Cerny announces retirement

STAFF REPORT

ALAMOSA — Longtime San Luis Valley newspaper publisher Keith R. Cerny has announced his retirement after 32 years here, effective Friday, Aug. 30.

"When we purchased the company a year ago, Keith informed us he planned to retire in six months," said John Elchert, chief operating officer for San Luis Valley Publishing, LLC. "We are grateful that he agreed to stay on for a full year.

"We thank him for his good work with us in the transition, and for his many years of commitment to the community and our industry."

Cerny, 68, has overseen newspaper and digital media operations for the daily Valley Courier and the six weekly newspapers and Lifestyles shopper during his SLV tenure. He previously managed newspapers in Wyoming and Nebraska and served as a division manager for News Media Corporation over papers in Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona and Oregon.

"I plan to stay involved in the SLV community and continue to volunteer my time for various groups I'm already serving," Cerny said. "And hopefully spend more time in our second home in Creede."

Keith's wife Debra Sowards-Cerny will continue in her role as advertising manager at the Courier assisting customers with their print and digital advertising needs.

Rio Grande County Museum awarded grant

STAFF REPORT

DEL NORTE — The Rio Grande County Museum recently announced it received a SIPA grant that will help digitize their historic newspapers between 1874 and present.

"This has been a project we have been working on for a long time and we are so excited to be able to share the history of these newspapers with the public," said Museum Director Lyndsie Ferrell.

According to history collected by the museum the San Juan Prospector was the 11th oldest newspaper in Colorado beginning in February of 1874. In the early days of print correspondence, newspapers were a staple in every household and were depended upon by communities worldwide. The San Juan Prospector is the oldest newspaper in Rio Grande County.

The first publisher for the newspaper was Nick Lambert who published the first San Juan Prospector on Feb. 4, 1874. The paper was set by hand on a Washington hand press which was hauled over Mosca Pass by a team of mules led by W.H. Cochran and Abe Roberts who came from Pueblo.

San Luis Valley Potato Festival almost here

MONTE VISTA — The San Luis Valley Potato Festival is less than a week away. This year's festival will be held on Sept. 7 at Chapman Park in Monte Vista.

The day begins with the Tater Trot. This 5K event includes a nice T-shirt for a registration fee of $25. Proceeds from this event go to the local pediatric diabetes fund at San Luis Valley Health.

The popular agricultural tours will again be available. According to Jessica Bradshaw, of the Colorado Potato Administrative Committee (CPAC) in Monte Vista, there will be a tour that leaves the park at 8 a.m. and another tour that leaves at 1 p.m. "You can sign up to attend the tour and ride a bus from the park, to visit the designated area, and watch a field being harvested. The bus will go to the research center and to a potato grower's farm," she said.

The tours are free, but registration is requested to ensure that there is enough room on the bus for everyone. The tour provides education on seeding, production and potato harvesting.

According to Bradshaw, a new ride will be available at the fest.

"We will have a zipline. It's part of the kids' games. A large zipline that is free to the public. Something for everyone to ride and have fun with," she said.

Bradshaw also spoke about the Please see FESTIVAL on Page 4A

The press was four tacks of news and advertising type no longer used by the Pueblo Chieftain. It was unloaded in Del Norte in December of 1873. The paper was housed in a cabin located opposite of Young and Case Livery Barn on Columbus Avenue. Lambert's brother, John Lambert, published the Pueblo Chieftain during that time.

John Hughes was the master printer, and Lambert was the artistic printer and owner of the paper. Adair Wilson and Col. D. Russell were successively the first editors, according to the San Juan Prospector's Sept. 30, 1921, article titled "Early Press of the San Juans".

Lambert owned and operated the paper in its first year but then sold the print to Messrs. Howard and Company in March of 1875. Members of the company included John and Edwin Shaw, J. Cary French, James Phillips, and J.C. Howard who were all prominent men in the development of the Town of Del Norte.

By February 1876, the newspaper was sold again to Abe Roberts and W.H. Cochran, the two men who helped bring the press over Mosca Pass. Cochran later acquired Robert's interest, only to sell yet again in May of 1879 to J.M Cochran and the firm name was changed to Cochran Brothers.

In April of 1884, the paper again changed hands and landed in the ownership of George Scibird and John G. Glover. Glover eventually bought out Scibird and welcomed back the Cochran Brothers who remained associated with the paper for the next 50 years.

In 1934, Dean Edward Hammond came on to the newspaper and became one of the most respected newspapermen in Colorado. Hammond published the Prospector for 42 years with the name eventually changing to the Del Norte Prospector.

Now, with the help of several donations and the award from SIPA the historic newspaper will be available online for the general public to peruse through the Colorado Historic Newspaper website.

"The project is in the very early stages, but the papers should be available by fall of next year. We were one of the last newspapers to become digital and it is a huge step in making our collection available not only to researchers and students but to the public as well. We would like to thank the SIPA Board of Directors for their generosity and aid in this very special project," said Ferrell.

Frances Margaret Kolisch July 29, 1950 – Aug. 3, 2024

Frances Margaret Kolisch, 74, of Creede, Colo., passed away surrounded by loved ones on Aug. 3, 2024. She was born on July 29, 1950, and grew up in South Fork, Colo. Frances made Creede her home in 1970 and quickly became a valued member of the community.

Frances's warmth and generosity made her a treasured presence in the lives of everyone she encountered.

Frances's greatest joy in life was her family. She shared a deep and enduring love with her husband of 54 years, Karl Kolisch. The two first met at a dance at the Community Center in South Fork in 1968, and according to Karl, it was Frances's sweet and kind nature — just like her mother's — that won his heart.

Frances also had a soft spot in her heart for dogs. The dogs of Creede knew they could always count on her for a treat, as she was rarely without a pocketful of goodies for her furry friends.

Together, Karl and Frances built a beautiful life centered around their only daughter, Karly Kolisch, and their beloved grandson, Bridger Johns. Frances was a devoted wife, a caring mother, a doting Nana to Bridger, a beloved Aunt and cherished friend. Her kindness, generosity, and unwavering love for her family will be remembered by all who knew her.

Frances is survived by her husband, Karl Kolisch; their daughter, Karly Kolisch (Johns); their son-in-law, Ben Johns; their grandson, Bridger Johns; and her nieces, Truley and Kebra Check, as well as many other nieces and nephews.

In addition to her family, Frances was passionate about her work as a librarian at the Creede School, where she spent over three decades sharing her love of books with countless students. Her warm and welcoming spirit made the library a special place for generations of children, and her dedication to education left a lasting impact on the community.

She was preceded in death by her siblings, Herb Check, Jackie Mckenzie, Phelan Poage, and her parents, Joseph and Dorothy Check.

Frances had a green thumb and loved flowers. For several summers she worked at the 4UR Ranch taking care of the flowers and hummingbird feeders. She enjoyed teasing and chatting with co-workers, kids, and guests.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, Sept. 7, at 11 a.m. at Sunnyside Chapel in Creede, Colo. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to the Upper Rio Grande Animal Society Conour Animal Shelter in Frances's memory, continuing her love of animals, especially dogs.

Frances was known for her sense of humor, love of practical jokes, and even-tempered nature. She was always ready with a smile, a hearty laugh, and a helping hand. Her kind-heartedness knew no bounds — whether you were a stranger or a close friend, she was always willing to offer her help.

Frances will be deeply missed by her family, friends, and the entire Creede community. Her gentle spirit, love of life, and devotion to those she cared for will remain in the hearts of all who knew her.

OPINION & EDITORIAL

First dates

Looking back over my lifetime, I can recall some first dates I've had, and I must admit that I really failed in selecting what to do. If you look online there are always suggestions of things to do on a first date and all of them seem to require a substantial outlay of cash. As a reader of this column, you know that Ol' Dutch has that old Scottish blood that makes us tighter than bark on a tree, and my first dates suffered because of it.

Of course, I also know that I bring a lot to the table, so I really do not have to put out much in the way of monetary expenditures. (Poor Miss Trixie's eyes are rolling around in their sockets like they are pinball marbles. She really needs to get that fixed.) Now, what was I saying? Yes, I bring a lot to the table and couple that with the fact that I really just do not care much about what anyone thinks, it is the recipe for a first date disaster.

I can recall in high school going to a few football games on first dates and that was probably okay given the fact that all of our friends were there, too. And I had a few nice dinners out with young ladies, a few hikes, ATV rides, a concert or two and maybe even a church function when I tried to date religious women.

And I have now figured out that had Ol' Dutch kept to his regimen of boring and unimaginative first dates, I would still be single and free as that bird in the old song "I'll Fly Away." You know the verse, "When the shadows of this life have gone, I'll fly away; Like a bird from prison bars has flown, I'll fly away." But as life often turns out, I am stuck like a beaver in a draining pond, a giraffe in an eight-foot room, a lion with Biblical Daniel and/or like God seems to be stuck with us.

And it is my own fault as I forgot myself when I first met Miss Trixie and took her on a date to beat all dates. Thus, winning her heart and soul forever, so it seems. I am reminded of this today as tomorrow marks the 12th anniversary of our first date. Now you may ask just what did Ol' Dutch do to Miss Trixie that made her so enamored with me?

And I will tell you so that other Nimrods out there do not make the same mistake as Ol' Dutch and find himself entangled in the lifelong web of togetherness. As embarrassed as I am to admit it, Ol' Dutch forgot himself and actually took Miss Trixie bear hunting for our first date. I know, right? I didn't think. Obviously, all of you can look back in hindsight with that proverbial 20-20 vision and say, "you should have known better." But as often happens to men, I was blinded by her pretty face and voluptuous figure and as they say, the rest is history.

Now I think I might have been able to skirt around this blessed entanglement if I had simply taken her along. But Ol' Dutch actually got a bear in the first 30 minutes of hunting and Miss Trixie could see that she needed to hang her suitcase up at my door as she would never be hungry again. And I fell in love with her when nature called while we were on a mountain top. And, unlike my first wife, Miss Trixie was able to answer nature in the woods rather than come to town for a flushing toilet. That is true love, indeed.

So here we find ourselves 12 years later, living the good life and happy as two pigs in a mud puddle. Or that's what she tells me anyway.

I will be out bright and early this week trying to get an elk and bear once again but this time I am leaving Miss Trixie at home. One more miracle shot from Ol' Dutch and poor Trixie would be so much in love she would be no earthly good. I have that effect on women.

Go all-electric—and help change the world

The company I work for recently built a new ticket office at the base of Buttermilk Mountain in Aspen, Colorado. Environmentally, we killed it: argon-gas-filled windows, super-thick insulation and comprehensive air sealing, 100 percent electrification using heat pumps instead of gas boilers. All within budget.

Yet one of the first comments we received was from a famous energy guru: "Nice building. But why do you have a heating system at all?" Or more simply put: "Why didn't you build a perfect building, instead of just a really good one?"

Solving climate change could depend on how we answer that question. My answer: Society needs the Prius of buildings, not the Tesla X.

The green building movement didn't originate only from a desire to protect the environment. It often had elements of the bizarre ego gratification that trumped practicality.

Recall "Earthships" that used old tires and aluminum cans in the walls. Geodesic domes were interesting looking but produced inordinate waste to build. They also leaked. Rudolf Steiner's weirdly wonderful Goetheanum was an all-concrete structure designed to unite "what is spiritual in the human being to what is spiritual in the universe."

Early practitioners such as Steiner, Buckminster Fuller, and Bill McDonough, among others, were often building monuments, whose ultimate goal became the concept of "net zero." Net zero was a building that released no carbon dioxide emissions at all.

Designers achieved that goal by constructing well-sealed, heavily insulated, properly oriented and controlled buildings — but then they did something wasteful. They added solar panels to make up for carbon dioxide emissions from heating with natural gas. The approach zeroed out emissions, but at extraordinary cost that came in the form of added labor, expense and lost opportunity.

While net zero wasn't a good idea even when most buildings were heated with natural gas, the rapid decarbonization of utility grids — happening almost everywhere — and advances in electrification make the idea downright pointless.

Instead, all you need to build an eventual net zero building is to go all-electric. It won't be net zero today, but it will be net zero when the grid reaches 100% carbon-free power. So, all that really matters is that building codes require 100% electrification.

Yet many communities remain focused on that sexy goal of net zero, and therefore include requirements for solar panels, or "solar ready" wiring. Even apart from the issue of cost, many utilities don't need rooftop solar because they increasingly have access to huge solar arrays, giving them more electricity than they need in peak times.

What utilities really need is energy storage and smart management.

That means home batteries and grid integration that allows utilities to "talk" to buildings and turn off appliances during peak times. The problem is that environmentalists haven't evolved: Just like we can't retire our tie-dyes, we think "green" means rooftop solar panels.

My company's Buttermilk building passes the only test that matters: "If everyone built this kind of structure, would it solve the built environment's portion of the climate problem?" The answer for our building is "yes."

Still, aspirational monuments matter. We need the Lincoln Memorial, the Empire State Building. But if we're going to solve climate change in buildings, which is about a third of the total problem, new structures will have to reconceive what we consider efficient and beautiful. And it doesn't have to break the bank.

Electrification, for example, is getting cheaper every year. Years ago, I served on an environmental board for the town of Carbondale in western Colorado. The overwhelming interest there ended dandelion spraying in the town park. But at one point, we worked on a building.

After a long conversation about the technical tricks and feats we could pull off, a Rudolf Steiner disciple named Farmer Jack Reed said: "We should also plant bulbs in the fall so colorful flowers blossom in the spring." "Why?" I asked, stuck in my own technocratic hole. He said: "Because flowers are beautiful and they make people happy."

So, too, are realistic solutions as we adapt to climate change.

Auden Schendler is a contributor to Writers on the Range, writersontherange.org, an independent nonprofit dedicated to spurring lively conversation about the West. He is senior vice president of sustainability at Aspen One. His book, "Terrible Beauty: Reckoning with Climate Complicity and Rediscovering our Soul," comes out in November.

Salsa Fiesta brings the spice to Creede

By LYNDISIE FERRELL

CREEDE—Main Street was packed to the brim with people gathered for the annual Creede Mountain Run and Salsa Fiesta on Saturday, Aug. 31. Competitors for the Mountain run hit the road early in the morning as the brisk day bloomed over the high caldera cliffs north of town and set the stage for the coming festivities.

As the morning went on, runners from the race began to trickle in while ticket holders for the Salsa Fiesta eagerly waited for business owners to set up tables with their variety of salsa to try. Over 20 businesses participated in this event, offering spicy selections that varied from fruit, red, green and freestyle salsa for the masses to vote on.

Several businesses throughout town held end-of-summer sales while music filled the air at Basham Park near downtown. The sidewalks filled with people as the day turned warm. The Creede Farmers Market was full of vendors offering everything from fresh produce to canned goods and homemade wares.

Winners for the Creede Mountain Run will be released as they come available, but the race was well potato bake that will take place.

"The Monte Vista boys varsity basketball team will host this," Bradshaw said. "It's a free baked potato, but the team does ask for donations for the fixings and the drinks. The traditional potato dunk tank will also be there and begin at 10:30 a.m., and there are four people signed up for that, too."

Bradshaw stated that she is excited every year for the festival, and the CPAC will be at the festival beginning at 8 a.m.

"We have the San Luis Valley Community Band coming in at 11 to do a performance. We will have our Chef Competition, with three chefs competing this year, with RJ Harvey of Potatoes USA, Jason Morse of 5280 Culinary, and Tim Alfrey of the Windsor Hotel. We are pretty excited about adding some local flair to the competition. They will be focusing their efforts toward Colorado themed potato pizza. It will be fun to see what they come up with," she said.

Bradshaw stated that there will be lots of kids games this year, including bouncy houses and a petting zoo. She also said the "Swoop of the Cranes" live auction would take place at the festival at 3 p.m.

Bradshaw stated that she feels the best part of the festival is that it is family centered.

"It's just a good time to celebrate. We hope everyone comes out," she said.

How to Defeat Procrastination

It's been said that "A journey of a thousand miles begins with one step."

The biggest thief of our dreams is procrastination. We can think about doing the right thing, plan to do it, and talk about doing it, but nothing changes in our lives until we start consistently doing what we need to do!

For instance, perhaps you are struggling with bad habits that are holding you back. You would like to change, but you're not sure you want to change. Someone once said that bad habits are like a comfortable bed; they're easy to get into, but hard to get out of.

But think of it this way: Are you willing to sacrifice and do the more difficult thing now in order to enjoy a life of freedom later on?

Hebrews 12:11 says, "No discipline seems pleasant at the time, but painful. Later on, however, it produces a harvest of righteousness and peace for those who have been trained by it" (NIV).

The irony is that we are often unwilling to suffer for a short while just to do what needs to be done. Then we end up with continual misery, dread, guilt, and the penalties of having put off something that would have taken a few minutes or a few hours to do.

In other words, by putting off the pain of doing something hard, we often spend much more time avoiding it than it would take to just do it!

To me, nothing feels better than knowing that I am doing my best, making the best choices I can make, and consistently making progress toward the best life that God has for me.

Being mediocre does not feel good to me, and I doubt that it feels good to you either. You may have gotten used to it and forgotten that there is something better, but this is a wake-up call to arise and be all you can be. The best time to get started is now!

Procrastination is very deceptive. It makes us complacent by telling us that we are going to do the right thing. It justifies inactivity. I once heard a story someone made up to illustrate this point...

Three demons who were graduating from their course on how to deceive people in the world and prevent them from knowing God. Satan was questioning each demon, and he asked each one how he would deceive people.

The first one answered that he would tell people there was no God. Satan answered, "You won't deceive many because most people down deep inside of them do believe God exists even if they have not chosen to follow Him."

The second demon said he would tell people that heaven and hell didn't really exist. Satan said, "You will deceive a few more than your coworker, but you won't get many souls either."

The third demon said that he would tell people that there was no hurry, and they could put off the decision to follow God until another time. Satan got excited and said loudly, "You will reap many souls for the kingdom of darkness by simply telling them to make the decision later."

I have never forgotten this story even though I heard it more than 30 years ago.

Procrastination is a thief—it steals our time, our potential, our self-esteem, and our peace of mind. It is like a lullaby that whispers, "Go to sleep—everything will be fine." But everything will not be fine if we put off doing what we need to do. And the task isn't going to get done by itself!

Procrastination is very deceptive, and we can only conquer it by becoming what I call a "now" person. Be aggressive when you know you need to do something. Don't put it off and keep putting it off—just do it!

When we put things off, they aggravate us. We may not even be consciously aware of it, but unfinished projects pressure us.

If you walk through your home and see dishes in the sink, laundry on the floor, trash cans filled to the brim, beds unmade, every countertop piled high with mail that needs to be sorted, I feel certain that it pressures you in some way.

You may even get grouchy and start an argument with someone else in the house just because you feel overwhelmed. When we find fault with someone else it diverts our attention from how we feel about ourselves. Procrastination never makes us feel good.

If the grass needs to be cut, the weeds need to be pulled, the car needs to be washed and the oil needs to be changed, and the garage is a disorganized mess, it pressures you. You can complain about the mess, or you can stop procrastinating and take action one item at a time to bring order to your home.

God is certainly a God of order and organization. Some of the details recorded in the Bible about the building of the Ark and the Temple are just amazing to me. God made sure that everything was done in the most orderly and best way possible. Chaos makes us feel confused, and God is not the author of confusion, but He's a God of order and peace (1 Corinthians 14:33).

I encourage you to form the habit of being a now person—one who does what needs to be done as soon as you can. All truly successful people have this habit. We don't become successful by putting things off!

Again, something can seem so big in our minds, but if we make a decision to just get going and take action, it's amazing how much differently things appear after we make a little progress.

Galatians 6:9 is so encouraging. It says, "Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up" (NIV).

Take a few moments right now and ask God to give you the grace to become a now person. Then write down one or two things—even if they are small—that you can do today to get started. Then do them. Little by little, you can defeat procrastination if you refuse to give up.

Rural Philanthropy Days coming to the San Luis Valley

A crucial conference for nonprofits in the San Luis Valley

STAFF REPORT

MONTE VISTA — Once every four years, a stunning event takes place where Colorado funders and grantmakers trek to the San Luis Valley for the Rural Philanthropy Days (RPD) conference, a three-day event that creates the opportunity for rural nonprofits to connect with foundations and funding sources in order to build nonprofit capacity, foster and grow relationships and fuel regional collaboration that leads to increased grant dollars being awarded to rural communities like those found in the San Luis Valley.

This year, the Community Resource Center, who organizes and oversees the RPD events, anticipates more than 75 funders and grantmakers will come to the Valley. The conference, which runs from Sept. 11 to Sept. 13, will be held at the Ski-Hi Complex in Monte Vista with evening receptions in downtown Alamosa.

It's difficult to overestimate how valuable this event is for those in the nonprofit sector, not only because of the extraordinary opportunity to connect with new and different funding resources but also for nonprofit professionals, grantmakers, community leaders, distinguished speakers, and elected officials to exchange knowledge and establish meaningful relationships across their professional networks in the region.

The conference also offers professional development, educational opportunities, and relevant panel discussions pertaining to the promises and obstacles of operating a nonprofit in the San Luis Valley region.

Featured events include facilitated tours in the San Luis Valley, a regional town hall, a panel discussion highlighting action change told through lived experiences, networking receptions, and capacity building sessions on the economic impact of nonprofits, building effective coalitions, and intersectionality in the nonprofit sector.

During the San Luis Valley Nonprofit Community Fair on September 11, regional nonprofits and local governments will have the opportunity to host a table where their peers, statewide leaders, and funders can approach them to connect and learn more about their work. Through this session, funders and nonprofit organizations have the opportunity to develop a mutual understanding of one another in a relaxed environment.

"Rural Philanthropy Days (RPD) conferences stand as flagship events in rural Colorado," says CRC Co-Board Chair, Leslie Baldwin. "These conferences are born out of collaboration with community leaders, fostering dialogue and tackling key topics shaped by their firsthand experiences. This platform allows nonprofit professionals to engage directly with statewide funders, partake in professional development opportunities, and connect with fellow community leaders from across the region. Whether aiming to lay the groundwork for new initiatives or amplify existing efforts, RPD offers a vital space for networking and growth."

Jason Medina, Executive Director of the Community Foundation of the San Luis Valley notes that "Rural Philanthropy Days are the perfect opportunity for urban nonprofit funders to gain a deeper understanding of rural challenges and opportunities, build relationships with local leaders and communities, and address the unique needs of rural nonprofits. This allows funders to build more inclusive and effective funding strategies, to make more sustainable and meaningful impact, and to promote greater equity in their investments in rural work."

"This conference is so important because of its lasting impact," said event Co-Chair, Karla Shriver. "Participants learn new skills, network with other non-profit leaders, governmental staff, business leaders and potential funders from all over the state. You can draw a direct line from the impact of this conference to increased support for non-profits and individuals living in the San Luis Valley."

Registration is currently open and those who are interested should go to <https://crcamerica.org/programs/rural-engagement/regional-websites/san-luis-valley/2024-slv-rpd-workshops-and-speakers/>.

APD seeking public's help in identifying suspect

ALAMOSA — The Alamosa Police Department has released an enhanced photo of a person-of-interest in an armed robbery from March of 2023.

On March 31, 2023, at approximately 9 p.m., APD officers were notified of an armed robbery that occurred at the Alta Station at 3213 Main St. in Alamosa. The suspect, who is described as Hispanic, 5-foot-8 to 6-foot, and light skinned, presented a knife and took an undisclosed amount of cash.

At the time of the robbery, detectives obtained video evidence, but the video's quality was not discernable enough to provide details on the suspect. Detectives sent the video to an outside agency that enhanced it with advanced technology and provided this photograph.

If you have information on this robbery or can identify the suspect in the photograph, contact APD Detective Brandon Bertsch at 719-589-2548.

Estate sale benefits local 4-H

By MARIE MCCOLM

MONTE VISTA — An estate sale in Monte Vista the past two weekends has helped raise more than $4,000 to help the 4-H Foundation in the San Luis Valley.

The foundation and the Colorado State University Extension San Luis Valley Area Office are trying to raise money to fund a second 4-H agent in the SLV for decades.

According to estate sale organizer Ruthie Brown, so far, the sales have yielded $4,204, but that total was expected to grow as they tally everything.

"There are still some very nice items available, so we can make more, but that is the running total so far," she said.

According to Brown the estate sale items were donated by an area family.

"Larry Garner, spoke to the family, and told them about me, and about the 4-H Foundation. They were looking for a charity to donate to, and they decided that 4-H would be a good fit. There was a lot of stuff donated. We have had good prices on everything, too. Hopefully, we can sell some more, and I can also sell it in my store at the Green Spot, and continue to donate the money from whatever is sold, to the foundation," Brown said.

The Colorado State University Extension SLV Area Office has had a campaign going to raise money for an endowment. Larry Brown, of the CSU Extension Office, explained that an endowment is where an organization receives a money and then invests the money so it can earn interest, and the organization uses the interest for what they are doing without ever touching the base amount of money.

"We have had a campaign going to raise $3 million," Larry Brown said. "We want to use this to make a second 4-H agent position permanent. So, this won't just last two or five years down the road, we want it to last 30 or 40 years down the road, to help pay a second agent."

Larry Brown explained the money raised at the estate sale will be donated to this endowment fund.

To donate to the endowment, contact the local CSU Extension SLV Area Office at 719-852-7381.

History Colorado to engage communities in preserving Valley's past

By PRISCILLA WAGGONER

DENVER — History Colorado has been awarded a $300,000 grant from the Mellon Foundation to collaborate with residents of the San Luis Valley to develop sustainable, community-led preservation plans that preserve sites of meaning, provide economic and social benefits and increase representation of the Valley on the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

The basis of this project is to create deep, meaningful engagement with local leaders and community organizations in the San Luis Valley to identify 10 sites that are eligible for listing on the State and National Registers.

Sites will be considered for research and nomination based upon the benefit their designation will be to the public, including factors like how accessible the site to the community is, what kind of learning opportunities can the site provide and what are the site's relationship and contributions to the local economy and social infrastructure.

"The San Luis Valley was historically both a geo-political and cultural borderlands, in which the combination and collision of Indigenous, Hispano, and Anglo peoples formed a hybrid culture that is like no other in the United States," said Dawn DiPrince, President/CEO of History Colorado and State Historic Preservation Officer.

"Preserving the sites that tell the authentic stories of the Valley and provide collective meaning to its people is critical to recognizing the full breadth of our state's history before it is lost to time.

"This effort will also provide us an opportunity to invest in the future prosperity of the Valley as historic designations can provide access to funding avenues that can be used to protect sites which define communities," DiPrince said.

While the specifics of how this project will be implemented are still being developed, Luke Perkins, History Colorado's Manager of Communications and Public Relations, told the Valley Courier, "We're planning to hold three major convening events where we will engage with community leaders to identify the sites. We'll also be offering an honorarium for those people who attend."

In addition to providing technical support in researching and nominating sites, this grant funds consultation opportunities with grant-writing and sustainability planning experts who will help locals establish sustainability plans for each of the sites added to the State and National Registers. This consultation will assist locals to develop funding applications that support ongoing maintenance, operation, and/or redevelopment and restoration plans for sites so they both preserve the past and serve the contemporary and future needs of San Luis Valley and its residents.

It's the hope of History Colorado that the preservation support and projects put in place by this grant will continue to pay dividends for the community long after the grant-funded effort is completed by empowering locals to lead preservation efforts across the San Luis Valley and provide a model for how preservation can meet the needs of under-resourced communities.

S.P.M.D.T.U. in Antonito Is an example of historic resources in the San Luis Valley currently on the State and National Register of Historic Places.

"We are lucky that San Luis Valley communities have fiercely and lovingly preserved their rich historic resources for generations, and we are eager to support their stewardship with additional resources and tools," DiPrince said. "This project has the potential to set a standard for how historic preservation can turn the vital markers of the past into economic drivers of the future."

The work done in the San Luis Valley will also provide History Colorado an extensive opportunity to evaluate the processes and procedures which govern nomination to the State Register. It is the organization's hope that community input provided through this project will help remove any undue barriers that restrict marginalized communities from accessing historic designation and preservation funding.

"When people think classically about historic properties, they envision stunning Victorian houses, and the creations of renowned architects, but this only represents a portion of our shared history," DiPrince said. "This work allows us to advance what historic preservation looks like and build an inclusive historic record that represents the experiences of all of Colorado's people."

Colorado Heritage for All is an intentional effort by History Colorado to address the lack of representation of all of Colorado's diverse communities on the State and National Register of Historic Places. Colorado Heritage for All supports nominations and the listing of 150 currently unrecognized historic resources that tell the stories of marginalized communities by the end of 2026.

History Colorado's mission is to create a better future for Colorado by inspiring wonder in our past. We serve as the state's memory, preserving and sharing the places, stories, and material culture of Colorado through educational programs, historic preservation grants, collecting, outreach to Colorado communities, the History Colorado Center and Stephen H. Hart Research Center in Denver, and 10 other museums and historic attractions statewide. History Colorado is one of only six Smithsonian Affiliates in Colorado. Why you need dental insurance in retirement.

Many Americans are fortunate to have dental coverage for their entire working life, through employer-provided benefits. When those benefits end with retirement, paying dental bills out-of-pocket can come as a shock, leading people to put off or even go without care.

Simply put — without dental insurance, there may be an important gap in your healthcare coverage.

When you're comparing plans ...

- ▶ Look for coverage that helps pay for major services. Some plans may limit the number of procedures — or pay for preventive care only.
- ▶ Look for coverage with no deductibles. Some plans may require you to pay hundreds out of pocket before benefits are paid.
- ▶ Shop for coverage with no annual maximum on cash benefits. Some plans have annual maximums of $1,000.

Medicare doesn't pay for dental care!

That's right. As good as Medicare is, it was never meant to cover everything. That means if you want protection, you need to purchase individual insurance.

Early detection can prevent small problems from becoming expensive ones.

The best way to prevent large dental bills is preventive care. The American Dental Association recommends checkups twice a year.

Previous dental work can wear out.

Even if you've had quality dental work in the past, you shouldn't take your dental health for granted. In fact, your odds of having a dental problem only go up as you age.²

Treatment is expensive — especially the services people over 50 often need.

Consider these national average costs of treatment ... $222 for a checkup ... $190 for a filling ... $1,213 for a crown.³ Unexpected bills like this can be a real burden, especially if you're on a fixed income.

Newcomer's Guide to Gardening in the Valley

Perennial flowers for the San Luis Valley

By EMILY FOLZ
 CSU Extension Colorado Master Gardener

SAN LUIS VALLEY — Driving along Highway 160 and looking across the arid landscape of the Valley, with its sagebrush and saltbush, tumbleweeds and dust devils, one might think growing colorful gardens full of perennial flowers was nearly impossible. But I keep stumbling across Valley gardens, which I would have thought were too delicate to grow here. We have harsh wind — yes, and bitterly cold winters — yes, and hungry deer — yes, but Valley gardeners have found ways to grow gorgeous flower gardens anyway.

An avid Valley gardener shared her list of no-fail plants. Lists like these are indispensable to newcomers like myself. They come with years of trial and error, 50 years in her case. I was surprised by some of the perennial flowers that made her list — Asiatic lilies, bearded iris, Siberian iris, and peonies — all plants I would have thought too fragile for our conditions. I'm delighted to say I was completely wrong.

The list also included other colorful perennials such as columbines, yarrow, salvia, bleeding heart, spiderwort, mint, and hollyhocks. Hollyhocks are the official flower of Saguache, which just held its annual hollyhock festival. Who would have thought hollyhocks, with their tall, stately stalks covered with seemingly delicate blossoms, would thrive here? But they do!

Early in the summer, I saw several beautiful perennial gardens all planted in full sun with no protection from wind or critters. Blooming during the first few weeks of June were deep purple woodland sage (Salvia nemorosa), red and yellow blanket flower (Gaillardia aristata), blue flax (Linum lewisii), purple Rocky Mountain penstemon (Penstemon strictus), creamy white and soft yellow yarrow (Achillea), white Snow-in summer (Cerastium tomentosum), soft white Apache plume (Fallugia paradoxa), golden columbine (Aquilegia chrysantha), and light violet catmint (Nepeta). Several gardens contained irises in deep purple, bright orange, golden yellow, and soft lavender and cream. One garden had a flower bed completely filled with brilliant red-orange oriental poppies. Another garden had bright yellow-orange California poppy (Eschscholzia californica) which, although a hardy annual in our area, looked beautiful planted alongside perennial deep purple woodland sage.

In July, I visited a gardener south of Monte Vista, who had several flower beds awash with colorful blooming perennials. She had strategically placed her flower beds in areas protected from the wind. My favorite was a flower bed filled with blooming lilies in a multitude of colors - bright fuchsia, butter yellow, bright orange, deep red, pale pink and white. Another flower bed had gorgeous blooming delphiniums in deep purple-blue reaching 4 feet tall, also protected from the wind.

These gardeners, like many others in the Valley, are great teachers, having learned to create beautiful flower gardens despite our tricky growing conditions. They address the issue of wind by planting next to buildings, berms, windbreaks, and shrubs, or by choosing plants that don't seem to mind it. They address the need to conserve water by using drip irrigation or by choosing plants that prefer more arid conditions.

CSU Extension has some great online resources about growing perennials in Colorado. Although not specific to the Valley, the fact sheets below include perennials that grow well at high altitude.

- Flowers for Mountain Communities - 7.406: <https://extension.colostate.edu/docs/pubs/garden/07406.pdf>

- Native Herbaceous Perennials for Colorado Landscapes - 7.242: <https://extension.colostate.edu/docs/pubs/garden/07242.pdf>

Another great resource is the CSU Extension office in Monte Vista. San Luis Valley master gardeners staff the help desk at the CSU Extension office each Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and are happy to answer your gardening questions. You can reach them at 719-852-7381 or by visiting the office. If you don't have access to a computer, you can obtain printed copies of the above fact sheets from them as well.

Do you have garden favorites not listed above? I'd love to hear about them! Please share your experiences and your photos! Email me at SLVgardening@gmail.com

Saguache County Tourism Council unveils new brand identity

CONTRIBUTED

SAGUACHE COUNTY — The Saguache County Tourism Council (SCTC) recently presented its new brand identity, marking a significant step in its ongoing efforts to enhance and promote the unique attractions of Saguache County. This new identity is a crucial part of the organization's strategy to position the county as a premier destination within Colorado.

"Our new brand is more than just a logo; it's a reflection of Saguache County's vibrant spirit and natural beauty," said Theo Boudreaux, board chair of the SCTC. "We believe this identity will help us stand out and connect more deeply with visitors from across the state and beyond."

The brand draws inspiration from the breathtaking San Luis Valley, incorporating the rich hues of our pristine night skies, towering mountains, and sunlit days. The palette of blue, purple, orange, and yellow echoes the natural splendor of Saguache County, creating a visual identity that is both recognizable and deeply connected to the area's landscape.

Developed as part of the Colorado Tourism Office's Reimagine Destinations Program, this brand revamp was made possible through 100 hours of dedicated administrative support, aiming to enhance SCTC's engagement with local tourism activities and promote responsible visitation. The program includes the new brand identity, the "Do SLV Right" campaign promoting visitor responsibility, strengthened community involvement through collaborative workshops, and improved organizational efficiency.

In addition to the rebranding efforts, the tourism council is advancing various initiatives, including the creation of a new TravelStories series, support for Dark Skies, support for the Historic Hot Springs Loop, active participation in the San Luis Valley Tourism Association, and the "Care for Colorado" program. Moreover, the council is excited to announce a $20,000 grant from the CTO to enhance trail signage across the county and install visitor kiosks in partnership with the BLM and US Forest Service.

The tourism council has grant funding available to individuals and organizations for marketing and promoting public-facing events that are held within the county.

To view the new brand in action, learn about the "Do SLV Right" principles, apply for a tourism grant, or learn more about our ongoing efforts, visit Mystic-Colorado.com. We encourage those interested in joining our efforts to connect with us at info@mystic-colorado.com.

The SCTC is an all-volunteer board of community members dedicated to promoting and supporting tourism in Saguache County. Current board members are Theo Boudreaux (Chair), Christine Gydesen (Vice Chair), Andy Hackbarth, Faith O'Reilly, and Kairina Danforth. The SCTC wished to extend its deep appreciation to Vivia Lawson and Ed Sparbaro, who recently retired from the board after many years of dedicated service. Ameille Warner serves as marketing and administrative consultant. Anyone who has an interest in joining the board can reach out at info@mystic-colorado.com.

CRT receives Henry Award nomination

By LYNDSIE FERRELL

CREEDE — It was an evening full of laughter and fun for all who attended the Colorado Theatre Guild's Henry Awards and those present made the best of it including several members of the Creede Repertory Theatre (CRT).

According to the Colorado Theatre Guild, the Henry Awards began in 2006 and were named for Henry Lowenstein.

"The awards are named for longtime local theatre producer Henry Lowenstein. Nominations are determined through a judging process conducted by more than 100 statewide peer professionals, academics / educators and other theatre lovers. Few people have had as much impact on theater in Denver — or the lives of theater people in Denver — as Henry Lowenstein, who ran Denver Post publisher Helen Bonfils' crown jewel on East Colfax Avenue and Elizabeth Street until the theater closed in 1986. He discovered new talent. He launched careers. He encouraged women and people of color. For hundreds of thousands of Coloradans, the Bonfils served as their first experience in live theater."

CRT Marketing Director Kate Berry was nominated for her lead role in "Mountain Octopus" that hit the CRT stage in 2023. It was a beautiful play about the process of grief in a small mountain town that resembled Creede.

CRT alumni also received nominations: Christy Montour-Larson Please see AWARD on Page 3

Larry Holder Exercise and Cancer Survivorship program seeks participants

By ADAMS STATE UNIVERSITY

ALAMOSA — The Larry Holder Exercise and Cancer Survivorship program offers cancer survivors in the San Luis Valley the opportunity to participate in an individualized exercise program conducted in a group setting which meets three times per week for 10 weeks.

Starting its sixth year, this program offers a place where participants can work toward their personal fitness goals in a non-judgmental setting while enjoying a support network of fellow cancer survivors. The program also gives Adams State undergraduate and graduate kinesiology students experience in fitness testing and guiding and supporting program participants throughout the exercise program.

The Adams State University Department of Kinesiology continues important research on the benefits of several types of exercise on the physical, mental, and social health of cancer survivors. According to the American Society of Clinical Oncology, regular exercise Please see EXERCISE on Page 2

DENVER — Black bears in Colorado are entering hyperphagia and will spend up to 20 hours a day trying to search out and eat as much food as possible as they fatten up for winter. In the coming months, it is critical that people are vigilant and proactive in removing all attractants from outside homes and campsites in order to prevent conflicts and encounters with black bears.

Twenty chicken sandwiches, 10 large orders of French fries, 10 soft drinks and 10 milkshakes is the approximate fast-food order needed to total 20,000 calories. That is how many calories hyperphagia, an increase in feeding activity driven by biological need, drives a hungry black bear to consume every single day as they pack on the pounds to build up their fat reserves to survive the winter.

Over half of bear incident reports in 2023 occurred in the months of August, September and October. And as bears begin this annual quest to prepare for winter and hunt for food, Coloradans may see more bear activity in urban areas.

Reported conflicts with bears most commonly result from attractants such as trash, bird seed, pet food, and barbecue grills. When bears become too comfortable around people, they can destroy property or even become a threat to human safety.

"Research shows that bears prefer natural sources of food. But they will seek out sources of human-provided food if it's available which can become dangerous to humans," said CPW Northwest Region Senior Wildlife Biologist Brad Banulis. "Preventing bears from relying on human food sources takes a community effort, and it's important that we all take proactive steps to limit human food sources in order to avoid any possible conflicts with bears and bear-proof our homes."

Fish on!

Let's Go Fishing Kids' Program announced the winner of the fishing competition sponsored by Alamosa Riverkeeper. Finneas Wright, pictured, of Capulin caught a 13-inch rainbow for the first prize of $100 offered by Alamosa Watershed. Second-place winners are Len Hanson and Matthew Martinez, with 10.5-inch rainbows. The fishing program partners with Colorado Parks and Wildlife to promote fishing in the Alamosa River and develops trained volunteers in water sampling, macroinvertebrate sampling, and riparian and health assessment, which helps protect the river and watershed.

Creede office closes for winter

DEL NORTE — The Divide Ranger District of the Rio Grande National Forest announced Aug. 20 the immediate closing of its Creede office. The early closure is needed to prepare for renovations that will begin in the coming weeks.

"We had a fantastic year at the Creede office, highlighted by valuable engagements with both visitors and locals alike," said Divide District Ranger Patrick Moran. "Our planned renovations will begin soon, and it would not be prudent to keep our doors open to the public while the work is being implemented. We look forward to next spring when we can resume our information services and education programs."

Improvements to the office will include window replacements, electrical upgrades, exterior painting and repairs, and other improvements.

To obtain firewood permits, woodcutters will now need to visit the Divide Ranger Station in Del Norte during regular business hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

has been shown to be beneficial for individuals across all stages of cancer and cancer types. In addition, regular exercise has been shown to reduce the risk of cancer recurrence.

All cancer survivors ages 18 years or older are welcome regardless of gender, type, or stage of cancer. This fall's research study begins the week of Sept. 2 with appointments for individual fitness testing. There is no cost to the participant, but completing the entire twelve weeks of the study is crucial to ensure accurate results are obtained. The study consists of one week of pre-testing followed by 10 weeks of exercise programming, with post-testing to identify changes in fitness and overall health starting the week of Nov. 18. The program is funded through local support from the SLV Health Foundation, including the Larry Holder Golf Tournament, after completing a two-year grant from the Colorado Cancer Coalition.

Interested participants are encouraged to attend one of the following pre-registration meetings: 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 21, or 12 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22. All meetings will be held in the Adams State East Campus Building, room 109. The East Campus Building is on the corner of First Street and La Veta Avenue in Alamosa.

For more information, or for those who cannot attend one of the scheduled pre-registration meetings, contact the Adams State Kinesiology Department program coordinator, Ally Miles at 303-519-9932, milesaj@adams.edu; or Abby Adiong, adiongar@adams.edu; or Peggy Johnson at pyjohnson@adams.edu.

(CRT: "August: Osage County," "The Last Romance," "Baskerville") for Best Director of "Truth Be Told" at Curious Theatre Company; Max Silverman (CRT: "Steel Magnolias," "The Royale," "Baskerville") received two nominations for Best Sound Design; and actor Torsten Hillhouse received a nomination for Best Lead Actor in a Play for "Misery" at Miners Alley Playhouse.

CRT is gearing up for their end of summer activities including the Headwaters New Play Festival which will kick off at the end of August. This year, the festival will include CRT's 10-Minute Plays alongside a viewing of the Young Audience Outreach Tour: "Coyote and the Counting Game."

"Coyote and the Counting Game's" book and lyrics by Diana Grisanti and music by Emiliano Messiez.

"Eight-year-old Gaby is having a rough year. She's failing math, her genius brother has just gone off to college, and her dad won't buy her the drum set of her dreams. But when a crafty Coyote comes into her life, she discovers that she might be able to scheme her way out of her troubles. A modern-day trickster tale, full of fractions, rock 'n' roll, and good old-fashioned moral dilemmas." The festival starts Aug. 30.

CRT will be celebrating their 60th anniversary in 2025 with plays, celebrations and much more. For up-to-date information and a full schedule of events, visit www.creederep.org.

AWARE

berries, fruits, nuts, plants and grasses that grow naturally in the foothills and forests. When natural sources of food become scarce, a bear's drive to search for food can overcome its fear of humans.

Become Bear Aware
CPW offers a reminder that by taking some simple precautions, you can avoid human/wildlife conflicts and help to keep bears wild. CPW encourages you to share Bear Aware information with your neighbors and communities.

- Bear-proofing your home:
- Keep garbage in a well-secured location. Only put out garbage on the morning of pickup.
 - Clean garbage cans regularly to keep them free of food odors: ammonia is effective.
 - Keep garage doors closed. Do not leave pet food or stock feed outside.
 - Use a bear-resistant trash can or dumpster.
 - Bird feeders are a major source of bear/human conflicts. Attract birds naturally with flowers and water baths. Do not hang bird feeders from April 15 to Nov. 15.
 - Don't allow bears to become comfortable around your house. If you see one, haze it by yelling at it, throwing things at it and making loud noises to scare it off.
 - Secure compost piles. Bears are attracted to the scent of rotting food.
 - Clean the grill after each use, and clean up thoroughly after cookouts.
 - If you have fruit trees, don't allow the fruit to rot on the ground.
 - Talk to your neighbors and kids about being Bear Aware.
- Cars, traveling and campsites:

- Lock your doors when you're away from home and at night.
 - Keep the bottom-floor windows of your house closed when you're not at home.
 - Do not keep food in your vehicle; roll up windows and lock the doors of your vehicles.
 - When car-camping, secure all food and coolers in a locked vehicle.
 - Keep a clean camp, whether you're in a campground or in the backcountry.
 - When camping in the backcountry, hang food 100 feet or more from the campsite; don't bring any food into your tent.
 - Cook food well away from your tent; wash dishes thoroughly.
- Protecting your chickens, bees, livestock:
- Keep chickens, bees and livestock in a fully covered enclosure, especially at night.
 - Construct electric fencing when possible.
 - Don't store livestock feed outside.
 - Keep enclosures clean to minimize animal odors.
 - Hang rags soaked in ammonia and/or Pine-Sol around the enclosure as a scent deterrent.

CPW asks all residents and visitors to help save Colorado's bears by being actively bear aware throughout the late summer and fall seasons. Bear conflicts and, unfortunately, bear euthanization is most often traced back to human behavior. It is all of our responsibility to help minimize risks to humans and bears alike by being mindful of our impacts.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
