non-agricultural sector.

Greenberg said, "The film that we put together with the Farm Bureau is part of our continuing efforts to destigmatize asking for help. Ours is twofold, help increase access to [mental health] services. We're not a mental health provider but we want to help people who need services, we want to connect people to providers in their communities. The second strategy is to destigmatize this. We are a tough bunch of folks, so many of you do it alone, you figure stuff out yourself. If people are struggling you don't have to do it alone, it is OK to struggle, and you really don't have to do it alone.

"The film, 'Legacy,' which was produced by a grant with Farm Bureau, really tells that story about people who have struggled. Our communications team has set up a five-showing tour throughout the state," she said.

The film was shown in Monte Vista on July 18. Colorado filmmaker Steve Vanderheide directed the 45-minute production.

"We have a hotline that we have set up and is heavily promoted," said Greenberg. The hotline can be reached by calling 844-494-8255 or texting, Talk to 38255. According to the CDA Rural Mental Health website, "The agricultural community has always come together to help our neighbors in a time of need and that is what this effort is all about pulling together to help others through this stressful time."

Greenberg also mentioned the partnership with the Colorado Agricultural and Mental Health Program (CAAMHP). The program's goal is to care for farmers and ranchers who have been impacted by severe and persistent drought, price instability, and the resulting impacts on mental health. CAAMHP understands the impacts of depression and anxiety.

Greenberg said the program offers members of the ag community up to six free consultations with mental health professionals.

"We have never been state-funded; we have always gone for grants at CDA to do this work. Now we have the Behavioral Health Administration (BHA) that is essentially centralizing mental health resources. In our budget this year, we are now going to have a full-time ag person at BHA, someone who is focused on ag. They will be responsible for setting up an advisory committee at CDA on how to do this mental health work," said Greenberg.

3 challenges facing the agricultural sector

Since the World Health Organization declared a global pandemic in early 2020, businesses big and small have faced significant challenges. Though the pandemic has ended, many sectors, including the agricultural industry, are facing familiar and unfamiliar challenges.

The agricultural sector is crucial to the survival and health of billions of people across the globe. Though it's obvious that modern agriculture is vital to feeding a global population that was greater than eight billion people at the dawn of 2024, the United Nations notes that agriculture also boosts prosperity and economies by providing jobs. That reality only underscores the notion that the challenges facing the agricultural sector are facing everyone, even those whose livelihoods are not directly linked to the industry. According to Earth.org, an organization that offers environmental news, data analysis, research, and policy solutions, the following are three sizable challenges facing modern agriculture.

1. Climate change: Perhaps no challenge is greater for humanity in the twenty-first century than climate change, and the agricultural sector is no exception. Climate change has caused shifting weather patterns marked by unpredictability and potentially disastrous developments like prolonged drought. Estimates from NASA indicate corn yields may decrease by 24 percent by the end of this century, a potentially dangerous development linked to a host of factors, including a shifting climate and elevated surface carbon dioxide concentrations that can be traced to human-caused greenhouse gas emissions.

2. Population growth: The booming global population is attributable to numerous factors, including longer life expectancies in developed nations due to medical advancements. How to keep the global population fed at a time when the climate is adversely affecting crop yields is a significant challenge facing both humanity and the agricultural sector. As the population grows, so, too, does the demand for water, which also must be used to grow crops. Navigating this challenge will be significant, and how it's managed could affect the economic stability of the agricultural industry in the decades to come.

3. Investment: Perhaps no industry is more vital to human survival than agriculture. Earth.org notes that countries with strong agricultural sectors often boast higher standards of living and health than nations with a less productive agricultural industry. Despite that, Earth.org notes that investment in the agricultural sector is not commensurate with the growing population. Supporting measures to invest more heavily in the agricultural sector could reduce food shortages in the decades to come and ensure the agricultural sector is better positioned to address the many challenges it is already confronting in the twenty-first century.

The challenges facing the agricultural sector affect those who work in the industry but also the global population as a whole. Recognition of that reality may compel more people to support measures designed to ensure the agricultural sector can thrive and help the world to overcome potentially devastating challenges in the decades ahead.

HERE'S THE BEEF

Fairs involve a lot of beef . . . calves, steers and bulls. So where's the beef? Right here in this area. Our local livestock producers raise some of the finest beef in the world. Where's the beef? You'll find it at a local backyard family barbecue. You'll find it at a far-a-way fancy four-star restaurant. Hats off to our local livestock producers. We appreciate their continued business.

Green Acre Hemp Farm harvests health

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

SAN LUIS VALLEY — Despite late spring snowstorms and record high winds, Green Acre Hemp Farm will be harvesting and processing close to 1,500 high quality hemp plants by the end of August. Owner Jim Strang, with the help of his wife Lisa and a longtime friend, the farm is set to have a successful harvest season this year.

“We always start the plants inside the greenhouse. It helps strengthen the plants before we put them out in the field and this year, we had a few setbacks with the high winds and late snow, but we ended up with a really great crop and three strains of high-quality hemp,” said Strang.

Strang has clients that suffer from a wide variety of ailments. From seizures to cancer, his product has been proven time and again as a means of excellent health. One such case happened within the last year, when Strang was contacted by a local resident of the San Luis Valley who had been diagnosed with Squamous cell carcinoma. The client had to have the right lower portion of their jaw removed and was facing a long, drawn-out recovery that included radiation and chemotherapy.

After surgery was completed, the client opted to try the CBD offered through Green Acres Hemp Farm and after only four months of using the treatment, was diagnosed cancer free without the need for radiation or chemo. “Not everyone sees the results that we heard about all the time, but some do, and the fact of the matter is, it works,” said Strang.

Squamous cell carcinoma is a common type of skin cancer. Squamous cell carcinoma of the skin is usually not life-threatening, but if it is not treated, squamous cell carcinoma of the skin can grow large or spread to other parts of the body. The growth of cancer can cause serious complications.

Jim and Lisa Strang, owners of Green Acres Hemp Farm here in the San Luis Valley, will be harvesting another successful crop of high-grade hemp by the end of August. The farm has been a staple in the area for more than 10 years.

In another instance, Strang was able to help one of his clients recover from daily seizures, even allowing the client to stop taking market grade prescriptions. “When the client contacted us, they were on their last leg. They were ready to give up, but when they started taking our high-quality CBD, the seizures just stopped.”

Strang and his wife are staples at local farmer markets across the Valley, and this year they can be found at the South Fork Farmer’s Market on Fridays. “We still have people who are curious and want to learn more so the interest in CBD is still on the rise. We had one gentleman try our products and by the next day felt better than he had in years. When we are first contacted you can hear the struggle in a client’s voice and after they start treatment, you can not only hear but see the difference in them. I know I am doing the right thing in life.”

Now with the growing season over, Strang will begin harvesting after his plants are tested by the Colorado Department of Agriculture. Strang has his products tested several times a year to ensure that his clients are getting the best CBD he can offer.

“I wanted to grow a high grade CBGA which we named La Crème and a CBDA that we named Frost. Last year, both strains were tested as part of our annual requirements and came back with excellent results,” said Strang.

In addition to the La Crème and Frost strains, Strang also produced a full spectrum CBD strain that he called Sunshine Sherbert. “These strains are used to treat all different types of ailments from some as simple as weight loss to others that are as serious as seizures, different types of cancers and even Autism in children. Over the last few years research on the effects of CBD for these ailments has increased and we are so happy to see reputable researchers from places like Harvard and Yale that proves something we as hemp growers have known all along.”

“I say it all the time, but I will never not say it. When it comes to hemp, know your growers. Know what is in your products. Know how they extract the CBDs from the plants, what parts of the plants they use. It matters when dealing with CBD just as much as it does with any other type of medicine. The market is saturated with low quality products that are mass produced. It’s a sad truth but truth non-the-less.”

Strang also said this year, he and Lisa went down and were fingerprinted, which was part of the process required to have their hemp crop recognized through the Colorado Farm Bureau. “Our hemp is now listed just like any other crop in Colorado. It is right up there with corn or potatoes. We are held to those standards, and we are finally being recognized.”

Green Acre Hemp Farm still has all their same, trusted products ranging from lotions, MTC, RSO, olive oil-based tinctures, gummies, and more.

Tami Valentine talks about being a rancher

By MARIE MCCOLM

ROMEO — Tami Valentine, who has a ranch just outside of Romeo, said that so far, the season has gone good for her and her husband, Aaron.

Valentine, who is a native of the Valley, has a ranch with her husband called “Valentine Ranch,” where they raise beef cattle and quarter horses.

“My favorite part of ranching is the horses, that is where my passion is. My husband’s favorite part is the cows, so it balances out,” she said.

Valentine stated that she also just loves the lifestyle and being out every day.

“Having an excuse to play in the dirt and going out and being on a tractor every day or being on a horse; not every body has those opportunities, and it’s something we enjoy, and don’t take for granted, that’s for sure. I love being a rancher. I love what I do,” she said.

Valentine wears a couple of different hats, she is also a counselor with a private practice, and her husband is a school-teacher in Manassa. Valentine stated that growing up, her dad, Kelvin Huffaker, and her mother, Ann, were both ranchers, but her dad insisted that her and her four brothers all go to school.

“My dad told us all, you can’t make a living just ranching, you have to go get a job and then you can ranch,” she said.

Valentine explained that her and her 4 brothers all grew up on a ranch. Ranching for her family has been a lifelong tradition. She is a third-generation rancher.

“I have been riding horses for as long as I can remember too. My dad once said, you were riding horses even before you could walk,” Valentine stated with a chuckle. “I probably was, but I don’t remember.”

Valentine stated that right out of college her and her four brothers all became ranchers, but at one point they all knew they needed to divide their ranches and go out on their own.

“Once we were out of college, we all ranched in a partnership called Huffaker Ranches. My four brothers all have day jobs too, three of them are in education, one of them is in construction. As our kids got older, we all knew it was time to start dividing the partnership. We divided five years ago. So now my husband, Aaron and I run Valentine Ranches,” she said.

Valentine stated that as ranchers, this time of year they are putting up hay for their cows.

“We run our cows on the forest in New Mexico. In the fall, we will gather all our cows and bring them home. We try to keep them all in pasture until about January, as long as the pasture will hold out. When we bring them home in January, all that hay that we put up in the summer is what we feed them,” she said.

Valentine explained that there have been a couple of times when they don’t have enough hay put up, so their operating expenses can be a little off at that point.

“This year has been a good year though because we have had good rain and everything. Some of our hay got rained on but cows will eat it,” she said.

Valentine went on to talk about her cows and calving.

“Usually in February our cows start calving. We keep them close to home while they have all their babies. About April, the calves are big enough that we can get them all branded,” she said.

Valentine explained that in the middle or toward the end of May they take all their cows back to the mountains.

Valentine said that although they used to flood irrigate on the ranch, about 3 years ago they did put up a pivot.

“We are just now getting used to ranching and farming under a sprinkler. We are not big farmers though. We farm enough to all be cowboys that’s what it boils down to,” she stated with a laugh.

Tami Valentine and her dad Kelvin. Valentine gives much of the credit for her lifestyle to her parents.

Valentine stated that although her kids are all grown up and in college now, they all loved growing up on a ranch, and they have always had many agricultural aspects in their lives too.

“Our kids grew up in 4-H, they did the horses and the goats, and the pigs, and went to the fair every year. It’s a good way of life and a good way to raise kids. We taught our kids that they don’t eat until after the animals are fed. It’s a good way to teach responsibility to your kids,” she said.

Valentine stated that her boys are now investing in cows too.

“They went and borrowed some money and bought some cows. They got their first calf crop last year. They did really well with that. Our girls are just starting to think about what they want to do, and they are looking for some opportunities to buy cows, so they are into it as well,” she said.

One thing Valentine stated that has really helped their family, as Valentine has a day job as a therapist, and her husband has a day job as a teacher, is a program through Adams State University that has helped her kids work on their ranch and get paid while they are in college.

“Two of my kids are taking agribusiness in college. One is majoring in agribusiness; the other is getting a minor. They have an internship program where they will allow kids to do an internship on their family farm. So, they can stay working on their family farm, and get paid for it while they are going to school. That has been such a huge help to me and my husband, as we both work full-time jobs. Between all of us, we are able to rotate responsibilities like feeding cows, putting up hay and taking care of all the different things we have,” she said.

Valentine stated that she is grateful to the college for making this type of internship available for her family and for others, “It’s a huge, huge help, and we appreciate it so much.”

Valentine stated if she could say anything to anyone about being a farmer or rancher she would say, “Anybody can be involved in agriculture, you don’t have to be a farmer or rancher. You can always advocate for it too. I feel like if you live in rural areas, and you see the rancher and farmer driving home, or on their way to work, this is so much a part of our culture, our heritage, and our lifestyle. If you can’t be involved directly, it’s good to be educated in it. I feel like this helps, so that when you go to the voting booths, you make good decisions that are going to benefit agriculture, and your local communities. People don’t have to be directly involved with agriculture to do the right thing for agriculture. There’s lots of ways that people can get involved and be a positive force for agriculture to keep agriculture alive, in our rural areas.”

Valentine stated that she couldn’t be happier as a rancher, and she thanked her parents for her love of ranching.

“Without my mom and dad, ranching for our whole family would have never been possible. I am thankful that they instilled this in all of us. It’s a wonderful lifestyle. We owe it all to them,” she said.

The Valentine family – Aaron, Tami, Elizabeth, Josh, Addison, Peyton, and their dog Jill – have a cattle and quarter horse ranch in Romeo.

Stacy Kourlis Guillon

Stacy Kourlis Guillon named new president of CCALT

CONTRIBUTED

LAKESWOOD — The Colorado Cattlemen's Agricultural Land Trust, a statewide nonprofit, conservation service organization, has elected Stacy Kourlis Guillon to become its seventh president. Guillon started her term on July 1.

Her rural roots and lifelong love for production agriculture have shaped her personally and professionally. Guillon will help CCALT navigate a new chapter in working lands conservation as CCALT continues to expand its staff, services, and programs. CCALT opened a new regional office in Del Norte in November of 2023.

"We are thrilled to welcome Stacy Guillon as the new President of the CCALT Board of Directors. Her extensive experience and deep commitment to agricultural land conservation will be invaluable as we continue our mission to work with Colorado's farm and ranch families to conserve productive agricultural land," CCALT Executive Director Erik Glenn said. "Stacy's background, experience, and leadership will allow CCALT to further build upon the incredible foundation and accelerate our ability to serve the membership of the Colorado Cattlemen's Association and other agricultural families across Colorado."

Guillon becomes the first female president of CCALT since its founding in 1995. She replaces Koger Propst who helped guide CCALT through a period of unprecedented growth and success. Guillon joined CCALT's Board of Directors in 2017 and has served as a corporate officer since 2019. She has co-chaired the board's Relevance and Strategic Partnerships Committee and Governance Committee for the last two years. She said she is excited to help CCALT advance to its next step as a conservation organization that not only serves agricultural producers, but also finds ways to include all Coloradans in its mission.

"I am honored and humbled to lead this innovative, influential organization. As Colorado grows and evolves, CCALT's mission to support Colorado's farm and ranch families in their stewardship of productive lands becomes even more urgent and important," Guillon said. "I look forward to building additional partnerships with agricultural families to conserve even more working lands for the benefit of all Coloradans."

Guillon is a well-known and respected arbitrator and mediator in the Denver area. Before co-founding Decisioncraft, an alternative dispute resolution firm, she was an attorney at Lewis Roca Rothgerber Christie LLP, litigating complex cases of all varieties, with a focus on agricultural disputes. Before entering private practice, Guillon clerked for Judge Timothy Tymkovich of the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit. She was named one of Denver's Top Lawyers, agriculture section, by 5280 Magazine from 2020-2022, and included in the 2019 Who's Who in Agriculture from the Denver Business Journal.

Guillon grew up on a sheep and cattle ranch in Northwest Colorado. She has worked and lived on both coasts but returned to her home state and has resided on the Front Range for the past decade. Guillon sees how Colorado has changed in the last few decades but believes the state and its people are still closely connected to its agricultural roots and western history, and that CCALT will play an integral role in connecting the agriculture and conservation industries.

"While there are many organizations out there working to help consumers make the connection between food and ranching, CCALT is uniquely positioned to connect ranching to classic Colorado vistas and to environmental conservation and stewardship," Guillon said. "Making that connection between agriculture and conservation is an important part of this organization's mission to benefit future generations."

CCALT's Board of Directors is made up of 20 dedicated individuals who share a deep commitment to agriculture and conservation. Notably, 60% of board members are agricultural producers, a unique aspect facilitated by appointments from the Colorado Cattlemen's Association. Directors with varied professional and personal backgrounds ensure CCALT prioritizes landowners in conservation strategies and that its efforts are tailored to the needs and values of Colorado's farm and ranch families.

Career opportunities in the agricultural sector

Individuals approach their careers in various ways. Some may aspire to climb the corporate ladder, while others may pursue a career that affords them ample personal time to spend how they see fit. Many individuals look for careers that afford them ample opportunities to work in the great outdoors, which could make the agricultural sector an appealing industry.

Talented individuals with an array of diverse skills dot the agricultural sector landscape, and the following are just a few of the many careers to consider within this vital industry.

- Equipment technician: Data from the career experts at Indeed indicates agricultural equipment technicians earn an average salary around $65,000 per year. Agricultural equipment technicians maintain and repair existing machines and install new ones, among their many responsibilities.

- Purchasing agent: An agricultural purchasing agent buys products and raw materials at wholesale. Indeed notes that purchasing agents often must meet specific purchasing quotas for processors and work with various clients who supply an array of agricultural products. The national average salary for agricultural purchasing agents is around $51,000 annually.

- Warehouse manager: The receiving, shipping and storage of agricultural materials is overseen by a warehouse manager. Indeed notes that these professionals now routinely utilize artificial intelligence products to manage inventory. Warehouse managers must know and adhere to safety procedures and guidelines that dictate how materials and products are stored. The average salary of a warehouse manager is around $52,000 per year.

- Sales: Like every industry, the agricultural sector requires talented sales personnel. Agricultural sales reps sell materials and products and identify the needs of potential customers. Agricultural sales reps may spend ample time on the road at trade shows. Doing so allows them to identify customers as well as their needs and wants, and promote their own products and services. An ability to foster strong and trusting interpersonal relationships is invaluable for agricultural sales reps, who Indeed reports earn an average of about $60,000 per year.

- Environmental engineer: Environmental engineers play pivotal roles within the industry, and could become even more vital in the decades ahead as the effects of climate change become more apparent. Environmental engineers design and implement solutions that occur on agricultural sites, helping to address issues such as unhealthy soil, insufficient drainage and inefficiencies, among other concerns. A career as an environmental engineer within the agricultural industry can be rewarding and lucrative, with Indeed noting that the average annual salary for this position is a little more than $77,000.

These are just some of the career paths individuals can consider as they explore the agricultural sector.

'Legacy,' mental health in Colorado ag

By JOHN WATERS

MONTE VISTA — About 35 farmers, ranchers, and their friends attended a showing of the mental health documentary film "Legacy," at the Ski-Hi Complex in Monte Vista on the evening of July 18.

The film, a partnership between the Colorado Farm Bureau and the Colorado Department of Agriculture, depicts the mental health struggles of ranchers and farmers in the state.

Earlier this month CDA Commissioner Kate Greenberg told the Valley Courier, "The film that we put together with the Farm Bureau is part of our continuing efforts to destigmatize asking for help. Ours is twofold, help increase access to [mental health] services.

"We're not a mental health service provider but we want to help people who need services, we want to connect people to providers in their communities. The second strategy is to destigmatize this. We are a tough bunch of folks, so many of you do it alone, you figure stuff out yourself. If people are struggling you don't have to do it alone, it is okay to struggle, and you don't have to do it alone."

Mental health issues in the rural agricultural community, where rugged individualism is a proud tradition, are often more pronounced in the non-agricultural sector. That "cowboy up" ethos results in a suicide rate among farmers and ranchers that is 3.5 times that of the non-ag population according to a study by the National Rural Health Association.

The film is a heart-wrenching journey into the factors contributing to rural mental health, where fear of stigma and discrimination contribute to significant reluctance for people to seek treatment.

From paying bills to feeding their children, caring for the livestock and crops, retirement options, and even what they will be able to leave their heirs, the worry and anxiety can be overwhelming, and "Legacy," does an excellent job of showing these vexing anxieties.

In the film, rancher Tony Hass offered this assessment that may resonate well in the rural San Luis Valley describing why farmers are reluctant to seek counseling: "It's not like you're going to go for mental health to go see a shrink and they see your green Dodge pickup with the caved in front quarter panel that everybody knows, and your dog's sitting in the back."

After the showing of the film, 'Legacy,' which focuses on mental health issues in rural Colorado a roundtable discussion followed that was facilitated by Clinton Wilson with the Rocky Mountain Farm Bureau. From left to right are Tony Hass, farmer, Jacob Walter, farmer, George Whitten, Saguache County rancher, Chad Reznicek, LPC and Kristen Wulfsberg, LPC, and Robert Sakata, Colorado Department of Agriculture.

ily Ranch said this about the numerous pressures of farming, "One of the things that really sticks in my mind was when I would see my dad sitting at that kitchen table until one or two in the morning crunching numbers and figuring out how you are going to make it work, how are you going to keep the family going, how are you going to keep that family legacy of agriculture going?"

He added, "Before I left, the last things my dad said to me were, 'Always remember, things are never bad enough that you can't get help, you can always get help.' I told him I loved him; he told me he loved me, and I got in my pickup. I started driving for college and that was the last time that I talked to him."

Walter said the following morning his father committed suicide.

After the showing of Legacy, a panel discussion that included farmers, ranchers, and Licensed Professional Councilors Chad Reznicek, MA, PLC, and Kristen Wulfsberg, LPC who were featured in the film ensued.

In "Legacy," Wulfsberg speaks to the agony she has experienced with clients in ag who feel, "I'm a burden, I'm causing more problems, I can't see a future, I can only see pain, I can only see sorrow, I can only see disappointment. I have talked with a couple of people in ag who say when my horse is lame, I take it out to the back forty.

"So why can't I do that same thing to myself? Am I contributing enough, am I doing enough, am I enough? That is where it ends up going. And when the question is am I enough, that's where we get into concerning thought patterns and behaviors."

After the showing of "Legacy," in Monte Vista, Marlys Hersey, Licensed Professional Counselor said of the film, "It was very illuminating. Even as a therapist who works with many clients with suicidal thoughts and actions, this film brought to light the many aspects of mental health specific to the agricultural community of which I was not aware. I particularly appreciated the emphasis on the need for all of us to cultivate social connections, and the need for all of us to ask for, receive, and give help within our communities."

Help is available.

Larry Brown with CSU Extension and JC Carrica with Valley-Wide Health, were in attendance and briefly discussed a local mental health partnership, the Coffee Break Project. Brown summed up the project with its mission statement, "Do you look after your neighbors as close as your crop or herd?"

The two will make a presentation on Monday to the San Luis Valley Commissioners Association regarding the partnership, and the Valley Courier will have an article about the project next Tuesday.

The film also notes that mental health services and sessions with therapists are increasingly available and includes a clip of a rancher in a pickup truck having a private session with a therapist, away from the glare of friends who otherwise might.

Disaster assistance resources for farmers

Natural disasters are often devastating, resulting in losses of life, livelihood and homes, among other effects. If it seems as though weather-related disasters have risen in frequency in recent decades, that's because they have. In fact, a 2021 report from the World Meteorological Organization indicated that the number of disasters has increased by a factor of five over the last half-century.

Weather-related disasters do not discriminate, and people from all walks of life and corners of the globe can be affected by such catastrophes. The agricultural sector is especially vulnerable to natural disasters, as farmers can lose their homes and their livelihoods in what feels like the blink of an eye. But farmers should know that various support programs are in place to provide assistance should they need it in the aftermath of a natural disaster.

Programs in the United States

- Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP): The Farm Service Agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture notes that this program provides compensation to eligible livestock producers who have suffered grazing losses due to drought or fire on land that is native or improved pastureland with permanent vegetative cover. Assistance also is available when land planted specifically for grazing has been affected by drought or fire.
- Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP): This provides benefits to livestock producers for livestock deaths in excess of normal mortality caused by adverse weather or by attacks by animals reintroduced into the wild by the federal government.
- Emergency Loan Program: This program provides loans to producers as they seek to recover from production and physical losses due to drought, flooding and other natural disasters. Loans also may be available after losses due to quarantine or by animal quarantine laws imposed in accordance with the Plant Protection Act.

- Emergency Conservation Program (ECP): This program helps farmers and ranchers repair damage to farmlands caused by natural disasters. The program also helps put in place water conservation methods during severe drought.
- Noninsured Disaster Assistance Program (NAP): This program pays covered producers of noninsurable crops when low yields, loss of inventory or prevented planting occur due to natural disasters.

Cale Bradshaw says it's been a good season, so far

By MARIE MCCOLM

CENTER — Cale Bradshaw, who is a farmer and works for Ponderosa Partnerships in Center, stated, "It's been a good season, so far."

Ponderosa Partnerships is a third-generation farm.

"My grandfather started the farm in the early 80's. We grow grain, alfalfa, and have a cattle program from birth to butcher. We have quite a bit going on at the farm, it's very diverse all times of the year," he said.

Bradshaw stated that a typical day on the farm means you get up early, and you are out on the farm by 7 a.m.

"We are up checking the fields, and the sprinklers. In the summer-time, we check cattle, and calves. We look at our potato crops and barley crops, all the while trying to fight the weather, and figure out the best time to cut our alfalfa," he said.

Bradshaw said there are many distinct aspects and things that need to be looked at while being a farmer, "It's about irrigation management and fertility management, disease control, and pest control, that's why we are checking on everything."

Bradshaw stated that every ranch is different, but they usually start calving around the first of March.

"That usually takes us anywhere from 60 to 90 days to complete. A lot of the calves will go to the sale barn. We keep about 10 to 15 calves, and I feed those out until they hit 1,800-pound weight, and then I take them to a processor, and we sell the beef ourselves. We do Wagyu beef."

Bradshaw stated that his favorite part of the work, is the ranching aspect with the cattle, and the haying.

"I love working with the cattle. Ranching in my perspective really goes into the haying operation and creating feed for our cattle. We feed our cattle our own feed. I love the ranching aspect, and the haying, putting up all the alfalfa and grass hays that we put up, that's probably my favorite part of the whole process," he said.

Bradshaw spoke about harvesting alfalfa and what goes into that process.

"The first cutting starts about June 15. The second cutting is mid-July. The third cutting varies for us because of potato harvest. The third cutting is probably like mid-September. Here in the valley, we do those three cuttings. We get three crops off a field. You start with a swather, and you cut the alfalfa. You cut it for 7 days on average before you rake it together. After you rake it, you put it in a bale, and get it off the field, and hope the rain doesn't get you," he stated with a laugh.

Bradshaw stated that most of the alfalfa they grow, and harvest gets sold at dairies in New Mexico. Bradshaw said the grain they have is mostly "Coors barley," so it goes to Coors.

"The potatoes, well, we have our own potato warehouse. They go through our potato warehouse, and Walmart does the majority of buying out at the warehouse," he said.

Bradshaw stated that it's because of his grandfather that the farm has been around since the 1980's.

"We just keep it in the family and keep it going," he said.

Bradshaw stated he started farming when he was 12 years old, and he has now been a farmer for 27 years.

"Being part of the family, I was told that I was going to the farm, and that's what I did," he said.
