WINTER BOATING TIPS

BOATING CAN BE DONE YEAR-ROUND. GET THE TIPS YOU NEED TO STAY SAFE ON THE WATER FROM ONE LAKE AREA CAPTAIN.

Winter typically means the end of boating and fishing season. Some diehards, however, are always prepared to spend their wintertime on a boat. Who said there was a boating season?

Boating is a popular activity across the United States all year long. In some locations, boaters end the season as the cold weather sets in. However, even in those places people will still boat year-round. You probably shouldn't plan to do much water skiing or tubing while boating during the winter, but you can get away with it in warmer locations such as Miami and other parts of Florida.

Winter boating usually means less crowding on lakes or rivers, so areas that are too crowded for safe or enjoyable motoring or sailing in the summer are much more easily explored and enjoyed in the winter.

Winter boat sightseeing is a great way to enjoy freedom of movement and to see familiar areas in a whole new light. In fact, you might even be able to open the throttle a bit wider and enjoy some extra knots out there thanks to less company.

In Missouri at lakes such as Lake of the Ozarks or Table Rock, the water temperature in the winter ranges from 56 degrees in November to 35 degrees in February. Typically, the only areas the lake freezes over will be in the back of shallow coves. That means you can boat year-round, providing you and your boat are prepared for cold weather.

Just remember that winter boating is much different from summer boating. Safety always comes first. Consider these tips to make your outing safe and enjoyable.

SAFETY 101

Winter boating safety is a lot like warm weather boating safety: Manage your speed, keep your eyes ahead and don't fall overboard.

Life jackets

The use of life jackets is more important during winter boating than in warm weather. When the water is cold enough, you have only 10 minutes before you lose consciousness and can't help yourself stay afloat. Personal flotation devices are critical even if you're a strong swimmer in normal conditions.

Gas up before you go

With fewer boats on the water, some fuel docks may be closed or maintain shorter hours. Don't assume you can fill up at your destination for the return trip home. Use the 1/3, 1/3, 1/3 rule: 1/3 to arrive at your destination, 1/3 for the return trip, 1/3 for just in case.

Tell someone your boating plan

File a float plan with someone you trust that includes details about the trip, where you are going, when you are returning, passengers, towing or trailer vehicle, communication equipment and emergency contacts.

Charge your batteries

This is a task that can get often overlooked. Nothing could be worse than checking off all of the above tips, getting to the boat ramp or dock slip and cranking the engine only to discover the battery is dead. Batteries drain much quicker in cold weather. Keep them charged at all times with a trickle charger.

Keep a look out

Water levels are lowered to winter pool on many manmade impoundments used for flood control. Bottom hazards are exposed or nearer the surface, so the same lake you speed across during summer is much different in the winter. Designate a passenger as the lookout to keep watch for any hazards in the path of the boat.

Watch out for ice

Large chunks can lurk largely below the surface (Titanic, anyone?) and watch for ice on docks, decks, mooring lines and wires. Iced lines are harder to work and more prone to break, while icy wires can present a shock hazard.

Keep a phone with good service and/or a transponder with you

Getting stranded on the water in the summer is a drag. Being stranded out in the winter is a danger, especially as fewer marinas are operating. Remember to call *55 which is the Missouri Highway Division Water Patrol dispatch contact in the event of an emergency.

Is winter boating a safe idea? Sure, if you're a safe boater. Can it be fun? Absolutely. Just remember that tip about not boating after the surface freezes solid.

EVERGREEN

JORDYN WILSON

Bringing holiday cheer for years and years

EVERGREEN HAS BROUGHT ITS HALLMARK-ESQUE WONDERLAND TO THE LAKE OF THE OZARKS FOR A QUARTER OF A CENTURY.

As Christmas nears, it's common to see businesses get in the holiday spirit – displaying their festive decor and deals. Evergreen, on the other hand, takes the holiday season to a whole other level.

Evergreen made its debut in April 1998. The original owners, Rachel and Jason Taylor operated the store until April 1, 2019. Jason's father, Steve opened the first Evergreen storefront in Kirksville.

When asked what makes Evergreen unique, Jason said the store's "overwhelming sensory overload" gives the place its charm. He also had a customer describe the store, stating, "it's like walking into a Hallmark movie."

The current owner is Blair's Evergreen, LLC, a subsidiary of the Blair Family Limited Partnership. Glen and Elsie Blair of Camdenton founded the company in 1998. The Blairs are also the founders of Ozarkland stores, another Lake of the Ozarks staple.

Glen had a passion for business and had a desire to see his children and grandchildren enjoy the hard work, benefits and blessings of running businesses. Glen and Elsie also had a passion for giving and sharing their blessings with Christian ministries around the world.

The current general partners are Lewis Blair, Maggie Blair Butterfield and Emily Blair Mensendiek.

Like the changing of seasons, Evergreen morphs throughout the year – offering spring and summer florals and decor to cozy and festive fall displays. If you have ever visited in the winter, however, you'll know the highlight of the year is the Christmas holiday season.

Christmas decorating begins in September, ramping up to the annual Holiday Open House the first weekend in November.

Stepping foot into the store, you'll see why so much time is needed to decorate the space. Extreme detail goes into creating themed Christmas displays throughout the entire building.

Want an Evergreen-inspired display of your own? Evergreen offers limited holiday decorating for homes and businesses in the lake area.

One unique service that Evergreen offers is custom silk and floral arrangements at no extra costs. The back of the store is used to store the floral inventory and arrangements are hand-made in store.

Over 70% of Evergreen's customer base is from out of town. They have received requests from customers coast-to-coast to open an Evergreen in their town/city – something they have been preparing for since they opened.

When asked what they enjoy most about owning Evergreen, the response was that it's, "A wonderful opportunity for teaching about life and business in which we get to serve others and put a smile on their faces and a bounce in their steps."

When you visit the store, make sure to say hello to their two shop cats, Gracie and Oreo, Evergreen's CFO (Chief Feline Office).

Evergreen is adding e-commerce on their website where customers can purchase limited items and gift cards through the current site, evergreenatthelake.com.

Evergreen is located at 6711 Highway 54 West in Osage Beach. The store is open Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The store closes on Dec. 31 and reopens on March 1.

Fun ways to spend the first day of the new year

New Year's Day marks the unofficial culmination of the holiday season, which some feel begins months earlier with Halloween. Retailers have had all sorts of party and decorative goods filling shelves throughout the holiday season, and much emphasis has been placed on celebrating with friends and family.

The revelry that comes on New Year's Eve is hard to match, particularly for those who attend lavish parties or venture to city centers to ring in the new year with others. While January 1 may be a bit more quiet, there are still plenty of ways to enjoy this first day of the year.

PLAN A HIKING EXCURSION

There's a good chance you have not been out hiking for awhile, with your most recent venture having been a leaf-peeping trip. Enjoy the natural scenery during an entirely different season, with much lighter crowds at parks and on trails. If you've resolved to exercise more this year, hiking is a great start.

HOST A RELAXING BRUNCH

With all the merrymaking the evening before, most people may need a little time to recuperate before heading out. Brunch is a great way to get people fed and help them shake off fatigue from a late night of partying. With a focus on conversation and food, rather than dancing and drinking, this can be an intimate way to set the tone for the new year.

QUEUE UP THE MOVIES

The hustle and bustle of the holidays can be exciting yet exhausting. Take an opportunity on January 1 to slow down for perhaps the first time in at least two months. Ask household members to choose their favorite films, then spend the day binge watching movies. Eat leftovers or order in so no one needs to leave the comfort of the sofa.

ADOPT A NEW PET

Many charitable animal groups advise against giving pets as holiday gifts because the idea may be spontaneous and pets require a lot of care. For those who have been thinking of welcoming a pet into the family, this may be a good time to visit an animal shelter (if any are open) or peruse online adoption postings. The slow pace of the post-holiday months might be the ideal time to help an animal get acclimated to a new home.

GO SHOPPING

It may seem like the average person has exhausted all of his or her shopping energy by this time, but post-Christmas sales are great ways to stock up on holiday decor for next year at reduced prices. If stores are open on New Year's Day, shop around for ornaments, lawn figures, lights, and more at steep discounts. Then spend the rest of the day sorting and organizing holiday items and discarding those that have seen better days.

HELP AT A NONPROFIT

Volunteer time at a local nonprofit group that delivers meals to homebound locals or one that visits nursing home residents. Start spreading New Year's cheer early on.
